Production in Million Kilowatt Hours:

17,572	47,569	73,791	79,724

Numerous illustrations can be quoted showing convincingly that the curve of development of capitalist economy, both from the qualitative and quantitative point of views marks definite progress.

A few figures to characterize the dynamics of the growth and the redistribution of the parts played by various metals in world industry. If we take the total production of 1913 at 100, the figures of production of various metals in 1926 will be as follows:

Copper	15[illegible]
Aluminum	310

Aluminum is successfully competing with other metals in the electrical industry, in railway construction and in the construction of street cars in the United States and in Germany.

Still more interesting are the figures illustrating the production of artificial silk. The world production of artificial silk is shown in the following figures (in thousands of kilogrammes):

Pre-war production	11,000
1927	125,000

Taking the pre-war figure at 100, the index numbers for the subsequent years will be as follows:

In regard to the latest inventions and their influence on production, we will take as an example the Bergius method. In Germany, synthetic benzine produced by this method, already represents 12 per cent of the total amount of benzine utilized in the country.

At the present time extensive plans for the introduction of new technical processes are being laid down in many countries, for example in Germany and in England, which will have very important economic consequences. These are the schemes to supply gas over long distances in Germany, electrification in Great Britain, etc. It is easy to understand that these technical successes, even if we put the word successes in inverted commas, will inevitably lead to an increase in the productivity in social labor. Gunter Stein, in the "Berliner Tageblatt" writes for example that in the United States the gross output of the manufacturing industries during 1923—1924 increased by 4.5 per cent compared with the normal, whereas in the same period the number of workers employed diminished by over 5 per cent. This means that the productivity of the worker has increased approximately by 30 to 40 per cent.

The development of the chemical industry is important not only from the general point of view, but also from two other points of view:

1. From the point of view of war preparations; for the chemical industry is a first class war industry, and
2. From the point of view of the possibility it holds out of introducing very important changes in the methods of agricultural production.

The world output of chemical products in pre-war times amounted to 10 billion German Reichsmarks; in 1923-24 it amounted to 18 billions. Taking the previous figure at 100 the index number of the second figure will be 140. You will observe that the production of chemical products has greatly increased.

The utilization of nitrate products in the important capitalist countries has increased as follows:

	Pre-war	1926
Germany	260	430
Great Britain	54	61
France	79	152
United States	167	341

THE DEVELOPMENT OF CAPITALIST MONOPOLIES, STATE CAPITALIST TENDENCIES AND THEIR POLITICAL SIGNIFICANCE.

I do not think these figures require any comment, they speak for themselves. The changes in technique which in some countries, primarily in the United States, is assuming the character of a technical revolution, are quite definitely linked up with the trustification of national economy, with the establishment of gigantic banking consortiums and already in the post-war period, with the growth of state capitalist tendencies in multifarious forms. I will mention a few examples. Everyone knows, for example of the existence of gigantic trusts like the German Dye Trust, etc. Everyone must know to what colossal dimensions the chemical industry has become trustified in the Mond concern in England (hence the origin of the notorious term "Mondism"). All the comrades are aware of the existence of "Standard Oil" in the United States. We are now passing through a period not only of the birth and rapid development of colossal capitalist organizations within each capitalist country, but we are also passing through a period of the establishment of giant international trusts. I have before me a whole list of such trusts, which it would be rather boring to read out here.

A short time ago, at the Congress of our Party, I advanced the thesis that we are now observing a certain growth in state capitalist tendencies, not in the pre-war form of "war capitalism" (the social-deceivers of all breeds had the impudence to describe this penal servitude war capitalism as "war socialism"), with the card system of rationing and the specific features connected with war, but in a new form, or rather in new forms. We observe at the present time a growing process in which trusts, cartels and banking consortiums are becoming more linked up with and grafted on to the organs of state of the imperialist bourgeoisie. The nature of the shell in which this process is developing is not important. In some cases it may take the form of the state ownership of industrial enterprises and increased state interference in economic life. In other cases it may take the form of the so-called capitalist economic organizations "capturing the state" from "below" as the liberals express it. Of course, we must categorically reject this latter expression: there is no need to capture the state if the state apparatus is already in the hands of the imperialist bourgeoisie. What we have in mind is the organizational forms in which the economic organizations of the imperialist bourgeoisie become grafted on to organs of the bourgeoisie state. Thus, the form this process assumes is of secondary importance. All that I wish to assert and stress here is that this process is definitely taking place. We observe it taking place in Italy, in Japan, in the United States and in Germany in a variety of forms. There is not the slightest doubt that the process is taking place. Certain comrades formerly expressed doubt concerning this matter. But since then the works of the comrades who have specially investigated this matter have been published; I have in mind particularly the works of Comrades Wurm and Lapinsky who have investigated this subject from the point of view of the development of state and municipal industry and from the point of view of the mutual relations between the private capitalist and state organizations of the imperialist bourgeoisie. All the facts reveal a state-capitalistic tendency in the modern development of imperialist economy.

What are the political results of this process? This we can see from the following example. In America a certain Theodore Knappen, in an article in the "Magazine of Wall Street" for March 19, 1928, entitled, "Business Qualifications of the Leading Presidential Candidates," wrote as follows:

> "It is not an exaggeration to say that he has considered himself and has actually been the director general of American business. Never before, here or anywhere else, has a government department been so completely fused with business... He respects big business and admires big business men, he considers that there is more good in one man who does well a big job than a dozen learned dreamers talking about what they have never attempted and will never accomplish... There can be no doubt that Hoover as president would be without precedent. He would be a dynamic business president even as Coolidge has been a static business president. He would be the first business as distinguished from political president the country has had."

The fact that Hoover is described as Director General of Trusts is in itself a striking political expression of the process of grafting that is taking place between the capitalist trust organizations and the capitalist political state organizations.

STRUCTURAL CHANGES.

The following questions arise: assuming all these facts are correct, what becomes of our analysis of the so-called stabilization of capital? What becomes of our thesis concerning the partial, temporary, etc., stabilization—stabilization with all the definitions and qualifications? What becomes of the question of the general crisis of the world capitalist system when we ourselves admit technical achievements, the growth of trusts and other capitalist organizations and when we on these grounds admit that capitalism has undergone considerable consolidation? What becomes of our special and specific characterization of stabilization? I think that these questions must be clearly presented and clearly replied to. Otherwise we stand the risk of dropping into ideological confusion.

First of all I want to quote a few literary and political references to this question. How did we, a few years ago, picture to ourselves the process of the further development, or the further collapse of the capitalist system? First of all I will deal with the period when we drew up the first draft of our programme. We then formulated the thesis on the condition of capitalism in this way: the capitalist system is undergoing a process of collapse—a process of collapse without qualification. The fate of capitalism as it presented itself to us at that time may be described in the form of a steadily drooping curve.

When we took up the discussion of the draft a second time, we came to the conclusion that some changes ought to be made in the definitions. Already at the Fifth Congress our thesis on the state and ultimate fate of capitalist economy was formulated somewhat differently. Then the word "stabilization" came into use with various qualifications such as "partial," temporary, etc.

Now I submit the following question: what meaning have these definitions and qualifications at the present time? Have they any meaning at all? If they have any meaning, is it the same meaning that we attach to it before, or is it some other? In my opinion the meaning of these definitions now differ somewhat from the meaning we formerly attached to them.

I think that, taken as a whole, we may, in a semi-literary style, define our previous position on this question in the following manner:

It was assumed that some increase in production was observed in only one or two countries and that only as an exception. This increase did not appear to be particularly characteristic and was regarded merely as an auxiliary or "conventional" circumstance. Tomorrow or the day after another process would set in. If on a certain day we observed in a certain country a growth of technique or of productive forces, or a favorable economic situation, we said that this was only a sort of economic "special day" which could not be taken seriously.

It can, and it should be said that at that time there were definite grounds for appraising the situation in this way, but the definition of stabilization as relative stabilization, in many respects, no longer corresponds to the present situation.

Take each country in turn.

The UNITED STATES is marching ahead. Let us assume that predictions concerning a relative crisis in America are true. This possibility is by no means excluded; in fact it is very probable. But the general course of development shows a growth of industry, a growth of production. For the first time in world history and in the history of the labor movement—to speak in the words of Marx—"V" (variable capital—the value of labor power) in the United States is diminishing not only relatively to "C" (constant capital—the value of means of production), but also ABSOLUTELY. The number of workers employed in industry is diminishing. This is occurring for the first time in world history and in the history of the labor movement on so large a scale.

Some comrades may say that this is a pessimistic view. This is not true. We must draw a distinction between optimism and stupidity. These are two different things. If we do not wish to be stupid, we must take the facts as they are. This is the first obligatory prerequisite for all non-stupid tactics.

Take another country, Germany. Some time ago, when I wrote about the growth of technique and of the forces of production in Germany, the "Ultra-Left," anti-Communist Maslov roundly abused me. Now one must be blind not to see that German capitalism is developing rather rapidly and the talk one hears now about imperialism, the dreaming about "mandates" and the longing for colonies, the building of battleships, etc., are by no means accidental.

Take France. It must be clear to everyone that a tremendous difference exists between pre-war France and post-war France; everyone must see that old, usurer France is acquiring new qualities and is now becoming transformed into a substantial industrial country.

Take Great Britain. On the whole Great Britain is passing through a period of decline; her strength is undermined, the might of her empire is waning. On certain sectors the British bourgeoisie is succeeding in increasing the forces of production: for example the so-called new industries.

But even if these facts are true, does it mean that we have to confess that the crisis of capitalism has been liquidated? Or does it mean something else? I would like to put this same question in a more sharply political form: does this analysis coincide with the analysis made by the social democrats?

I think it is quite easy to understand the real state of affairs. The correct reply to this question should be: The general crisis of capitalism continues, more than that, is is developing, although the forms of the crisis are now different. Formerly, we examined the most important symptoms of the crisis in the following manner: we took each in turn and said: in this country capitalism is undergoing a process of decline, in that country and in another the same process is observed, in a fourth perhaps the process is not so rapid, but it is nevertheless there. Like everything else in the world, our appreciation of the crisis of that time had its roots in the economic conditions then prevailing. Germany had reached the lowest ebb of economic collapse. In a number of other countries, particularly in Central Europe, the situation was the same. Thus, our former definitions were based on a somewhat exaggerated estimation of certain real facts. Now the former forms of the crisis have given way to new forms. That is the whole point.

We must not picture the crisis of capitalism and of the capitalist system as a steady decline in almost all capitalist countries or even in a majority of countries. The situation is not quite that. The crisis of capitalism lies in that as a result of the preceding war and post-war phases a fundamental structural change has taken place in the whole of world economy, a change which inevitably intensifies the contradictions of the capitalist system a thousand fold, and will finally lead to its doom.

Take for example the fact of the existence of the U. S. S. R. What does it imply? In the first place, the existence of the U. S. S. R. is the result of the post-war crisis of capitalism, and secondly, it implies that the crisis continues; for we observe the development of an alien, hostile, and on principle, antagonistic body in the world economic system of capitalism. An alien body! Is this not a fundamental structural change in world economy?

CHANGES IN THE ALIGNMENT OF FORCES.

I have already noted the fact that the direct revolutionary situation has passed to the Orient and to the colonial periphery generally. This too, is a result of the post-war crisis. Are not the powerful revolutionary shocks in this periphery of capitalism an expression of profound crises?

Further, what does the so-called disproportion between the United States and Europe—which is striving to liberate itself from the hegemony of America, imply? It, too, implies a structural change in the world economic system. Finally, the contraction of the home markets in capitalist countries and the ruination and pauperization of the colonies make it necessary to present the question of the relations between production and consumption in an entirely different manner from that in which it was presented in the "normal" conditions of capitalism. The situation is developing in such a way that the whole of the future development of the capitalist system may proceed entirely in the forms created by the previous critical periods of capitalism. Capitalism cannot proceed as if the U. S. S. R. did not exist. It cannot proceed as if the Chinese Revolution, as if the disproportion between the United States and Europe, as if the contradiction of markets, etc., etc., did not exist.

These structural changes are of enormous significance for the whole development of the capitalist system and for the appraisement of its prospects. Take for example the development of all the permanent contradictions of capitalism in itself: the fight for markets, the growth of the apparatus of production, which is surpassing the growth of purchasing power, and all the other contradictions with which we are so familiar. I ask you: what conclusions must we draw from the structural changes in world economy that I have noted? I think the following reply must be made: the ferment in the colonies and the surging development of the class struggle imply that the inherent contradictions of the capitalist system are becoming more acute. If the Chinese Revolution is regarded as a mere bagatelle—as the social democrats do, then of course there is no serious crisis of capitalism. If the U. S. S. R. does not exist, then again there is no crisis of capitalism. When the social democrats go so far as to assert that the present phase of capitalism does not inevitably lead to war, and that Marx has become completely obsolete because he advanced the thesis that war is the inevitable outcome of the development of capitalism, then of course, the situation according to the social democrats is quite idyllic—no crisis of capitalism! But if we admit that all the things I have referred to actually exist—and they do exist—then the method of presenting the question and the reply to it will be entirely different.

If we say that stabilization is decaying, then I ask: What are the facts upon which we base this conclusion? Not from the fact that capitalism is in a state of direct collapse in one country or another. Stabilization is decaying because in the present situation development is proceeding along new lines created by the preceding phase and these new lines in their turn cause all the contradictions of capitalism to become more intensified. This intensification of contradictions in its turn leads to the great collapse, to the final catastrophe. That is why capitalism is unstable. That is why stabilization can be only relative stabilization. That is why the crisis of capitalism has not disappeared, it has been driven deep down into the heart of the capitalist system and threatens to develop with greater intensity than ever. But this crisis must not be regarded from the point of view of a single country taken separately, but from the point of view of the general contacts which all countries have with one another within the framework of world economy. At the same time we must take into consideration the mutual relationships between the imperialists, the relationships between capitalist countries, the relationship between various "capitalisms" and the U. S. S. R., etc.

THE CONTRADICTIONS OF CAPITALISM DEVELOP IN THE MOST ACUTE FORM.

Only in this manner can the question of stabilization be presented. And I think that this manner of presentation is sufficiently clear. Many capitalist countries are developing, but this development is proceeding in forms created by the war crisis; it is proceeding simultaneously with the existence of the U. S. S. R., with colonial revolutions, etc. The inherent contradictions of capitalism become more and more acute. Stabilization is really decaying, not because capitalism in every country is declining, but because the structural changes that have occurred in world economy are creating a new situation and are inexorably leading to the collapse of the whole system. These contradictions in separate countries, with the development and intensification of the class struggle and with the growth of the elements of a revolutionary situation. But this process is not now linked up with the process of the direct economic collapse of capitalism in separate countries, but with the process of the development of the contradictions of stabilization, of contradictions which are being enormously intensified by the general conditions of the crisis of capitalism.

I have only briefly touched upon a few of the structural changes of world economy. Permit me to make a few remarks concerning the manner in which our opponents treat the phenomena of the crisis. I will mention the so-called "German problem" which, from a certain angle, is nothing more than the problem of the relationships between the United States and Europe. I have before me an article written by the English statistician and economist, Paish, published in the last issue of "Zeitschrift fur Geo-Politik," No. 4. Paish presents the question in the following manner:

> "Now the debtor countries all over the world are unable to sell their commodities on the scale necessary for the purpose of enabling them to meet their obligations and at the same time to obtain from the sale of their commodities the money necessary for purchasing the things they require for the satisfaction of their needs. For that reason they continue as before to raise large foreign loans. But the crediting countries cannot advance credits on the same scale that they have been doing during the past few years. Unless relief comes in the near future the whole system must very soon collapse. . ."

And then he goes on to say:

> "Thus, the collapse of the international credit system becomes dangerously imminent. (Author's emphasis.) This collapse will be inevitable unless immediate measures are taken to enable the debtor countries to meet their obligations by selling their goods, rather than by further loans. Symptoms of the crisis have accumulated in abundance: flooded markets, growing unemployment in the United States and the enormous magnitude of credit operations in the important industrial countries, primarily in Germany."

I rather doubt the accuracy of this author when he predicts catastrophe all along the line. Here other interests are on the board and it is not difficult to guess which they are. But certain grounds for making assertions of this kind do exist.

But, the German problem is a partial problem which arises out of the fundamental crisis forms of modern world economy. We now observe a number of most acute contradictions. These acute contradictions develop along the various lines: American-Great Britain; Germany-France; Italy-France, etc., all these disproportions,—from the point of view of peace and quiet in the capitalist system—find their expression in the fact that after the war a situation arose in which the genuine economic power of certain states do not correspond to certain of their other features, as for example the possession of colonies. Take for example the United States on the one hand and Great Britain on the other. We observe a powerful growth of American capitalism and yet, to this day, the United States is not a great colonial power. The British world empire is a colonial empire and yet it is in regard to Great Britain that we can say that she is passing through a period of decline, notwithstanding her great colonial monopoly. A similar disproportion can be observed in other countries. Take present day Germany. From the economic and technical point of view she is a first class country and yet she has neither colonies nor mandates nor protectorates. Of equal interest would it be to compare Italy with Spain, etc.

But as contradictions arise from the growth of productive forces and as the struggle for spheres for the investment of capital becomes more acute, we have nothing more nor less than the "resurrection" of the profoundest of imperialist problems—a fresh distribution of the globe, of colonies or other territories. And this means war. From the point of view of the economic analysis of present-day world economy, from the point of view of the specific relationships within imperialist states, from the point of view of the general crisis of capitalism,—from all these decisive points of view, war is the central problem of the present day. That is why, from the point of view of policy and tactics we must put this problem in the forefront. The Social Democrats say that war—is our programme! What stupidity,—it is not a lie, it is just stupidity! This problem objectively is the central problem. And our subjective collective task is to solve this problem, not on imperialist lines, but on proletarian lines; not by supporting imperialist war, but by converting war into proletarian civil war against the bourgeoisie.

INTER-STATE ANTAGONISMS.

It is quite understandable that the process of economic development should determine and crystallize corresponding relationship between states. In analyzing the general complex of political relationships between capitalist states, the thing that stand out prominently is the great antagonism that exists between various state forms: antagonism between capitalist countries and the colonies, particularly in China; antagonism between capitalist countries and the U. S. S. R. and the antagonism between Europe, particularly Great Britain, and the United States of America. In regard to specific European relationships they are to a considerable degree determined by the changes that have taken place in Germany's position and the resuscitation of German imperialism. I have already referred to the growing contradiction between the economic and political power of the United States and the relatively insignificant dimensions of her colonial possessions. This contradiction finds expression in the growing aggressiveness of the United States of America. The slogan "peaceful penetration" is gradually giving way to open political and military occupation. The events in Nicaragua are a striking expression of this change in the policy of the United States. Notwithstanding all her liberal professions, the position of the United States is not far removed materially from military occupation.

The aggressive policy of the United States is countered by her rival Great Britain. Anglo-American antagonism is now the pivot around which all the antagonisms between capitalist states revolve.

Conflicts between the United States and Great Britain take place in the most varied spheres. In the rather big conflict over rubber, Britain suffered a defeat and was compelled to compromise. Britain was defeated also in the struggle for oil. Now the fight is taking place over cotton. I have in mind the plans of United States capital affecting Africa—in Abyssinia and through her to Egypt. United States capitalism has already stretched out its feelers towards India.

On the South American continent the United States already holds the northern part of Latin America in economic servitude, and now it is fairly successfully competing with Great Britain in the southern parts of Latin America. I repeat and emphasize that the conflict between the United States and Great Britain is the pivot around which the contradictions within the capitalist sector of world economy revolve.

THE RESUSCITATION OF GERMAN IMPERIALISM AND THE CRISIS OF THE VERSAILLES TREATY.

In Germany a peculiar "Renaissance" is taking place, which is extremely important from the point of view of European relationships, namely, the resuscitation of German imperialism. What does this imply? Germany has not yet its own army or navy, but its position has changed very considerably. Germany was crushed, German monopolist capital went out of the war "game" greatly ruined. Politically and nationally Germany was degraded. But with the aid of credits, primarily with the aid of American credits, German capitalism restored its affairs. The technique of German capital, or rather, the dynamics of technical progress in Germany, show record figures for Europe and in certain sectors Germany shows record figures for the whole world. In regard to economic reorganization the process of trustification in Germany has assumed classical forms. Giant trusts, which exercise enormous international influence, the strong position occupied by German capital in the world markets, the relative cheapness of German goods and the growth of the competitive power of German capitalism and of German industry, about this there can be no doubt at all.

It is quite understandable that a strengthened economic foundation should find its reflection in politics: the Versailles peace treaty has in part practically been annulled already. The political position of Germany capitalism has become considerably consolidated compared with what it was several years ago. Germany now plays a fairly important role in the concert of European states and on certain questions sometimes even plays a determining role. It is not difficult to understand that this feature of development, or rather this general process of development of Germany, is equal to the growth of the aspirations of German monopolist capital in regard to foreign politics. The quest for "mandates," for protectorates and for colonies has become a political fashion in Germany. But this is not merely a "fashion," but something more material. This "fashion" does not lack real prospects, for in the play of various antagonisms and forces, in the complex of relationships between France and Italy, France and Great Britain, France and Germany, Germany and Poland, etc., in this complicated tangle of European relationships, Germany on the one hand is the subject and on the other hand the object and in certain circumstances a number of countries may and will support Germany. This tendency in the development of German capitalism is linked up with the phenomenon known as the "western orientation" of German capitalism. A few years ago Germany was menaced by Entente capital. The muzzle of the French revolver was levelled at her head; she lost her fortified positions and the only outlet German capital had for a short time was the bloc with the U. S. S. R. This was expressed by the Apallo Treaty and Germany foreign policy of that period.

Now the situation is changed. The colonial aspirations of Germany grow in proportion to the growth of monopolist capitalism and correspondingly the western orientation of German capital becomes more and more crystallized. It goes without saying that the present situation must not be simplified too much in our analysis; this fundamental tendency in the development of Germany does not by any means exclude the possibility of various moves and maneuvers on the political chess board, of Germany taking advantage of the intermediary position she occupies between the western powers and the U. S. S. R., etc. This is an indisputable fact. But these chess moves and maneuvers do not annul the fundamental tendency of the development of Germany, which will willingly allow itself to be "violated" and will march side by side with its colleagues against the U. S. S. R.

THE CHANGES IN INTER-STATE RELATIONSHIPS AND THE STRUGGLE AGAINST THE U. S. S. R.

The crisis of capitalism finds its reflection also in the kaledioscopic changes in the relationships between the various powers. Not a single alliance is permanent or durable. On the contrary, a continuous regrouping of forces is taking place before our very eyes. But running like a thread through all these regroupings, changes and various constellations of European capitalist powers, runs the fundamental tendency of—the grouping of forces against the U. S. S. R. We have repeatedly reverted to this theme. I will not dwell here on th question of the various alliances of the so-called small Entente, on the agreements concluded between the various border states, between the more powerful states, etc. All these facts are now known even to infants.

If the analysis of the economic foundation I made in the first part of my report is correct, then it is perfectly understandable that the relationships between states should represent the political expression of the preparations being made for war against the U. S. S. R. We of course must build up our tactics accordingly.

PREPARATIOS FOR WAR.

As a consequence, the internal processes in the important capitalist countries are proceeding along the lines of preparation for war. These processes loudly contradict the social democrat babble about the realization of pacifism, about "ultra-imperialist" era, etc. The growth of armaments, the passing of laws, like Paul Boncour's military law in France, and the general feverish preparations of the bourgeoisie for preserving so-called "peace and order" in their respective countries in the event of war, are sufficiently well-known to all. In the latter category of measures must be included the British Anti-Trade Union Act, Mussolini's "Charter of Labor," the incredible terror raging in a number of countries like Hungary, Poland, Roumania, and in the Balkans generally, and in Italy, the extensive plans for corrupting certain sections of the peasantry, so-called "industrial peace," "Mondism," the American methods of corrupting the proletariat—measures carried out on the one hand with the aid of fascism and on the other hand with the aid of the social democratic parties.

With all this are linked up the organizational changes in the structure of the state power. I have already spoken of state capitalist tendencies and of the tendencies towards the direct grafting of private capitalist organizations on the organs of the bourgeois state. This tendency not only has a general economic political significance; it also has enormous significance from the point of view of preparations for war. It would be a mistake to assert that the bourgeoisie consciously strives to graft the private capitalist organizations with the organs of the capitalist state, or that it sees in this a means of preparing for war. The process bears a more spontaneous character, but objectively there is not the slightest doubt that the evolution of the state power and the growth of state capitalist tendencies serve the aims of war preparations. Already in the period of the first world war we passed through a phase of state capitalism decorated in peculiar tones. In the language of the German economists this was called "compulsory economy." The fundamental reason for the regulation of industry was the considerable decline that took place in the forces of production, the pursuit of rationalization and the more expedient regulation of consumption in the conditions prevailing in the "besieged fortress." Subsequently all this passed away. Today, however, state capitalist tendencies are developing on a new basis, on the basis of growing productive forces of capitalism, on the basis of decentralization of capitalism and without specifically compulsory regulations. There is not the slightest doubt that in the event of war and during it these state capitalist tendencies will be utilized for the purpose of mobilizing the whole of national economy for the pursuit of war.

This evolution in the organizational forms of state power, this powerful concentration of the political and economic organizations of the bourgeoisie is of extreme significance for further development. These phenomena are of great significance also from the point of view of proletarian class struggle. Not all have yet sufficiently appreciated the fact that the proletariat now has to deal not only with individual capitalists or even with separate trusts, but with the whole of the organized power of the bourgeoisie as a class, and that this is the reason why the position of the proletariat in every economic battle is so difficult and so complex. In so far as the proletariat has to deal directly with large trusts and cartels which have become grafted with the bourgeois state apparatus, every strike has a tendency of becoming transformed into a political strike and every partial conflict into an extensive working class struggle. I will deal with this subject again in another connection.

I will now pass to the question of the position of the classes in the important European countries and primarily in the United States.

II. Internal Political Processes in the Bourgeois Countries.

THE ACCENTUATION OF INTERNAL CONTRADICTIONS.

In analyzing stabilization I pointed out that the fact that it was only relative stabilization was revealed in the conflicts among the various states, in the danger of war, in the antagonisms between the imperialist world and the Soviet Union. This, however, does not imply that the contradictions exist only as between states and that the contradictions in each given imperialist country are not becoming sharper. The internal contradictions in the capitalist countries are becoming intensified and inevitably must become intensified. However, the nature of these contradictions is quite different. These contradictions, inherent in every capitalist society, have now been accentuated in view of specific causes, and they considerably accentuate the class struggle. The perspective of partial and temporary stabilization holds out the prospect of war.

The process of stabilization affects the situation of the largest capitalist countries in various ways. Partial stabilization is a two-sided process. On the one hand there is a certain technico-economical consolidation of capitalism, and on the other—which must not be left out of sight—contradictions grow, the class struggle becomes more acute, unemployment increases.

The United States may serve as a classical example. It is a country where capitalist development proceeds at a most rapid rate and where side by side with growing productive forces, unemployment is constantly increasing. This unemployment itself is organically bound up with the development of the productive forces. It is absolutely clear that this is tantamount to an accentuation of the class struggle in the United States. Four million unemployed is no trifle. Unemployment affects also the other sections of the proletariat. It is the burden of capitalism. At the same time stabilization makes possible the improvement of the material conditions of certain strata of the working class. In this connection we must analyze also the special relations that exist within the proletariat. Here I raise the problem of the Social Democracy in its general form.

We have been maintaining that social democracy, opportunism, is bankrupt, and this is absolutely true. Nevertheless this cursed social democracy still lives. In some countries both its numbers and significance are on the increase. The Comintern has great achievements to record in Germany, especially since the previous defeats. Nevertheless, social democracy polled 9 million votes at the last elections and this is no trifle. In the present period of our development and struggle we must occupy ourselves with the question as to the roots of this phenomenon.

THE ROOTS OF SOCIAL DEMOCRATIC VITALITY.

Usually we discuss the question of the roots of opportunism in connection with the question of the colonies and super profits received by the capitalists from the colonies by means of which they are able to corrupt the upper stratum of the working class. Germany has no colonies. Why then is German social democracy, or let us say its positions, becoming stronger? Why does not this treacherous social democracy leave the stage, why does it possess such maneuvering power? In explaining this it is not sufficient to speak of cunning and skill—this is not of decisive importance, it is not this that determines all the rest. The vitality of social democracy is closely bound up with the process of stabilization. The economic side of this is very complicated. Hitherto we have been speaking of super-profits directly extorted by one country or another from the colonies. The United States has not a large number of colonies. Does not the United States receive super-profits? It does. I recall that Marx quoted a number of examples in the case of a big industrial country which occupied a relatively strong position in world economy and received differential profits, thanks to the superiority of its technique. These super-profits of capitalism are playing an enormous role of late. Hence, the economic basis of reformism is not super-profit obtained directly from colonies, but also super-profit obtained from the general exchange of commodities on the world market, and from capital exports, apart from that invested in colonies.

Take the United States. That country extracts enormous super-profits, thanks to the monopolist position occupied by American capitalism, although it has no large colonial possessions.

Take Great Britain. Here we see a declining curve of development but the colonial monopoly has not yet disappeared. The basis of British imperialism is being narrowed down but it still exists. Within the country, the proletariat is swinging to the left; the influence of the Communist Party is growing, etc., but the end of monopolist domination of British imperialism is not coming as rapidly as we thought formerly. The colonial monopoly of the Kingdom of Great Britain still serves as a large and broad base for British reformism.

I have already dealt with Germany.

In order to understand the underlying cause of the strength of the social democracy it is necessary to understand a whole series of most vital factors. Among these are the very important internal political changes which have taken place in several countries. Large numbers of former social democratic and trade union officials are now becoming state or municipal officials or officials in capitalist organizations. This is to be noticed in many countries and particularly in Germany. The tendency towards grafting the reformist labor organizations with the employers' organizations and the organs of the imperialist bourgeois state practically signifies a partial conversion of the trade union and party bureaucracy in to state officials of private capitalist organizations. This is what we call, peculiar methods of corruption employed by the bourgeoisie.

FASCISM AND SOCIAL DEMOCRACY.

I believe that the same process is going on also in the fascist countries. Let us take for example a country like Poland, with Pilsudski's military organization, the Streltsi. This is a "voluntary" organization. Officially, of course, the organization is composed of volunteers, nevertheless it is a semi-state organization. Are there any socialist workers in it? Yes, there are. Moreover, large numbers of them constitute a definite stratum of the state structure. Thus, on the whole, the main causes of the strength of the social democracy are the economic and political factors which I have pointed out. Of course, the maneuvering capacity of the social democratic parties, their experience and political shrewdness also play their part. All these factors naturally play a very important role. But these and these alone do not explain the situation. It may be said that on the one hand the process of stabilization creates an economic basis for social democracy and on the other hand the contradictions of stabilization create a basis for the development of the Communist Parties. Hence, we frequently observe a parallel growth in the influence of both the Communists and the social democrats. Of course, various other causes must be borne in mind. They cannot be ignored. Take for example, the social re-grouping that takes place among the strata of the population under the influence of social democracy. Social democracy at times recruits its strength from the ranks of the petty bourgeoisie. During elections social democracy grows also at the expense of the bourgeois parties by winning away from the latter a large number of petty bourgeois votes. It must be borne in mind however, that in many countries, including Germany and France, we so far have won over only a small section of the workers employed even in the largest enterprises, the biggest trusts, where social democracy is still strong.

THE INTENSIFICATION OF THE CLASS STRUGGLE.

The internal contradictions of stabilization in each capitalist country accentuate the class struggle also when the changes in the organizational structure of the modern state and of contemporary capitalism, of which I have already spoken, have taken place, and convert every strike of any magnitude into a political event of first class importance. This was the case with the British strike, with the metallurgical strike in Germany and such will be the case in the future. The transformation of an economic into a political strike is determined by the specific features of the situation—trustification of capitalism and the grafting of private capitalist organizations with the state.

That is how the internal contradictions in each capitalist country grow. The inherent contradictions of capitalism in each country result in a sharpening of the class struggle and a growth in Communist influence. This can be illustrated and substantiated by many facts. I have in mind the strike wave in various countries—France, Czechoslovakia, Germany, the so-called swing to the left of the proletariat, the growing sympathy with the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics, the collapse of certain bourgeois parties, which the proletariat formerly followed, for example the Centrist Party in Germany, the Catholic organizations in Italy, etc. The election results in France and Germany also serve as an expression of the accentuation of the class struggle. The process of stabilization is full of contradictions, that is why we are growing, if not in every case numerically, at least nearly in every case in political influence. Last year, in his speech at the social democratic congress of Germany, Hilferding said:

> "Comrades, sooner or later the Communists will come to their end. I can quite understand that people who for many years have labored under the curse of unemployment, who have been driven to desperation by the loss of their all during the inflation, who have been disappointed in everything and have retained only their belief in violence, should, on the impulse of a passing sentiment vote for the Communists at election times. But the Communist Party is of no importance whatever as a political movement. It is played out." (Laughter.)

In reality we see that things have developed differently. The Communist Parties are constantly growing. This has been borne out even by the elections in Germany, where the Communist Party polled 3 1-4 million votes. Herr Hilferding's prediction was a miserable failure! This can be seen also from the venal point of view of the social democrats, who measure their influence by the number of seats in parliament they have obtained. Our political influence is growing parallel with the growth of the contradictions in capitalist stabilization. But side by side with this the influence of the social democrats, and social democracy itself grows for a time.

Social democracy has gone through a profound evolution during recent years. It would be wrong to judge the social democrats by what they were, let us say, in 1914. Social democracy of August 4, 1914, was merely the embryo of contemporary social democracy. Social democracy of today has cast off the last shreds even of quasi-Marxian phrases. The spiritual food of social democracy consists now of MacDonald's absurdities imported from Great Britain and the social democratic leaders are trying to prepare as appetising a meal out of these as they possibly can.

THE CAESARIST FEATURES OF SOCIAL DEMOCRACY.

Comrade Riazanov recently published in "Pravda," the organ of our Party, the correspondence between Lasalle and Bismark. The kind of political figure Lasalle represented is now pretty well known. In his letter to Bismark, Ferdinand Lasalle says that it would be well to set up a social monarchy with a "crown" at the head. This proposal established an intimacy between Lasalle and Bismark and prompted the former to concoct a political intrigue. Notwithstanding this, social democracy has now advanced the slogan of "back to Lasalle." The meaning of this instinctive gravitation, "back to Lasalle," is now clear to us. It represents a sort of ideological basis for the rapprochement between the followers of Noske and the Italian fascists. "Social Caesarism" with a dynasty at its head is an ideology exceedingly suitable for contemporary social democracy. In August, 1914, the social democrats betrayed Marxism, and declared themselves in favor of National defense. In our days social democracy is an active force, consciously building the capitalist state. This home policy of social democracy has its concomittant in its foreign policy. Not only does it now defend the capitalist fatherland, but from the capitalist viewpoint it is the most outspoken champion of the aggressive ambitions of its fatherland. I ask you: are there not social democrats in Germany who demand colonies for their country? Of course there are, many of them, and they put forward this demand quite openly. In the history of German social democracy we have the Hilderbrand case. The Chemnitz Congress expelled him from the party for having written a book in which he flirted with ideas of this kind. In the ranks of present-day social democracy, its honored and respected members openly advocate the colonial idea. This is no accident and no exception. Take for example the last resolution passed by the II. International on the colonial problem. It is possible that Bauer edited this resolution and gave it a quasi-Marxian tinge. In that resolution we find the following subdivision—some colonies must become autonomous, others should be left under a protectorate, while others are in such a low stage of development that the status quo must be retained. As far as I know this is exactly what is said in the documents in the League of Nations. Thus we find that there is no difference whatever between the would-be socialists and the sharks in the camp of the imperialist bourgeoisie.

Or take another example, the question of war, their attitude towards the League of Nations, and their attitude towards the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics. Compare Kautsky of 1914 with the Kautsky of today and you will find an entirely different person, with outspoken counter-revolutionary strivings.

SOCIAL DEMOCRATIC ANTI-SOVIET ACTIVITY.

All Communists must understand that in the coming war the despicableness of the conduct of social democracy will exceed all our predictions. Of course we must differentiate between the social democratic leaders and the social democratic workers, among whom serious crises, splits, discontent, regroupings, etc., will manifest themselves. But the upper clique will act hand in hand with the greatest criminals of the imperialist camp. Of this there can be no doubt at all. Herr Hilferding already has the audacity to advance the following argumentation—in Europe there is also unemployment; this unemployment is caused by the fact that the affairs of capitalism are not all too smooth; it were better if the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics would be drawn into the general complex of capitalist countries; but the monopoly of foreign trade prevents that. The conclusion this argumentation leads to is that the proletariat is interested in breaking the foreign trade monopoly of the U. S. S. R. I ask you what is that? It is nothing more nor less than ideological preparation for a direct war of aggression against the U. S. S. R. As yet there is much that is academic, theoretical, etc., in Hilferding's thesis. But in the process of development this economic thesis will become a very vital and concrete political thesis. What was first formulated theoretically will later be turned into action. The practical application of Herr Hilferding's formula means nothing more nor less than war against the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics.

Naturally, the evolution of social democracy as I have just described it called forth a corresponding reaction on our part. All the comrades know that the last Enlarged Plenum of the Executive Committee of the Communist International called for a change in the tactics of the French and the British Parties and to a certain extent along our whole line. This took place on our initiative, the initiative of the Executive Committee. Some comrades link up this change with all kinds of secondary factors. But this is wrong, because the change in tactics was called for by reason of the factors to which I have already referred; it was called forth by the entire evolution of social democracy. It would be childish to think that we are trying to go "to the left" because of the reproaches hurled against us by the opposition, etc. This argument is not worthy replying to. The only sound reason which caused us to change our tactics was the change that had taken place in the objective situation, the change in the correlation of forces of the various classes, various parties, etc. The question must be approached thus—has a change taken place in the relations between ourselves and the social democrats? The answer is: Yes, a change has taken place. Are we to make any practical deductions from this? Yes. Why do the social democrats attack us more fiercely now than ever before in the trade unions and other organizations? Because not only in big questions of foreign policy but on all questions, in all spheres our political policy is directly opposite to theirs. Take for example the position in a single factory. What is the social democratic policy in the factory? Civil peace, no desire to call out strikes, merging of the factory committee with the capitalist organizations, "Mondism," all along the line—such is the social democratic position in the factory, and not only in the factory but also in relation to the trust, to the state, to the League of Nations and everywhere. This line of policy in its complete form did not arise at one bound. It developed gradually. But, being what it is, must we draw certain conclusions from it or not? Of course we must draw certain practical conclusions from it, otherwise the enemy will beat us.

HANDOUTS

There will be no maidens dancing with olive branches around a hole into which has been thrown the battle axe in celebration of England's signing the Kellogg peace pact. Instead of this it is just announced 350 war plans will engage in mock combat over London. This is appropriate celebration of a peace pact which is little more than a promise to quit fighting each other while they prepare an attack on the U. S. S. R. England celebrates the peace pact the way a tipster does signing the pledge—in a quiet quart of gin.

The socialist party which is always rushing out into the open with a wicked, revolutionary program now goes so far as to contend that kings are not really appropriate to a good capitalist democracy. At the same time this socialist party, which pretends to be champion of the working class, signs up for membership anybody from a banker to a manufacturer of underwear for Kewpie dolls.

Hundreds Flee Homes in South When Floods Menace Lives, Crops

ATLANTIC, Georgia, Aug. 17.—Hundreds of lowland homes in three southern states were deserted today as thousands fled menacing flood waters.

Dams collapsed, bridges were washed away, highways flooded, crops ruined, and lives endangered in the western Carolinas and south and central Georgia as rivers crept higher from steady rains, swept northward by a tropical storm.

Quitman, Ga., was isolated by flood waters. Brice Dam, 17 miles above the city broke in three places. Four bridges were in the flood path and a wide fertile area faced inundation.

Mills about Spartanburg, S. C.—where an eight-inch rainfall was reported—closed down as rivers in the narrow valleys of that section, coursed higher and higher. Hundreds of houses were under water and vacated.

British Capital Has Lead in Argentina, Despite U.S. Increase

BUENOS AIRES, Aug. 17.—Although figures recently published show that the United States has gained in trade with Argentina, England still holds a great lead.

Exports to the United States during the first six months of the present year have totaled $58,033,000, while exports to England for the same period amounted to $204,500,000. United States exports to Argentina totaled $80,114,000, while Argentina imported $86,300,000 for the same period.

REFUSES TO END WORK AT ORDER OF STEEL HEADS

Was Member of Negro Labor Congress

(By a Worker Correspondent)

COLUMBUS, O. (By Mail).—The following horrible act serves as an example of "human love" under capitalist rule.

Warren, Ohio, is a small town of about 35,000 inhabitants. There are three independent steel mills that employed about 13,000 workers. Now they employ about 6,000 workers. There is a big Negro population, which is being exploited and discriminated against.

Great dissatisfaction exists among the Negroes. For this reason the steel magnates found it necessary to build 19 churches specially for the Negroes. In that way they want to get rid of their dissatisfaction.

There is a certain Negro worker who is determined to carry on the struggle against the capitalist class for the interests of his fellow workers. He was a delegate to the Negro Labor Congress, which was held in 1926.

On his return from the congress, he was arrested for no reason at all, without any official charge, and was kept in jail. They soon let him out of jail and warned him to behave "better."

Jail did not scare this revolutionary Negro fighter. And so the steel magnates applied all methods of persecution against him. His electric bill was raised, his gas and water was often shut off. Nothing availed the steel barons.

Recently he received a black-hand letter, threatening him with the bombing of his house with him in it if he would not stop his agitation among the Negro workers.

It is quite sure that not only the mill companies, but that official authorities are involved in this black-hand business. These are the kind of acts committed by the capitalists against the militant workers in the industrial centers.

STORE POLICE ATTACK YOUTH

Was Giving Leaflets to Young Workers

While distributing shop bulletins in front of Klein's department store, 14th St. and 4th Ave. to the 1,200 young workers employed there, Joseph Schiffman, a member of the Young Workers (Communist) League, was attacked by five plain-clothes men, who tore his clothes from his body and severely injured his arm.

Many of the young workers employed in the store, which is one of the most slave-driving concerns in New York City, interfered in behalf of Schiffman. They were very sympathetic and showed as much by their action.

This bulletin, according to a recent statement of the Young Workers (Communist) League, is only one of the many that are being distributed to young workers all over New York City. It is part of the general participation in the General Working Youth Conference which will be held in New York on September 29 and 30.

New Boss Attempt to Smash Union of Pottery Workers

16.—The labor board of the United 15.—The labor board of the United States Potters' Association yesterday submitted a proposal to the conference committee of the National Brotherhood of Operative Potters to make the former policy of collective bargaining void. Instead they ask that disputes between employes and workers should be settled by "individual" negotiations between single plants and their employes.

The proposal was made after workers in the industry demanded an increase of from 9 to 11 per cent in wages, and shorter hours and better working conditions. The move for individual settlement, therefore, was made for the purpose of defeating these demands by forcing the workers to disband organizationally and deal with the bosses individually.

Boston Workers Plan Outing for "Daily"

BOSTON, Aug. 16.—The workers of Boston and vicinity will hold a Daily Worker outing at the Camp Nitgedaiget on August 19.

Prominent speakers will address the workers going to the outing in English and Yiddish. An attractive program has been arranged.

Trucks will leave from 38 Causeway St. and New International Hall, 42 Wenonah St., Roxbury and Chelsea Labor Lyceum.

Save this copy of the Daily for one of the 40,000 traction workers.

John Roach Straton Denies He Bought Rum

Dr. John Roach Straton, who recently planned a vaudeville act debate between himself and Governor Alfred E. Smith, Tammany candidate for president, in the Calvary Baptist Church and then crawled out of it, denies he bought a bottle of scotch at the bar of Sterling Forest Hotel. He characterized the charge as "ghastly." Above, the bar where the preacher denies this "contemptible" transaction took place.

ELECTION PICNIC IN PHILA. SEPT. 3

Gitlow to Be Chief Speaker

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 16.—Thousands of Philadelphia workers are expected to be present at a huge election picnic and rally, to be held on Labor Day, September 3, in Schuatzen Park, 83rd St. and Tinioum Ave. Benjamin Gitlow, Wirkers (Communist) Party candidate for vice-president, will be the chief speaker at the affair.

An elaborate program of entertainment is being arranged, which will include a play given by the famous Hedgerow Players, dancing from 7 p. m. to midnight, a sports program arranged by the Young Workers League and many other numbers.

Twenty-five thousand leaflets advertising this affair, and also carrying an election campaign statement of the Workers Party, are being distributed at factories and on a big mobilization day, Tuesday, August 28.

The Foster-Gitlow Campaign Committee enlarged conference will meet again Wednesday, August 22, at 1214 Spring Garden St. This conference, which is arranging the affair, is selling tickets to the affiliated organizations at a reduction of 25 per cent. The tickets are priced 50 cents. All workers organizations are asked to send delegates to this conference and get behind the campaign of the only workers' candidates, Foster and Gitlow.

MILL FAMILIES FACE STARVATION

Urge Workers to Send Relief

NEW BEDFORD, Aug. 16.—Families of 12 and 13 are not uncommon among the striking textile workers of New Bedford. For the past 18 weeks the mothers of these large families have been bravely doing their share in the strike in spite of the difficulties of taking care of so many children during such a stormy period.

John Cruz and his wife and 11 children live at 1179 Cove Road. Before the strike only their daughter, Mary, 18, worked in the mill for which she received $12 a week. In addition, the father, who is a fisherman, works whenever possible, making about $10 or $11 weekly. The family pays $5 a week rent for a shanty without tubs or any other modern conveniences.

John Oliveira and his family of 10 live at 104 Mosher St. The youngest member of the family, George, is only nine months old. No members of the family are working, the three breadwinners all being mill workers and on strike. John, the head of the family, was paid $20 a week before the strike, while his son Manuel, 18, drew $10 a week and John, 16, $4 to $5 a week for two and three' days work weekly.

The families mentioned above are receiving food every day at the two relief kitchens of the Workers International Relief. As long as the strike continues the W. I. R., 49 William St., New Bedford, Mass., will give food to the striking workers and the members of their families. All workers should do their share by sending in contributions to save these families from starving.

Eight hundred pounds of bread was donated to the Workers International Relief yesterday. It was sent by Jose Dante Nugueiro, Jose L. Martins, J. Medeiros, Antone Souzer, Antone Balensor and Jose Joaquin, all of New Bedford.

FIND MESSAGE FROM AMUNDSEN

Soviet Rescuers Begin New Search

LONDON, Aug. 16 (UP).—Despatches to the Daily Mail from the Hague tonight said that the Norwegian minister at Amsterdam announced an apparently genuine message from Roald Amundsen, noted explorer who was lost while participating in the expeditions seeking the crew of the wrecked polar dirigible Italia, had been found in a bottle near Rottumeroog.

The message, which was compared with Amundsen's handwriting and was said to be authentic, gave the position of the explorer and his party on July 1.

News of the note found in Amundsen's handwriting again is focussing the attention of the entire world on the Soviet rescue party, composed of the Icebreaker Krassin under the command of Professor Samiliovitch, and the courageous aviator Chukhnovsky. The Krassin, with Chukhnovsky and his plane on board, has left to search for the survivors of the fascist Italia disaster, and the lost Amundsen party.

The Soviet rescuers saved the Italia survivors last month after all other rescue parties had failed.

PORTER PROTEST MEET TOMORROW

Boston Workers to Demand Release

BOSTON, Aug. 17.—Workers of Boston will demand the immediate release of John Porter, militant young textile leader, at a huge demonstration on Boston Common, Sunday afternoon at 3 p. m.

Porter was recently sentenced by a military tribunal to two and a half years at hard labor, nominally for deserting from the army, but actually for refusing to withdraw from the New Bedford textile strike in which he took an active part. The present whereabouts of the young militant remains shrouded in mystery.

The meeting on Boston Common Sunday will be held under the auspices of the Workers (Communist) Party and the Young Workers League of District 1. Prominent speakers will address the demonstration.

POLICE TERROR IS SYSTEMATIC IN NEW JERSEY

But Workers Crowd to Meetings

(By a Worker Correspondent)

PASSAIC, N. J. (By Mail).—Several hundred workers gathered at the corner of Monroe and Second Ave., Passaic, recently to listen to the speakers who conduct weekly open-air meetings in Passaic. The police commissioner, Turner, well known because of his activities during the textile strike, had refused to give a permit for open-air meetings. Several meetings had been held by the League without a permit. At last week's meeting the League speaker, Katz, was arrested and charged with disorderly conduct. When the committee appeared at the office of the police commissioner, he agreed that a meeting could be held at the corner of Myrtle and Second Aves. When the committee went to look for the place it found it to be in the lots, away from where any people pass. It was decided to hold the meeting at the corner for which the committee had originally asked.

A crowd gathered as soon as Shirley Blecher, chairman of the meeting, started to speak. During the time she and E. Blecher spoke the crowd continually increased and the police made no effort to disturb the meeting. When Lottie Bloomenthal, representing the League of New Jersey, took the stand, the police tried to stop the meeting. The officer was referred to the committee and told that a permit had been obtained for a meeting. Because of the wrath of the crowd the officer deemed it best to leave the meeting. After a while a motorcycle policeman appeared. He tried to disturb the meeting by interrupting the speaker with questions, and, when he was told that there would be questions afterward, he started to disperse the crowd with cries of "I'm the boss around here." The workers responded, saying that they were well aware that the police and not the workers were the bosses and that is why they were so anxious to listen to speakers.

Since the meeting was almost over, it was decided not to argue with the policeman but to march down to the other place and end the meeting there. The crowd streamed down the street, singing "Solidarity Forever" and stayed until the meeting was adjourned. The announcement that a meeting would be held the following week at the corner of Monroe and Second Ave., whether the police commissioner liked it or not, was greeted by applause by the workers.

Police attempting to break up meetings in New Jersey has become a regular occurrence. This summer is the first year that the League has carried on so much open-air work and these attempts at breaking up meetings show that the League is beginning to become a force with which to be reckoned. For the League members, it means increased determination to carry on our work and to build a mass Young Communist League in New Jersey.

Eva La Gallienne Announces Civic Repertory Third Season

WITH the plans sent out by the Civic Repertory Theatre, Eva Le Gallienne announces that when her third season opens in Fourteenth Street, that she will devote the major portion of her time to directing rather than to acting.

Mary Morris, who played the leading role in O'Neill's "Desire Under the Elms," is cast for the role of Dorimene in F. Anstey's adaptation of Moliere's "Le Bourgeois Gentilhomme" under the English title of "The Would-Be Gentleman," which will open the season on Monday, October 1.

Other new plays appearing in the schedule are 'Katerina," Herman Bernstein's translation from Andreieff's "Yekaterina Ivanovna," in which Madame Nazimova will play the title role; and a new comedy from the Spanish still in negotiation.

CONRAD VEIDT IN "TWO BROTHERS" AT CAMEO

"Two Brothers," the latest Ufa production, starring Conrad Veidt, will be presented for its American premiere today at the Cameo Theatre by the Film Arts Guild.

"Two Brothers" is based on the popular German novel, "Brothers Schellenburg," by Kellerman and deals with the evils of capitalism. The period of the story takes place just after the war when the economic stress was at its height in Germany. Lil Dagover of "Caligari" and "Tartuffe" fame, is one of the chief players.

On the same program the Film Arts Guild is presenting another Ufa picture, a film biography, "The Life of Von Hindenburg" and Charles Chaplin in "Easy Street."

MINNA GOMBELL.

Who will play a principal role in "The Great Power," a drama by Myron C. Fagan, which is scheduled for Broadway early next month.

Big Sanitation Plan Seen as Another Pre-Election Smith Move

Acting in an effort to erase the impression made on the voters of New York in the past few years through its corrupt handling of city funds, and most recently, the sewer scandal, Tammany Hall attempted another pre-election gesture yesterday when Comptroller Berry, a Smith favorite, announced that a new project for the cleaning up of the beaches in New York, and a campaign for general sanitation throughout the city, would be inaugurated.

The fact that the new proposal carries with it a project for the formation of a huge $37,000,000 plant for sewage disposal on Ward's Island, has given rise to the assumption that the granting of a big construction contract to win a rich political backer is one of the main aims of the entire project.

MAKE READY FOR BIG MINER MEET IN SEPTEMBER

Women's Auxiliary Is Growing

(By a Worker Correspondent)

RENTON, Pa. (By Mail).—At our last regular meeting, August 10, the Ladies Auxiliary of Renton had the pleasure of listening to Dr. Lieber and Myerscough speak after which we were celebrating the first anniversary of the Auxiliary. We invited the men to attend and the place was packed.

A year ago we were organized here in the Allegheny Valley by Lewis "leaders." At that time Sisters Clark and Healy used to be our principal speakers but this time we did not invite them to our meeting.

Why? The wives of the miners have broken away from the Lewis machine's hold and do not want their misleadership any more. We here all want to help out in the fine campaign of the new union committee. We want to make it strong so that we will know that we have a good fighter for our bread and butter.

Even though some of the men may return to work, yet all of them are preparing to answer a new call. The Auxiliary was larger when it was begun a year ago, but now we have more coming to the meetings. They average between 60 and 70 per meeting.

All I want to say now is this: Prepare for the national convention to be held September 9-16 and help out the new union in its splendid work. Watch us make the iron hot quickly if we support the new union idea and watch us strike with it after the convention.

Thousands of New York Communists to Aid in "Red Week" Beginning Monday

WORKERS WILL HOLD TAG DAYS AUGUST 25 TO 26

Labor Organizations to Aid Collections

The week of Monday, August 20, designated as Red Week by the Campaign Committee of the Workers (Communist) Party, will be observed by many workers' clubs throughout the city by the suspension of their routine orders of business in favor of a much shorter one. Many workers' clubs have already signified their intention of sending their memberships out with collection lists to collect funds for the Workers (Communist) Party Election Campaign Fund after a short address on the importance of the 1928 elections, the vital issues at stake with respect to the exploitation and union-smashing policies of the capitalist parties. Other workers' clubs, which have not yet arranged for this abbreviated order of business are urged to do so by the Election Campaign Committee of District 2 of the Workers (Communist) Party.

"Never before in any election campaign," said the Campaign Committee in a statement issued last night, "has the similarity of both the democratic and republican parties been so evident as this year, with dyed-in-the-wool republicans on the democratic committee and staunch democrats who have served their party in many a crooked deal intending to cast their votes for Smith the strikebreaker. That is why many thousands of workers will this year actively support the campaign of the Workers (Communist) Party who have remained apathetic in previous campaigns."

While collection lists will be seen in every part of New York where workers live or meet all week, and thousands of pencils will write thousands of names on those lists along with thousands of contributions to the Communist Campaign Fund, the bulk of the money expected will result from the two Red Tag Days of August 25th and 26th. All workers of this city are urged to participate. Stations have been set up in every workingclass section of the city. To effectively carry on the Communist campaign thousands of leaflets will have to be distributed and funds for printing are urgently needed.

FUR LOCALS PICK NATIONAL HEADS

U. S., Canada Unions to Hold Meetings

As first steps in following out the instructions they received Wednesday night at the mass meeting where a new furriers' union was launched, the International United Front Committee of Fur Workers yesterday anounced that machinery is being set in motion to construct the Provisional National Executive Committee of the new national organization.

All the American and Canadian fur garment and fur dressing locals that are represented on the International United Front Committee, representing nearly every local in the present A. F. of L. International Fur Workers' Union, are to hold membership meetings in the immediate future and are to choose their representative to the N. E. C.

The Provisional National Executive Committee is to function as the central body of the new furriers' union till the national convention to be held within 60 days chooses a permanent executive body.

Committees of workers from the locals of fur dressers in surrounding cities and Brooklyn are coming into the office of the left wing Joint Board, which now serve also as the headquarters of the newly launched union, with information of the open shops that swamp the fur dressing trade. They asked that a drive be begun to organize their trade. Since the reactionary A. F. of L. International officialdom began their destructive attacks against the New York Joint Board, the open shop system gained predominance in the fur dressing industry.

You're in the fight when you write for The DAILY WORKER.

NEW YORK STATE SENATOR BRANDS SMITH AS "LIAR"

Politicians Fall Out; Facts are Heard

That Governor Al Smith is an "unqualified liar" and that his present activities are designed to distract attention from his "unsavory legislative record," were the charges hurled at the Tammany presidential nominee yesterday by Assemblyman Eberly Hutcheson, following Smith's attack upon Hutcheson and Senator Charles J. Hewitt, in which he charged them with obstructing the Long Island Park program.

A Liar is a Liar!

Hutcheson and Hewitt are chairmen of the republican-controlled finance committees of the senate and assembly. In a joint statement issued yesterday, the charge was declared to be a lie. The republican politicians made public the details of a secret deal they had entered into with Al Smith, by which it was agreed that no expenditures should be made for the Northern Parkway until the obligations of the state on the southern parkway and Jones Beach development had been completed. It is believed that the "deal" was a log-rolling measure by which both parties were to profit.

Spills Beans.

Because Al Smith violated this "solemn agreement," knowing that it existed, the republican representatives yesterday were willing to expose the real meaning of the governor's present frantic, political girations which, they declared, were designed to distract attention from his "unsavory legislative record."

Al Smith has become famous for his "secret deals," the most important of which is one with the traction companies to put over the seven cent fare and the billion dollar subway readjustment deal.

Worker Seriously Hurt When Blast Wrecks Lithographic Factory

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 16 (UP). —Leon Kantor, 28, a workman, was seriously injured late today when an explosion in a large lithograph establishment here started a fire on the fourth floor of the building.

The blast was due to a spark from machinery which fell into a large quantity of Bronze dust, according to officials.

Flames swept through the building, causing considerable damage. Kantor, who was working on the fourth floor, felt the full force of the explosion. He was thrown to the floor as the dust exploded, near an off-set press over which he was working.

PANAMA LINER AGROUND.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 16 (UP).—The Panama mail liner Ecuador was aground tonight off Cape San Lazarus, lower California, with many prominent citizens of the United States and Mexico aboard. Preparations were being made to float the vessel, which was consigned in no danger, at high tide.

CLOAK CHAIRMEN TO HOLD PARLEY

Russian Workers and Pressers to Meet

The first shop chairmens' and delegates' conference to be held since the new union of cloak and dressmakers was launched, is to be held next Tuesday, Aug. 21, in Webster Hall, 11th St. and Third Ave. Immediately after work. This announcement was made yesterday from the headquarters of the National Organization Committee.

Leaders of the N. O. C. will deliver a report on the progress of the organization drive. Plans for extending the scope of the drive will be discussed and decided on. Scores of non-union shops have already been brought under the banner of the new organization since the last conference of the shop chairmen.

All executive boards of the New York locals in the ladies garment manufacturing industry will meet in joint session tonight at the N. O. C. headquarters, 16 W. 21st St. at 6 p. m. The local committee of the N. O. C. will also take part in the joint executive meeting. This meeting will take up in detail some of the problems encountered in the organization drive.

In the same building a meeting of the Russian Polish Branch of the New York Cloakmakers Joint Board will also be held, the branch secretary, Olga Lvoff, announced.

A general membership meeting of the Pressers' Local 35 is to be held Monday, Aug. 20, according to a letter sent out by the union office yesterday. Louis Hyman, chairman of the N. O. C. and Joseph Goretsky, manager of the local will be the principal speakers.

To Hold Soviet Ball at Camp Nitgedaiget This Saturday Eve

BEACON, N. Y., Aug. 16.—A Soviet ball will be the big feature of the activities at Camp Nitgedaiget Saturday evening. Costumes of the Soviet Union and the spirit of the first workers' and peasants' republic will be much in evidence at this affair. A special orchestra is being imported from New York to furnish music for the ball, which will be held in the big casino of the camp.

An unusually interesting entertainment program is also being arranged for Saturday evening under the direction of Jacob Mestel, director of dramatics at the camp. One of the features of this program will be an exhibition of living cartoons. A large crowd of workers is expected at the camp for the Soviet ball.

Smith and Straton—Birds of a Feather

"I will hire the largest hall . . . I am going to ask the mayor of New York and Mr. Smith, as governor, for all necessary police protection, and, if it should be necessary, military protection."

So says John Roach Straton in his debate with Al Smith as to whether there shall be a debate. The issue is whether Smith is of the spawn of Tammany Hall's organized crime, as Straton contends, or whether Straton is a cheap faker, a professional liar, as Smith contends. It is one of those cases where both contenders are correct in their contentions as far as they go.

But the grandiloquent words of Straton about police protection and military protection if necessary, are only bunk. Of course Straton knows that Smith's Tammany police will give him complete protection, simply because the faking sky-pilot represents a section of the ruling class. It is only the spokesmen of the working class that Smith's Tammany thugs assault and blackjack and jail for speaking. Defenders of capitalism get protection from the same police thugs that assault those who attack capitalism.

Straton represents just as thoroughly as Al Smith does the filth and crime of the society which both of them uphold and defend. If Tammany Hall and its present leader, Smith, have grown powerful on the organizing of prostitution, gambling and graft, the Reverend Straton draws his own dishonest income from the same source—the difference being only in the directness. While Smith's contact is that of a leader and organizer of the thugs, finks, ward heelers and contractors through whom the prostitution, gambling and graft are organized at first hand, the Reverend Straton's contact is, so far as we know, only with the nice gentlemen at the top whose control over society is the cause of the degradation, crime and misery. The capitalist system of exploitation of the working class is the cause. Straton lives by lies that help keep the system alive, just as does the meanest fink of Tammany Hall. This dirty-handed hypocrite only helps to conceal the real cancer with his quack remedies which pretend to cure the symptom.

The workers and exploited farmers have the fundamental interest and necessity that runs counter to both these servants of capitalism—the necessity to abolish the foul and criminal capitalist system in which both Smith and Straton are but sewer-birds.

Work for the liberation of your class. Work and fight to create a new and free system of society without exploitation, without prostitution, crime and graft, without poverty and misery—and wihout Smiths and Stratons.

Fruit Companies Brew War

WALL STREET'S and Washington's fingers are now raking an odorous mess on the boundary of Honduras and Guatemala. One of the chief objects of the American money masters in Central America is to disunite the five republics (Guatemala, Honduras, Nicaragua, El Salvador, and Costa Rica.) While it is the expressed desire of the people of all these countries to unify, American imperialism has kept them divided, in the interests of plunder and war.

The dispute over the Guatemala-Honduras border is in reality a contest between two American fruit companies, the United Fruit Company and the Cuyamel Fruit Company, both Wall Street enterprises. The Cuyamel Company is in Honduras, while the United holds sway in Guatemala. Both are trying to control valuable fruit lands. Each dominates a government and wants its puppet to have jurisdiction over the disputed lands.

Fruit Companies Fight.

For many years the United Fruit Company has virtually controlled Guatemala. Today it owns one fifth of the territory of that country. In 1913 the Cuyamel Fruit Company obtained a concession from the Hondurian government of [illegible] acres of land in the Motagua river district. The ownership of this territory has been in dispute for over 100 years between Guatemala and Honduras. When the Cuyamel Fruit Co. secured its grant, it started to improve the land and to build a 33-mile railroad in 1913.

Before starting work on its improvements, the Cuyamel sought to obtain permission from the Guatemalan authorities. Naturally, being United Fruit Company employees, they refused. Despite the action of its competitors, the Cuyamel started work but was forced to stop because of the armed intervention of the United Fruit Company's government. The Cuyamel Fruit Company, however, was allowed by Guatemala to construct [illegible] one mile of the railway.

In 1918 the entire dispute was submitted to a representative of the U. S. government, Mr. Roy T. [illegible], minister to Costa Rica. But no decision was reached. Obviously, the U. S. government, which is [illegible] to its imperialist proteges, would not decide between two American exploiters. The dispute is still unsettled. The United Fruit Company, which has a monopoly on the fruit business in Central America, is doing all its can to crush its competitor. It even will go to the extent of starting a war between Guatemala and Honduras, in order to stamp out its rival.

[illegible] suggested that the question be referred to the Central American court. When this tribunal [illegible] the dispute between Nicaragua, Costa Rica, Honduras and the United States over the canal rights in Nicaragua in favor of Costa Rica and Honduras and against the United States, the United States simply refused to recognize the action of the court.

Guatemala, that is, the United Fruit Company, is willing to accept the jurisdiction of the Central American court. Honduras declines to submit the rights of the Cuyamel Fruit Company to this body.

Seek to Destroy Rivals.

If the United Fruit Co. is the victor, it will mean that the Cuyamel will be cut off from any outlet to the Atlantic coast. In short, it will mean the end of this competitor of the United Fruit Co. If the Cuyamel wins, the United Fruit Co. will be restricted in its activities to the left side of the Motagua river.

The officials in each country are tools of the respective companies. Their "patriotism" has been aroused to warlike heights. Accusations of bribery have been hurled from both sides freely. The fact is that both fruit companies spare no expense in gaining their object. Even the labor unions are bought. The Guatemalan Federation of Labor addressed a letter to William Green in July, 1928, attacking the Cuyamel Fruit Co. as the instigator of the trouble, while at the same time it forgot to mention that the United Fruit Co. controls the political life of Guatemala, and without doubt, inspired the indigation of the Guatemalan labor fakers.

"Divide and Rule."

THE United States fears an independent Central America. It has thus far been successful in buying or forcing these various governments to abide by its will. In Nicaragua the imperialists meet with the resistance of Sandino and his forces. In a united Central America the task of suppression and murder would not be so simple as it has been in the past. The axiom of "divide and rule!" is the guiding principle of American domination of this Wall-Street-raped territory.

General Augusto C. Sandino, who many times has announced that his struggle against imperialism is not limited to the confines of Nicaragua, has written to the people of Honduras and Guatemala, calling on them to refrain from being incited to war for the pleasure of the two U. S. fruit companies.

In a letter to his friend, Froylan Turcios, editor of Ariel, in Tegucigalpa, Honduras, Sandino says:

All in Danger of Imperialists.

"In the name of Nicaragua, of Honduras, of Guatemala, I ask all the people who have a clear understanding of the situation in Central America to try to avoid, by all means possible, any break among ourselves. You must make the people of Latin America understand that among ourselves boundaries should not exist and our duty is to take equal interest in the welfare of each of the countries of Spanish America, because we all share the same dangers from the colonizing policy of the Yankee imperialists.

"For example, the question of the boundaries between Guatemala and Honduras, between Honduras and Nicaragua; the canal dispute between Nicaragua and Costa Rica; the quarrel over the Gulf of Fonseca by El Salvador, Honduras and Nicaragua; the Tacna-Arica controversy between Peru and Chile. In this manner, important affairs of Latin America are tangled up without being settled among ourselves. The Yankee imperialists have studied us well and profit by our state of culture and our lightness of character to imperil us whenever it suits their interests.

"The Yankee imperialists are the worst enemies of our people. When they see us fired by patriotic inspiration, when we sincerely seek unification, they stir up from the depths our latent quarrels; they incite hatred among us that we may continue disunited and weak, and for that reason easy to colonize."

IMPERIALISM brings destruction, desolation and internecine struggle to Central America. Out of these countries they take a king's ransom in profits. By fighting the competitive battles of the contending Wall Street vultures the workers and peasants of these countries weld their chains about themselves tighter.

Only by eliminating U. S. imperialism in Central America can the political and economic problems of this scene of Wall Street's unnumbered crimes be solved.

Scientist Reveals Deficiencies in Italia Preparation

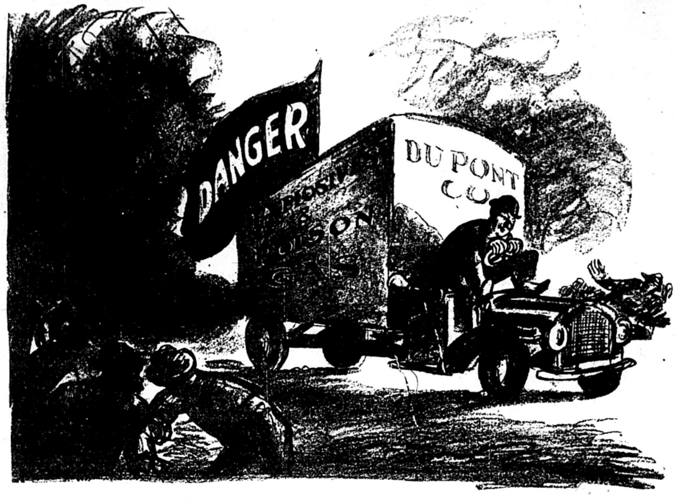
PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia, Aug. 15.—Professor Francias Behounek, Czech scientist who was on board the Italia when it struck the ice in the Arctic, is telling of his experiences in a series of interviews, which reveal the insufficient preparations made by the fascists for the Pole flight.

Cabins were overcrowded, bunks placed in corridors that obstructed the passage, impliments were imperfect. As a result the bearings taken were wrong and resulted in the failure of the rescue expedition to know the position of the wreck.

His story is especially interesting since Mussolini has forbidden Nobile or any of the Italian crew from talking about the event. Behounek has yet to tell about what happened after the crash.

THE DRIVER WITH THE BROWN DERBY

By Fred Ellis



The Woman Worker in China

Slave 12 to 16 Hours a Day for Starvation Wage of 15 Cents

THE development of national industries and the growing penetration of foreign industrial and commercial capital in China is accompanied by the constant growth in the employment of women in industry. Particularly large is the growth in the employment of women's labor in the textile and tobacco industries.

Women 40 Per Cent of Workers

The women constitute 40 per cent of all the industrial workers in China. Out of 50,000 workers employed in the cotton and silk industries of the natives in 1926 there were 50 per cent women, whilst in the foreign mills, which are technically better equipped, the women constituted about 70 to 80 per cent. There is a whole number of factories employing exclusively the labor of women and children (in Canton).

The condition of the Chinese women worker is considerably worse than in the capitalist countries of Europe and America. It is worse than the condition of the Chinese working man, it is worse even under Chinese conditions which are characterized by political and cultural backwardness of the masses of the workers, by the abundance and cheapness of labor power, and by the atrocious exploitation of the workers by foreign and native capital.

Chinese Women Know No Rest

The Chinese working woman knows of no rest. She works the whole year round, day and night. In some provinces of China, under pressure from the workers, there were attempts made to establish holidays for working men and women on the days dedicated to the celebration of the Chinese New Year which usually lasts 7 to 10 days. This has not been achieved as yet.

Working Day 12 to 14 Hours.

THE working day of the working woman usually lasts in the up-to-date factories from 12 to 14 hours, and in less modern factories as long as 16 hours. In those factories where the women are virtually part of the machinery, not being allowed even an interval for partaking of food, the 12-hour day becomes more unendurable than the 16-hour day in the more primitive factories and in the home trades; in the latter the labor is less intensified and the women can allow themselves short intervals during work for food and rest.

In all the factories whether owned by native or foreign capital the employment of women and children on night work is permitted.

Since 1925 the Chinese trade unions have been carrying on a vigorous campaign for shorter, shorter hours, but little notice has been taken of their demands, and the women and children are frequently compelled to work even longer hours than the men, under the constant and vigilant eye of the supervisors. Should a working woman or child doze off for a while or work less strenuously on account of fatigue or sickness, the whip of the supervisor immediately falls upon the back of the unfortunate worker and the imposition of a fine is announced in a rough voice.

Abominable Condition.

From the standpoint of hygiene the working conditions in the factories are abominable. An American journalist, Agatha Harrison, thus describes a visit to one of the British cotton mills in Shanghai in 1923: "Hundreds of working women and children were tending the spinning wheels. It was three o'clock in the morning. Some of them fell asleep at their work from sheer fatigue, in a standing posture. The children of the working women were squatting close by. I saw with my own eyes how one of the children had its leg torn off by the machine, the child died on the spot from a profuse loss of blood, receiving no medical attention whatsoever." In the silk spinning mills of Shanghai the women work in unventilated furnaces in a hot and humid atmosphere which is so detrimental to their health that the women employed in those factories can be recognized by their peculiar palor and emaciated appearance.

No Privileges For Women.

THERE are no privileges for working mothers. Pregnant women keep on working day and night to the very last moment of childbirth. Frequently their bear their child whilst tending the machine, resuming work immediately after birth. The baby is either tied behind the back or put in a little basket near the machine, with the older brothers and sisters usually standing by. In the factories one may see working women nursing their children without interrupting their work.

In some of the Chinese provinces, as the result of numerous strikes, vacations of one or two weeks after childbirth have been established for working women; nevertheless the women, even if entitled, did not take advantage of the vacation. The place of the working woman going on vacation may be promptly taken by one of the thousands of unemployed women waiting outside the factory gates.

Whilst working under such unbearable conditions, the Chinese workers receive miserable wages, whilst the women receive two-thirds or one-half of the man's wages.

In Canton in 1927 the average minimum wage of a working man was 8 Mexican dollars a month, and the maximum was $25.50, whilst the average minimum wage for women was $7, and the maximum $15.36. No wages are paid to working men or women in case of sickness. It was declared by one of the employers of Canton before a commission appointed to investigate social questions in 1926: "When workers fall sick, they have to take care of themselves."

In other textile centers the working woman usually receives not more than 15 cents a day. In the factories of the Anglo-American Tobacco Company the women packers earn daily from 25 to 40 cents, and in the match factories about 20 cents a day.

In the factories of Tientsin the following rates of wages for working women exist (these data cover 6,357 working women of 25 factories):

	Less than 20c a day	From 20 to 40c	From 40 to 50c
Seasonal Wkr's	1,553	50	....
Permanent "	200	2,532	3,022
Total	1,753	2,582	3,022

Thus, the majority of the seasonal workers do not earn more than 20 cents a day, whilst the permanent workers do not earn more than 50 cents. On the whole, the average earnings of the Chinese woman worker are not more than 6-10 Chinese dollars a month, barely sufficing for an existence of semi-starvation.

Food of Rice and Soup.

IN the large cities of South China the food of the working woman consists of rice, soup twice daily, and boiled rice once daily. In Central and North China, where rice is considerably dearer, it is substituted by beans, maize, and wheat and flour boiled in water.

The earnings of the working woman do not allow the purchasing of clothes from new material; the working woman is usually clothed in old rags purchased from the second-hand dealers' stores, which are scattered all over industrial China.

On the average the earnings of the textile workers' family, if not less than 2 members of the family are working in the factory, do not exceed 12 Chinese dollars a month. At the same time, according to data by the trade unions for 1926, the indispensable living minimum for a working class family of 4 people in Hankow was not less than 28.46 Chinese dollars. Hence the textile workers' family earns only 50 per cent of the indispensable living minimum. The position of the working woman is further aggravated by the fact that virtually she never gets the full earnings.

System of Fines.

In the industrial enterprises of China, both national and foreign, the system of fines is widely used. Fines are imposed for failure to come to work, for slackness of attention, for talking to comrades, for laughing while at work. In the silk spinning mills of the Shantung Province there are 35 different varieties of fines: for being 6 minutes late a fine of 10 cents is imposed upon the working woman, an equal fine of 10 cents for washing up without permission, or for pausing at the machine. The working woman frequently has to part with one-half of her earnings in fines. Cases are not rare when she does not get any wages at all.

Besides fines there is also practiced the system of "security," which is held by the employer as a guarantee against pilfering, or clumsy and inaccurate work on the part of the working woman. The security is retained in the amount of three weeks earnings and is virtually never paid back to the worker.

Women Worker Flogged.

THE Chinese working woman is still suffering from the system of supervisors and overseers. The overseers flog the women and inflict corporal punishment for the least offense, considering them as their property. There are even cases of women being killed by the overseers who are carrying arms. Brutal treatment of working women by the overseers exists also in the foreign factories. The whip is never discarded. In 1926, in the course of a strike in the silk spinning mills in South China, a working woman was killed by a revolver shot fired by an overseer, because she had been elected by the workers to present a demand to the administration for a 20 per cent increase in wages.

CHINA WAR LORDS EXPLOIT MASSES

For ten years war has been going on unceasingly between the Chinese militarists and each day it becomes bloodier and more ruthless. Thus the Chinese masses find themselves in conditions of the most terrible oppression and exploitation. In the Changsi province, for instance, taxes from 1917 to 1928 increased more than 30 fold. Since the betrayal by the Kuomintang the groupings of inimical neomilitarists have become more complicated than ever before; there are supporters of Chiang Kai-shek, Pei Tson-si, Yen Si-chang, Feng Yu-hsiang, etc. Besides, the Kuomintang is incapable of uniting China—conflicts are ripening between the Kuomintang generals themselves. Therefore each of these adventurers are trying to get rich by exploiting the masses, who are completely ruined. The only way out of this position is to come out on the path of revolution.

We give below a list of those evils which the Chinese masses have to suffer as a result of the war between the militarists:

I. Political Position.

(1) The supreme power is in the hands of militarists; all regions are ruled by military chiefs.

(2) The right of meetings, freedom of speech and other elementary rights of the population have been annulled, especially for workers and peasants.

(3) The most barbarous punishments are practiced (eyes put out, ears cut off, etc.).

(4) The money-lenders and landlords help the militarists to exploit the peasants.

II. The Economic Position.

(1) All industrial enterprises, including those managed by the government, have been ruined (railway companies, cotton mills, etc.). Ammunition factories, however, are working successfully, and imperialist capital is spreading more and more in China, especially in Manchuria.

(2) The population is burdened by numerous taxes. The paper currency has completely depreciated, but the militarists force the merchants to accept it. The financial crisis has decreased the buying capacity of the masses; the workers have not received wages for a whole year. The peasant produce has decreased, and it is impossible to transport the products, as the means of transport have been disorganized. There is a shortage of food products in the town, and in the village great need is felt for industrial commodities.

(3) The Chinese merchants have been ruined (more than 1,000 shops in Peking have closed down), but the imperialists' goods are distributed in China. Great supplies of food from Japan arrive in Shanghai.

III. Public Education.

(1) More than eight-tenths of the schools all over China have been closed down (an extremely large number of elementary schools in the villages have been closed down).

(2) Public education does not exist, the former schools of this type have been closed down.

(3) Education imbued with the feudal spirit is comparatively flourishing.

(4) All civilization is dying out.

IV. Social Position.

(1) Banditism is spreading all over China, both in the towns and the villages.

(2) The unemployed peasants pour into the towns.

(3) Unemployment in the towns is increasing.

(4) Poverty causes numerous cases of suicide.

V. The Various Taxes.

(1) Taxes levied beforehand.

(2) Tax for the suppression of the Reds.

(3) Tax in aid of the militarists.

(4) Tax on things bought, amounting to two-fifths of sum expended.

Told You So

THE outstanding positive accomplishments of the G. O. P. administration are the invasion of Nicaragua and the slaughtering of thousands of the people of that country for daring to defend their rights against the American imperialists. The slaughtering of hundreds of Chinese workers at Hankow by shells fired from United States warships. The general advance of American imperialism thruout the world, accompanied by murder and oppression whenever the interests of Wall Street required "stern measures.' The use of guns, bombs, bayonets and injunctions against the American workingclass whenever they tried to better their conditions or fight for the principle of unionism by strike.

THIS is only a short page of the indictment that could be drawn up against the republican party. And should anybody come to the conclusion after reading the foregoing that we entertain any hopes for better treatment from the democratic party should Al be elected, we simply point to the reign of Woodrow Wilson and his bloodhound Mitchell A. Palmer, attorney general, who had the streets of several cities treated to the spectacle of hundreds of men and women marching manacled to immigration detention points awaiting deportation because of their political opinions.

WE have no illusions about the democratic party and when Al Smith delivers his acceptance speech we shall have something to say in comment. The Al Smith who is endorsed by the Fascisti Alliance of North America cannot be a friend of the workingclass. The Al Smith who is alright for John J. Raskob of General Motors and General Motors cannot be alright for the workingclass. Lack of space prevents me from carrying this thot further today, but there will be other days, so we will hold something over, and we may repeat, since repitition if the life of propaganda.

BY way of comic relief, Bill Matheson, who is active in the mining fields of Illinois sent me a clipping with a Vancouver dateline which reads: "A nameless marine creature about six feet long, having an eel-like body and a head resembling that of a sheep, was on display at Provincial Police Headquarters here today as evidence of the existence of a sea-monster which many people have reported seeing in Lake Okanogan, in the interior of British Columbia." "Perhaps its Coolidge" hazards Bill. No Bill, not yet. Cal-in will not have to turn himself into a man-eating hippopotamus or a Texas toad in order to get publicity until after the elections. And as for the description! All I will say is that a sheep's head is at least toothsome when properly cooked.

THE Consolidated Gas Company of New York and the Brooklyn Edison Company, amalgamated a few days ago despite the opposition of certain liberals who are still fighting the trustification of industry and supporting the political parties that keep the trust wheels greased. No sooner was the marriage ceremony performed by the Public Service Commission than the Consolidated Gas Company, the name adopted by the happy pair, declared a 100 per cent stock dividend.

THOSE who claim that the days of opportunity are gone in America are dripping. The members of the Public Service Commission were as anxious for the merger as a cannibal for a slice of baked Baptist. Party lines were disregarded, republicans and democrats rushing the ceremony with the haste of a village justice of the peace joining an eloping pair in wedlock who were pursued by an angry parent, fortified by applejack and a sawed-off shot gun. There may have been a reason.

FAR be it from our purpose to undermine the moral underpinning of any prominent citizen, but if we were not what we are but instead looked on society as a fat goose to be plucked when the plucking was good, we should not think twice of accepting a baby carriage-full of stock in the spliced gas companies of New York and Brooklyn. After all, it is hard to get rich by working at it. And it is no more reprehensible to accept a bundle of stock certificates from a big hearted gas man than it is to rob one or one thousand workers of a part of the product of their toil in mill, mine or factory.

HOUSE of Morgan, United States Ambassador to Mexico, Dwight Morrow has again proved that he is a man of courage. Not being satisfied with risking his life by eating ham and eggs with Calles, he now gives further testimony to his hardihood by purchasing a home in a spot that is infested by bandits. Ah, a lucid interval! How could Morrow feel at home in an honest environment having lived so much of his life in that bandit's quarter, Wall Street? Bet, the Mexican highwaymen will park their legs when they arrive within a mile of his residence and crawl to his presence to swear fealty to their master and place their humble services at his disposal. As the bank messenger is to the treasurer, so is a Mexican bandit to Dwight Morrow.

OVER 100 MINE LOCALS STARTED IN SCAB AREAS

Rank and File to Rally to National Miners Convention

Call Luzerne Meet

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Aug. 19.—Delegates from practically every mine in district five will attend the National Miners Convention, September 9 reports made at the district miners conference in Walton Hall Friday indicated. Where miners have returned to work, dues will be paid directly to the National Miners Convention Arrangements Committee headquarters at 119 Federal St., N. S. Pittsburgh, the conference decided.

Reports from the unorganized fields were particularly optimistic. Over 100 locals are already established in the former non-union area in Pennsylvania and West Virginia alone thus far. An equal number have been organized in Kentucky, Tennessee and Alabama.

UMWA Completely Disorganized.

"As far as the United Mine Workers Union is concerned, Ohio and Pennsylvania are just like West Virginia organizationally,'" Thomas Myerscough declared in an introductory speech. "All that remains of the U. M. W. A. are the paid pickets, in Pennsylvania and in West Virginia. Now our job is to build a new union. Now we must plan a thorough campaign to enter every district where there are mines, organize them, and get delegates for the Convention."

John J. Watt, national chairman of the Arrangement Committee who returned today from a speaking trip through Illinois, declared that he is convinced that the rank and file miners had nothing to do with the movement, which is reducing their wages—the scrapping of the Jacksonville scale, contrary to the accusations of Lewis supporters in Pennsylvania.

"District twelve officers have an agreement which involves a big wage reduction," Watt asserted, "but they're afraid to announce it officially because the feeling of resentment among the men is strong, as is the sentiment for the new union."

Other Conferences

A similar conference will be held in Bellaire, Ohio, of sub-district six. Conferences in the other subdistricts will be held throughout the week. In Kentucky and Indiana, the first of the series of subdistrict conferences opened yesterday.

LONDON, Aug. 19 (UP).—Dispatches to the Daily Mail tonight reported Chinese troops were retreating before Mongol forces in Northwestern Manchuria.

The fighting was believed to be near Hailar, an important railroad center and the seat of local administration of Japanese government. According to meagre reports, Hailar was in immediate danger of capture.

It was believed here the situation had grown more serious within the last 24 hours as any disturbance in Hailar [illegible] affect Japanese interests. Communication with the endangered points has been broken, but unofficial reports were disquieting.

According to reports received by the Daily Worker, the Mongol troops have been subsidized and armed by the Japanese as an excuse for further Japanese intervention in Manchuria. Early reports stated that they had seized a section of the Chinese eastern railway, owned jointly by the Soviet Union and China.

RED MEET DISCUSSES COLONIAL SITUATION

(Wireless to The Daily Worker).

MOSCOW, U. S. S. R., Aug. 19.—At the continuation of the thirtieth session of the World Congress of the Communist International, Kassamin, of Indonesia, analyzed the politico-economic situation in Indonesia and the reasons for the defeat of the Indonesian insurrection of 1926.

Indonesia Revolt.

He pointed out that the errors of the insurrection were that: it began in Sumatra two months after it had already begun in Java; the whole working class was not mobilized; the main attack was concentrated on the capital, where strong forces of police and soldiery were present; and lastly, the insurrection was insufficiently prepared for.

Sikander, of India, then spoke and declared that the idea held by some of the comrades that India was being de-colonized was quite false. British imperialism, he said, was backing the landowners in order to subdue the native bourgeoisie.

Strachov, of the Communist Party of China, analyzed the history of the Chinese revolution, which is temporarily defeated, he said, on account of serious opportunist errors, together with the objective cause of the great strength of the counter-revolutionary enemy under the leadership of imperialism. The Party recognized the errors and is now mobilizing its forces for a second revolutionary wave, he said.

Humbertdroz, of Switzerland, who spoke next, declared that the revolutionary movement in Latin-America was developing rapidly. The Anglo-American struggle for hegemony, he pointed out, made Latin-

Three Workers Killed as Blast Wrecks Train

CORNING, N. Y., Aug. 19 (UP).—Engineer W. C. Carrier, Fireman R. F. Criddle and Brakeman John E. Bell, all of Hornell, were killed today when the engine of an eastbound Erie freight train was wrecked by an explosion.

Twenty freight cars were wrecked by the blast.

The engine was of the large type known as 3100. The cause of the explosion was not determined.

Trains were forced to detour over the D. L. and W. tracks until Monday.

The bodies of the three men were mangled beyond recognition.

10,000 ATTEND 'DAILY' CARNIVAL

Workers Come Despite Threatening Weather

Ten thousand New York workers yesterday attended the International Costume Carnival of the Daily Worker at Pleasant Bay Park, bringing to a successful climax an event that the cloudy weather earlier in the day had threatened to halt. Throughout the day the staff of the Daily Worker was kept busy answering the calls of workers who wanted to find out the directions to Pleasant Bay Park.

Many features enlivened the huge affair. Costumes of all nationalities were exhibited, with the various American worker and farmer costumes predominant. People arrayed in Russian peasant costumes, workers costumes, Chinese, German and Balkan garbs made the festival a gaudy affair.

In the midst of the festivities, the workers gathered in one part of the grounds in a mass meeting to hear the speeches of Bert Miller, Richard B. Moore and D. Benjamin.

After the big carnival was over and the workers had departed for their homes, a statement was released by the arrangement committee apologizing for the lack of adequate preparations in food and refreshments. This was due, according to the committee, to the threatening weather of the forenoon, which had caused them to think that not many workers would come to the Carnival. The statement further went on to say that thanks was due to the many Daily Worker agents whose hearty cooperation had made possible the successful carnival.

Montana and Nebraska have been added to the number of states where the Workers (Communist) Party will be on the ballot, according to reports received at the National Election Campaign Committee headquarters, 43 E. 125th St., New York City.

This brings the number of states, in which the workers and farmers can vote for Foster and Gitlow, on the official ballot up to fourteen. In the 1924 campaign the Communists were unable to surpass this figure. The Party ticket is expected to be on the ballot in at least thirty states this year.

Kentucky and Tennessee are expected to be placed in the Communist column in a few days.

Four Electors Chosen.

Willis L. Wright, editor of Labor Topics, Great Falls, wired the national office that 23 delegates from industrial and farming sections of Montana and also local sympathizers attended a state convention on August 10th, in Butte. Stanley Clark was elected chairman and Mabel Clark, secretary.

A large crowd attended the evening session at which the following electors were chosen: Emma Salisbury and Petra Krogman of Plentywood. Mary Nolan, Butte, and Stanley Clark of Great Falls.

"The prospects indicate a large vote in the state of Montana," says Willis Wright.

New Bedford Fishers Continue Strike

(Special to the Daily Worker.)

NEW BEDFORD, Mass., Aug. 19.—The Textile Council, of which William E. G. Batty is secretary, yesterday issued another statement urging full co-operation with the textile mill owners.

"The real need in the mills is more economical production," the statement says, "and the Textile Council has offered its full co-operation to the mill owners in getting better production."

WOLL IN ATTACK ON COMMUNISTS

'Shipload of Gold,' That Alas—We Didn't Get

Matthew Woll, reactionary vice-president of the American Federation of Labor and collaborator with the big open-shop employers, yesterday issued another statement to the capitalist press intended to injure the organization of workers in industries where the unions have been destroyed by Woll and his associates.

Woll's humor took the form of a statement that "shiploads of money" were being sent to the Workers (Communist) Party of America from the Soviet Union.

His attack further went on to say that Communist "agents" have been using the money "to finance many of the employers against whom organized labor has been fighting for many years, and who themselves are American labor's worst enemies." Woll's statement follows in part:

"The new campaign aims at establishment of dual unions—duplicate unions in fields occupied by unions affiliated with the American Federation of Labor. Money apparently has come from Russia in large quantities to finance this work.

"Communists have found their 'boring from within' procedure has led to no concrete results. The attitude of the American Federation of Labor in supporting every international union having 'borers' within its membership has nullified their efforts.

"While not directly conceding it, indirectly the Communists have conceded the success of the American Federation of Labor in defeating the boring procedure. Now, by explicit direction of Moscow, of which we have absolute and detailed evidence in abundance, Communists in America have changed their policy, coming completely into the open to organize dual unions.

"Their departure into the field of open organization covers so wide a range as to be a startling development in the Communist plan for world revolution.

"What we are dealing with is not the ultimate failure of the plan but the present phases of it and the fact that it must be stopped.

"Communists' efforts at dual organization are found today in the needle trades, centering in New York, the railway shop unions, build-

A.F.L. Heads Join Military on Labor Day

Brazenly expressing its friendship for the military machine of the American Empire, the New York Central Trades and Labor Assembly has made public the fact that it will hold its Labor Day celebration at Fort Hamilton this year.

"Impressive military displays" will accompany the festivities, it is stated.

The customary Labor Day program will be entirely scrapped, and even the brassy platitudes of labor misleaders will be dispensed with, it has been revealed. "Labor features" will be absent, explained President Ryan, "because the trade union movement is now so strong that Labor Day can be enjoyed as an ordinary holiday."

At the last convention of the American Federation in Los Angeles, Gen. Summerall, chief-of-staff of the U. S. army, and President William Green exchanged genuflexions and called each other "good fellows."

BRULE WORKERS IN 2-DAY RALLY

Hold Meets Where Coolidge "Rests"

SUPERIOR, Wis., Aug. 19.—In the town where President Coolidge, $100,000-a-year servant of Big Business, is spending his time catching pampered fish in his private stream, yesterday the Northern Wisconsin Election Campaign Committee of the Workers (Communist) Party held a two-day election campaign rally in Brule. Plans were discussed for an intensive drive in the vicinity of the $1,000,000 estate where Coolidge is spending his summer.

Petition lists have been distributed in the state to place the names of the national as well as local candidates of the Workers (Communist) Party on the ballot. Alvar J. Hayes is running for governor and H. Koski for lieutenant governor of Wisconsin.

Another election campaign rally will be held in Brantwood, near Brule, on September 2.

MILL LEADERS FREED, SPEAK

Campos Move to Betray Fall River Strike

FALL RIVER, Mass., Aug. 19.—Defying the police terror which might envelope them at any moment, enthusiastic mass meetings of strikers in this city yesterday listened to the leaders of the Fall River Textile Mills Committee just released from jail who spoke at Liberty Lot in spite of their $1,000 bonds.

Sam Weisman, Fall River Textile Mill Committee leader, flayed the hypocrisy of Judge Hannify and his pretended concern for the strikers and branded him as a coward for sentencing Bill Seroka to six months in jail for leading a picket line of children.

That John Campos and other officials of the American Federation of Textile Operatives have asked recognition of the union and restoration of ten instead of twenty sides in the mills, instead of withdrawal of the wage cut, as a reward for their strikebreaking services against the Fall River strikers and the Textile Mill Committees was revealed in a report on the conference with Nathan Durfee, official of the American Printing Workers yesterday.

Durfee met the officials' committee with a demand for a general speed-up. He declared that it was necessary "to reorganize" all departments of the plant, with workers

WORKERS PARTY CALLS FOR HUGE PROTEST MEETS

Rallies Arranged by International Labor Defense

Fight Bosses "Justice"

Pointing out the intensification of the class struggle that has taken place since the murder of Sacco and Vanzetti a year ago, the Central Executive Committee of the Workers (Communist) Party, in a statement issued last night, appeals to all American workers to express their class solidarity and their determination to overthrow the capitalist system by attending en masse the Sacco-Vanzetti demonstrations that are being arranged thruout the country by the International Labor Defense.

The statement of the Central Executive Committee follows:

A year has passed since the death of Sacco and Vanzetti who were murdered by capitalist justice for the triple crime of being fighters for the cause of labor, "aliens," and workers. The crime of the American ruling class against two innocent proletarians, whose innocence was strikingly demonstrated by innumerable and irrefutable facts, was not only an act of vengeance against members of the exploited masses. It was also a challenge to the workingclass, to those sections of it that are fighting against a social order in which all government, all laws and all judicial actions are directed to protect the exploitation of the masses by the owners of wealth. It was a challenge to those who challenge capitalist dictatorship.

One year has passed and the forces of capitalist brute oppression, arrayed against the murdered fighters, have not only remained the same, but have even become more brutal and more savage in their attacks on the workingclass. The courts are working at full speed sentencing workingclass fighters, demonstrators, strikers, organizers, leaders, to long-term imprisonment.

Police, militia, thugs, detectives, are mobilized against the workers, breaking up strikes, arresting pickets, dispersing meetings, beating up

TAMMANY PICKS WALL ST. BANKER

Lehman May Run for Governor

Col. Herbert Lehman, Wall Street banker and director in the Studebaker Corporation, will probably be the Democratic nominee for Governor of New York State, it was authoritatively declared yesterday.

Lehman, who is at present financial director of the Democratic National Committee, is a member of the Banking firm of Lehman Brothers, 16 William Street. He has long been associated with Democratic politics and has been a supporter of Governor Smith.

The probable appointment of Lehman is another example of the direct participation of Wall Street bankers in federal and state politics and government.

Bomb Blast Injures Four in Family of Poultry Trust Foe

BROOKLYN, Aug. 19 (UP).—Four members of the family of Joseph Hasenfratz, a poultry dealer who, police said, had been fighting the so-called poultry "trust," were injured today when a bomb exploded outside the door of their apartment.

Hazenfratz's wife and daughter and two others were thrown from their beds and slightly hurt. The bomb shattered all rear windows in the building and blew a hole in the floor of the hallway.

Police said Hazenfratz had complained to the district attorney recently that two men had been bothering him and trying to get him to join the "trust." The men were arrested and later released on bail.

GITLOW CHALLENGES HOOVER ON UNEMPLOYED

Charges Servant of Big Business With Minimizing Suffering of U. S. Workers

Labelling Herbert Hoover as the "Good Man Friday" of American imperialism, Benjamin Gitlow, vice presidential candidate on the Workers (Communist) Party ticket yesterday challenged the G. O. P. standard-bearer on the statement made by him in his Palo Alto acceptance speech that "unemployment in the sense of distress is rapidly disappearing" and points to the 4,000,000 unemployed workers in the United States today as proof that Hoover distorted facts in his attempt to establish the republican party as the party of prosperity.

The famous declaration made by a member of the French ruling class prior to the French revolution, that workers who asked for bread could eat grass, is called to Mr. Hoover's attention by the Communist candidate, in relation to his statement on unemployment.

"The low wages paid in the textile industry, the 4,000,000 unemployed, the bankrupt and poverty-stricken farmers, the wage cuts in the textile, coal, automobile, shoe and other industries are sufficient proof that everything is not as rosy as Mr. Hoover paints them," says Gitlow.

There is no hope for the poor farmers in Hoover's solution of appropriating a few millions a year for farmers' relief, Gitlow declares, since only the rich farmers who will be part of the additional government apparatus stand to benefit.

Gitlow asks Hoover why he failed to state his position on the war on Nicaragua, a large army and navy for imperialistic adventures, if he favors the preparations of the United States for a war with Japan over the Chinese markets, why he did not protest against the execution of two innocent workers, Sacco and Vanzetti, by a republican governor, why Tom Mooney and Billings are in prison while the big oil grafters are free, why the Soviet government is not recognized by the United States, and several other questions.

Gitlow's statement, issued to the National Election Campaign Committee of the Workers (Communist) Party, reads:

"The workers who listened to Mr. Hoover's acceptance speech found out that the oracle of big business turned out to be a vacuum as far as they are concerned.

"Every issue raised by the work-

Progressive Machinists Urge Fight for Militant Program at the Coming Canvention

SCORE POLICIES OF OFFICIALDOM AS REACTIONARY

Hit Schemes for Class Collaboration

Scoring the reactionary policies of the officialdom of the Machinists Union, the progressive machinists have issued a program and a call for action which they will advance at the coming convention of the union. The text of the call follows, in full:

Brother Machinists:

The I. A. of M. is in a most critical condition. What was once a powerful, militant and fighting organization is now a ghostly skeleton. Our membership has dropped from 330,000 in 1920 to approximately 70,000 at the present time. When industry was prosperous, with excellent chances for organizing, we not only did not gain members, but actually lost members. Now when industry is slack, we are desperately trying to hold our own. At present, we have fewer machine shops under union agreement than we had before the war. In most of the machine industrial centers throughout the country and on many railroads the organization has been wiped out altogether. Our organization campaigns have failed to organize the industry. The automobile and many other sections of the machine industry, comprising hundreds of thousands of organizable machinists, remain totally unorganized. The introduction of new tools and new machine processes make the unskilled and semi-skilled our competitors and eliminate much of the skill formerly required by members of our trade. Still we do very little to organize these masses of workers. Unless the rank and file machinists immediately awake to the situation confronting the organization and force the coming convention to adopt a program that will meet present conditions, the I. A. of M. is in danger of being still further weakened, union conditions will be further destroyed, and our standard of living will be still further reduced.

We Are Following a Wrong and Hopeless Policy

This state of affairs is the direct outcome of the reactionary policy forced upon the union by our Grand Lodge officials. They spend their energy to organize a few small shops and give no attention to the large machine factories. When rank and file pressure compelled them to act, our Grand Lodge officials together with the A. F. of L. officials made a pretense of organizing the automobile industry, but this campaign fizzled out. They have abandoned the idea of using the industrial power of the workers to fight for better conditions and instead rely on arbitration and the "good will" of the employers for wage increases; whereas all experience shows that arbitration gets us nowhere. The cases of the C. & O. shopmen and other railroad trades are recent examples of what can be expected from arbitration. Our officials preach the B. & O. Plan of union-management cooperation to boost production, which has brought us no more than the workers get who are employed in strictly open shops. In the few strikes that were called, they have weakened before injunctions, abandoned picketing, and relied on old party politicians to fight the injunctions in court; and in meantime the strikes were lost. They have done nothing to carry out the previous convention decisions for amalgamation and consequent strengthening of the organization.

Instead, they suppress every effort in this direction. In order to continue their erroneous program, they have expelled many members who have the courage to fight for a constructive change in the policy of the Association. Typical examples are the Toledo case and the Lodge No. 390 case. They even went so far in the Anderson case as to expel a member for daring to demand a fair election as a candidate for office against the administration machine.

Completely failing to organize our industry, arbitrary expulsion of militant and loyal members, denying free speech, and perpetuating themselves in office, has been the record of our Grand Lodge officialdom during the past eight years.

A Fighting Program Needed

Although we are facing a most important convention and the Association is engaged in a life-and-death struggle, our officials have no program whatever that will rebuild the I. A. of M. and assure us better wages and working conditions. Therefore the rank and file must prepare its own program and submit it to the convention for adoption. To stop the present retreat and to provide a program upon which the union can progress, the following measures are submitted to local lodges in the I. A. of M. for their consideration:

1. Industrial Unionism a Crying Need: Amalgamate the Unions.

The present craft form of organization does not fit the needs of modern, highly concentrated industry. With large establishments constantly merging to form stronger groups of capital, we must have in our industry one strong, powerful union, capable of defending our interests. This must be brought about through amalgamation of all the unions in our industry. Such amalgamation must be brought about by the rank and file of the various unions. The campaign must be carried into the local unions of the other organizations. At the Detroit convention, the administration forces defeated a proposal to elect a special committee to carry on this campaign. Such a committee, of those who believe in amalgamation, should be elected by the coming convention.

2. Organize the Large Machine Shops. 100 Per Cent Organization On the Railroads.

The most important task for our union is to organize the railroad and machine industry, especially the large factories—the auto, agricultural machinery and other sections of the metal industry. Instead of organizing the auto industry, our officials organize only garage mechanics. Our officials have followed a wrong policy of organization; furthermore, they have not shown themselves capable of organizing our industry, or even a willingness to do so. The rank and file of our Association must take the initiative in carrying on this important task of organization.

Shop committees must be set up in the unorganized shops. More attention must be paid to the specialists, the semi-skilled, the women and youth who are coming into the trade. By keeping out of our union the Negroes who are coming into our industry, we give the employer the opportunity to use them against us in our fight to maintain union conditions; it is in our interest to permit the Negro to join the union.

We are opposed to the Compulsory Insurance proposal, as the increased dues would hinder our organization work.

3. Defeat the Class Collaboration Schemes. Repudiate the B. & O. Plan (the union-management cooperation plan).

This plan has proved a complete failure wherever it has been tried out. It has brought increased profits for the employers, and no special gains for our members working under the plan either on some railroads, or in the Speedaumatic Company contract shop in Chicago. The B. & O. Plan must be repudiated by our organization, as well as the Watson-Parker Law and its arbitration provisions.

4. A fight For Better Conditions.

The I. A. of M. should take up again a fighting policy for better conditions, for higher wages, and for shorter hours. It should fight for the 5-day week with the 8-hour day and make this a part of the union agreements. The strike benefit system should be reestablished in preparation for coming struggles. The system of donations should be abolished. The strike fund must not be used for any other purpose nor shall any sums be borrowed from the strike fund.

5. Democracy In the Union.

(a) Our union must become democratic; the membership must run the organization. Not less democracy, but more democracy is the need. Defeat the Proposal to Elect Our Officers In the Convention. This proposal would give greater power to a small group of officials who could manipulate conventions. Instead, we must retain the present method of election of Grand Lodge officers through a referendum; more power to the membership.

(b) Stop the Expulsion Campaign of the Officialdom. Support complete expression of opinion for our members on all working class matters; reinstatement of all brothers suspended or expelled for advocating views different from the administration.

(c) Biennial Conventions. The present system of four years between conventions denies the rank and file sufficient opportunity to participate in making the policies of our union. We propose a convention every two years.

6. For a Labor Party.

We need a political party of labor that will fight for our interests. The old parties both represent capital and fight labor. At present, injunctions are used to break strikes. We must struggle against injunctions by open violation, by continued picketing.

We must fight for Relief For the Unemployed. The convention must fight unemployment by launching a movement to decrease the hours of labor; by demanding governmental insurance against unemployment, administered by the workers and financed by a tax on profits; and by cooperation with councils of unemployed to demand protection and relief. The parties of capital do nothing for the unemployed. We must support the demand for a Labor Party.

Brother Machinists:

Our present policy has been tried for many years, long enough for a complete test. It has been fully tried out by our entire administration, by our staff of international officers. Our present policy is a complete failure.

Our responsible officers no longer think in terms of militant unionism. Our platform and preamble, under which we conducted heroic struggles and built up the organization, have been scrapped. Organizing for better pay, shorter hours, improved shop conditions, etc., has been superseded by the slogan of "union banks, union-management cooperation plan," etc. In fact, our officers have abandoned the fundamental principles of trade unionism.

As a result, the character of our once militant organization has been completely changed. Yesterday, we were progressive and militant. Today, we are stagnant and dying. And our officials make things worse by expelling those who demand a return to militant methods.

Brothers! Let us cease to be an organization in name only. It is time to call a halt: It is time to face realities. It is high time to stop backing up, and to start going ahead.

The salvation of the I. A. of M. lies with the rank and file membership and not with its present leadership. Therefore, it is up to the membership to see that the coming convention adopts a program that will rebuild, strengthen and consolidate the I. A. of M.

We call upon every lodge in the association to endorse the above program and instruct their delegates to the coming convention to fight for its adoption.

WORKERS OF ALL LANDS ARE REPRESENTED AT MOSCOW SPORT MEET

MOSCOW, U. S. S. R., Aug. 19.—Celebrations marking the event of the Spartakiade, the sports festival of the international working class, enliven the streets of Moscow and give the city an air of gaiety. In the crowds moving through the streets, going to and from the sport carnival, can be seen representatives of all nationalities and of all countries.

Mixed with the robe-like dress and gay mantel of the Uzbecks, the balloon trousers of the South Caucasion girls, the flamboyant embroidery on the shirts of the Ukrainians and the bright red in the shirts and caps of the Crimean Tartars, the more sedate European costumes of the Germans, English, French, Swiss, Austrians, Czechs, Esthonians, Finns, Letts, Swedes, Norwegians and Uruguayans, offered a somber resting place for the eye.

In the evening the colored beams of searchlights, and the bright color display of the fireworks projected the color galaxy into the air. Crowds surging about on the river bank and on the Red Square, were illuminated by the crimson reflection of the fireworks and the play of the searchlights.

Revolutionary leaders mingled with the representatives of all nationalities. Members of the Central Committee of the Soviet Government, members of the Central Committee of the All Union Communist Party, delegates to the World Congress of the Communist International, the working class athletes, all testified to international importance and significance of the occasion.

The new "Park of Culture and Repose" on the Moscow River, which was just opened, was overflowing with the carnival crowd. In this proletarian garden, workers of other countries and of the far flung regions of the Soviet Union, saw the latest in recreational institutions. Day nurseries relieved mothers of their infants and the children were entertained with games, amusements, shows. Libraries, athletics, swimming, boating, orchestras, movies, workers' dramatic clubs, radios, shooting galleries, volley ball nets, tennis courts, soccer offered quite a problem of choice for the workers. Often during the course of the day and evening the crowds throughout the gardens would take up the famous Revolutionary march, "Budyeni." In the park alone there were 200,000 people.

More serious amusement was also provided for. Secluded corners held large boards, illuminated by electric lights, which exhibited a large map of the world. Around these boards fiery discussions on the international situation took place the whole day. The light would be concentrated on that portion of the map under discussion, and people, urged on by advertisements on large banners that told of the discussions taking place, came from all parts of the park to participate.

MOBILIZING FOR RED WEEK DRIVE

WorkersPartyStations Opened Thruout City

Two hundred functionaries of District 2, of the Workers (Communist) Party, assembled Friday night at the Workers Center, listened to last minute instructions before the launching of Red Week, which begins today and will last through Aug. 26, ending with two Red Mass Collection Days on Aug. 25 and 26.

The ready response of the functionaries to the mobilization call, and the enthusiasm manifested at Friday's meeting, a Workers Party statement said, are indicative of the thoroughness with which the election campaign financial drive will be carried on in New York. While functionaries were cautioned by Rebecca Grecht, campaign manager of the Workers (Communist) Party, not to let the work of gathering signatures suffer during Red Week, they were at the same time instructed to bend every effort toward reaching other workers in their homes, shops and clubs for contributions to the campaign fund.

Boxes Distributed.

Collection material for the two Red Collection Days of Saturday and Sunday were distributed among those present, including boxes, credentials and arm bands. Each functionary also stocked himself with contribution lists to be circulated among workers.

In every section of the city, from downtown Manhattan to northern Bronx, from Long Island to Coney Island, workers' clubs whose memberships are conscious of the anti-labor role played by the capitalist parties have donated the use of their headquarters as temporary Red Stations for the duration of the Red Week. In all there are thirty such stations, evenly distributed thruout the city.

Thruout the week contributions will be made to the election campaign fund on the special collection lists. On Saturday and Sunday the drive will be greatly intensified by thousands of Red Campaigners, who armed with box, credentials and arm-band, will fine-comb the thorofares, the transit lines, the beaches of the city, in support of the workingclass candidates and workingclass platform of the Workers Party.

NANKING CHIEFS ATTACK U. S. S. R.

PEKING, China, Aug. 19.—Two Nanking generals reaffirmed their enmity to the Soviet Union and their intention of carrying on a war against Communists and militant workers and peasants in a statement made public here.

Marshal Li Tsung-jen, the Hankow general, who is considered to be one of the most "promising" of the war lords, declared that all the "anti-Communist" nations of the world should unite with the Nanking government against the Soviet Union. He also said that the Nanking war lords had decided "that proletarian domination would not do" and have accordingly proceeded to crush all labor movements.

The other statement is issued by General Feng.

NITGEDAIGET RAISES $1,000 FOR THE "DAILY"

By EDWIN ROLFE

BEACON, N. Y., Aug. 19.—With the collection of $27 at the Soviet Costume Ball in the Casino, Saturday, Camp Nitgedaiget officially brought to a close the festivities that had marked its "Daily Worker Week." Over $1,100 was collected in all for the aid of the Daily Worker during the seven-day campaign.

The costume ball on Saturday exceeded the expectations of the 700 campers. At the end of an evening filled with dancing, music, mass-plays, refreshments, and the presence of the full moon, two lithographic crayon drawings by Jacob Burck, the talented proletarian artist, were offered on the auction block. The portraits were those of Lenin and Ruthenberg. The bidding, after about three dollars had been contributed, became a contest between Paterson Workers (Communist) Party members and New York comrades, each group of which wanted the drawings for their city's Party Headquarters.

Many Contribute.

After a long fight, with A. Ravitch, business manager of the Daily Worker, acting as auctioneer, the Paterson regiment of the Communist army won the coveted drawings. Among those who contributed in the bidding, with sums varying from 25 cents to a dollar, were: Feldstein, B. Levine, Berland, Bessine, Novick, Marin, Rogers, Fenster, Kunofsky, Donafsky, Simon, Amron, Malamund, Reibstein, Castrell, Zirlin, Costin, B. Cohen, Post, Topisky, Newman, Raskewitch, Chashmal, and a host of Paterson workers who, in their mass spirit, refused to divulge their names.

Hold "Prohibition Day."

One of the most productive and at the same time most amusing features of the "Daily Worker Week" was the "Prohibition Day." All luxuries and deviations from the regular camp routine were prohibited, and violators were subject to fines. For this purpose, a camp judge was needed. "Comrade Slim," a kitchen worker, nosed out Nathan Fishman, an office worker, after a hot election campaign, in the course of which stump speeches and fiery exposures and denunciations were hurled by the candidates against each other.

"Daily" Man Fined.

During the prohibition day, A. B. Magil, of the Daily Worker editorial staff, was fined for holding a conversation with a girl comrade, and Novick, of the Freiheit staff, was fined for sleeping when he should have been swimming or taking a sun-bath. Judge Slim, during his day of power, was grim and austere; no culprit was allowed to depart from his judicial chambers unpunished. Hundreds of dollars were collected in this way for the Daily Worker.

BIGGER NAVY TO OFFSET RIVALS

Franco-British Pact Alarms Coolidge

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19.—Great concern over the contents of the Franco-British naval pact is being felt here in naval circles, and the conference between President Coolidge and naval chiefs has resulted, it is rumored here, in a decision to enter on an extensive naval building program in order to offset the possible pooling of the British and French navies in time of war.

The note sent to Washington by Chamberlain last month, counter to general belief, did not contain details of the naval agreement, and when Kellogg is in Paris he is expected to demand all details concerning the pact. In the meanwhile naval chiefs are planning increased naval armaments to protect American interests on the seas.

It is further reported that the United States Commission that will go to Geneva to the disarmament conference will not participate unless the secret pact is divulged.

HOLD CHICAGO SACCO MEETING

Milwaukee Will Also Hold Memorial

CHICAGO, Aug. 19.—Final arrangements are being made by the local International Labor Defense for the holding of a Sacco-Vanzetti Memorial Demonstration here on August 22, at Temple Hall, corner of Van Buren and Marshfield.

Both the Lithuanian and Jewish Singing Societies have been secured and will take part in the musical program. The famous classical orchestra of Carl Sturm will take an important part also.

Among the speakers there will be Ralph Chaplin, the noted working-class poet; Max Bedacht, of the Workers (Communist) Party; Guido Serio, of the Anti-Fascist Alliance, and Mordecai Shulman, prominent Chicago liberal attorney. Joseph Giganti, secretary of the Chicago local of the International Labor Defence, will officiate as chairman.

Because of the revival of the spirit of militancy which is pervading the entire working class of the city as a result of the agitation being carried on by the International Labor Defense for the release of Mooney and Billings, an immense crowd of workers is expected to be present.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Aug. 19.—Cora Meyer, secretary of the I. L. D. in this city, announces that the Sacco-Vanzetti memorial meeting in Milwaukee will take place on Saturday, August 25, at 8 p. m., in Harmony Hall, First Ave. and Mineral St.

ing trades, miners, cigar makers and among miscellaneous trades.

"In promoting dual unions, the Communists are openly seeking cooperation of open shop employers. We welcome the changed attitude because now we will know which American employers are willing to countenance Moscow controlled labor organizations, financed by Soviet Russia and formed for the specific purpose of furthering the Moscow scheme of world revolution and dictatorship.

"We will now find out how our 'open shop' employers with alleged American and patriotic war cries will take to their bosoms the doctrines of Communism and the machinations of Communists.

"And the public will learn the great service rendered by American labor to our people and government."

Alarm of the A. F. of L. officialdom at recent successes of the left wing trade unionists under Communist leadership, in beginning the construction of new unions, in such as the needle trades, coal mining and textile mills, are understood to be the cause of the issuance of the statement by Mr. Woll.

COLONIES CHIEF TOPIC AT WORLD CONGRESS MEET

Discuss Indonesia Revolt

America extremely important. All the Latin-American countries are dependent either on Britain or America, he said, and he indicated how the former was being pushed out by the United States. The Pan-American Federation of Labor, he continued, is an instrument of United States imperialism and must be fought.

The discussion then commenced and was participated in by Heller, Riulu and Carney, of Ireland; Banderas, of the Peasants' International; Vorovsky, of China; Haidar, of Palestine; Omura and Katayama, of Japan; Darcy of the United States; Roux, of South Africa; Jacquemotte of Belgium; Devisser, of Holland; Gomez, of the United States; Bennett, of Britain; Zchakaya, of Georgia, and Rothstein, of Britain.

Discuss Theses on Colonies.

Carney declared that the British and American Communist Parties must pay more attention to propaganda among the Irish workers, in this way supporting the work of the Irish Communist Party. Darcy declared that a start must be made in building the mass organizations of the colonial youth. He said that the Chinese and Mexican experiences showed this to be possible. He also pointed out that the Mexican Young Workers League is stronger numerically than the Communist Party of Mexico.

Indian Industrialization.

Bennett disagreed with the theses that India was an agricultural country dependent on the motherland as this was an underestimation of the working class and the national revolutionary movement. Industrialization of India, he said, was proceeding under British control. Further, Britain is not returning to the old nineteenth century policy, and those who think so, he said, incorrectly estimate the [illegible] of the native bourgeoisie, which is already collaborating with the imperialists and is prepared to betray the national revolution because it knows it will lead to an agrarian revolution and the struggle of the workers for power.

Rothstein declared that the analysis of the imperialist colonial policy in the theses was incorrect. The chief principle of the imperialist colonial policy, he said, was not to transform the colonies into cheap sources for food and raw material for the motherlands. Capital export, he declared, was not an isolated and accidental factor, but the fundamental factor in the imperialist colonial policy. Further, the main aim of the imperialists is profit and this results willy-pilly in the industrialization of the colonies. The passage iin the theses that analyzes the character of the imperialist colonial policy must be rewritten, he declared.

200 KILLED IN STORMS IN HAITI

Peasants Hard Hit, Farms Ruined

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti, Aug. 19.—Two hundred are estimated to be dead and 10,000 homeless as the result of a tropical storm which swept over the island, wiping out many villages and ruining the crops and fields.

The storm is said to be the worst in forty-two years and the outlying sections were hard hit, the cities and larger towns escaping great damage. The lot of the surviving peasants, whose homes and means of livelihood have been taken away, is desperate.

ALEXANDRIA, Egypt, Aug. 19.—A terrific hurricane swept the North African coast, taking between fifteen and twenty lives in Algeria. Small sea craft were submerged and border towns flooded.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19 (UP).—J. Reuben Clark, noted international lawyer of Salt Lake City, Utah, has been offered the post of under Secretary of State, succeeding Robert E. Olds, who resigned in June, it was learned today.

It is understood Clark has accepted and that Secretary of State Kellogg will announce the appointment late today or tomorrow.

Honor the Memory of Sacco and Vanzetti

By ROSE BARON,

(Secretary N. Y. Section, International Labor Defense.)

Judge Webster Thayer called them "bastards"—but we remember them as martyrs to labor's cause. Charged with the crime of killing for money, we honor their memories. Taken out one dark night and burned to death with electricity—we will hold a memorial demonstration for them on Union Square, Wednesday, August 22nd at 5 p. m.

A pull of the switch jerked these two "shining spirits," as Heywood Broun called them, into the galaxy of labor martyrs. Simple workers plying their trades as shoemaker and fish peddler, the agents of the textile barons in Massachusetts (the same who are today flashing bayonets at the New Bedford strikers) made their names household words in New York and San Francisco; London and Moscow; Lima and Montreal.

Their Names Are Slogans to Lead the Fight Against the Frame-up System

The mention of their names sent electrified angry masses in the streets of European capitals clamoring before American embassies. Their names have become a rallying call. The night that the workers were murdered the Sacco-Vanzetti Emergency Committee which led the fight in New York, issued a statement which said: "Their names will be shouted in future class war battles."

It is true.

Today the names, Sacco and Vanzetti, are slogans to lead the fight against the frame-up system in America, against the fascist regime in Italy and elsewhere, the names are hallowed by marching revolutionary workers in Central and South America and hundreds of millions of workers throughout the world know full well the significance of these names. They have become a guiding light in the world revolution.

Commemorate Deaths.

And the workers of New York—how will we commemorate the anniversary of their deaths this year?

Yes, one year has passed since we waited with heavy hearts and bated breath for the word to come flashing from Boston that some miracle had intervened to save these "two shining spirits"—we who knew that there are no miracles in the class war—so desperate were we that we waited and hoped. But the silent, waiting wires suddenly burst into action and screamed, SACCO DEAD: 12:19. VANZETTI DEAD: 12:26.

On Union Square (the same square where on August the 22nd this year at 5 p. m. we will hold our mass memorial meeting) the night exploded with flares and flashlights; women screamed, men cursed and wept and the flanks of police motorcycles tore through the crowd of 15,000 which waited all night to hear the terrible news.

Mooney in Jail.

Workers of New York: the International Labor Defense calls upon you to make this memorial demonstration the largest in the history of the New York labor movement. Come in your thousands, bring your shop mates and fellow workers.

Mooney and Billings are still in jail; let us make this meeting a strong demonstration for the liberation of our two comrades who are in the damp-dripping cells of Folsom and San Quentin.

Remember the date: Wednesday, August the 22nd at 5 in the afternoon. Remember the place: Union Square. The purpose: Sacco and Vanzetti.

German Social Democrats to Drop Cruiser Construction Question, Leaders Decide

COMMUNISTS IN MOVE TO FORCE A REFERENDUM

Plan to Secure 4,000,000 Necessary Signers

BERLIN, Aug. 19.—Decision of the social democratic party to let the critical cruiser dispute drop with an expression of regret following a conference of party leaders at which nearly 200 participated, the Communist Party has decided to take immediate steps to carry the question before the German working class. A provisory clause in the referendum law, however, making the referendum contingent upon the president's consent in certain cases, may prevent the immediate consideration of the armament expenditure by the workers, but the Communist Party is taking measures to secure the 4,000,000 signatures necessary to force popular submission of the question.

In the midst of nation-wide recrimination and ridicule, the leaders of the social democratic party have met and approved the decision of Chancellor Mueller and Carl Severing, minister of the interior, in approving the depletion of the German treasury by 9,000,000 marks for the construction of the first cruiser built since the war.

The seal of social democratic sanction was set upon the renewed German armament policy with the orders sent the Kiel shipyards Friday night to begin work on the cruiser immediately, Chancellor Mueller told the conference in substance.

Mueller repeated his former statements that the decision of the Reichstag and the Federal Council to build the cruisers left merely the approval of the expenditure up to the social democrats and have absolved them from all guilt in furthering armament. This statement has been caught up by the workers and is being flung back in the face of the social democrats together with the pacifist slogans which helped them win their recent electoral successes.

Even the reactionary parties, while [illegible]lighted at the commitment of the [illegible]al democrats to armament policy, [illegible] seizing this opportunity to disc[illegible]it them politically.

The provisory clause in the referendum law states that in questions of the budget or public funds, the president has a right to determine whether or not a popular vote shall be taken. Nothing reveals more clearly the satisfaction of the government with social democratic armament policy than the official intimations that Von Hindenburg will never permit the referendum which the Communist Party of Germany has announced its intention of demanding.

Four million signatures are necessary to force submission of the armament question to the working class and the Communist Party is initiating a countrywide campaign to secure these.

BUMPER CROP IN USSR OVER 1913

Government Is Buying Most Grain

MOSCOW, Aug. 19.—The September harvest shows prospects of being the largest crop ever produced in the Soviet Union, even exceeding the pre-war figures. The 1928 crop will show an index figure of 116 as compared with the prewar average of 100, according to reliable reports from the Urals, Siberia and Kazakstan.

The peasants are only too willing to sell their grain under the favorable conditions provided by the Soviet Government. The government grain-buying organization, which is now a combination of the former government and cooperative organizations, is proving its efficiency in the collection and transportation of the grain.

Provisions are being made to transfer a good part of the Siberian grain to the Ukraine, which was hard hit in its winter crop by the unfavorable weather conditions.

BR[illegible]ISH PLAN NEW ARAB WAR

CAIRO, Egypt, Aug. 19.—British preparations for an invasion whose purpose is reported to be the extinction or replacement of Ibn Saud, king of the Hedjas, are continuing with sporadic airplane bombing raids, according to dispatches from Irak.

The invasion is scheduled to take place in early October after the summer heat has decreased.

Growing resentment among all sections of the Near East is reported to exist due to the British and French attitude towards the Arabs and Syrians. The dissolution of the Egyptian parliament has had a violent repercussion thruout the Near East.

Why Scores of Nicaraguan Families Fled to Honduras

The United States authorities in Nicaragua are now attempting to herd back to Nicaraguan peonage scores of families, adherents of General Augusto Sandino, who fled to Honduras for safety after their villages had been destroyed by airplane bombing raids and marine terrorism. Hondurans see in the move a veiled occupation of their country by American marine forces. The picture shows graphically some reasons why the Nicaraguans fled. Note especially in the lower left hand corner the village wrecked by bombing planes.

AUTOMOBILE--NEW GIANT

Ford and General Motors Competition

By BEN LIFSCHITZ

This is the fourth in the series of articles on "Automobile—Symbol of Modern Slavery." The articles thus far have covered the scope of the industry, the giant mergers and the driving forces to imperialist war.

The automobile industry has gone thru fundamental changes since the famous Ford Model "T" appeared in 1908 in Detroit.

The main idea of those who developed the first model was to produce such a car as would be of greatest use and at the same time accessible to the average business man and higher paid worker. The purpose was to produce the car as fast as possible, paying little attention to durability but depending upon substitution parts in place of those sections which wore out quickly.

The other automobile concerns producing a more durable car could not keep up very well and compete with the Ford which in 1912-1913 reached the highest point of standardization in the industry. The other concerns, therefore, limited themselves to the production of higher priced cars, producing more of the touring passenger cars and of the heavier motor truck.

However, this condition could not last very long. The automobile industry was growing very fast. Vast fortunes were gained. Capital in overwhelming amounts went into the automobile industry to share in the golden harvest. This lead to a rapid concentration of capital in the industry.

This rationalization process which was proceeding very fast in all the other industries in the U. S. were on at a faster pace in the automobile industry. Especially during the war did high speed manufacture develope.

A number of automobile concerns that passed through the rationalization process during the war were able to adapt their plants to the production of a lower priced car which, however, had many of the improvements in the motor and other parts.

With the appearance of the General Motors in the field as a heavy producer in 1920 the competition between Ford and General Motors became very sharp. The General Motors which represented a merger of a number of gigantic concerns, was in a favorable position to compete with the Ford Co.

About 1920 the General Motors which had acquired a 60 per cent. stock interest in the Fisher body in 1919, decided to compete with Ford for control of the market. Many changes were introduced in the plants of the Fisher Body. The conveyor system was introduced in factory after factory. New machinery was installed and the whole organization rearranged for the mass production of Fisher bodies.

Because of the advantage of having so many different models and superior motors it was easy for General Motors to produce a motor model better even than that of the new Ford model.

One of the other reasons is that it was hard for the Ford Company to satisfy the demands for the different styles in the automobile industry. Building and adapting all of its machineries to one model, it was much harder, and it will be harder in the future for Ford to adapt himself to the ever changing demands for new models.

Ford Reaches His Zenith.

The Ford Motor Company reached its zenith in 1926. The new model "A" cannot effectively compete with the Chevrolet, which even now is better than the new Ford Model.

But it is not only the Chevrolet that is competing with Ford. There are also other cars, the Chrysler, Whippet and the Pontiac, a six cylinder car which sells for $775.00 and the Pontiac truck which sells for $745.00.

These figures will show what stiff competition there is between Ford and the other automobile concerns.

Chevrolet	$585.00
Ford	495.00
Whippet	535.00
Chrysler	670.00
Pontiac	775.00

Note that the Chevrolet is approximately one hundred dollars higher than the Ford, and that the Whippet is about fifty dollars lower than the Chevrolet. Chrysler is right on the heels of the other three. The difference in price is even slighter than the figures indicate. The Chevrolet contains extras that are not on the Ford cars. The Chrysler is a better built car and is about the same price when the difference in quality is considered. The Pontiac car will cut very heavy into the sales of the Ford car. The salesmen of the General Motors are using quite an appropriate slogan, "Sixes are better than four."

Besides these facts, there are reports that Ford has not reached the amount expected. Production has not yet reached 4,000 cars a day. This production should have been reached last March, and the number of employees is slightly in excess of a previous high mark of three years ago when the production was around eight and ten thousand cars a day.

This means that up to now the Ford Company has not reached the mark it set for itself, of a production of about 10,000 cars a day.

Will the Ford Company be able to overcome the difficulties it has encountered in the production of the new car? It is difficult to say but in any event the trend of the Ford Company seems to be downward.

One thing is certain, such cut-throat competition can result in only one of two things: either the elimination of the weaker concerns and the survival of the strongest, or the amalgamation of the auto corporations. At present merger after merger is taking place.

Recently the Locomobile and the Durant combined. The Pierce-Arrow and Studebaker companies are becoming one concern, and the Dodge Brothers and the Chrysler have merged.

The tendency in the automobile industry is probably in the direction of a merger between the General Motors and Chrysler-Dodge against the Ford Company.

Outside of the genuine competition between General Motors, Ford and others, special competitive standards are set up within the same companies. One department is matched against the other. The cost of one unit of production is compared with the cost of a similar unit in another machine. The cost of similar units are compared and the wages and standards of production are based on it.

In the next article we will deal with the special forms of exploitation which economists term "various forms of wage payments"—but which in reality gives the real picture of the modern slavery in the automobile industry.

THE LEISURE CLASS

PARIS, Aug. 19 (UP).—A quarter of a million Americans who vacationed in Europe this summer scattered abroad American gold to the total of a quarter of a billion dollars. The French national tourist office estimates the American vacation bill to amount to around $257,000,000.

PUGLIST SHOT.

GITLOW SCORES HOOVER SPEECH

Evades Unemployment Issue

ers was ignored. The workers must have laughed up their sleeves with contempt and disgust at the ignorance and stupidity displayed by Hoover on labor problems and conditions.

"Big business sat back pleased. Their Good Man Friday delivered the goods. He praised the corporate interests to the skies, and pledged them an administration of, by, and for big business.

"Hoover's facts and figures are just mere totals. He fails to give an analysis of the enormous increase in wealth in America showing how the various classes are participating in the enormous increase. If he would have done so, his picture would have been a damning condemnation of the whole social fabric of America. The facts disclose that only a small percentage of the population is well off. The vast majority live in poverty. The low wages paid in the textile industry, the 4,000,000 unemployed, the bankrupt and poverty-stricken farmers, the wage cuts in the textile, coal, automobile, shoe and other industries are sufficient proofs that everything is not as rosy as Mr. Hoover paints them.

"Says Mr. Hoover, 'Unemployment in the sense of distress is widely disappearing.'

"This reminds me of the famous declaration when French workers asked for bread and were told to eat grass. The charity organizations, municipal lodging houses and other agencies dealing with the unemployment problem, have repeatedly called attention to the distress and destitution that exists as a result of the present unemployment.

Serious Crisis.

"Four million unemployed is a grave situation. Unemployment involves 20,000,000 people at least. It is no little matter that can be ignored. It proves that a serious crisis has struck American industry. The stabilization Hoover speaks about and praises is not the panacea its advocates professed it to be, because it is resulting in a deep and profound unemployment crisis that is bring about a permanently unemployed army of millions. Hoover may close his eyes and refuse to see, but the workers who will be unemployed will feel the privations and nothing that Mr. Hoover will say about their not being in distress, will affect them. They are already manifesting their discontent and will continue to do so with increasing volume.

Silent Herbert.

"Mr. Hoover has promised the farmers that if he will be elected the republican administration will do something for the farmers, even to the extent of spending a few hundred million a year. A few hundred million a year, spent upon building up some new government departments, adding to the government apparatus, may help the rich exploiting farmers who will be in the government apparatus, but will be an increased burden upon the poor working farmers.

"Mr. Hoover failed to answer the following questions:

"1. Why do you favor the rape of Nicaragua?

"2. Why do you favor a large army and navy for the purpose of imperialist aggression and war?

"3. Why do you support the preparations of the U. S. for a war with Japan over the question of the Chinese markets?

"4. Why do you favor American troops and battleships being sent to China?

"5. Why did you not protest against the republican administration allowing two innocent workers, Sacco and Vanzetti, to be executed?

"6. Why are the oil grafters free and Mooney and Billings, innocent workers, in prison?

"8. What do you intend to do to relieve unemployment?

"9. What steps will you take to stop regime of terror and suppression of freedom of speech, assembly and picketing, now going on in New Bedford and Fall River?

"10. What is your stand on lynching of Negroes and their disfranchisement?

"11. Why do you favor government by injunctions against labor?

"12. Why did you support the crushing of the coal strike, which is resulting in wage cuts of from $1.50 to $3.00 per day.

"13. Why do you favor the government's interference in the right of the workers to organize?

"14. Why do you favor the continuation of child labor?

"15. Why are you opposed to a program of social legislation for workers such as unemployment insurance, old-age pensions, accident and sickness insurance, etc.?

"16. Why do you favor the use of troops and militia to break strikes?

"Many other questions could be asked, but Mr. Hoover will remain as silent as a clam on all of them. Like Mr. Al Smith, he is tuning in on big business, listening to what the big corporations, the bankers and manufacturers want. Mr. Hoover's wave length is Wall Street. What it wants, he will do. The workers and farmers will get nothing from Hoover. Only the Workers (Communist) Party will serve their interests."

HONDURAS FEARS DIAZ DECREE AS U. S. MANEUVER

Nicaragua Threat May Mean Occupation

TEGUCIGALPA, Honduras, Aug. 19.—What is considered here as a situation of increasing gravity has been precipitated by the issuance of a decree by President Diaz of Nicaragua tending to abrogate the general treaty signed in Washington between Nicaragua and the other Central-American governments in 1923.

After reference to the paragraph binding the signatories to refrain from direct or indirect interference in the affairs of one another, the decree continues:

"And inasmuch as the fulfillment of the above obligations necessitates the dictation of suitable measures, the Ministerial Council decrees the following articles:

"First, that all propaganda by word or writing, made by Nicaraguans, Central Americans or aliens within the republic, tending to organize or foment revolutionary or subversive acts against any recognized Central American government shall be considered as a violation of the general treaty of amity and peace of Feb. 7, 1923.

"Secondly, that the government authorities can refuse to recognize the rights of Central Americans or foreigners whose activities violate the previous article.

"Third, that the minister of the interior may dictate measures necessary to stop revolutionary or subversive activities from being developed through mail, telegraph or telephone offices."

While no doubt the issuance of such a decree at this time is intended to increase the power of the American supervisors in controlling all elements during the elections in November, Hondurans see in it an overt preparation for suspension of relations between the two governments, with possible occupation by American forces should the American authorities find invasion an aid in driving back to Nicaragua the peons, sympathetic to General Sandino, who escaped to Honduras following the campaign in Nueva Segovia.

Criticism of the government for not taking a firmer stand originally when the first demand was made by the Americans for permission to occupy Honduran soil for the purpose of ceorcing the Nicaraguans, is continuing. Warnings, then uttered, that such a policy would only open Honduras to the fate of the neighboring nation are now held to be bearing fruit.

To fears as to the real significance of the Nicaraguan move in relation to American military policy against General Sandino and his adherents, was added yesterday the rumor that the action of the Nicaraguan president may have an importance in opening the way for the United States state department to force upon this government the Kellogg decision in the Guatemala-Honduran boundary dispute. This decision the Honduran government has steadfastly refused to accept, claiming that the verdict is sure to be rendered against it in the Central American arbitration court, where the all-powerful United Fruit Company is backing Guatemala.

Conference in Illinois.

SPRINGFIELD, Illinois, Aug. 19.—As an outcome of the strong sentiment aroused by the debeate between Anthony Minerich, a leader of the movement to build a new union, and John W. Hindmarsh, president of sub-district five of the United Mine Workers of America before more than 2,000 miners in Springfield last Sunday, a series of sub-district conferences will be held in District 12 beginning Monday, August 20.

The debate which has niflamed all Southern Illinois, occurred quite accidentally. Local Union 494 called the mass meeting to protest the wage cut which is being imposed upon them by the policy committee. After resolutions rejecting the wage cuts were passed, Minerich and John Watt were spied in the audience. A cry went up, urging them to speak.

Minerich and then Watt analyzed first the situation in the Illinois coal fields and then in the whole country, stressing that the formation of a new union was the only solution since election steals, "blue sky" locals and packed conventions make it impossible to legally oust the corrupt officialdom.

Hindmarsh Exposed.

Hindmarsh was attacked for his work in bringing about the wage cut, and accused by local miners who later took the floor for his "pick-handle" methods of fgihting the progressives.

When Hindmarsh finally took the floor, he was jeered and booed by the miners and several hundred children who had gathered around the platform crying "labor faker!" When Hindmarsh extended his hand to Minerich, the latter replied, "When I was a kid and went to my first miners' convention, Hindmarsh called me 'hi boy' and I was proud of ti then. But now I cannot shake his hand."

In the course of the debate which followde, Hindmarsh buried his face in his hands. Local miners accused him of handing a machine gun out of an automobile at the office of the Old West Mine at the time of the "pick-handle" fight.

Tri-District Convention.

WILKES-BARRE, Pa., Aug. 19.—Together with their call to the National Miners' Convention in Pittsburgh on Sept. 9, and the call for the subsidiary conference of progressive miners in th etri-district on, Aug. 23, the Tri-District National Convention Arrangements Committee has issued a statement denouncing George Isaacs, former vice-president of the so-called insurgent movement for his resignation and betrayal of the miners. Isaacs resigned recently.

The committee points out that it had predicted Isaac's treachery and forecasted the betrayal of a number of other members of the insurgent board, who are at present carrying on negotiations looking towards a sell-out to the officials.

Against similar betrayals, a conference of progressive miners will mobilize to build a new miners' union at the Italian Hall, 206 Oliver St., Luzerne, Pa., at 7 p. m., Aug. 23.

CROAT WORKERS ARE FIRED FROM ITALIAN SHOPS

Demonstrate Against Persecution

ZAGREB, Jugoslavia, Aug. 19.—Further demonstrations against the Nettuno pact with the Italian government followed the discharge of Dalmatian workers from Italian factories in Spalato, Sebenico and other Dalmatian cities, in spite of the efforts of the police and city authorities to prevent the show of hostility towards the fascists.

Following news that the Italian cement company in Spalato had issued an order firing all Jugoslav workmen, and that other Italian firms were to take the same action, spontaneous demonstrations of workmen took place.

The Nettuno pact, ratified by the Belgrade regime in the absence of the Croatian, Slovenian and Dalmatian opposition, who declare it void, gives Italian capitalists the right to transfer workers from their home plants to Dalmatian factories, and thus displace all native workers.

HANdOuTS

The naive hypocrite Minister of War Painleve of France wants to cut the word "War" out of every letterhead and document and, himself, be referred to as Minister of Peace in order to persuade the pacifists and other children that he is doing everything possible to bring about an era of peace. Of course Painleve admits army organization, recruiting and the court martial will remain the same. Next he will be referring to a Big Bertha as a tool of defense and then he can soon pass war off as peace farming on a large scale.

"A roundabout route to imperialist war."

"Well, doesn't a Lord know enough to wear long pants when the mosquitos are so bad."

Not Starving Today

Every once in a while you hear of the son of a rich manufacturer taking a common job in his old man's plant. Of course there isn't much chance of the boy getting fired even if he does smoke cigarettes and run a lathe at the same time. After awhile he becomes general manager and the American magazine runs an article to show that you can still work your way up to the top in American industry even if you do start in the second basement. Above is Lisbeth Higgins, an heiress, who says she is earning a living as a professional dancer. There isn't much chance of her walking the streets, half-starved, begging for a job in a burlesque show because she can always fall on the millions made by the Higgins Ink Company through sweating underpaid workers. Those who have seen Miss Higgins dance have suggested she go in for landscape painting.

Gems of Learning

W. E. Woodward, novelist, member of socialist party:

"I am one of those optimists who believe that humanity is capable of getting rid of wolfish greed and [illegible] and poverty and war. Yet my books are read in the most respectable homes. Even members of the stock exchange write me nice admiring letters."

There's nothing surprising about a socialist getting a letter from a friend. If he had gotten one from a worker it would be news.

FEAR COMMUNIST ACTIVITIES AT NASH MOTOR CO.

Kenosha Meeting Held to Attack Them

(By a Worker Correspondent)

KENOSHA, Wis. (By Mail).—For weeks the Young Workers (Communist) League had been holding open-air meetings, outings of the Nash Motor plants in this city, calling upon the workers to organize shop committees. The role of the Wisconsin State Federation of Labor, which had its annual convention here recently and had adjourned without any effort to organize the auto workers was pointed out to the workers.

Much surprise was created, therefore, when the Wisconsin State Federation of Labor called a meeting of automobile workers at the German Home recently. About 250 workers were present at the meeting.

Denounce Communists.

Henry Ohl, Jr., president of the State Federation of Labor, was the first speaker. He spent all his time in denouncing the Communists as "spies" of the companies. In particular, he denounced S. A. Herman of the Young Workers (Communist) League.

Herman, who was present at the meeting rose and shouted, "That's a lie! Prove it!" Immediately about five armed thugs, probably placed in the hall for that purpose, leaped upon him and pushed him to the rear entrance. There they whipped out guns, threatened to shoot, when several workers ran up and prevented any gun-play. Herman was permitted to go back into the hall.

The next speaker was a special representative sent down by William Green. Before he began his harangue, several workers called out, "Let Herman speak!" But no attention was paid to this request by the labor fakers. The second speaker also denounced the Communists.

The meeting was called by the labor misleaders for three reasons: One to attempt to weaken the influence of the Communists; two, to make an empty gesture that the Wisconsin State Federation of Labor will soon organize the workers, and, three, to appeal to the bosses that the A. F. of L. believes in peace, not strikes and collective bargaining, whereas the Communists believe in strikes and other militant measures to better the workers' conditions.

These contemptible conditions of these agents of capitalists who hold high positions in the trade unions will come to naught. Shop committees are already being organized and the influence of the Communists among the workers is increasing, while the A. F. of L. bureaucrats are looked upon by the workers with contempt and hatred for their labor betraying tactics.

URGE WORKERS TO JOIN SACCO-VANZETTI MEETS

militant workers. The professional patriots of the American Legion and other capitalist organizations, the fascists, the leaders of the American Federation of Labor bureaucracy, the spokesmen of the putrid socialist party, are all united in denouncing militancy among the workers, in trying to break every class-struggle movement, in aiding, defending and exonerating the capitalist state apparatus.

The press, that great instrument for befogging the workers' consciousness and subjugating them to class-domination, is spreading ever larger clouds of poison gas propaganda against the insurgency of the exploited. The class of the rulers is more defiant, more rabid than a year ago.

But significant changes have taken place in the workingclass in the last year. The coal strike, betrayed by its official leaders, developed a broad stream of class-conscious militancy which found its expression in a growing protest against capitalism, a growing tendency to fight, and a readiness to organize on a new fighting basis. The textile workers have started in New Bedford a splendid strike of 28,000, which has now lasted for several months, has spread to Fall River, is causing a tremendous reverberation throughout the mass of textile labor and stimulates the tendency for militant organization.

Among the garment workers and fur workers a new wave of fighting determination to overcome the chaos caused by the betrayal of the socialist union bureaucrats in collaboration with the A. F. of L. officialdom is surging. Sporadic strikes of automobile workers have indicated the readiness to fight. New, militant unions are in the process of organization in the coal industry, in the textile industry, in the ladies' garment industry, in the fur industry, and in many others. The working masses are awakening. New life is stirring in the American workingclass.

In all these movements the left wing, as exemplified by the Trade Union Educational League, is taking a leading part. There is no labor movement in the United States outside of the left wing movement. There is no hope for the workingclass outside of the revolutionary struggle having as its final aim the overthrow of capitalism and the introduction of a Workers' and Farmers' government.

The leader of all the revolutionary movements in the United States, the organizer of the most determined fighters and most determined fights is the Workers (Communist) Party, now engaged in an election campaign in which it aims to awaken the working masses to a realization of their task and to organize them in a revolutionary class party.

The anniversary of the death of Sacco and Vanzetti finds us, the workers, stronger and more determined than a year ago. The class for which Sacco and Vanzetti died is advancing with rapid strides. The task they fought for—the stream of revolution of which they wero a part—is advancing in every country of the world with a new sweep. Sacco and Vanzetti have not died in vain. Their death has only stimulated the workers to new determination and new struggles.

The anniversary of their death must be utilized by the workingclass to increased its solidarity, its organiztaions, its unity, its militancy, its hatred of capitalism, its readiness to seize every occasion to improve its conditions, increase its strength and undermine the power of the imperialist rulers.

On the anniversary of the death of Sacco and Vanzetti, the imperialist powers must be challenged by a new mass demonstration of the working class. We appeal to all the workers everywhere to join the mass meetings organized in commemoration of Sacco and Vanzetti and to make their mighty voice heard.

We appeal to the workers to support and build up the International Labor Defense which helps class-war victims in the legal battles, in the prisons and elsewhere, and which supports the families of fighters in times of stress. We must remember that the class struggle cannot be effective enough without a labor defense.

We appeal to the workers to demand the release of Mooney, Billings, the Centralia victims, the New Bedford fighters and all other prisoners of class justice.

We appeal to the workers to protest most vigorously and in large masses against class justice, which is an expression of class rule, against capitalist attacks on workers' struggles, workers' organizations, workers' leaders, workers' press.

We call the attention of the workers to the great danger for all the exploited now being prepared by the ruling classes—the danger of new imperialist war. The hands that slaughtered Sacco and Vanzetti, the hands that beat and imprison strikers; the hands that slaughter innocent Nicaraguan peasants and workers by marines' bullets; the hands that have helped slaughter thousands of revolutionary Chinese workers and peasants fighting for freedom from capitalism and imperialist oppression—are now preparing a new war for colonies, for markets, for raw materials for investment of capital, for the throttling of the only workers' republic in the world, the Soviet Union—all for the benefit of the manufacturers, bankers, financiers, and their servants, the capitalist politicians.

One of the methods of preparing for this new monstrous slaughter is to break the unity, the fighting spirit, the organization of the workers in order that they may not resist their masters when war comes. One of those methods was the challenge to the working class in the murder of Sacco and Vanzetti.

On the day of the great anniversary, we shall reply to all the crimes of the ruling class by increasing our class forces and uniting for new struggles under the fighting slogans:

Down with the war!

Down with the forces the prepare the war!

Down with class justice!

Down with the attacks on the struggling workingclass!

Liberate the class war prisoners!

Long live the workers' struggle against capitalism!

Long live a government of workers and expolited farmers!

American Legion in Factional Squabble

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19.—A new squabble in the ranks of the American Legion was the latest development in the jingoist organization's high-tensioned internal political fight last night.

Republican members resent the activity of Cce Bennett Clark of Missouri, who is one of the Tammany leaders in the western states and democratic members are equal in their objections to the activity of ex-secretary of war Hanford McNider, who is campaigning for the Hoover G. O. P. machine.

MINE STRUGGLE SHOWS WORKER YOUTH MILITANT

Boss Schools Fail to Hide Class War

(By a Worker Correspondent)

WHEELING, W. Va. (By Mail).—Out of the struggle of the miners against police brutality, state persecution, fight against the corrupt officialdom of the Lewis administration, and physical combats with the hired thugs and assassins of the coal barons, is born a spark of hope which will eventually burst into a flame of Revolution that will lead to economic and political freedom not only of the miners, but of all workers. This spark of hope is the allegiance of the young miners to the only youth revolutionary organization, the Young Workers (Communist) League. With determined faith in the League as the only leader of the American toiling youth the fight of the devastated coal regions now changes from a local fight against coal capitalists to a fight against the entire rotten exploiting capitalist system.

Although the youth section of the working class in contaminated with bourgeois ideology and patriotism by the public schools and the press, yet when they see what is taking place in the struggle of the miners their eyes open to the alarming truth that the entire state machinery from the kindergartens of the public schools to the armed force of the state is used against the workers. The statements of the court officials that constitutional rights learned in schools are merely scraps of paper and the use of the state militia is to beat down defenseless women and children, lets the truth shine through the bourgeois scum that covers the eyes of the youth that the workers have no fatherland in a capitalist country. From the strike of the miners the youth have learned a fundamental truth, that there is a class struggle in America and that society generally is divided into two antagonistic classes, the proletariat and the bourgeoisie, the toiling and working majority and the exploiting and robbing minority.

Without a doubt there is an awakening among the American youth. Hitherto, in the struggles of labor only the father took part, but now the entire family is involved for the simple reason that production has so changed that all members of the family are drawn into the industries. In the past when the head of the family, the father, spoke of working conditions the children and the wife did not understand, but now the entire family participates in the discussions and actually takes part in the active struggles of the workers. One needs but glance at the coal and textile strikes to see the necessity of all members of the workers' family, father, mother, son and daughter to engage in the struggle of the working class for emancipation. The Marxian truth that capitalism is digging its own grave because it produces more of its own grave diggers is shown clearly now that women and children are in the industries and engage in the struggles of the workers.

At the wave of a piece of calico, the flag, the American youth can be mobilized against anything un-American. Everything is being done, especially in the strike area of the coal regions to appeal to patriotism and expose Communism as an imported malady—a foreign sickness, a European plague. We must show the youth that Communism is the highest form of society. That Communism is universal, therefore American. To the working youth must be exposed their real enemy—the American capitalist.

The fact that there are desertions from the army shows that bourgeois patriotism is failing to hold the youth. We must double our activities against militarism and against military institutions, because from "patriotic" youths the American working class will receive their severest blows and greatest opposition.

Communism is spreading in America. The sparks of revolutionary fire in the coal regions will be fanned by every act of the coal barons against the workers. Injunctions, wage cuts, and persecutions will but add fuel to the fire of freedom. The foreign European plague which the American capitalist warns the youth against and fears, will one day meet the robber class of America face to face with a Red Flag of freedom as their banner.

Five Openings This Week; "Relations" Premiere Tonight

THIS week, the second of the new season, will see five new plays on Broadway. Of these, two are scheduled for this evening, one for tomorrow night and the others on Wednesday and Thursday.

At the Morosco tonight Willard Mack will present his new melodrama, "Gang War," written and directed by himself. The locale of the play is in Chicago. The cast is headed by Anne Forrest, Beatrice Nichols, Robert Middlemas, Donald Kirke, Walter Gilbert, Louis Malatti and Joseph Skinner.

"Relations," a comedy, by and with Edward Clark, opens at the Theatre Masque this evening with the following cast: Horace Braham, Barbara Brown, Peggy Coudray, Wolfe Barzell, Daniel Makarenko, Bert Scott and J. A. Curtis.

Edwin H. Knopf and William P. Farnsworth will present "The Big Pond," by George Middleton and A. E. Thomas, at the Bijou Theatre Tuesday night. The play is the first collaboration of these noted dramatists. The cast includes Kenneth MacKenna, Reed Brown, Jr., Doris Rankin, Harlan Briggs, Katherine Hepburn, Marie Curtis and Marius Rogati.

"Goin' Home," by Ransom Rideout, comes into the Hudson Theatre on Wednesday. The cast includes Georges Renevant, Barbara Bulgakov, Richard Hale, Russell Hicks, John Irvin and Ralph Collinan.

The Thursday opening will be "The Lids Girl," by Edward Eisner at the Totten Theatre.

There will be some new talent at the Broadway Theatre beginning today, when "New Faces Week" is ushered in. Emily Darrell in a character sketch, "The Five and Ten" competes with Allan Reno, who is on the same bill; Lew Reed and Paul LeVere; Bobby Dale and Eve Wendt; "A Stepping Mania" and Stickney's Cirque Petite are other offerings.

FLIERS UNHEARD FROM.

COCHRANE, Ont., Aug. 19 (UP).—Bert Hassell and Parker Cramer, who took off from Cochrane shortly after noon Saturday for Mount Evans, Greenland—the second stop on their attempt to fly from Rockford, Ill., to Stockholm, Sweden—were out of touch with channels of communication today, their exact whereabouts unknown.

IN WILLARD MACK PLAY.

Anne Forrest, who is in the cast of "Gang War," Willard Mack's new play opening tonight at the Morosco Theatre.

Soviet Union Aniline Trust Hires Technical Expert to Aid Industry

An agreement has just been concluded between the Amtorg Trading Corporation, acting in behalf of the Aniltrest (Aniline Trust) of the U. S. S. R., and Prof. Harry D. Gibbs of Washington, D. C., according to an announcement made yesterday by M. G. Gurevitch, acting chairman of the board of directors of the Amtorg Trading Corporation, calling for the technical assistance of Prof. Gibbs in the organization of the production in the Soviet Union of a series of chemical products used in the aniline industry. The purchase of the equipment required for these plants will be made in the United States.

The aniline dye industry of the U. S. S. R., which was practically non-existent before the war, has made rapid strides in the past few years. The development of the coke-benzol industry in the Donetz and Kuznetz Basins has laid the groundwork for the building up of the aniline industry. In the past two years an annual average of over 8,000 tons of organic dyes was produced in the Soviet Union.

made that the Workers (Communist) Party will be on the ballot in Nebraska and that they will be able to vote for Foster and Gitlow.

Jack Stachel, organization secretary of the Workers (Communist) Party who has returned from a visit to eastern and western Pennsylvania reports that the two district organizers, Benjamin and Jakira have almost collected the quota necessary to place the ticket on the ballot in the great coal and steel barony of the Mellon family.

D. Benjamin, district organizer for eastern Pennsylvania, has 1,800 signatures on hand, with 500 more collected in the Anthracite, and 400 in Cheswick county that have not been turned in.

Twelve comrades are called in to the district office every day with instructions to collect 40 signatures. The District Organizer expects to secure 1,800 more signatures by this means.

In western Pennsylvania, A. Jakira reports that he has 2,300 signatures on hand with 500 more in the hands of the comrades thruout the district. To make sure that there will be no slipup in getting the Party ticket on the ballot Jakira intends to collect 3,500 signatures, 500 more than his quota. The total number required for getting the Party on the ticket in Pennsylvania is six thousand.

Gas Merger "Fight" Is Tammany Gesture

Fear that the approval of the $1,000,000,000 merger of the Consolidated Gas Company of New York and the Brooklyn Edison Company without any indication of a fight against it on the city's part will cost the Tammany machine many votes in the coming presidential elections, last night caused the city to state that it would "formally join in the fight" against the merger.

No serious credence, however, is being given to the statement, because the merger has already been officially approved by the Public Service Commission.

Charges Too Flimsy, 15 China Tag Day Workers Are Freed in Magistrates Court

NANKING HEAD ADMITS LABOR UNIONS BANNED

Judge Intended to Fine Each $10, Says

The fifteen young workers and students arrested in Chinatown last Sunday for soliciting funds for the relief of the Chinese trade unions were yesterday given suspended sentences in their trial before Magistrate Gottlieb in the First Magistrates Court, White and Center Sts. The charges against them were too flimsy to be sustained.

Robert W. Dunn, secretary of the Committee to Aid the Chinese Trade Unions, under whose auspices the tag day collection had been made, appeared on the witness stand to testify on the standing of the organization. Gottlieb, in his customary manner, usurped the power of prosecuting attorney, grilling Dunn in an effort to discover his political affiliation and financial standing. Gottlieb contented himself with the statement that the Committee to Aid the Chinese Trade Unions should have "procured credentials from the Chinese consul in New York," and that "at any rate, the law prohibited those of doubtful or no financial standing to collect funds for any cause."

Admits Unions Suppressed.

David P. Chow, chairman of the executive committee of the Chinese Nationalist Party (Kuomintang) in the United States, an organization connected with the labor-betraying Nanking government, appeared in court to testify against the committee. He was questioned by Buitenkamp, who forced him to admit that there was such an organization as the All-China Federation of Labor Unions, retracting a previous negative statement to the judge. He also was forced to admit that "the Nanking government in China prohibits labor unions."

The complaint was that collections had ben made by the organization in violation of a city ordinance prohibiting such collections without the permit of Bird S. Coler, commissioner of the department of public welfare. Immediately Jacques Buitenkamp, of the International Labor Defense, moved that the case be dismissed on the ground that such an ordinance is unconstitutional as extending to the commissioner of public welfare in that it places an unreasonable extension of power in the hands of the police. The motion, however, was denied by Gottlieb.

Answer to Appeal.

Dunn testified that the Committee to Aid the Chinese Trade Unions was organized after an appeal had been issued by Sou Chao Jeng, chairman of the All-China Federation of Labor Unions, asking help for the Chinese workers and peasants, whose labor unions had been persecuted and driven underground by the reactionary Nanking regime.

The magistrate, in suspending sentence, admitted that he had intended to fine each of the defendants $10, but that he had changed his mind in the course of the trial.

Andrews Expedition Brings Story of Race of 20,000 Years Ago

PEKING, China, Aug. 17.—The dramatic story of a thickly populated fertile land of 20,000 years ago that is now a desert and of fossil remains of an enormous beast which ate itself out of existence, were brought back here by Roy Chapman Andrews and his expedition into the Great Gobi Desert of Inner Mongolia.

Woman's Confession Clears Killed Negro

ATLANTA, Ga., Aug. 19 (UP).—The Georgia State Supreme Court affirmed a sentence of death in the electric chair today for Mrs. Eula Elrod Thompson, convicted of the murder of Coleman Osborne, Chatsworth, Ga., storekeeper, last year.

Mrs. Thompson's husband, Clifford, and a Negro, Jim Moss, were electrocuted at the state prison August 3 for the murder, but Mrs. Thompson gained a longer lease on life by appealing to the Supreme Court.

An eleventh hour confession by Mrs. Thompson claimed that her husband and the Negro were innocent of the murder.

Workers Orchestra to Open Its Fourth Season

The Workers Symphony Orchestra, sponsored under the auspices of the Workers (Communist) Party, will begin its fourth season on September 2, under the directing hand of Alfred Kugel, Columbia University instructor.

A recent call issued by the organization urges all musicians to join the Orchestra for the purpose of building up a strong workers cultural medium in New York City.

The first will take place Saturday, August 25, at 5 p. m. at North Park (take Taylor St. car) under the auspices of the Sacco-Vanzetti Branch of the International Labor Defense. The second will be at the Joint Picnic of the Workers' Co-operative Association and the City General Committee of the I. L. D. at the W. C. A. Camp Grounds on M-44, seven miles past Bostwick, Lake, on Sunday, August 26. Prominent speakers will address both meetings.

CHAMORRO NOW RUNS FOR SENATE

Nicaragua Conservative Being Guarded

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, Aug. 19.—General Emiliano Chamorro, conservative leader, who was declared ineligible for the candidacy for president for which the liberal candidate Moncado was declared eligible by the United States election committee, is running for the position of senator. He is carrying on his campaign surrounded by a guard of marines and national militiamen.

His campaign is being carried on in the state of Matagalpa, where he is calling for the support of the conservative party in the coming elections, which are declared farcical by many.

MANAGUA, Aug. 19.—An encounter was reported here today between General Sandino's forces and the United States marines on the Occo River, in which the marines used bombing planes.

USSR Archeologists Discover Remnants of Ancient Greek Colony

MOSCOW, U. S. S. R., Aug. 19.—An archeological expedition headed by Professor Horko has unearthed remnants of a Greek colony in the Crimea, that promise to be of unusual importance. Traces of huge Greek theatre were found on the Taman Peninsula in the heart of what was once the Greek colony of Phanagoms.

Further excavations are expected to reveal rich historic material relating to the extension of ancient Greek culture in the Crimea. Many scientists here hail the discovery as a great find, and plans are being made for extending the excavations.

French Industrial In Germany Bared

BERLIN, Aug. 19 (UP). — A French plot to obtain secrets of the German dye trust was charged today by the Koeinische Zeitung, leading industrial paper of the Rhineland.

The paper said a far-reaching industrial espionage was discovered and frustrated at the eleventh hour.

The plot centered in Paris and was engineered by French secret police in the occupied Rhineland, the paper charged. German employes were bribed and already had delivered several secret formulae to French industrialists, the newspaper added.

KELLOGG 'PEACE' PACT REVEALED AS HUGE FRAUD

Lloyd George Lets Out Some Facts

LONDON, Aug. 17. That the Kellogg peace pact, so-called, is really a futile and deceptive gesture was vividly illustrated here when David Lloyd George, "war premier" of England, for reasons of his own, let slip a small part of the truth about the Kellogg instrument.

In discussing the recent air force maneuvers over London, Lloyd George declared: "It is horrible to think what war in the air will mean in the future. It will be devastation and annihilation—nothing else. It all shows that pacts are not of the slightest use unless you tackle disarmament.

"In my last speech in the house of commons, I pointed out that the Kellogg pact and the Locarno treaty would be of no use unless we ruthlessly cut down armaments. As long as countries are building airplanes for bombing men, women and children and defenseless cities and smashing their inhabitants, it is idle to talk about improved housing for people.

"It is useless to have pacts as long as nations are perfecting machinery for devastation. It is bound to end sooner or later in a smash. It cannot be avoided. Of all the armaments to be cut down, it is the armament of the air which is the most urgent."

The former premier, however, supports the illusion that capitalist countries will disarm, and even supports the strengthening of the military in the guise of not "neglecting our civil flying."

Workers Progressive Center to Open Soon

The International Progressive Center, sponsored by workers of all nationalities in New York City, will be open to all workers within the next two weeks, an announcement of the management committee stated yesterday. The Center, which will be located at 101 W. 28th St., will be an institution for working class education, and recreation.

Dramatic, musical, and cultural activities will be featured daily side by side with the labor and political activities.

ATLANTA, Aug. 19.—A pay raise has ben won by the teachers of Fulton county schools through their activity in the local Federation of Trades.

SIGMANITES FEAR NEW UNION DRIVE AMONG WORKERS

Schlesinger Puts Paid Ads in Boss Paper

Desperation at seeing the tremendous mass development of the movement for a new cloak and dressmakers union is the only explanation seen by the leaders of the National Organization Committee when asked for an opinion about the paid advertisements being daily inserted in the reactionary Jewish press by Benjamin Schlesinger New York chief of the right wing forces. The advertisements contain vitriolic attacks on the new workers' organization, which is termed by him, "Communist scab union."

The terrible fear that is paralyzing the socialist union workers is caused by growing signs that the employers are beginning to show openly that they are afraid of the new organization. This is shown by the increasing numbers of manufacturers who are daily coming down to the new union office to sign agreements so that their factories can resume operations. The right wing is therefore spending thousands to destroy the demoralization such news creates in their ranks and in the ranks of their partners in union-smashing, the employers.

Many cloak factories are completely tied up by the strikes called by the N. O. C. volunteer organization committee. Many of these are frankly open-shop and others have agreements with the Sigman company union, where conditions are as bad as the non-union plants.

The Joint Board office yesterday issued a call to all their active members asking them to come to the union headquarters and to the market early Monday morning for picket demonstrations before the struck shops.

Preliminary reports from the shops shows that the workers in the trade are busy with the elections of shop delegates to the Tuesday conference of shop chairmen and shop delegates. The conference will be held in Webster Hall, 11th St. and Third Ave., immediately after work.

A DAILY WORKER correspondent is the real spokesman and leader of the workers in his struggles.

Tammany Machine to Continue Pre-election Dry Cleanup Tomorrow

Continuing its pre-election campaign of "wiping out vice in New York City," the Tammany machine yesterday announced that another Federal Grand Jury will lay on wet New York a dry siege that is expected to last for at least two weeks.

It was decided that the "dry squads," which heretofore have been operating in the theatre section around the forties and in downtown sections of the city, will now concentrate on the wealthy districts of Park Ave., West End Ave., etc.

How many summonses remain to be served in the wealthy district, United States Marshall William C. Hecht would not say.

Workers Open Forum In New Bedford Opens With Campaign Speech

NEW BEDFORD, Mass., Aug. 19.—The first session of the open forum conducted jointly by the Workers (Communist) Party and the Young Workers League was held here today at Party headquarters, 330 Auschent Ave., with a lecture on the 1928 Election Campaign by S. Pollack. Carminda Almeida of the Young Workers League was chairman.

The speaker showed that the republican, democratic and socialist parties are lined up against the workers in the New Bedford textile strike. Mayor Ashley being a democrat, Gov. Fuller a republican and the United Textile Workers being supported by the "socialist" party.

Several workers applied for membership in the Workers Party. In addition, free subscriptions to the Daily Worker were given to strikers and more than 25 copies of the Election Platform was distributed free to strikers.

The forum will continue every Wednesday at 8 p. m., all the workers of New Bedford being invited to attend.

TRANSFERS PASSENGERS

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 19 (UP).—All passengers of the Panama mail liner Ecuador, aground off Cape San Lazaro, Lower California, were safely transferred late today to the Mexican States liner Sinaloa, according to a radiogram received here from Captain T. K. Oaks of the Ecuador. There were 105 passengers on the vessel and they will be taken to Mazatlan, Mexico.

HOOVER CHANGES HIS MIND NOW ON DAM PROJECT

Turns Somersault on Boulder Dam

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 17.—Herbert Hoover, close ally of Andrew W. Mellon, secretary of the treasury, whose known to be one of the moving spirits in the power trust, today turned a political summersault on the Boulder Dam development project which is the pet issue of Senator Hiram Johnson.

Hoover speaking on the steps of the new city hall here after a two mile parade announced that he would support the project, government control and all.

Hoover has bitterly opposed all mention of the so-called government ownership. But what is an endorsement in the light of political necessity, it was pointed out here! Hiram Johnson has demanded Hoover's endorsement of his fight against the power trust.

The California vote is important, so Hoover stretched the point. Both he and Johnson—and Mellon and the Morgan controlled General Electric Company officials understand each other.

PERSHING LEADS FASCISTS.

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 19.—It was announced here today that General John J. Pershing, war commander of the United States forces, will visit Mexico City together with a party of Legionaires following their convention in San Antonio.

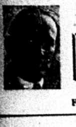
VOTE COMMUNIST!



For President
WILLIAM Z. FOSTER

For Vice-President
BENJAMIN GITLOW

☒ WORKERS (COMMUNIST) PARTY

For the Party of the Class Struggle!
For the Workers! Against the Capitalists!

"Happily," Mr. Coolidge Prepares for War.

> "Our own loss of life, happily, was comparatively small, but the cost in direct outlay to the national treasury ran between $30,000,000,000 and $40,000,000,000."

This is Calvin Coolidge—the very essence of the little president of the big imperialism. Coolidge spoke to the American Legion, and the character of his audience seems to have inspired him to put more crudely, and therefore more transparently, the real meaning of the Kellogg pact to be signed at Paris on the 27th of this month.

But not that he did so intentionally!

Coolidge spoke about the World War in the boastful spirit of the little merchant suddenly become a Croesus. The tens of thousands of lives of American conscripts that were sacrificed he can "happily" dismiss, but the terribly large sum of money that it cost—ah!—this is what hurts his soul! Still, he says, the war "afforded us a place in the world which we did not have before."

Referring to what he calls a "new disposition" toward "the rule of law," he says:

> "This has brought about among the nations of the world a new sympathy for each other and a new forebearance toward each other which did not before exist. It has eliminated a great deal of selfishness and produced a desire for mutual helpfulness, even at the cost of considerable sacrifice."

Behind these oily phrases is all of the smug feeling of a national bourgeoisie which before the war was in the class of debtor nations, but which, after the war has made it the creditor of the world, feels that "a great deal of selfishness" has been eliminated.

And what is this about, but the Dawes plan?:

> "In their foreign relations all over the world a very distinct manifestation can be seen in the attitude of the great power of wholesome restraint and an effort to conclude by patient negotiation what but a short time ago would have been determined with an iron hand."

What is he talking about there but the "peaceful" enslavement of other nations to the finance-capital of the United States? What does he mean by "patient negotiation" if this does not include such settlements as the Dawes Plan for enslavement of Central Europe?

Coolidge sees a general submission of the nations of the world to American capital, and a sort of imperial Roman citizenship for the American capitalist abroad:

> "A citizen of the United States holds a new position, higher than that which was ever held in any time past. The opportunities which are enjoyed by our countrymen are far superior to those which ever came to any other people."

He sees a transformation in the internal political and economic conditions of the United States which is a fulfillment of the dreams of imperialism. Class divisions appear in the vocabulary of Coolidge as the division between the man who "might be called upon by the government in time of need for his life," and such as might be called upon for "his property."

And about this Coolidge philosophizes. He tries to assure those who give only their lives to imperialism, that they really are not so badly off, because "the most precious rewards of life do not lie on the side of material gain." He hastens to prove that the poor rich fellows who stayed at home and made their millions as war profiteers are just as worthy people, for, although "those who went into the armed service offered their lives," nevertheless:

> ". . . . those who contributed to the war-time charities, to the purchase of liberty bonds and to the payment of the taxes contributed their property." (!)

And what a case is made for the billionaire profiteers! Did not their larger payments of income tax made them quite as noble as the poor devil who though dying on the battle field, nevertheless paid no taxes? Read this:

> "Those who possessed very large incomes paid into the National Treasury about 80 per cent of it, which, with their state and local taxes, came very close to a taking over by the government of their entire property for use during the war. It was, in fact, a practical conscription for an indefinite time of the property of those of very large incomes. While some of our people were in the service, others were producing food, turning out munitions, looking after the affairs of government, and carrying on the necessary activities of commerce and transportation."

His idealization of the "private enterprise" of capitalism, becomes almost frenzied in his demands for the speeding up of trustified industry, the extermination of all protective measures for the workers and of the workers who resist the speed-up, which he refers to under the terms "slackness and the slacker." The foundation of "prosperity," he says:

> "All rests on the extermination of waste and the waster, and on the elimination of slackness and the slacker. It means the co-ordination of national effort through an adequately trained citizenship, which will result in a scientific production and distribution of commodities. . . ."

Coolidge is expounding to the best of his capacity, the imperialist program of today for the United States.

Coolidge's speech was, of course, a veiled interpretation, but a true one, of the Kellogg pact as a war manoeuvre of the United States imperialism. For:

> ". . . it detracts nothing from the right and obligation of ourselves or the other high contracting parties to maintain an adequate national defense against any attack. . . ."

And the snivelling little Wall Street clerk made his speech between orders to U. S. marines for conducting the war in Nicaragua, and other marines for warlike acts against the Chinese people.

Coolidge demonstrated what needed no more proving, that the United States is embarking now for the biggest and bloodiest war in history, as well as the harshest enslavement of the working class at home.

Finally, the Kellogg pact must be understood fundamentally as a war plan against the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics, the only great power which is not permitted to enter into discussion of its terms.

The working class must prepare to fight against imperialist war and to defend the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics, the Socialist Fatherland of the workers of all countries.

CAMPAIGN CORNER

A non-Party worker writes: "Send me a package of one hundred Communist Campaign leaflets. It is understood that there is no obligation on my part except to distribute these leaflets. Enclosed is $1.00 that may be applied to the Free Campaign Leaflet Fund. Heretofore have not been able to take an active part in the Party not being a member, but I can at least distribute these leaflets." This is the way thousands of non-Party workers will be brought closer to the Communist movement and to the Party during the election campaign. There is no better time to increase the Party membership on a national scale than during an election campaign.

Comrade B. H. Lauderdale of Texas, who is now working in Oklahoma to get the Party on the ballot, reports that sufficient acceptances have been secured to complete the state ticket. The demand for Daily Workers and National Platforms is so heavy that Comrade Lauderdale is having trouble in supplying it. By the way Lauderdale is that comrade who pays his own way from his collections and literature sales and sends money to the National Office. Let his name and fame be broadcast thruout the Party.

Detroit sends in an order for 25,000 campaign leaflets. The comrades are arranging picnics in Detroit, Grand Rapids, and Muskegon. The Party ticket is on the ballot in the state of Michigan, and the slaves of Ford and General Motors will hear something about what's the matter with them during the election campaign.

Comrade Jakira writes from Pittsburgh: "Rush 150 copies of Party Platforms as soon as this reaches you. We haven't a copy left, and the 150 copies I ordered a few days ago will not last long. Enclosed find check for $10.00." Comrade Jakira also ordered 50 more Vote Communist stamp books. The practice of paying for literature and stamps as soon as sales are made is commended to all Party organizers.

A Workers (Communist) Party State Convention will be held in the Swedish Auditorium, Omaha, Nebraska, on August 19th, at 8 p. m. The work of securing signatures is now completed, and only the final steps to get the Party on the ballot remain to be taken.

Wilmington, Delaware, comrades are preparing to give Foster, Gitlow and Scott Nearing a rousing welcome and insure the success of their meetings.

An inmate of the National Home for Disabled Soldiers, Leavenworth county, Kansas, writes for the Platform of the Class Struggle and leaflets to distribute.

H. E. Adams of Dresden, Ohio, writes for photos of Foster and Gitlow to hang in the front window of his home.

Hustle for campaign contributions. The $10,000 Communist Campaign Fund drive is on. Every Communist must contribute a share. Forward all contributions to the National Election Campaign Committee, 43 East 125th St., New York, Alexander Trachtenberg, treasurer.

A PROMISING INVESTMENT

The White Terror in China

Alarmed Reaction Murders Thousands of Workers; Barbarous Repression

Ever since last year, marked by the treachery of the Kuomintang, undreamed of ruthless white terror has been raging in China, and the Chinese trade union movement has been driven underground. The following facts give a slight idea of the attitude of the Kuomintang towards the working class:

(1) Arrests and executions of active trade unionists and Communists. (2) Closing down of trade union premises and the prohibition of trade union meetings. (3) Wherever the counter-revolutionaries do not succeed in breaking up the labor movement, the revolutionary unions are corrupted: the old name of the given organization is retained, but hirelings are put into the leading positions (as for instance, in Hupeh and Kwangtung). In other cases the name of the union is also changed and the unions themselves are changed into heterogeneous organizations, united by inter-union committees, or into unions differentiated according to craft (the united union of Shanghai, the united unions in other provinces, etc.). Thus is the centralization of the forces of the working class being destroyed.

Thousands Murdered.

The barbarous repressions have taken from the ranks of the Chinese working class 26,450 persons—shot, guillotined, tortured (eyes put out, scalded with boiling water, every possible sort of brutality, the most barbarous tortures were made use of). But the Chinese working class has not been broken by this ruthless terror. On April 23rd, 1927, the general strike broke out in Canton; on June 13th, a demonstration in memory of the Hongkong strike; June 23rd, a demonstration commemorating the beating-up in Ahamen; in November, the bloody fight for the premises of the Committee of Representatives of the Workers' Unions of Kwangtung and the obdurate fight for the re-establishment of the Seamen's Union, the siege of Wan Ku-wey's house, and finally, the great uprising in Canton, which shook the whole East. In Wuhan on August 2nd, 1927, the general strike; somewhat later, the strike of the workers at the ammunition factory (which lasted more than 10 days); in November, the strike at the cotton mill of Tehen Huna, the workers killed 7 members of the reorganized bureau (Kuomintangites).

The railwaymen of the Peking-Hankow and Canton-Hankow lines demanded that back wages be paid them. In Wuchan and Hankow the workers broke into the prisons, freed the political prisoners and trade union leaders. In Shanghai—the movement against the united front of the Chinese militarists; in August, in Lao-Chao-Tan, the strike at 6 cotton mills; in November, in Yang Shang-pu—the strike at 5 cotton mills; in December—the strike of the tramway employees on the territory of the International concession; later a series of strikes in various places, which it is impossible to give in full here. All these actions were made under the following demands: (1) re-establishment of the revolutionary trade unions; (2) re-introduction of the labor agreements that were in force during the period of the Communist trade unions; (3) payment of back wages (there are workers who have not received their wages for 4 and even 10 months); (4) that wages be paid in undepreciated currency (the paper money has lost all value, it often being impossible to buy food with it); against the arbitrary dismissal of workers (the owners often do this, desiring to replace adult workers by women and children); (5) against the arbitration organs (since the Kuomintang went over to the camp of the counter-revolution special bureaus have been formed, supposed to have been founded for the settlement of conflicts between the workers and employers, but in reality being kept by the employers).

After the Canton uprising the labor movement continued to develop, but the counter-revolutionary elements, alarmed by the great revolutionary explosion in Canton, formed a united front against the working class. Instances: the Chinese cotton mills unite with the Japanese and English plants; the foreign shipping companies on the Yangtze unite with the Chinese companies. We see before us the united front of foreign and Chinese capitalists. One association of merchants of 9 provinces passed a decision to annul the labor agreements of the Communist epoch. The conflict between the supporters of Chiang Kai-shek and Pei Tsiang-si was very stubborn; but these two cliques suddenly made their peace. This is the united front of the Chinese neo-militarists. The foreign municipality in Shanghai, in its turn stretched out its hand to the Kuomintang and awarded the executors of the "Communist bandits." This is the united front between the foreign imperialists and the Chinese militarists. Of course, differences between them are bound to crop up sometimes, but when matters treat of the suppression of the working class and the Communists, all the counter-revolutionaries are at one.

The suppression of the Canton uprising was a heavy blow to the working class, but it did not lose hope and is continuing its struggle. We had but recently in Shanghai the strike of the workers at the silk mills in Ponton, the strike at the match factories, etc. All this is extremely eloquent.

The Chinese working class is still being attacked by the white terror. The forms of the workers' organizations and their tactics have entered upon a new phase. The revolutionary unions exist illegally in Shanghai, where they still unite 50,000 members. In Canton the red trade unions have 3 to 4 thousand members, and there are two or three thousand members in Hankow and other parts of China. The organizations, as was only to be expected, have decreased in size, but their active workers penetrate into the yellow unions for the recruiting of workers.

In order to guarantee the conquest of the masses in China, the system of shop committees is now being practiced. This movement will undoubtedly have great results.

The Chinese working class has fighting experience, which has been gained during several years; it has a firm basis, which can never be destroyed by the white terror, despite the whole series of defeats of the working class, and this is chiefly because the working class is being helped by the Chinese Communist Party. The wide peasant masses have united with the labor movement, having rallied together with it around the Chinese Communist Party. All over China the peasant movement is growing stronger day by day, especially in Kwangtung, Kiangsu, Chekiang. Everywhere the peasants are seizing the lands, driving the landlords away, and forming their village councils. This is of collossal help to the city proletariat, and in the end the working class will win out.

The Chinese working class is waging a stubborn and difficult struggle. It relies upon the help of the international proletariat, for the struggle of the Chinese workers is at the same time the struggle of all workers. The Chinese working class appeal to the international working class with the following slogans:

"Down with the blue and white flag (of the Kuomintang), the flag of white terror! We will hoist the flag of the hammer and the sickle! (In other words: "Down with the Kuomintang! We will set up the Soviets!").

Fellow workers! Help the Chinese proletariat to victory in our great common cause!

Johnny Madeiros Is Dead

By A. B. MAGIL

Johnny Madeiros, six-year-old son of a Fall River textile striker, was chased by a mounted policeman into a stream where he was drowned.

Out of the water they took him, smoothed the tangled hair,
  Carried him home to his mother; laid him on the bed.
Dark hot words and wailing hung in the frightened air:
  Johnny Madeiros is dead!

Dead now. Quiet.
        "They have taken our terrible toil," said one.
  They have taken the years of our youth and the filthy crusts of our bread;
They have taken the clothes from our backs and out of our sky the sun—
  They have given us our dead.

"But the dead shall make us stronger, our picketlines shall be
  Like a great sweeping tide with a little boy at the head.
Masters, O bloody masters, rejoice in your victory:

MEMORIAL EDITION OF SACCO, VANZETTI LIFE

International Publishers, 381 4th Ave., New York, have just issued a special Memorial Anniversary Edition of "The Life and Death of Sacco and Vanzetti," by Eugene Lyons. This book, first published soon after the execution of Sacco and Vanzetti, attracted wide attention because of the unique and dramatic manner in which it described the background and the life of Sacco and Vanzetti in Italy before their emigration to the United States, their struggles as poor immigrant workers in this country, their affiliation with the labor movement and the price which they paid for the loyalty to the cause in which they believed. The New England background, the labor struggles there which involved Sacco and Vanzetti, the complete story of their persecution, conviction and execution is graphically described by Lyons, who was associated with the case from its very beginning.

International Publishers have issued this special edition at $1.00, instead of its regular price of $1.50, in order to allow a wider distribution of the book at the memorial meetings on August 22, 1928, which will be held throughout the country. Orders for this book should be sent immediately to the International Publishers, so that they may be filled and books may reach the different cities in time for the meetings. The $1.00 edition will be distributed only during the month of August.

Germany Gains Fourth Place in the World's Shipping During Week

BERLIN, Aug. 16 (UP).—Germany moved to fourth place in world shipping this week with the launching by the North German Lloyd line of its two great sister ships, Europa and Bremen.

Germany is only slightly behind Japan, which is trailing the two great maritime nations, the United States and Great Britain. Last year Germany was in sixth place, behind Italy and France.

Germanys increase in tonnage in the last 12 months was 12.3 per cent, compared with an increase in world tonnage of only 2.7 per cent.

Arrest 14 Counter-Revolutionaries In Mexico; One Is Priest

Mexico City, Aug. 17.—(UP)—Fourteen persons, including a women and a priest, are under arrest in Torreon, charged with seditious acts and rebellion, a statement from Torreon police published in newspapers here today said.

The arrests were made Aug. 7 but the statement said secrecy was maintained to get evidence against prisoners.

Other arrests were reported imminent in Mexico City, Guadelajara, San Luis Potosi, Leon and other places.

Told You So

THIS is going to be a sad column today unless I happen to run across a juicy murder case or a sizable bank forgery. Or a story of a reformed convict failing to do the right thing by a commander of the Salvation Army. But since we cannot always get what we want, here goes a Chicago dispatch, headline and all.

"NO JOBS IN CHICAGO,
"EX-SOLDIERS WARNED

"Chicago, July 29.—Ex-service men were warned by the American Legion today to stay away from Chicago, if they were looking for jobs. Thousands of World-War veterans already are walking the streets here looking for employment, the legion officials said," and we say, "'nuff said." No, we don't. This is too good a tale to let pass without adorning with a moral. Workers! the next time you go to war to make the world safe for democracy, pick a fat capitalist to march in front of you and armor-plate his back so that the bullet that enters his front cannot pass. When the war is over, return and grab his job. If there are any holes in this advice please stop me.

WINFIELD STUART and his two kids hoofed it into Denver, Colorado on three pair of battered dogs. The father is suffering from a broken back and paralyzed feet, afflictions which are not listed among the necessary qualifications for entry in a cross country marathon. Stuart broke said back in a West Virginia mine five years ago. His feet were paralyzed at the same time.

STUART got a broken back and paralyzed feet as a reward for his years of service to the coal company. The owner of the coal company may have gotten the gout or something worse as a result of the luxury he could afford from the proceeds of the unpaid labor of Stuart or others. Now, a liberal would feel equally bad about the broken back of the worker and the gouty foot of the capitalist. He would try to convince the capitalist that he should buy lolly pops for the worker's children, in order to show that he and his slaves were the same under the skin. But a Communist would not care if a ton of anthracite fell on the capitalist's gouty foot.

THE reader who sent me the batch of clippings from which the foregoing paragraphs were manufactured must be a cheerful fellow. Here is the title to the last "Castoff Human Beings Harvest On City Dump." This particular dump is in Lansing, Michigan, and the reporter tells of old men and women, young girls and children plundering the garbage for odds and ends of discarded clothing that enables them to cover their nakedness to the satisfaction of a Methodist minister.

NOW, read what Hoover said in his weary Palo Alto acceptance speech while discussing the protective tariff. "Other countries gain nothing if the high standards of America are sunk and if we are prevented from building a civilization which sets the level of hope for the rest of the world." Perhaps if this high tariff on certain imports was lowered the city dumps would not be "dump rats" who now manage to conceal their bodies from lecherous eye, with the aid of the discarded apparel of their more fortunate brothers and sisters, would have to find themselves caves where the carnal gaze of man could not follow them.

AND what would the "dump rats" of Lansing, Michigan, think—granting that they have such a habit—should they read the following gem from the speech of H. Hoover a Palo Alto: "Our workers with their average weekly wages, can today buy two or often-times three times more bread and butter than any wage earner in Europe." H. L. Mencken called Hoover a "fat Coolidge." Let it stand. Hoover can swallow more capitalist dirt than his namesake the vacuum cleaner.

Fascists in Rage at Lenin Memorial Slab

GENEVA, Aug. 16.—A marble slab in memory of Lenin, placed over the building in Zurich, where he lived for one year before the Russian revolution, and from which he left for Russia with a group of his comrades, has aroused the wrath of the fascists of Zurich.

Workers placed the slab in memory of their great leader, as a token of their solidarity with the workers in the Soviet Union and as a sign of their faith in the principles of the revolution. The block of flats, of which Lenin's flat is one, is inhabited mostly by revolutionary workers.

The fascists, enraged at this token of class solidarity, have written letters to the proprietor threatening to demolish the building with bombs if the memorial slab is not removed. The proprietor has complained to the authorities and asked the inhabitants of the building to remove the slab, which has at yet not been done.

Chicago Communist Youth Expose Tranmael, Norwegian Labor Renegade, at Meet

SCANDINAVIAN YOUNG WORKERS SHOW MILITANCY

They Make It Hot for "Yellow" at Meet

CHICAGO, Aug. 18 (By Mail).—Tranmael, the leader of the "Norwegian Workingmen's Party" and world-famous renegade from the Communist International, spoke in Chicago at the Scandinavian Karl Marx Club last Tuesday, Aug. 15.

In his speech he outlined the conditions in Norway during the past 20 years, the role of the "Norwegian Workingmen's Party," how this party began with a healthy opposition to the reactionary social democrats, how it led the masses to the left and finally becoming part of the Communist International.

Tranmael easily became the party leader, and having come from the working class and remaining a worker he became the idol of the Norwegian proletariat. As such Tranmael had a doubly important place to fill in the Norwegian labor movement, and yet he failed to fulfill his duty as a leader of the working masses. He could have utilized the growing class consciousness, the intense interest and sympathy of the Norwegian masses towards the Soviet Union, but he failed them, left the Communist International and showed himself to be an enemy of the working class.

Organized "Opposition."

Tranmael together with Zeth Hoglund of Sweden started the opposition against the democratic centralization in the Communist International, and through his demagogic policies he led away under false pretenses about 50,000 workers.

Under the benevolence of the Norwegian bankers the Tranmael party was allowed to form a cabinet and held political "control" of Norway for a short period. (Previously he had shown his repentance from Communistic sins by joining with the social democratic party of Norway, thereby also gaining political "respectability".) Now as a "respectable" political leader in Norway he was invited together with other Norwegian bourgeois journalists by the Canadian Pacific Railroad and the Canadian Press Association to visit Canada for the purpose of furthering Scandinavian immigration into Canada. This opportunity he also used for coming to the United States, speaking in Chicago and Brooklyn and there propagating the Tranmaelite gospel.

A Thorough Yellow.

Tranmael lived for a few years in America about 1905. He then came in contact with the I. W. W. element, whose ideology is still prevalent, mixed with other petty bourgeois ideas. He demands absolute "independence" of the trade unions from the party and goes against the Leninist theory of the state, demands pacifist tactics instead of real anti-militarist work and consequently his following among the Norwegian workers are those who are still petty bourgeois in their ideology.

Tranmael's "attack" on the Norwegian bourgeoisie, his "analysis" of the role of the world imperialists, was that of a reformist. He declared the war danger not acute, while pretending to unmask the patriotism of the Norwegian capitalists. In spite of his radical phrases, when asked why the Norwegian Workingmen's Party under his leadership left the Communist International he, like a clown striving to amuse the crowd, answered: "We were kicked out, because we wouldn't take orders from Moscow."

Any bourgeois leader would get applause for this (the audience was 80 per cent petty bourgeois Norwegians who had come out of curiosity, and to them this remark went over big).

Is this the way you teach this element "to think class consciously," Tranmael?

The importance of internationalism, the British Independent Labor Party unity-brand, the welding together of the two political Internationals, were discussed by him. He was nothing but phrases. When asked, "What party in America would you as a leader recommend to the young Scandinavian immigrants?" Tranmael replied, "How should I know? I have not been in America for many years; they must decide for themselves." So they have done for past decades, and as a consequence we find them in the churches, in the semi-fascist fraternal organizations and campaigning for Hoover. Thru his utterance above Tranmael sanctions their choice.

Communists Ask Questions.

The discussion was hot and unflinching; a group of Communists present asked him such questions, ventilated with biting remarks and showed him up, showing that his entire program consists in bringing together second international leaders and fakers, flattering the backwardness of the masses instead of leading them ("Khvostism—[illegible], as Lenin called it).

The amiable, self-controlled Tranmael became beside himself with anger, and yet easily poised himself again, and throwing flippant, witty remarks, dodged the questions.

A true working class leader could have done an immense amount of necessary agitation for the international working class movement on his visit here. But Tranmael, being a Norwegian pseudo-nationalist and not a Leninist, took the comfortable way of sidetracking issues, talking in generalities, using forceful language and "revolutionary" phraseology.

Tranmael during the time that the Norwegian Workingmen's Party was a member of the Communist International was constantly causing trouble by his un-Communist, undisciplined acts, so that even Radek said that Tranmael had entered the Communist International under "false passport." But now being "free" he can give vent to his feelings, but is always on his guard, hiding behind carefully phrased sentences anything that might show him up to the masses. He says he is in sympathy with the proletarian revolution of the Soviet Union (so did Judas kiss Jesus), but the next minute he tells his audience that the Communists in Russia cannot know or understand conditions in Norway (the yellow socialist labor party and the right wing I. W. W. leaders say the same thing) and says he as leader considers it better for them to have no connecting international link.

Youth Show Up Faker.

Tranmael's coming to Chicago brought out a queer mass of Sunday-radicals, tired "revolutionists," parlor-"Bolsheviks," One Big industrial unionists and other unclear elements, who took it upon themselves to defend Tranmaelian ideology against the Communists. In contrast to this mottled gathering—especially at the banquet given for Tranmael—the young guard, even non-Party youth, one after the other attacked Tranmael, pointing an accusing hand at the renegade so that the festivities were turned into a trial, where the young Scandinavian Americans showed Tranmael they know that their place is among the advance guard of the world proletariat.

Remember Johnny Madeiros

Johnny Madeiros, six year old son of a Fall River textile striker, was driven into the harbor water by a mounted policeman on the day the mill barons unleased the terror on the mill pickets. The child could not swim and was drowned. Later Father Silvia, the catholic priest from whose church the body was to be buried, closed the doors of the building in the face of hundreds of strikers who had come to mourn with the bereaved family. Above, Pioneers at Camp in Wingdale N. Y., call a protest meeting for Johnny Madeiros.

CHINESE UNION CAMPAIGN BEGUN

5,000 Collection Lists Issued in City

With the issuance of more than five thousand collection lists last night, the drive of the Committee to Aid the Chinese Trade Unions to raise funds for the relief of thousands of Chinese workers and peasants definitely got under way. The committee expects to have 20,000 such lists in circulation throughout the United States by this Wednesday night.

The appeal for funds has already begun to bring results. At the office of the committee, Room 314, 96 Fifth Ave., yesterday letters containing dollar, two dollar and five dollar contributions toward the realization of the necessary sum began to arrive. It was predicted that immediately upon the circulation of the entire 20,000 lists that are now being prepared, the returns would increase both in frequency and size.

At a meeting held Sunday evening in the hall of the International Seamen's Club, 28 South St., additional relief was raised for the suppressed Chinese labor unions, Y. Y. Hsu, secretary of the Alliance to support the Chinese Worker-Peasant Revolution, addressed the 100 workers gathered in the hall on "The Role of the Chinese Seamen's Union in the Trade Union Movement in China." The lecture was illustrated by vivid slides depicting the wretched lives and bloody suppression of the Chinese militant workers and peasants. Many of the seamen contributed varying sums at the conclusion of the lecture.

CAP OFFICIALS BEAT RETREAT

Ram Fake Motion Thru Meeting

Frightened at the hornet's nest they had stirred up in the ranks of the capmakers when they adopted the policy of removing from the job anyone advocating a militant struggle against the aggressions of the employers, the officials of Local 1 of the Cloth Hat, Cap and Millinery Workers' Union at the local meeting Saturday night, read an alleged letter from President Zaritsky advising them to withdraw this tactic, and instead railroaded over the heads of those present a motion that left wingers and militants be fined $50. This fine is to be imposed by decision of the right wing executive board, instead of thru the medium of a trial as union laws demand.

In spite of arguments presented by the three left wing speakers against this dictatorial measure, the bureaucrats in control of their well oiled machine rammed the motion down the throats of the membership by a faked vote of 126 for and 36 against. The incident was precipitated by removal from the job of S. Boerum, head of a family of small children and another workers.

H. Sazer, militant leader of progressive forces in that local, in his speech from the floor branded the motion as unconstitutional. The last convention, he declared, had inserted in the union laws a provision for hearings in such cases. Three from the board and three members partial to the accused are to hear the evidence under the chairmanship of a person chosen by all six, the resultant decision of which would be binding.

Before the discussion of the question began, it was decided to have three speakers from each side. The officialdom, however, gave the floor to three of their henchmen and afterward declared that the paid officials would speak. They even refused to permit the worker who lost his job take the floor.

Despite the decision, the two workers are not permitted to return to their work, the $50 being demanded first.

RICH BOOZERS NOT PROSECUTED

(United Press.)

Broadway was just a bit confused tonight as the result of an "about face" by federal officials conducting a grand jury investigation of liquor conditions in New York City.

United States District Attorney Charles H. Tuttle called a halt in the questioning of a hundred or more prominent society leaders and sportsmen who had been frequent visitors at night clubs before the recent wholesale raids and padlockings.

Tuttle ordered immediate changes in the proposed method of questioning the night club patrons, characterizing the plan as "unfair to the city of New York."

Broadway didn't know just what to say about the district attorney's action and there was considerable speculation regarding the probable cause for Tuttle's orders. It was not known whether Tuttle had openly defied Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt, assistant attorney general, who was reported to have promoted the sweeping clean-up, or whether Mrs. Willebrandt had been convinced her policy should be changed.

Tuttle had just returned from his vacation, however, and it was believed he disapproved of the wholesale questioning of night club patrons. He had intimated that any who refused to appear probably could escape prosecution.

WORKERS CLUBS CONTRIBUTE TO RED WEEK DRIVE

Appoint Committee to Raise Funds

As part of its Red Week activities on behalf of the election campaign of the Workers (Communist) Party, Branch 417 of the Workmen's Circle last night endorsed the platform and candidates of the Workers Party and made donation of five dollars from its impoverished treasury. This branch has consistently supported the struggles of left wing workers in all industries and has raised and donated money for the relief of the striking miners of Pennsylvania and Ohio.

An appeal was made by Clevins and Kopple, two of the leading members of the Branch, for the active support of the Workers (Communist) Party's pre-election campaign as well as the casting of the membership's vote for the Party on Election Day.

A committee of three was appointed as a collection committee to gather contributions to the Communist Campaign Fund.

The motion to endorse the Communist Campaign as well as other motions, to donate and work for the campaign, was opposed by a few of the members, who are well known as the right-wing furriers.

Branch 417, Workmen's Circle, is the second workers' club to officially announce its support of the Workers Party Campaign. The first was the Downtown Jewish Workers Club, of 35 East Second Street. Before the end of Red Week many other workers' clubs thruout the city will follow suit.

Stations all over the city reported last night that the mobilization of workers for participation in the Red Collection Days of Aug. 25 and 26 were already well under way. At each of the 30 stations some workers have already reported for enrollment for duty on these two days, as well as for Campaign Collection Lists.

Every worker who has not yet obtained a collection list on which to gather contributions for the campaign of the Workers (Communist) Party should do so at once. These can be used effectively in the shop, the club and the home.

MILL STRIKERS AT TUEL PICNIC

Sports and Novelties to Enliven Affair

The annual Trade Union Educational League picnic, which will be held Saturday at Ulmer Park, Brooklyn, promises to be the largest and most entertaining of all that have ever been held. A varied program has been arranged, composed of many athletic and sports novelties. Several New Bedford strikers, direct from the textile battle front, will be the guests of honor. These representatives of the left wing of the textile strikers will greet the T. U. E. L. in the name of the 35,000 textile strikers engaged in a bitter life-and-death fight for a living wage and decent working conditions.

The picnic will be attended, also, by many prominent left wingers from New York and vicinity, representative of many trades and industries.

Special preparations are being made by the New York local of the T. U. E. L., under whose auspices the picnic is being run, for the serving of "shashlik," the favorite Armenian dish. The preparation of the dish is in the hands of a master Armenian chef, John Kaprell, well known to Armenians in New York.

Left wing butchers will donate left wings of fowl and hinds of beef to the left wingers present. The food will be taken charge of by Misha Chorover, of the Proletcos Restaurant, who is preparing an assortment of cakes which, if his description is accurate, has not yet appeared in the restaurant.

Sections 2 and 3 are Mobilizing the Bronx Assembly Districts

Sixty members of Section 2 reported at 9 o'clock Sunday morning at the Co-operative House, 2700 Bronx Park East, and after a hearty breakfast, went out with signature petitions and indelible pencils to the fourth and fifth assembly districts in the Bronx. At the same time thirty members of Section 3 started on the same errand from 2675 Clinton Ave., the Bronx headquarters.

About half of the petitions are still out, and the number of signatures obtained by members of these two sections cannot as yet be reckoned.

Due to the splendid response of Sections 2 and 3, it is very likely that the next assembly districts to be put on the ballot will be the fourth and fifth of the Bronx.

GREEK DICTATOR FIGHTS STRIKES AT ELECTIONS

Troops, Bandits Used to Gain Government

Athens, Greece, Aug. 20.—With the attempts of the workers to strike being ruthlessly crushed and Communists jailed as soon as they make a public appearance, the Greek elections are taking place, while Venizelos police and troops watch the ballot boxes, and patrol the cities and towns. Four republicans are reported to have been wounded in street fighting.

As the first returns show a Venizelos victory in the parliamentary elections, the bandits are reported to be kidnaping his opponents and holding them for large ransoms.

The dictatorship, financed by French dollars, includes as the chief plank in its program easier penetration of French capital, and the procuring for French investors in Jugoslavia of an outlet to the Aegean sea by way of Saloniki.

YOUTH TO HONOR SACCO, VANZETTI

Young Communists Hit Capitalist "Justice"

class, so that the rest of the workers will become intimidated.

"For the working class youth of America, the execution of Sacco and Vanzetti has some special lessons and significance.

"Sacco and Vanzetti, who came to America expecting to find this country a 'land of opportunities'; expecting this country to be a 'haven from oppression,' found an entirely different thing. They found this country to be a country of ruthless capitalist exploitation. They found that there are no opportunities for the sons and daughters of the working class. They found 3 millions of children slaving away in the factories, on the farms, in the mills, etc. They found millions of young workers toiling away in order to eke out a miserable wage of $14 a week on the average. They found brutal exploitation of women workers, of Negro workers, of adult workers.

Nonsense of Opportunities.

"Sacco and Vanzetti represented the final disillusionment on the part of the emigrant workers in the nonsense of opportunities for all in America. For the working class youth, who have heard so many hundreds of times in the schools, who have read in books and newspapers, who have seen it in the movies, etc., 'the story of the poor boy suddenly becoming rich,' this lesson is of the utmost importance. The fact remains that under present-day capitalism there are no longer any opportunities to rise above the ranks of the working class, that the working youth will remain in the ranks of the working class, and that all the talk and chatter about 'opportunities' are so many baseless lies.

"Sacco and Vanzetti thought they would find freedom of speech, right of asylum from oppression in the old country. Instead they found that in America there is no such thing as freedom of speech, that the capitalist class suppresses the right of the workers to express their opinions, that arrests, frame-ups, and murder abound for those who dare to speak up and fight against capitalist exploitation in America.

Exposes Lies.

"For the toiling youth the murder of Sacco and Vanzetti completely exposes these lies which are taught in the schools, which are repeated daily by the hirelings of capitalism. In America, freedom of speech exists for only those who defend the present system of capitalist society.

"The legal murder of Sacco and Vanzetti clearly shows to the young workers that there is such a thing as justice for the workers and justice for the rich. Everybody has read of the many murder cases committed by Loebs and Leopolds, of bootleggers and kept women, and the sentences meted out to them. It is clear to all of the youth, that in America revolutionary workers whose sole 'crime' is fighting against capitalist greed and capitalism itself, are condemned to die, and wealthy perverts and maniacs are allowed their freedom although guilty of murder and what not.

"These are some of the special lessons for the young workers from the Sacco-Vanzetti murder. The young workers must be instilled with a deep hatred against capitalism which exploits, oppresses and kills ruthlessly and brutally. The young workers of New York City must respond in thousands to the Memorial Meeting that will be held in Union Square, August 22, at 5 p. m. The young workers must learn well the lessons of the Sacco-Vanzetti case and adopt as one of the fighting slogans 'Remember Sacco and Vanzetti; remember the bloody deed.'"

REV. NORMAN THOMAS WHISTLES FOR FLOCK

KANSAS CITY, Aug. 20.—Norman Thomas, candidate for president on the socialist ticket, arrived here on his trip through the west in an effort to gather his feeble flock for the polls. His meetings are generally gathering places for small business men, lawyers and liberals, except when an enterprising Communist unit interferes with his sermon.

Before he came here Thomas had an embarrassing experience at Oklahoma City. There the Communist unit and their sympathizers issued a leaflet on the socialist party, which they termed the third party of capitalism, and sold the Communist Party platform at the Thomas meeting. The leaflet, which was distributed at the meeting, exposed the Oklahoma Leader and its followers and showed how well it and Thomas went together.

Kids Have Dogs.

In Kansas City Thomas held his main meeting at the Jenkins Church, which was attended, as usual, by liberals, professionals and merchants. At this meeting Thomas told the audience about his five kids and their five dogs. The same evening and the following night the Communist Party held street meetings, which drew larger crowds than the Thomas meetings, where the program of the class struggle was presented in contrast to the classless program of the socialists.

From Kansas City, Thomas is scheduled to appear in Omaha, where he will be followed by Comrades Earley and Stephens of the Communist Party, who will again present the program of the class struggle, after Thomas gets through with his meetings.

Socialist Spy Discovered.

Thomas has a helper in the person of Wm. McAllister, western organizer of the socialist party, who attempted to "bore from within" in the Communist Party at Kansas City. He joined the Communist unit there and offered full assistance in getting petitions for the Communist candidates. He collected quite a few signatures and donated liberally to the election funds until he was finally discovered by the local Communists to be a socialist spy, who was attempting to find out the inner campaign strength of the Communists.

The Communist party here denounced him as a flunkey of the bosses and one who was ready to join hands in a united front with the capitalists against the Communist Party and the workers.

GERMANELECTION CAMPAIGN MEET

Hold Conference in Brooklyn, Queens

The second meeting of the German election campaign conference of Brooklyn and Queens will take place to-night, Tuesday, at 8:15 p. m. at the Queens County Labor Lyceum, 785 Forest Ave. All delegates are urged to attend without fail.

Officials or members of German labor organizations and societies, who did not get an invitation by mistake, or who did not have an opportunity to act upon the same are asked to attend this meeting.

Efforts will be made to secure close cooperation between the progressive German labor organization and the Workers (Communist) Party.

The German labor organizations in Manhattan and Bronx are invited to send delegates to a election campaign conference which will take place Thursday, Sept. 6, 8:15 p. m. at the New York Labor Temple, 243 East 8th St.

cess in compelling non-union and former union manufacturing concerns to sign agreements and grant real union conditions.

The National Organization Committee yesterday issued a final call to the workers not to fail to be represented at the conference.

Several hundred cloak and dress pressers, members of Local 35, yesterday held a regular local membership meeting at their headquarters, 6 W. 21st St. Louis Hyman, chairman of the National Organization Committee, and J. Goretsky, manager of the local, were the speakers at the meeting.

The local occupied itself primarily with the business of organizing a drive to rally the pressers behind the campaign to build the new union of cloak and dressmakers. Plans were presented and adopted after considerable spirited discussion.

Injured Workers are Blacklisted by Construction Co.

CEDAR RAPIDS, Ia., Aug. 20 (FP).—The Leonard Construction Co., with headquarters in Chicago, has issued orders at the addition to the Quaker Oats plant in Cedar Rapids that it will blacklist any workman who gets hurt 3 times on the same job.

Labor is plentiful, as the big P. and F. starch products plant has been shut down most of the time since April. Quaker Oats operates only 3 days a week. It has eliminated a lot of unskilled labor by installing machinery to unload a car of grain in 5 minutes instead of the hours formerly required by hand shoveling.

100 Workers' Children Leave for W.I.R. Camp

One hundred children yesterday left the Unity Co-operative apartment house, 1800 7th Ave., to go to the Workers' International Relief children's camp at Wingdale, New York, where they will spend a two weeks' vacation in the Berkshire Hills.

Before them, several other groups of similar size had left for the camp, where the $8 a week charge places a two week vacation within the grasp of almost every worker's child in New York.

PICKETS REPEL THUGS ATTACK

Grocery Clerks Halt Boss Attack

Members of the Retail Grocery, Fruit and Dairy Clerks' Union picketing the open-shop fruit and vegetable store of Morris Thaub, at 932 Fremont Ave., successfully repulsed an attack of gangsters, alleged to have been hired by the boss to prevent the picketing in front of his firm.

The pickets were Vecker, Breger, Gelman and Rappaport, who had been picketing the store peacefully until 5 o'clock, when the gangsters arrived. The union has been on strike for ten weeks and demands that the bosses recognize the Retail Grocery, Fruit and Dairy Clerks' Union.

RE-ENFORCEMENT FOR U. S. MARINES IN NICARAGUA

Not Able to Conquer Sandino Army

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20.—Another army plane, sent by the United States government, is on its way to Nicaragua as re-enforcement for the marines. The aviator, Lieutenant Frank Schilt radioed the navy department that he was over Savannah, Georgia, and would stop overnight in Jacksonville before he set off for Miami, from where he would fly directly to Nicaragua, perhaps stopping at Honduras.

The fact that a tri-motored monoplane is carrying ammunition for the United States army in its war against Sandino, is believed to indicate that, counter to reports released by the navy department, Sandino's troops are functioning efficiently and that the marines have suffered setbacks in their northern offensive.

FORBID LONDON SACCO MEETING

Free Mooney Sentiment Feared by Police

The police authorities of London have issued an order forbidding the holding of a demonstration organized by the International Class War Prisoners' Aid on the anniversary of the execution of Sacco and Vanzetti, according to a cablegram received yesterday by the International Defense from Robert Lovell, secretary of the British International Class War Prisoners' Aid.

The order was issued when the police learned that the London workers would demonstrate before the American Embassy, turning the meeting into a mass demand for the freedom of Tom Mooney and Warren K. Billings.

The British movement for the release of the American class war prisoners will be continued, however, with renewed energy. The exploited masses of England will cooperate with their American fellow-workers in the struggle to effect the freedom of the two framed-up prisoners, who have now been incarcerated for the last 12 years, according to a statement of the I. C. W. P. A.

All organizations affiliated with the Working Women's Federation will assemble for participation in the Sacco-Vanzetti demonstration tomorrow at the Labor Temple, 2nd Ave. and 14th St., between 5 and 6 p. m., according to an announcement made yesterday.

From there, these organizations will march in a body, carrying their slogans and banners aloft, to join the huge mass memorial demonstration to be held on Union Square under the auspices of the International Labor Defense.

Thousands Expected at Union Square Meeting

Will Fight for Mooney

Calogero Greco and Donato Carrillo, who narrowly escaped a fate similar to that suffered by Sacco and Vanzetti, will attend the monster Sacco-Vanzetti memorial demonstration tomorrow on Union Square at 5 p. m. Greco and Carrillo, it will be remembered, were framed up by the local fascisti last year and were saved from electrocution by a wave of working class protest, led by the New York section of the International Labor Defense.

Against Frame-up.

Rose Baron, secretary of the New York section of the International Labor Defense, 799 Broadway, yesterday issued a statement appealing to New York workers to make tomorrow's demonstration a mass protest against the frame-up system. The statement in part follows:

"Tomorrow is the first anniversary of the murder of Sacco and Vanzetti. This day must be used by the workers to increase its solidarity and prepare to fight against further frame-ups of the ruling class in America. On this day, the powers that insisted on the death of Sacco and Vanzetti must be challenged by a monster mass demonstration. We must challenge the open shop labor-baiters; the dark forces that are keeping Mooney and Billings in Folsom and San Quentin must hear the mighty voice of New York's militant labor.

Appeal to Workers.

"We appeal to all workers to support the demonstration tomorrow. The International Labor Defense which arranged tomorrow's meeting is the only defense organization in America which struggles against the frame-up system. It helps class war victims in all strikes, lockouts and on all fronts of the class struggle.

"We appeal to the workers of New York to come to Union Square

HUNDREDS GREET TEXTILE LEADER

Murdoch, New Bedford Leader, Out of Jail

NEW BEDFORD, Mass., Aug. 20.—Hundreds of striking textile workers yesterday gathered at 5 in the morning at the gates of the jail here, and patiently waited two hours to greet William T. Murdoch, strike leader upon his release two hours later. Murdoch was released upon completion of a three month jail sentence imposed in the early days of the 18 week old textile strike of 28,000 operatives.

Landlords of the mill workers tenements are taking preparatory steps to organize themselves for the eviction of the striking textile workers here. A preliminary conference of the ringleaders in this scheme has already been held, the latest development being an invitation to all landlords to come to a general meeting for the purpose of taking united action against the workers. The meeting will be held during the coming week.

Announcements issued by the conference state that they will obtain jointly the services of "lawyers, constables and deputy sheriffs necessary to help a tenement owner in the eviction of obstreperous tenents. Union statements declare that

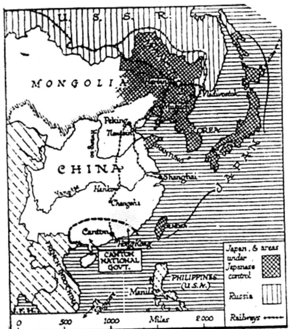
Japanese Imperialism Plans New Seizures



Manchuria is the latest scene of operations of Japanese imperialism which is seizing larger and larger areas of China.. The cross-hatching on the map shows the Japanese Islands with Korea and Manchuria which the Nipponese control. Mukden headquarters of Japan's private warlord, Chang Hsueh-liang, son of Chang Tso-lin, and Harbin, railroad center on the Chinese Eastern Railroad, are shown on the map. Harbin is near the recent disturbances which Japan is reported to be backing to serve her as an excuse for further inroads in Manchuria and Mongolia, and as a base against the Soviet Union.

7 FUR LOCALS TO MEET THIS WEEK

Take Up Endorsement of New Union

With two out of town locals already having given unanimous endorsement to the new union of fur workers launched recently, the International United Front Committee announces that before the week is over the membership of many more local unions formerly affiliated to the International Fur Workers' Union of the A. F. of L. will have registered their attitude toward the erection of the new organization.

The left wing New York Joint Board yesterday declared that letters have already been sent out to members to attend the meetings of their particular craft unions, Locals 1, 5, 10 and 15. All locals will meet Thursday evening, at 6 o'clock, three of them in Irving Plaza Hall, 15th St. and Irving Place and Local 15 in Stuyvesant Casino, 142 Second Ave.

The International Committee, which called the meetings, states that toward the end of this week or the beginning of next week meetings of the Boston, Toronto and Montreal unions will be held.

The chief business to be taken up by these meetings will be the endorsement of the new union launched by the united front committee of elements in the organization desirous of erecting a union that will organize the chaotic industry and restore conditions destroyed by socialist-A. F. of L. leadership. After endorsement of the new union elections will immediately take place for the particular local's representation on the Provisional National Executive Committee, which will be the central union body till the national convention chooses a permanent executive. The convention will be held within 60 days.

Each local will then participate in the big organization drive that will be led by the N. E. C.

The program of organization will include not only the fur manufacturing shops in New York but particular attention will be paid to the organization drive in the fur dressing trade and in the manufacturing trade outside of New York. Union conditions in these out-of-town centers have been almost completely annihilated since the A. F. of L. began its war against the left wing.

JAPAN MAY ACT IN MANCHURIA

Threaten to Jail Soviet Official

By United Press.

TOKYO, Aug. 20.—An official statement by the Manchurian government today said that the rebellion in the state of Barga—started by Mongolians against the dictates of the Manchurian government—had been suppressed.

PEKING, Aug. 20.—Following the arrest of the vice-president of the Chinese Eastern Railway, Lashevitch, a Soviet citizen, the Japanese government has announced that "serious attention" must be paid to the situation in Manchuria. Official Japanese intervention is seen here as probable.

Efforts of Japanese and Manchurian officials to create a critical situation are further indicated by threats that Vice-President Lashevitch will be imprisoned unless the alleged uprising is halted at once. Lashevitch is reported to be confined to his own house at present.

Forces of Chang Hsueh-liang, northern war-lord, including armored cars, have been rushed north on pretext of suppressing the revolt and are reported to have taken up offensive positions along the Chinese Eastern Railroad.

Lifschitz Articles to Be Continued Tomorrow

Today's installment of Ben Lifshitz's study on "Automobile—Symbol of Modern Slavery," has been unavoidably omitted because of space limitations. It will appear again in tomorrow's paper with a section devoted to the forms of actual slavery in the conveyor systems of the Ford plant. This is one of the most interesting sections in the whole series.

CUBA'S BOSSES RICH.

HAVANA, Cuba, Aug. 20.—Official reports show an increase of $6,000,000 in Cuba's exports last year, as compared with 1926, and an increase of $1,226,469 in customs collections over all preceding years.

Butler Knocks Hoover But Decides That He Will Support G. O. P.

Hoover's position on prohibition and naval armaments were criticized yesterday by Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, one of the wet leaders of the republican party and president of Columbia University, in a letter made public yesterday.

Butler, however, at his summer home in Southampton, L. I., hastily denied that he had intended to make any statement that a "good republican" would not make, indicating that he would support the G. O. P. reactionary program "in spite of its faults."

See Spread of Steel Strike; Three Leaders Are Jailed

HELD WITHOUT BAIL TO HALT PICKET LINES

500 Steel Workers in Demonstration at Plant

Defy the Rifle Guards

CANTON, Ohio, Aug. 20.—Alarm of the Massillon steel corporation officials that the strike tying up the industry in Canton is on the point of spreading to their mills, was evidenced by the arrest of three organizers at Massillon today.

A taste of municipal co-operation with the steel officials was further afforded the arrested men when the authorities refused to fix their bail in an attempt to keep them from participating on today's picket line.

A march of five hundred of the steel strikers, organized in the Central Alloy Steel Mill Committee, swung enthusiastically through the streets of Canton yesterday and surrounded the struck plant.

Police with rifles at the mill entrances failed to overawe the marching men.

Persistent efforts of the Central Alloy Corporation to import strikebreakers has proved an almost total failure with the few scabs from Pittsburgh refusing to remain at work in the mills. The strikebreakers have expressed their eagerness to exchange five dollars in company scrip for three dollars in real money.

Leaflets distributed under the supervision of the Central Alloy Mill Committee aroused the greatest enthusiasm both in Canton and among the Massillon steel workers.

BRITISH-FRENCH PACT HITS USSR

Talk Peace—and Plan War at Paris Meet

BERLIN, Aug. 20.—A British and French accord limited not merely to armament conditions, as at first reported, but covering in its scope the most far-reaching contingencies in the operation of French and British diplomatic, military and commercial relations thruout the world, is the fait accompli which the alarmed governments of Europe and the United States believe confronting them as they go to sign the Kellogg "peace pact."

If this is so, the accord has been reached, in the opinion of experts, on the basis of French accession to the British viewpoint that navies are to be limited by categories of ships and not by global tonnage, and British support of the French proposition that trained army reserves are to be unlimited.

However temporary such an alliance must in its nature be, it is pointed out that there are elements in the situation facing the alleged signatories which makes its duration at the present time extremely plausible. American aggressiveness in foreign affairs, which is expected to be intensified following the election of Herbert Hoover to the presidency (and Europe regards this as a foregone conclusion) is indicated as one of these elements.

But overshadowing all others in immediacy is considered to be the necessity which the two great pow-

CLOAK CHAIRMEN CONFER TONIGHT

Parley at Webster Hall at 6 O'clock

What has developed into a major event in the life and struggles of the workers in the cloak and dress making industry will take place when the conference of shop chairmen, delegates and shop committees is opened this evening at 6 o'clock at Webster Hall, 119 E. 11th St.

That this institution of the cloak and dressmakers is representative of the wide masses of workers in the trade has been firmly established by the 15,000 workers who poured out in answer to the call for the Huge Bronx Stadium issued by that body at its last meeting.

Many Shops Represented.

Ever since it was first organized the Council of Shop Delegates has been the target for slanderous attacks by the yellow socialist Jewish press and by the right wing union wreckers at the head of the defunct International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union.

Tonight's conference is expected to be the most enthusiastic yet held. Many hundreds of shops have been busy electing their representatives to the meeting.

A general outline of the business to be taken up tonight will be, it is understood, the intensification of the already brilliant campaign to organze the sweat shop industry and to thereby build the new union launched at the Bronx mass meeting.

Developing faster than even its most optimistic initiators had hoped, the new workers' organization is registering success after suc-

Beckerman and Boss Upset on Quiet Joy Ride

Of course, it was just a little inconspicuous news item. But—

Abraham Beckerman, the little "socialist" Mussolini of the New York Joint Board of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers Union, was in a minor auto accident on Thursday.

The automobile in which he was riding with a companion along Fifth Ave. got mixed up in a traffic jam, the brakes were slammed on, and the strong-arm lieutenant of Sidney Hillman was a little shaken up and bruised. And—

The companion happened to be a coat contractor, Frank Reggio by name.

Just a few weeks ago the administrative machine of which Beckerman is high-priest was exposed as graft-ridden to an almost unbelievable extent. The graft ring's field of operations, it was then revealed, was among the contractors of Reggio's type, thousands of dollars being extracted from them on threats of having their labor sources cut off by union machinery.

Hillman, during the height of the sensational disclosures, piously announced that the graft machine had been cleaned out. But Beckerman is still joy-riding with Reggio and his boy friends, it seems.

DISTRICT 8 IS PUT ON BALLOT

Under the leadership of S. Milgrom of Section 1, the members of the Downtown Section of the Workers (Communist) Party succeeded Sunday in getting a sufficient number of signatures to insure getting its candidate for Assembly on the ballot in the Eighth District of Manhattan.

The work of this section has earned it the first banner to be presented by the Election Campaign Committee of District 2. The plan of the Section 1 Election Campaign Committee is now to concentrate all of its forces in the Sixth Assembly District until that too is put across, after which it will wind up its drive with a mobilization for the Fourth Assembly District.

In a statement issued last night by Rebecca Grecht, District Campaign Manager, the members of Section 1 are praised for their work, and the section is held up as an example for other sections.

According to A. Milgrom, Section Campaign Manager, the Sixth Assembly District fight will be won by the early part of next week.

YOUTH TO HONOR SACCO, VANZETTI

Young Communists Hit Capitalist "Justice"

The Young Workers (Communist) League of District 2 has issued the following statement on the first memorial of the execution of Sacco and Vanzetti:

"On August 22, 1928, the American working class will commemorate the first anniversary of the execution of Sacco and Vanzetti. The entire proletariat of America will pay tribute to these two heroic fighters in the ranks of workers, who were killed by the capitalist class through its legal machinery, for their devotion to the working class. The workers will grit their teeth, the workers will express their sorrow and indignation by preparing for the overthrow of the dastardly capitalist system of society which demands its victims in order to make examples of the most courageous fighters for the working

AUG. 22 PROTEST AT KELLOGG SHIP

To Land Year After Sacco Murder

PARIS, Aug. 20.—In order to prevent the large demonstrations that are expected to take place at Cherbourg on August 22, the first anniversary of the Sacco-Vanzetti execution, when Secretary Kellogg lands on his way to sign the pact at Paris, the French government and police have made elaborate arrangements, in the form of strengthening the police and gendarme forces at the port.

The "Ile-de-France," manned by a crew of strikebreakers recruited from the French navy, will dock on the day when workers throrghout the world will hold demonstrations commemorating the heroic martyrs.

This coincidence, together with the fact that the ship bearing Kellogg is stoked by government strikebreakers, is expected to arouse the strikers in the port, their sympathizing comrades and the working class generally into a rousing protest demonstration.

It is recalled that when the American legionnaires landed here, a year ago, shortly after Sacco and Vanzetti were executed, police and troops attacked the huge demonstration that had gathered to protest American class justice, and that crews on the ships in the harbor went out on strike as a protest.

TEXAS PLACED ON RED TICKET FIRST TIME IN HISTORY

Present Total Exceeds by 1 the Total in 1924

Gitlow to Go on Tour

With the Workers (Communist) Party placed on the ballot in the state of Texas for the first time in history, the number of states officially on the ballot reached a total of fifteen according to a telegraphic report received last night at the headquarters of the National Election Campaign Committee of the Party, 43 East 125th St.

This total, which is less than half of the grand total of states that the Workers (Communist) Party expects to have on the ballot in the fall elections, exceeds by one the complete number of states that were on the ballot in 1924.

Totals 15 States.

The Workers (Communist) Party ticket is now officially on the ballot in the states of Montana, Arizona, Illinois, Delaware, New Jersey, Michigan, Maryland, West Virginia, Iowa, Arkansas, Nebraska, Kansas, New Mexico, South Dakota and Texas.

The addition of Texas not only places the Party ahead of its figure for 1924, but it is now almost a certainty that the mark set of 30 states on the ballot this year will be surpassed. At the present time the Party is diligently working to place its ticket on the ballot in the 11 states of Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Connecticut, New York, Pennsylvania, Indiana, Wisconsin, Minnesota, North Dakota, Colorado, and Washington, making a total of 26 in all in which success is assured.

May Have 41 on Ballot.

In addition to these states, word has come through from Ohio, Utah, Oregon, Wyoming, Kentucky, Tennessee, New Hampshire, and California that work is proceeding there, and there is no question but that the Party will be on the ballot in these states for the first time in its history. If the workers in those states keep their promise, the Workers (Communist) Party will be

STRIKE SHOP OF 'SOCIALIST' BOSS

Strike activities against a "socialist" boss were yesterday declared to be doubly enjoyable by members of Local 3 of the electrical workers' union who last Saturday walked out when the London Fixture Company located at Broadway and Prince Streets, refused to grant an increase in wages to its workers.

The owner of the firm is a brother of Meyer London, late socialist congressman. The "socialist" boss is also said to be a member of the socialist party, now largely composed of small business men, mostly shop-keepers, many small lawyers and a few ministers.

Demand Increase.

Recently Local 3 made a demand upon the electric lighting fixture manufacturers in New York City to grant an increase in wages amounting to 12 1-2 cents per hour, and a 44-hour week for class "C" men, known as inside fixture assemblers. Most of the companies in the trade granted the demand but several, of which the "socialist" firm was one, threatened to lock out their men. Last Saturday a strike was called. London has threatened to discontinue the employment of union labor after September 1, it is reported, but workers declare that they will continue the strike and will carry on picketing until the "socialist" boss concedes to their demands.

London is said to have been influential among socialist party leaders and is a friend of Adolph Held, president of the Amalgamated Bank and president of the Forward Association, the business organization which operates the right wing Jewish daily newspaper.

RALLY FOR SACCO AND VANZETTI TOMORROW

Workers Thruout U.S. Will Demonstrate Against Capitalist Frame-Up System

Workers all over the world will gather tomorrow in mass memorial demonstrations on the occasion of the first anniversary of the legal murder of Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti. Throughout the Soviet Union; in France, Italy, Germany, Brazil, England, India, China, Austria, South Africa,—on every continent—workers will assemble to pay tribute to the two martyrs to capitalist class justice, and to reaffirm their determination to do away with the system that made, and continues to make, class murders like this possible.

Here in America no section of the country will fail to hold a memorial meeting. From Maine to Florida, from California to New York, thousands will crowd the public squares, thousands will meet in halls. Not only will the demonstrations be centered in the big cities. Little towns, miners' camps, lumber regions, all will participate in the general demonstrations of protest and rally to the fight against capitalism.

The workers in every industrial center in America will demonstrate against the capitalist frame-up system. Pittsburgh will demonstrate, the pivot point of many such meetings throughout the anthracite region in Pennsylvania. New Bedford and Fall River, where the workers are now engaged in struggles against the labor-hating textile mill owners, will rally.

"Our reports," said Martin Abern, assistant national secretary of the International Labor Defense, under whose auspices the meetings are being held, "which are not yet complete, already indicate that close to one hundred meetings, if not more,

U. S. Oil Imperialists Plan to Exploit Huge Petroleum Concession in Eastern Peru

PREPARE FEUDAL COLONY IN WILD JUNGLE COUNTRY

Leguia, American Tool, Approves Grant

(By United Press)

The Grace Line steamer Santa Maria brought back to the United Staes yesterday Bertrand Lee and W. R. Davis, who have just completed obtaining for American capitalists the latest great major oilfield of South America—a concession of 12,500,000 acres in the eastern part of the republic of Peru.

Aside from immense oil deposits the land contains large and valuable mineral deposits, containing gold, silver, copper and lead.

President Leguia of Peru approved the grant, which is known as the Lee concession. Lee, who has lived and worked in Peru, making his home in Lima, the capital, for two years, obtained the concession from M. L. Benedum and J. C. Trees, Pittsburgh capitalists. Davis will have charge of the colonization of the concession.

The two men returned today to complete arrangements for the development. Davis goes to Pittsburgh tonight and within ten days will sail for Europe to superintend the work of getting the colonization started. Fifty thousand immigrants have already signified their desire to go to the new development and have been approved. A common school education and at least three years' experience in the profession they expect to follow is required by the examiners for the colony.

Fifty engineers, headed by Chief Engineer Hansell of New York, will return on the Santa Maria a week from Thursday to start the development of a port at Yura Mararus on the Amazon River and the 600-mile railroad which the capitalists plan to build. Hospitals, packing plants, saw mills, furniture factories and a complete industrial unit is to be ready for the colonists in April, when they begin to arrive.

In developing the concession a new method is to be used, building from the interior outward, rather than from the seacoast inward. The engineers will enter from the Atlantic Coast, going up the Amazon, and build the railroad from the Amazon to Loreta, the present railhead, which is 700 miles from the Pacific Coast. It will take five years to build the road.

The expenditure of $350,000,000 is contemplated in the development eventually, although the initial outlay will be approximately $60,000,000.

Colonists are to be taken to Peru from Northern Europe, Germany, Switzerland, Holland, and some from England. The speed with which the colonists are moved will depend largely, Lee declares, on the quantity of land that can be cleared by April 1 and the number of houses that can be made ready for use.

Protest Meet Against Murder of Madieros Is Held at W. I. R. Camp

(By a Pioneer Correspondent).

WINGDALE, N. Y. (My Mail).—Recently the Young Pioneer fraction of the Workers International Relief Camp held a protest demonstration in front of the Unity Camp dining room. The protest was against the brutal murder of six-year-old Johnnie Madieros by the police of Fall River. There were about 250 people at the demonstration. Harry Eiseman, the chairman, opened the meeting with the Pioneer pledge and the singing of the International.

The first speaker was Bernie Bernard, a Young Pioneer, ten years. He spoke about the death of Johnnie Madieros and about the strike in Massachusetts. The next speaker was Joe Goldfield, who spoke on the police brutalities in Massachusetts. He is ten years old also. Gus Mikades, a Pioneer from McKeesport, Pa., then spoke about the conditions of the steel and coal workers in Pennsylvania. Gus's father is running for senator in Pennsylvania on the Communist ticket. Gus received much applause. The next speaker was Raymond Spector, from the Young Workers (Communist) League, who spoke on the youth conditions in the textile regions. Frank Builinson was the next speaker. He told about the conditions of the strikers and concluded in asking for a collection. Quite a few dollars were collected this way. The last speaker was Ruth Youkelson. She spoke on the importance of the Young Pioneers and concluded the meeting by asking the comrades to give the Pledge and the Internationale.

"Avenge Johnny Madeiros—murdered by the textile masters."

"You can never break the fighting spirit of the workers' children."

"Six-year-old Johnnie died for the workers' cause."

will be held in the United States to commemorate the martyrdom of the two Italian immigrants of Massachusetts. Tens of thousands of workers, part of the huge movement that was created during the campaign for life and freedom for Sacco and Vanzetti, will participate in the memorial meetings. It is necessary that we perpetuate the movement in order to continue the fight against capitalist class justice by obtaining the release of the dozens of political prisoners who are still in American penitentiaries.

Free Mooney and Billings.

"One of the main points that will be stressed at this year's meetings will be the campaign now being organized for Tom Mooney and Warren K. Billings."

Meetings being held this year, according to the reports now available, include the following:

New York City, at Union Square, August 22, 5 p. m., with Robert Minor, Jack Stachel, Martin Abern, Moissaye Olgin, Max Shachtman, Paul Jones, and numerous others.

Boston, Paine Memorial Hall, 9 Appleton St., August 22, with Benjamin Gitlow, Communist candidate for vice-president as the principal speakers.

Philadelphia, Labor Institute, 8th and Locust, August 24, with Max Shachtman, editor of the Labor Defender, Herbert Benjamin, Workers Party organizer, and an Italian speaker.

Chicago, Temple Hall, August 22, with Ralph Chaplin, Max Bedacht, Mordecai Shulman, Guido Serio of the Anti-Fascist Alliance, and Joseph Giganti.

San Francisco, August 22, Musicians' Union Hall, with Emanuel Levin, William Schneiderman, Edgar Owens, and Charlotte Anita Whitney as chairman.

Los Angeles, Music Arts Hall, August 22, with Frank Spector and other well-known labor speakers.

Pittsburgh, Cameraphone Theatre, 6202 Penn Ave., August 26, with Jack Stachel, organization secretary of the Workers Party, Magliacano in Italian and other speakers.

Cleveland, Public Square, August 22, with Carl Hacker, secretary of I. L. D., I. Amter of the Workers Party and numerous others.

Detroit, Woodward and Alfred Sts., August 22, a demonstration with William Reynolds, Alfred E. Goetz, John Schmees and others.

Haverhill, Mass., Liberty Club Hall, 244 Liberty St., August 22, with H. Sidney Bloomfield.

Omaha, Jefferson Park, August 22, with James Lacey and others.

Newark, Military Park, August 23, with Philip Frankfeld.

Milwaukee, Harmony Hall, 1st Ave., and Mineral Street, August 25, with English and Italian speakers.

Poughkeepsie, Fall Kill Hall, Main and Washington, August 22, with Walt Carmon, business manager of the Labor Defender and Nicola Napoli, editor of Il Lavoratore.

Among the other meetings that have been arranged are the following:

Springfield, Mass; West Concord, N. H.; Fall River and New Bedford, Mass.; San Jose and San Diego, California; Denver, Colorado with William Dietrich and George Saul; Seattle, with Carl Brannin, Charlotte Todas, John Kennedy and Oliver Carlson; Portland; Tacoma; Astoria; Northport, Washington; Everett; Salt Lake City; Minneapolis, with Vicent Dunne, Pat Devine, and others; St. Paul with Florence Hathaway and others; Superior, Workers Hall; Duluth, with Sidney Bloomberg and Finnish speakers; Waukegan, at Workers Hall; Gary; South Bend, at Workers Hall, 1216 Colfax; St. Louis; Kansas City, with William Browder and E. B. Eastwood; Chisholn and Cloquet; Passaic; Patterson; Buffalo, with English and Italian speakers; Rochester; Erie; Youngstown; Akron; Canton; Toledo; meetings in the anthracite region of Pennsylvania; Houston, Texas; Grand Rapids, Flint and Muskegon, Michigan; Great Falls; Hanna and Rock Springs, Wyoming; Walsenburg, Colorado; meetings throughout the Ohio mining district; Hartford, New Haven and Stamford, Conn.; Baltimore; Washington; Providence; Peabody and Chealsea, Mass.

Meetings have already been held in Oakland, Fraternity Hall, with Edgar Owens and A. C. Tobey; and in Perth Amboy, with Peter Shapiro and Hungarian speaker.

POLISH NAVY IN DANTZIG MENACE

Lithuania Sees Danger in Move

KOVNO, Lithuania, Aug. 20.—While the note received here from the Polish government agrees to a conference at Koenigsberg, as the Lithuanian government requested, news received here from Danzig indicates that an agreement concluded between the Danzig shipyard and the Polish regime allows Polish warships the right to moor in the harbor.

The Lithuanian papers point out the danger of such a move, both for Lithuania and the Danzig corridor, and term it a veiled threat of military aggression.

While the Polish note was conciliatory in tone, official circles here distrust the sudden change in front of Warsaw and explain it as a change in tactic, first ushered in by Pilsudski's speech at Vilna, but in reality still having the same end in view. The note agreed to hold the conference, at which the Vilna and border dispute will be taken up, at Koenigsberg on August 22 before the League of Nations meets.

plans are in formation to meet this latest attack, which was expected for some time.

NEW BEDFORD, Mass., Aug. 21. A statement by Eli Keller, organizer, explains the organizational forms the new picketing tactic of the New Bedford Textile Workers Union will take. This new form of strike organization was decided upon in answer to a boss maneuver of shutting down 5 mills to frighten the workers. The statement in part:

"Our new policy will be the formation of Block Committees. The Block Committees will function through every member of our strike committee which numbers at the present time at more than 100.

"The strike committee members will be responsible for the registration of all workers on their block and neighboring streets and see to it that the workers in those blocks are members of the union and participate in the work of winning the strike.

"The Block Committee will also hold special meetings where every striker will have an opportunity to express themselves and make suggestions for future activity for the strengthening of the union. The block committees will also take up all grieviences of the workers and act on them."

RIGA OFFICIALS OUTLAW LABOR ORGANIZATIONS

Militant Unions Rouse Opposition

KOENIGSBERG (By Mail).—The civil department of the Riga court has banned many more workers' organizations, among them being the Central Bureau of the Riga Unions, health organizations, workmen's circles, union of the transportation workers, union of the chemical industry workers, union of the metal workers, union of carpenters, lead workers' union, building workers' union, textile workers' union, clothing industry union.

The reason given was "lawless activity." The lawless activity consists in the influx of Communists into these unions. These unions that have defended the rights of the workers form a danger for the Lettish government. A crime of the unions, according to reports in a Riga paper, consists in that these organizations had organized strikes. That is the only charge that could be brought against the unions and is the ground for the mass banning of legal organizations that organize strikes and allow Communists into the union. The government writes, as it has learned from Poland and other fascist countries, that these organizations oppose the state and wish to introduce a Soviet government, from which it can be concluded that at their last congress these organizations decided to stand upon the basis of the class struggle.

MILL STRIKERS CANVAS BOSTON

Raise Relief Funds as Struggle Continues

NEW BEDFORD, Mass., Aug. 20.—Further indications that the strike of the 30,000 textile workers will be a long, drawn out affair, is the closing this week of the gates of five mills that were unable to obtain scabs. Both the workers and the mill owners are getting ready for a fight to the end.

The Workers International Relief, in charge of the feeding of the striking workers and their families, is continuing its activities of raising funds for the relief work. Yesterday two strikers left for Boston where they will visit trade unions and labor fraternal organizations in an appeal for funds. In the mornings they will make house to house collections. They expect to stay in Boston about two weeks.

The Workers International Relief is also planning to open shortly two special childrens kitchens, where milk and rolls will be given to the children of the striking textile workers. They will be located in the south and north of the city and will supplement the two regular relief kitchens that are now taxed to capacity.

To establish the children kitchens, as well as feed the strikers themselves, takes a great deal of money. All workers should do their share. Send a donation at once to the Workers International Relief, 49 William St., New Bedford, Mass.

TROOPS MENACE GREEK ELECTION

Bandits and Army Are Active

ATHENS, Greece, Aug. 20.—As the elections, scheduled for today, are about to take place, Venizelos, the virtual dictator of Greece, has stationed police and military units throughout the city, in expectation of resistance to his regime.

Although the royalists, who are demanding the return of the king, have plastered the city with his portrait, and are expected to win about 80 seats out of the 250 in the legislative chambers, the dictatorship is alarmed at the discontent of the workers both in Athens and in the Piraeus, its port, who were so ruthlessly suppressed during their last strike.

Venizelos has declared that he will have 160 seats out of the 250 as a result of the elections, which he has been preparing for since he dissolved he chamber of deputies in early July.

Large troups of bandits, who, it has been charged by liberal opponents, are in the direct pay of Venizelos, have become exceedingly active, and have already succeeded in kidnapping some of the dictator's most dangerous opponents.

ers feel in opposing a united front of the Soviet Union, in their preparations for war on that country.

Nearly identical agreements with the Nanking government, joint action in warning the Bulgarian government to refrain from abetting the action of the Macedonian revolutionaries, joint action in threatening Premier Waldemaras of Lithuania, the growing understanding between the government of Great Britain and those of Poland and Rumania, allies of the French, are among the symptoms cited by experts to substantiate the existence of the pact.

Alarmed by the possibility that the English channel may again, as in 1914, be transformed into a British pool and the Mediterranean into a French lake, with the concentration of British capital ships in one end and of French submarines and destroyers in the other, the governments of Germany and Italy are eagerly awaiting developments.

Against such an alliance the only single power capable of coping is the United States and it is believed that the agreement is aimed particularly on the part of Great Britain at her most powerful competitor in the world markets. France, too, it is pointed out, is eager to form a diplomatic and financial front against the United States, and besides has special interests to protect in North Africa. Both powers have parallel interests in the Far and Near East.

WORKERS PARTY PUTS 15 STATES ON BALLOT

on the ballot in a minimum of 34 states this year. In addition to that, the prospects in Oklahoma, Louisiana, Alabama, Georgia, Florida, Virginia, and Maine are also good, and the Party has an even chance of placing its candidates in nomination in these states. Success in these states would mean that the Party would be on the ballot in a total of 41 states. However, it is anticipated that the difficulties being placed in the way of the Party in various localities by state officials will tend to cut down the number, and unless the Party in all sections intensifies its efforts, the prospect of only 30 states is all that the National Election Campaign Committee will undertake to guarantee.

Only 14 in 1924.

In 1924, the complete Communist vote totalled 33,361 in the fourteen states in which the Party was on the ballot. These votes were distributed as follows: New Jersey, 1,560; Illinois, 2,622; Iowa, 4,037; Montana, 357; Massachusetts, 2,637; Rhode Island, 289; New York, 8,244; Pennsylvania, 2,735; Indian, 987; Wisconsin, 3,773; Minnesota, 4,427; Colorado, 562; Washington, 761; North Dakota, 370. This year, with more than twice the number of states expected to be on the ballot than were on four years ago, the total vote for the Communist ticket is expected to exceed by far the 33,361 that the Workers (Communist) Party polled in 1924.

Names Texas Candidates.

The following candidates were unanimously nominated at the Houston, Texas, convention: J. Stedham, of Annona, for governor; J. L. Swann, of Wheeler, for Lieutenant Governor; John Rust, of Weatherford, for United States senator; and twenty presidential electors.

There were strong delegations present from San Antonio, Houston, Weatherford, and Breckenridge, in addition to numerous other points in the state. Campaign literature sold better than ever before in the state.

Funds Needed Soon.

B. H. Lauderdale, as convention chairman, reported considerable support for the Communist program throughout the state, but in view of the great distances between cities in a state which is equal in area to the whole of Europe outside of the European territory of the Soviet Union, large sums of money are required to cover the entire state with speakers and literature.

The convention closed with a great banquet, at which splendid enthusiasm was demonstrated by all, and at which the various speakers promised to go back to their localities with determination to put the message of Communism and revolution before the working masses in their sections of the state.

Plans are being made for a great campaign meeting in Houston, where the democratic party held its national convention. This meeting will be held in the City Auditorium of Houston, which seats 4,000 people. The main speaker will be Benjamin Gitlow, vice presidential candidate of the Workers (Communist) Party.

SPAIN DICTATOR ARRESTS 1,752

Charged Plot Against King

PARIS, (By Mail).—In order to give substance to the news of a plot against the king, Primo de Rivera has made 1,752 arrests in the various towns of Spain, and in Saragosse alone 300 arrests. The prisons were overcrowded.

How empty the news of a plot was is evident from the fact that the greatest part of the arrested were released. But the prisoners were kept behind the bars for 13 days, without allowing their relatives to see them, which resulted in demonstrations before the prisons.

GUAYAQUIL, Ecuador, Aug. 20.—An alleged plot to prevent the meeting of congress, which is shortly to take place, by the decree of the government, was reported to have been discovered by government officials, and a number of liberal leaders have been arrested.

The plot is said to involve leaders of the opposition party and army officers. It is believed in certain circles that the "discovery" is a part of the plan to prevent the presence of the opponents of the present government when the congress convenes.

Those arrested include Dr. Jose Maria Ayora, brother of the president; Colonel Pedro Concha, Colonel Nicholas Lopez, Colonel Bartolome Vinelli, Dr. Roberto Posso, Dr. Enrique Amador Baquerizo and Commandant Hector Cedro and others whose names are not known.

HANdOuTS

Although Warren G. Harding was one of the most generous presidents the U. S. ever had and divided up the oil lands among his friends in an open-handed way, his picture is being completely cut out of the film the Hoover managers are making for propaganda purposes. But the corruption that Harding stood for can no more be eliminated from the republican party by taking his picture out of a movie than odor can be eliminated from the stockyards by leading away one steer.

A Cleveland Nutt

J. R. Nutt, above, is the hard one who is treasurer of the Republican National Committee and who pleased the socialist party by his ethical stand that no money would be accepted except from those of "known probity of character." Imagine a man appearing at republican headquarters with a $10,000 check and being forced to go through a civil service test before being relieved of it! So far the only money Nutt has turned down has been Mexican coins, Confederate money and bread checks. Nutt has just announced there will be no limit on individual contributions.

When Norman Thomas, head of the religious section of the so-called socialist party arrived in Columbus, Ohio, on his oratory tour and found the city in gala attire, flags on every lamp post, he was ready to believe the socialist era was at hand, and without an armed struggle. His delight was somewhat dampened, however, when a tactless attendant informed him the flags were put up to welcome the delegates to the annual convention of Eagles.

Pretty Girl Pawn

The secret of the publicity business is pretty girls. Miss Evelynne Cervenny, entrant for queen of the Radio World's Fair to be held in New York September 17, is shown alongside. The radio had a lot of friends up until last week when that drink of muddy water, Herbie Hoover, wasted several hours accepting a nomination which everybody knew he would rather lose a right arm than to refuse. In the U. S. S. R. the radio has made great advances. You never hear a sermon over it.

Gems of Learning

Sir James C. Irvine, of St. Andrews University, speaking before American Chemical Society Institute at Chicago:

"No peace treaty or visiting commission can control or even detect research work designed to furnish lethal agents for the future, and this research may be going on now, anywhere, in preparation for the next war. As matters stand at present, the nation which possesses the most efficient chemical industry possesses also the most efficient instrument of war. The war of the future may be declared, waged and won in a few days.

You might be away on a vacation and miss it all. Come home and find New York wiped out.

Cal Coolidge, national comedian, making jokes about the Kellogg peace pact:

"While it would be too much to suppose that war has been entirely banished, yet a new and important barrier, reasonable and honorable, has been set up to prevent it. Had an agreement of this kind been in existence in 1914, there is every reason to suppose that it would have saved the situation and delivered the world from all the misery it was inflicted with by the World War."

This is the war that made the scrap of paper famous.

Andrew J. Peters, chairman of the men's division of the Smith-Robinson League of First Voters:

"The new voters of today will be the rulers of the nation tomorrow, and their ideals and aspirations demand a leader with compassion, with understanding, with sympathy, and they turn to Gov. Smith as the national leader who represents them."

Rather tough bologna for young digestions.

HOODLUMS FAIL TO BREAK BIG ASTORIA MEET

Even Police Merely "Watch" Crowds

(By a Worker Correspondent)

In the heart of the working-class section of Astoria, L. I., a meeting was held Thursday evening which will go down in the workers' history of Astoria, should such a volume ever be compiled, as the first definite swing toward the platform, political and economic, of the Workers (Communist) Party by workers who have heretofore been hoodwinked and tricked and drained by professional patriots, corrupt politicians and a well organized group of American fascisti.

The Communist meeting, which was also a protest demonstration against the breakup of last week's meeting and assault on the Communist speakers by the representatives of the rear end of the Tammany tiger, was opened by Max Schachtman, editor of the Labor Defender, at a quarter past eight before a crowd which already numbered several hundred Queens workers. Long before the meeting was scheduled to open, workers began to arrive at the corner of Steinway and Jamaica Aves. to listen to the message of the Communist speakers.

Schachtman opened the meeting by stating its purpose, the nature of the party under whose auspices it was held, and expressed the determination of that party to continue to hold weekly meetings at the same corner despite the actions "of certain super-patriots who will receive some small change in exchange for their valuable political activities." This announcement was greeted enthusiastically by the assembled workers with cheers and applause. After making several scathing remarks about the "police protection" afforded at the last meeting, upon which the four cops present were seen to shift their weights from one foot to the other, Schachtman introduced Philip Frankfeld, Acting District Organizer of the Young Workers (Communist) League, the first speaker.

Frankfeld outlined the aims and methods of the Young Workers (Communist) League in the class struggle, citing the League's anti-militarist activities, the part it played in the miners' strike and is playing in the textile workers' strike in New Bedford, and ended with an appeal for all young workers of Queens to join the League. Frankfeld's remarks, at first listened to with a good deal of skepticism by the Astoria young workers in the candy and automobile factories, hit home. This was shown by the applause which the Astoria young workers gave his talk, and also by the knots of young workers who later approached him with eager questions concerning the League and its activities.

As Schachtman introduced the second speaker, Donald Burke, some enterprising young fascist, parked in the safe vantage of a neighboring roof, threw a none-too-good egg at the crowd, which resulted in an angry surging of the assembled workers in the direction of the offending patriot. The captain of police on duty warned the speaker that if another such surging of the crowd occurred the meeting would be stopped, thus indirectly sanctioning the professional hundred percenter who hurled the hen fruit.

Lo, the Poor Veterans.

Just before the second speaker ascended the platform, the Veterans of Foreign Wars, the same organization who was responsible for the brutal assault on the Communist meeting last week, arrived in a touring car with a huge American flag and their organization banner in resplendent gold and blue and started to set up their platform on the opposite corner of Jamaica Ave., a narrow street. However, after sizing up the crowd of evidently sympathetic listeners who were gathered about the platform of the Workers Party, they removed themselves, bag, baggage and patriotism, to the opposite corner of Steinway Ave., much further removed from the Communist meeting.

Burke spoke on the war danger, citing preparations for war secretly going on, and denouncing the Kellogg anti-war pact as an "empty gesture, devoid of meaning except the intention of all imperialist powers to wage war on the U. S. S. R."

In his introductions to the various speakers Schachtman continually reminded the audience of the "unparalleled intrepidity and braveness of those thirty professional patrioteers who with undaunted valor attacked in the name of free speech and free assemblage the six Communist speakers present here last week," implying none too subtly that the same fascists would hesitate to attempt the same strong-arm methods on the same number of Communists. If there were any brave Veterans of Foreign Wars in the crowd they maintained a discreet and sane silence.

After Burke came Abe Harfield, Communist candidate for assembly from the 1st assembly district of Queens. Harfield bore the brunt of the attack last week, sustaining a severe cut on his lip which was later stitched and a beating about the head. Harfield spoke of the situation in Queens, giving facts and figures of the sewer specifications swindle, which gave a decidedly uncomfortable ten minutes to whatever democrats may have heard him.

Hoodlums and Eggs.

Miller spoke after Harfield, his subject being Tammany Hall, its influence on democratic politics throughout the country, and the ways in which the Tammany tiger showed its stripes. During his speech three more decaying eggs were thrown by hoodlums, "egged" on by the Veterans of Foreign Wars. The crowd of workers, having been told of the flimsy pretext which would be seized on by the police to break up the meeting, stood its ground without a move. They were determined to hear the message of Communism, and hear it they would, despite rotten eggs and whatever other fruity munitions resorted to by the tools of corruption.

It may be mentioned that one of the eggs struck the back of a policeman's neck and spattered its gelatinous contents, presumably down to his belted waist.

Rebecca Grecht, who last week was arrested on a framed-up charge of inciting to riot at the same corner, spoke next on the political situation throughout the country, reminding her listeners that never before has the similarity of the two major capitalist parties been so plainly evidenced. As she mounted the platform she was greeted with loud cheers and hearty applause by the workers present, who by this time had reached the number of seven hundred. Damning fact after fact was cited by her, proving the big business control of politics; facts which reached a fruitful soil, as proven by the small groups into which the crowd broke up after the meeting, discussing her statements.

Sell Literature.

During the meeting several pamphlets of the Workers (Communist) Party were sold among the workers present, among them the campaign platform of the Communist Party and "Our Heritage from 1776," all of which was completely sold out.

Robert Minor, editor of the Daily Worker and Communist candidate for U. S. Senator from New York, was the next and final speaker. Minor emphasized the lack of any issues as between the major capitalist parties and urged the rallying of all workers to the platform and ranks of the Workers (Communist) Party.

During the Communist meeting, the Veterans of Foreign Wars were holding an alleged meeting across the street, at which several speakers were spreading lies and calumny about the Workers (Communist) Party. George Kemp, one of the main fascist speakers, held aloft a copy of the Communist Platform and misquoted from it. After spending an hour concocting lies and slander about Communists, Communism and Soviet Russia to the handful of listeners present, Kemp said: "You may wonder how the Communists are able to win the masses over to their party, but I say that it's all tricks of the trade. Unless you understand the tricks of the trade you may be taken in, for their arguments are plausible. Don't pay attention to them."

Kemp has been seen in the Workers Center and particularly in the Workers' Bookshop, at 26-28 Union Square, very often, snooping around for facts to distort.

It was evident at Thursday's meeting that if the crowd around the Communist platform had not been so large and demonstratively enthusiastic in its support, the Tammany-controlled fascists would have repeated their cowardly attack of last week. It was evident, also, judging from the muttered remarks overheard by sympathizers, that the Veterans of Foreign Wars are hoping that the next week's meeting, to be held on Thursday, August 23, at the same corner, will not have so generous a support from the Queens workers, so that the Communist meeting may be again broken up and the Communist speakers assaulted.

STRUGGLE SHOWS STOOL PIGEONS HARD AT WORK

Owner Is Running for Wisconsin Governor

(By a Worker Correspondent)

KOHLER, Wis., (By Mail). Good attention was given here to the speaker of the Workers (Communist) Party by the workers of the Kohler shops during a noontime meeting at the factory gates recently.

Vote Communist.

The representative of the Party pointed out why the workers at Kohler's shops should support the nominees of the Party in the presidential elections, William Z. Foster and Benjamin Gitlow.

The speaker pointed out how the Party aims to utilize its campaign in order to mobilize the workers to resist the attacks of the capitalists upon their wages and working conditions, against the vicious speed-up system and the need to organize the unorganized workers.

The appeal for organization enraged some of the company stool-pigeons and other flunkeys of Kohler Company. Shouting that they don't like that Bolshevik stuff, they demanded that the speakers leave the city. After the speaker insisted on the right of the Party to state its position to the workers, the agents of the Kohler Company began to push the speaker from the "private property" of the Kohler Co.

Spy.

The fact that the Kohler Company is employing spies in its shops was revealed when, in answer to the question of the speaker, "Who gave you the right to eject me from here?" one of the men turned up his coat to show a detective badge. This fellow was dressed as a worker. His face and hands were dirty. Evidently he was working, or made believe he was working, at the same time spying upon the workers.

The interference by the stool-pigeons and petty-bosses of the Kohler Company did not stop even after the speaker went to the nearest sidewalk in order to meet the objection of being on company property. The agents of the company were shouting at the speaker. The great majority of the workers who assembled took no part in the hostile actions of the company agents.

The latter finally grabbed the speaker and threw him on the truck, telling the driver to take the Bolshevik out of town, that they don't want any discontent to be spread among the workers and that they would handle the Bolsheviks roughly if he should not leave.

The sound of the factory whistle put an end to this uneven struggle between one Communist and a number of company agents.

W. Kohler, the millionaire owner of the company, owns the entire city of Kohler, Wis. He is selling houses at a very profitable rate to the workers of his shops. The contracts provided, I was informed, that the houses may not be resold to any one not in the employ of the company.

"Kohler Plan."

The shops run on a speed-up system. The "Kohler Plan," so-called, is an adaptation of the feudal system to the present capitalist system. Single workers are housed in houses owned by the company. The workers eat in the lunch room which is run by the company and buy articles from the company store.

W. Kohler is a candidate of the republican party for governor of Wisconsin. He spends thousands of dollars of the profits he squeezes from the sweat of the workers for his political campaign. Signs "Kohler for Governor" and others are to be seen everywhere, not only in Kohler, but in Sheboygan and other cities.

A goose on New Year, a turkey on Thanksgiving, an annual picnic, and a little more occasional entertainment—all paid for by the workers themselves, out of the profits they make for Kohler. And Kohler dupes the workers by saying that it is because of his kind heart that he himself pays for their entertainment!

But he would not tolerate any talk about unionizing his plant. This, however, is an urgent necessity for the workers of Kohler for protection against the brutal exploitation of the oppressing industrial baron.

BOSS POLITICAL PARTIES PROVED SIAMESE TWINS

Wall Street's Hoover, Smith, One Under Skin

PHILADELPHIA, (By Mail).—Two things that happened recently conclusively prove that the difference between the democrat and republican parties is nothing more, if not less than between tweedledum and tweedledee.

Vare Investigation.

One thing concerns the final day of the investigation of the senate's committee of the campaign between Vare and Wilson for the senatorial seat in Pennsylvania in 1926.

U. S. Senator Waterman had an exciting day. It was revealed that gunmen, liquor, fraud and forgery were the methods used by the Vare outfit and that O'Donnell, head of the democratic city committee and minority county commissioner worked as an ally of the Vare machine.

Joseph Penczak, a registrar and election board clerk, declared he had been threatened with death if he should "squeal." Nevertheless Penczak testified as to what had been done in his division after having been located by a U. S. marshal and previously having been missing. He declared that many hours before the polls closed the return sheets had been made up. Liquor was stored in a voting booth and seven out of ten voters were served with drinks.

Forged Receipts.

As in other districts poll tax receipts were issued to all voters free of charge, the signatures required on the receipts having been forged.

Penczak said he had refused to fight the campaign with guns. However, there were plenty of others to be had if it should be necessary.

Siamese Twins.

As to the charges against John O'Donnell, the democratic machine leader of this city, he denied them and was ready to fight. Still, it is well known in Philadelphia that the democrats and republicans are one and the same, working hand in hand.

The methods described by Penczak are very commonly used each election day, and are known by almost everybody.

The other event was a conference of state leaders of the democratic party, who returned to Philadelphia from New York after another conference with John J. Raskob, General Motors nabob.

The feeling of the Philadelphia conference can best be described by the democratic organ here, the Philadelphia Record, which says: "Governor Smith will carry Pennsylvania. Party lines will be forgotten in a tidal wave of admiration for the governor as a man. New precedents will be set because the personality of a presidential candidate will be a greater attraction than party affiliation."

Thus, the presidential campaign of 1928 will be Smith vs Hoover, rather than between democrats and republicans. The foregoing probably shows more clearly than anything published here that there is no difference whatever between republicans and democrats. Vote for Hoover and starve in the bread lines. Vote for Smith and you starve the same.

One hope remains. That is in becoming a militant fighter in the class struggle, joining the Workers' (Communist) Party and in the coming elections vote for its candidates, Foster and Gitlow.

C. RABIN.

"The Scarlet Lady" of Moscow California Is Simply Awful

"THE SCARLET LADY" is such an unbelievable concoction of movie drivel it looks like a sure prize-winner for the world's worst movie for 1928; also 1908, 1918, 1948, or take any year you like. It comes as the latest of a series of "Russian" pictures made in Hollywood, where ex-generals and ex-nobles of Czarist Russia supply the atmosphere and former pants manufacturers, now movie producers, supply the uniforms. The story, according to the program, was supplied by one Bess Meredyth. Bessie should go back to floor scrubbing.

"The Scarlet Lady," it seems, is a girl who was "wild—but unsullied." If she wasn't sullied it was just plain hard luck. From the very beginning that poor girl's passion was something awful. In fact, so awful that the producers' attempt at cheap sensationalism became such a burlesque the audience snickered out loud.

But this isn't all. The lover is a Communist leader, so the picture says. About every five minutes he gets a nose-full of Vodka and goes out to shoot himself a bunch of nobles. And yet, even this doesn't make the hot mamma so hot about him. She still wants the noble. She gets jewels by the basket after the revolution when the Bolsheviks "divide up"; she gets the noble's home to live in; she gets everything she wants. But is she satisfied? Not this girl. She wants her noble. And, of course, she gets him. They just couldn't disappoint this warmish lady in Hollywood. So Bess gave her the noble.

Believe it or not, that's the story. It's no wonder the audience snickered. But there was more. The nobility was glorified. The revolution was villified. The Bolsheviks were shown as inhuman butchers, who slaughtered wholesale. Such a vicious lot of absurd rot has rarely been dished up in American movies.

Even the New York press in general found it hard to swallow. But note this difference. When "The End of St. Petersburg" was shown a couple of months ago, the critics forced to praise its artistry, made sure to warn you about "Soviet propaganda." These same critics forced to laugh at the drivel in "The Scarlet Lady" do not utter a single word that it is vicious anti-Soviet propaganda. Whata whale of a difference a pay check will make.

Here is a classic example of cheap anti-workingclass propaganda smothered in sensationalism, garnished with smut and presented on Broadway — fortunately to lose money for its producers this time. It is so absurd in theme, so unreal in presentation, it is too stupid for even a tabloid mentality. "The Scarlet Lady," despite its warm title is not so hot. Nor does it matter that Lya dePutti or Don Alvarado or Warner Oland are in it. They should know better. It doesn't matter even that its at the Embassy Theatre, because it surely won't be there for long.

100 PERCENTERS READY TO STOP MEETINGS, SAYS

Thinks "Reds" Should Get Out

"The next time we try something we won't just give your men a couple wallops, either," writes a member of the American Legion to the Workers (Communist) Party. The legionaire, who signs himself a "Real American Veteran," was greatly enraged at the success of the street meeting held last Thursday night at Jamaica and Steinway Avenues, Astoria, L. I. by the Workers (Communist Party. The letter speaks for itself:

"Just because there was many around your meeting in Astoria last week who cheered your men when they spoke don't mean you will be speaking there every week, as you say! Most of those who stood around your platform was foreigners, anyway. Let me tell you, you can't get away with that stuff for long. There's enough good Americans in Astoria to see to that!

"I say there's a limit to what we will stand from you bunch of foreigners who come over here from Russia and try to take away our American ideals. The next time we try something we won't just give your men a couple wallops, either. We'll fix them so's they wont speak again in a hurry. And that red-headed women who was arrested,—I want to say Astoria, the home of good Americans, is no safe place for her, so she better not come out here again, but go back where she comes from.

"So take a warning before it's too late, stay away from Astoria! I fought in the last war and I ain't intending to see your bunch of Reds come over and try any of your Bolsheviki stuff around here. And there are many more red-blooded Americans like me who say the same. — A REAL AMERICAN VETERAN."

DRUNK FASCISTS ATTACK LEAGUE

Try to Drag Bedacht From Platform

WAUKEGAN, Ill. (By Mail).—A meeting of the Young Workers (Communist) League, which took place on the night of August 15 at Genessee and Water Streets, was disrupted by members of the American Legion.

While Max Bedacht, organizer of District No. 8 of the Workers (Communist) Party, was speaking, the Legionaires, who are reported as having been half-drunk, edged towards the speakers' platform and tried to drag Bedacht from it. They asked him if he wanted to go for a "ride" in their automobile which rested nearby. The purpose of beating up Bedacht was very evident in this attempt to spirit him away.

Fifteen arrests of Party and League speakers have been made here in the last few weeks.

The case of the arrested Communists will be taken up Friday. J. O. Bentall is the defendants' lawyer.

PENN LAWS HIT CHILD WORKERS

Compensation Refused to Injured

HARRISBURG, Pa., Aug. 20.—Because they are employed in violation of the child labor law, hundreds of children in this state are refused compensation when they are injured.

Last year's number of children's accidents while at work amounted to 4,136, it is reported. Children under the age of 18 were affected. An investigation of 12 per cent of the accidents revealed tha tthe children were hired for illegal employment. In 50 per cent of the cases the children worked in violation of the child labor laws of this state.

Under the child labor laws here children are refused accident compensation benefits.

MILL FEUDALISM

Old feudal traditions of the castle on the hill for the lord are still good enough for Covington, Va., rayon mill executives. They are developing a choice residential section in the hills two miles from the town. But the mill workers must live in the village laid out around the mill.

VIENNA, Aug. 20 (UP).—An airplane whose pilot lost control beheaded a boy during an exhibition flight at Senta, a Belgrade dispatch said today. The excitement of a passenger unnerved the pilot, who regained control of the falling plane only a few feet from the ground. A Sudden Interest in Arctic; Quick Route to U. S. S. R.

The map graphically depicts one phase of the sudden interest which the imperialist powers have discovered in arctic flights. It has suddenly been discovered that the small and frozen top of the world is a backdoor to the Soviet Union which the powers in their mad preparations for war against the first Workers' and Peasants' Republic, must not overlook. Inset are Hassell and Crane, the two latest American fliers to make the Arctic hop.

FRENCH POLICE ATTACK BRETONS

Break Up Autonomy Congress

PARIS, Aug. 20.—Fishermen of Brittany, gathered at Chateaulin for their congress for an autonomous Brittany, were attacked by a force of gendarmes, sent by the French government to prevent the holding of the congress.

On the eve of the congress the gendarmes attempted to prevent the meeting by taking all available sleeping quarters in the town that had been previously reserved by the delegates. A fight followed in which the Bretons were ousted from the hotel.

When the congress opened the gendarmes attempted to break up the meeting by force. The Breton autonomists raised the national flag of Brittany and defied the French state police. The gendarmes attacked, took the flags by force and disbanded the congress.

Randolph Issues New Appeal for "Public" Sympathy for Porters

In a statement issued by A. Philip Randolph, general organizer of the Brotherhood of Sleeping Car Porters, attention is drawn to the fight of the western trainmen and train conductors to secure an increased wage. The strike vote now being taken by these railroad workers, the statement declares, will help the Pullman porters and maids in their fight.

The statement, it is noted, is still based on the present attitude of the porters' officials to appeal to the "public." Considerable criticism has been made of the officials because they have failed to muster the rank and file for a real struggle, considered as inevitable and have instead pursued a policy of trying to 'bluff" the Pullman company officials. Militant trade union leaders who are both informed of the situation and sympathetic to the struggle of the porters have expressed their opinion that the porters can be fully organized and their fight won if a militant policy is adopted by their officials.

Haldane, British Labor Party Misleader, Dead

PERTH, Scotland, Aug. 19 (UP).—Lord Haldane, prominent labor party leader and twice Lord High Chancellor of Great Britain, died here today at the age of 72. Viscount Haldane suffered a heart attack after a few weeks' illness.

Viscount Haldane was born July 30, 1856. He was created 1st Viscount Haldane of Cloan in 1911 while serving as secretary of state for war, which office he held from 1905 to 1912. Previously a liberal, Viscount Haldane went over to the labor party following his appointment as lord chancellor in the labor government of 1924. He had served in the office from 1912 to 1915.

GIANTS HOLD LEAD; BEAT REDS 5 TO 3

(By United Press)

The New York Giants maintained their fractional lead over the St. Louis Cardinals Monday, defeating Cincinnati, 5 to 3, while the Cards tamed the Brooklyn Robins, 2 to 1.

The Cards theoretically hold the lead, a half game ahead of the Giants, but the actual percentage gives New York a .002 advantage.

The Giants had to overcome a two lead piled up by the Reds in the first inning to hold their slight advantage, but they tied the count in the third and scored the winning runs in the fifth and sixth. Rixey took the mound ahead of his turn in an effort to check the Giants, but McGraw's men made 12 hits off him and one off Jablonowski who succeeded him.

With the score tied in the ninth, St. Louis rallied with the run that decided the game. Ernie Orsatti, recruit, substituting at first base for Jim Bottomley, ill, scored the winning run after Hafey had singled, Harper had sacrificed, Holm had walked and Wilson had singled. The Robins got only four hits off Frankhouse and Haines.

Philadelphia dropped another half game back in the American League race when the St. Louis Browns scored 9 runs in the last three innings of their game and beat the Athdetics, 9 to 2.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Aug. 20 (UP)—H. T. Wilson, of Detroit, has been named president of the Pittsburgh Terminal Coal Corporation, succeeding Horace F. Baker, resigned, the Pittsburgh press said today.

Although no formal announcement of Wilson's appointment was made from the office of the Terminal Corporation, the press said the information was obtained from reliable sources.

Professor Finds Radio Cure for Tuberculosis

BREMEN, Aug. 20.—At the convention of German radio technicians here Professor Esau, of the University of Jena, told of experiments he had carried out on mice, that reveal the possibility of curing tuberculosis with ultra-short radio waves.

The professor inoculated thirty mice with tuberculosis germs and exposed fifteen of them to short waves. Those treated in this way remained alive, while the others died. Esau pointed out, however, that the method was dangerous since too long treatment by radio waves would cause death, because its strong rays would disintegrate tissue and cells.

FRENCH ARMY IN WAR PRACTICE

Maneuver on Italian Border

PARIS, Aug. 20 (UP).—For the first time since the war, French army maneuvers on a large scale were conducted along the Franco-Italian frontier today. Marshal Petain directed the movements of a brigade of infantry.

The maneuvers were conducted with great secrecy. Instead of the usual single great maneuvers, the French army this year is holding a series of local maneuvers, including Alsace, the Rhineland, Seine Valley, Pyrenees and Alps, with members of the general staff directing each section.

TO HOLD CHICAGO ELECTION PICNIC

Enlarged Campaign Meet Aug. 22

CHICAGO, Aug. 20.—A meeting of the enlarged Foster-Gitlow Campaign Committee will be held on Wednesday, Aug. 22, at 8 p. m. at 1214 Spring Garden Ave. Delegates from many Chicago labor organizations will attend. The first meeting of the enlarged committee formed plans to draw the largest possible number of workers into the Workers (Communist) Party election campaign.

Arrangements were made for a huge rally and picnic on Labor Day where Benjamin Gitlow, the vice presidential candidate of the Workers Party will be the principal speaker. At least 5,000 workers are expected to attend and demonstrate their determination to fight back the attacks of the bosses. An unusual program of sports and proletarian entertainment from 10 in the morning to past midnight is promised.

Members of all affiliated organizations will be mobilized for an intensive distribution of 50,000 circulars advertising the rally. Tuesday August 26, has been set aside for this purpose.

MINE MILITANT FACES TRIAL IN PENNSYLVANIA

Adam Getto Charged With Walking

WASHINGTON, Pa., Aug. 20.—Adam Getto, a leading miner in Bentleyville, will be tried in the county court here August 25, on charge of unlawful assemblage, preferred by coal and iron police in the employ of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation.

The case dates back to the stormy picketing in early April, when hundreds of strikebreakers left the mines in response to appeal of men, women and children who marched upon the mines.

Getto was walking down the road with two other miners when coal and iron police accosted him. The company agents told him that he was violating the sheriff's proclamation by walking in a group of three, Getto said.

Squire S. C. Lloyd was at hand in the office of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation a half mile away to hear the case. "He told me that if I would plead guilty he'd let me get away with a $10 fine," Getto reports. "But I know that this is their trick of trying to keep us out of the fight by scaring and fining us." When Getto persisted in his refusal, the charge was changed to unlawful assemblage, and $1,000 bail was set.

The case will be tried in the Washington County court.

FASCISTS JAIL POLISH WORKERS

WARSAW, Aug. 20.—The "amnesty" in Poland has brought no relief to the left political prisoners. On the other hand, the hunting and arrest of Communists continue.

The Kattowitz political police have made many arrests in Kattowitz and Konigshutte. Among the arrested there are said to be members of the Warsaw Central Committee of the Communist Party. In the home of a Communist assemblyman "incriminating material" was said to have been found. The prisoners are in the Kattowitz police prison.

For the Workers! Against the Capitalists!

Mathew Woll and That "Shipload of Gold."

Mathew Woll will be noted in history for his attainments as the theoretician of strike-breaking from within the labor movement. Not that Matty is himself a more adroit or brazen strikebreaker than Major George Berry, or John Lewis, or Bill Green—no, that would be saying too much. But Matty Woll is the theoretician; he is the souteneur with a philosophy of his trade. Where Lewis' program is carried out on the streets of a mining town by firing machine-gun bullets into the hearts of striking mine workers, Woll is the busybody of the pen and ink. He hands down to posterity the philosophy of such actions in imperishable newspaper statements.

A second phase of Mr. Woll's attainment in the art of class struggle against the working class is his marvelous capacity for discovering gold. Whenever a mass of workers, goaded to desperation by being sold out to scab-herding employers by Woll and his associates, their unions smashed, their members shot down on the streets or framed up and sent to prison by the open actions of "union" officials of the Woll gang—whenever a mass of workers under such conditions swats Mr. Woll in the eye, tells him to go to hell, and builds up a new union where the Woll gang destroyed the old,—then Mr. Woll sees, not stars, but gold! "Money apparently has come from Russia in large quantities to finance this work," says Mr. Woll, picking himself up and brushing off his $150 suit.

Let us glance at the latest statement of this little Knight of the Garter of American capitalism, about "money from Russia." In the first place, there is no such country as "Russia." There is the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics, a conquest of the greatest "strike" of all history, a revolutionary conquest of the working class, the Socialist Fatherland of all workers of the whole earth. In the second place, there would be nothing more in the nature of the international solidarity of the working class, if the Russian workers were to send money to the workers in strikes or other struggles against the employers in capitalist countries. In the case of the British general strike and coal strike, the trade unions of the Soviet Republics did send millions of dollars to help their British fellow workers. True, this is not possible except in the most extreme cases, because the workers of the Soviet Union have the great necessity to put every possible kopeck into the construction of socialist industry within the country they have conquered. While Mr. Woll lies when he says money from the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics is used in the struggles in which the needle trades workers, the miners and the textile workers have rubbed his and Sigman's and Batty's and Binns' and McMahon's and Lewis' noses in the dirt,—nevertheless there would be no objection in principle if the free working class of the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics were to send to the workers in any other country financial help to win their struggles. But it didn't happen.

The trouble with Mr. Woll's mind is a too ready way of attributing all actions to motives connected with the receipt of money—a subjective judgment. Mr. Woll does not understand why workers fight for their rights; he has been too long separated by a deep bureaucratic gulf from the working class, its ways of thought and its motives; he confuses their motives with his own.

But we can tell Mr. Woll that the severe beating that he and Lewis and Green and Sigman and Kaufman are getting is due to the determination of the workers in certain sections of industry that their labor movement shall not be destroyed.

Nor can Matty scare these workers with the cry of "dual unionism." The militant workers in several great industries are out to organize their class, and the dirty strike-breaking tactics of preserving a shell of semi-company unionism as a dog-in-the-manger to prevent the real organization of the workers, is not going to keep them from action.

We notice that Woll's latest appeal against the Communists is no longer to the workers, but to a section of employers. Speaking of what he calls "the changed attitude" of the Communists (which is merely the consistent application of long-established Communist principles to a present situation), Mr. Woll said to the capitalist press:

> "We welcome the changed attitude, because now we will know which AMERICAN EMPLOYERS are willing to countenance Moscow controlled labor organizations, financed by Soviet Russia and formed for the specific purpose of furthering the Moscow scheme of world revolution and dictatorship."

So the appeal is to "American employers" against the Communists. This is some improvement; it is the beginning of a recognition that he cannot successfully appeal to the workers. The workers in the mine fields, in the textile mills and in the needle trades are rapidly learning that the Workers (Communist Party is their one everlasting and fearless friend and leader, and some of them are even learning to "take to their bosoms the doctrines of Communism," as Mr. Woll would say. Mr. Woll's statement is a wild appeal to open-shop employers to come to his rescue against the Communists and the hundreds of thousands of workers whose unions he and Green and Lewis and Sigman have wrecked. His frantic plea is:

Since the "doctrines of Communism" include the confiscation of the mills, mines and factories from the employers, Mr. Woll means that the "open-shop employers" to whom he appeals cannot "take to their bosoms the Communist program." What Woll is really getting at is that the employers are going to be beaten by the workers unless the employers call in Mr. Woll's gang to help them. He tells the open-shop employers:

> "And the public (meaning the capitalist class) will learn the great service rendered by American labor (meaning the 'labor' bureaucracy) to our people (meaning the capitalist class) and the government."

Well, Mr. Woll, you ought to understand that these actions of yours are motive enough for beating you. We think that it may be the licking you are getting from the fur workers under the leadership of the Communist, Ben Gold, among others, that inspired your latest scream.

It must have been Ben Gold, not Soviet gold.

CAMPAIGN CORNER

There is no better way to start a column right than to tell a story. A sympathizer, who does as much newspaper free-lancing as he can find a market for, walked into this department a few days ago with a yarn that deserves to be enshrined in the pages of revolutionary history. While travelling uptown on the 3rd Ave. "L" he noticed a sign stretched across the front of the Republican Club on the corner of 22nd and the avenue. It called public attention to the two candidates of the G. O. P., Hoover and Curtis. Our friend noticed that the Kansas hay's name was spelled with two esses. (Strange interlude). Two

Our informant, being a newspaper man, is wide awake and did not hesitate to spend a nickel on the chance of getting a story. He hopped off the train and ambled into the Hoover headquarters. Approaching a young man who was holding down the club room, the news-seeker asked if the officers of the club were aware that the name of the vice presidential candidate was spelled with one s instead of with two. What could he learn about Mr. Curtis? "Dat's right," replied the young Pro Bono Publican, "de name is spelt right. Dat's de guy that owns de field where Guggenheim and Lindboig park their airplanes."

Astonished at the novelty of the reply, our friend proceeded to dig deeper into this mine of information. Was the young man aware that Mr. Curtis was a United States senator from Kansas and one of the outstanding politicians in the republican party? The young man appeared to be as irritated at this question as Gene Tunney when asked by a reporter if he reads Oscar Wilde. "No," he growled, "Curtiss is too big a man to have a job. I tell you dat he is de guy that owns de field where Lindboig and Guggenheim park their airplanes. He used to be an Indian when he was a boy, but he is no Indian any more. He is a republican."

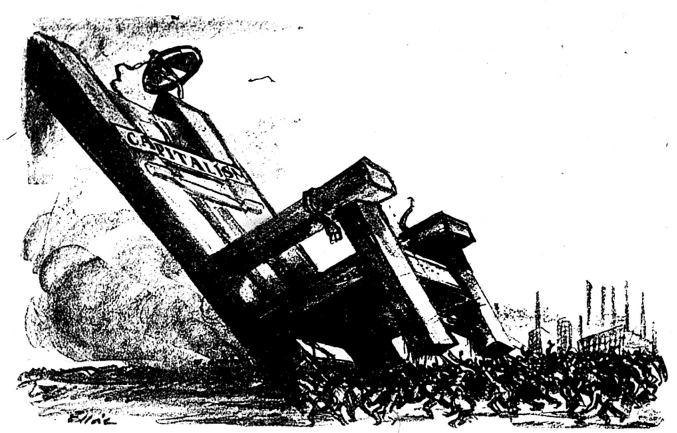
Our campaign managers are now getting down to business in real earnest. Up until now they were so busy organizing for the collection of signatures that they did not have time to let the national office know much of their activities. But now their typewriters are clicking musically, which makes things more pleasant for our readers and the publicity department.

REMEMBER SACCO AND VANZETTI!

By Fred Ellis



On August 22 the workers in all countries commemorate the first anniversary of the murder of Sacco and Vanzetti in the Massachusetts electric chair. The lessons of the Sacco-Vanzetti case must be brought home to the working class. Only by the overthrow of capitalism itself can the exploitation of the working class and the murder of its finest members be ended. The United States, the most powerful capitalist system in the world, is the land of the electric chair for the workers. Powerful as this system is, it can be overthrown.

Whose Are the "Scab" Unions?

Is It the National Organization Committee or Sigman-Schlesinger-Forward Clique

By LOUIS HYMAN.

The Sigman-Schlesinger clique and "The Forward" are shouting themselves hoarse that we have formed a Communist opposition scab union at the order of Moscow, where a policy of establishing opposition unions was decided upon. This would lead one to believe that up till now "The Forward" clique had recognized us as a regularly constituted labor union. It is a known fact, however, that immediately after Sigman had issued his edict expelling the locals and the Joint Board, representing 80 per cent of the membership, we were labelled by the Forward as the Communist scab union of 21st Street and Sigman with a few henchmen proceeded to organize opposition locals, which the Forward proclaimed as the real union. Now, when even those elements that originally sided with Sigman are coming over to the Joint Board and the bankruptcy of the clique is becoming more evident, the much abused bugaboo of "orders from Moscow" must be dragged by the clique, regardless of whether it has any bearing on the situation or not.

An examination of the facts will prove beyond a doubt that it is not we, but the clique that has organized an opposition scab union.

Worse Conditions.

Since 1910 the Schlesinger-Sigman-Forward clique has lorded it and held sole sway over our union. Thanks to its policies of treachery and corruption the cloak and dress industry was broken up into fragments. In place of the large inside shops innumerable contracting and sub-contracting shops have sprung into existence, where the workers are compelled to slave long hours for a starvation wage. The conditions of the workers grew steadily worse from season to season and from year to year.

In order to appease the hungry and dissatisfied workers the clique has presented demands to the bosses which it never seriously intended to put into effect. It called fake strikes and fake stoppages during which millions of dollars were squandered. After every strike and after every stoppage, "The Forward" loudly proclaimed that "Genosse" Schlesinger and "Genosse" Sigman had defeated the bosses and secured a great victory for the workers. Thru such continual "victories" the union was led to bankruptcy and the workers to a state of pauperism.

Create Jobs.

The "machine" in power was interested in but one thing—to create ever new jobs for its henchmen and increase their own salaries; to maintain a staff of officials and hirelings in order to build up a corrupt machine thru which to perpetuate themselves in power. Millions of dollars were extorted from the workers in dues and taxes to maintain this retinue.

The dissatisfied members could find no opportunity for expressing their opinion. The organs of the clique, "The Forward" and "The Justice" were merely the mouthpieces of the bureaucracy. To criticize an official in any other paper was considered a heinous crime for which members were expelled from the union.

The corruption and degeneracy of the clique reached such criminal proportions that it engendered bitter resentment on the part of the mass of the membership; so that, in spite of their autocratic and suppressive measures and their fraudulent practises in stealing elections, the clique lost control of the largest and most important locals, where the members elected the progressive and left wing elements.

"Expel" Membership.

Having lost control of the most important locals, the officials of the International, who are not elected by the members but at conventions by delegates from fake locals and by excluding the legally elected delegates from the large locals, succeeded in electing themselves to the highest offices of the International, perpetuating themselves in power against the wishes of the membership and using their official positions to expel the representatives elected by the workers, and even the workers themselves. In this manner, thru an autocratic edict, it was possible for a handful of jobholders to expel 90 per cent of the membership from the union. This small group of jobholders maintain that they are the union and that the tens of thousands of members are of no account and must submit to their dictates.

However, the workers have never submitted to these unprecedented and scandalous acts of the clique, and have demonstrated before the entire world that they will never recognize these self-crowned officials and will insist on their right to elect leaders in whom they can place their confidence.

Their Allies.

The International clique, together with "The Forward," held this protest of the membership in contempt and formed opposition locals nad an opposition Joint Board. With the aid of the bosses, elements of the underworld, the police, courts and methods of terrorism they tried to force the members to recognize their scab locals and scab Joint Board. They have even taken out injunctions against the Joint Board of Chicago and against the New York locals, representing thousands of members, prohibiting us from using the name of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union, while they, a handful of jobholders, together with "The Forward" clique, proclaimed themselves as the International.

The clique has formed an opposition union, has taken out injunctions prohibiting us from calling ourselves the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union, and now they have the audacity to claim that we have formed an opposition union under another name and that our union is the scab union. In connection with this, one recalls the story of the policeman, who after slugging a man unconscious with a heavy club, later arrested him for obstructing the sidewalk.

The Forward Clique.

If it is true that we are the scab union and they the real union, the bosses would surely not have forced their workers to go to their union. They label us "Sulkises" (Sulkis was a famous scab agent in the annals of the cloakmakers' union) and scab agents, but all the cloakmakers know that Sulkis had the full support of the bosses and now the Sigman-Schlesinger clique are getting this same support. For this reason alone it should be clear to everyone that not we but they are the Sulkises and scab agents.

This same gang, which is now raising such a hue and cry about opposition unions (and in their estimation an opposition union is synonymous with a scab union) has nevertheless time and again formed such union when it served their own interests. Is it not a well-known fact that Sigman formed an opposition union against the International years ago, at a time when the International was a real workers' union and not a company union, as it is now. And what about our saintly Mr. Shiplacoff? Was he not the manager of an opposition union (the Amalgamated)? And is it not common knowledge that the United Hebrew Trades with the aid of "The Forward" formed an opposition union last year against the Grocery Clerks' Union for the sole reason that the said union had sent in delegates to the United Hebrew Trades who were opponents of the Forward clique?

These most discredited elements, who maintain themselves with the support of the bosses, the courts and injunctions, who have betrayed the last strike of the cloakmakers, who have broken the union and have brought untold suffering to the tens of thousands of cloak and dressmakers, call us an opposition scab union and get themselves blue in the face shouting Sulkises and scab agents at us. But their hysterical cries will fall on deaf ears and will not mislead anyone. The meeting at the Stadium, attended by more than fifteen thousand workers, had demonstrated that thru bluffs and terror they cannot force the workers to belong to their company union.

Their fairy tales that the cloakmakers and dressmakers do not come to our meetings, that the cloak and dressmakers are with them, are recognized even by themselves as shameful lies, for had they really believed their own statements they would not have refused to accept our challenge to submit the issues of the struggle to a referendum vote under the supervision of an impartial committee. Are not their statements, to the effect that they are fighting against a Communist dictatorship which we supposedly want to foist on the union, the greatest swindle since they themselves have refused and are afraid to submit the matter to the members when we, who are supposed to be the Communist dictators, have demanded it and have fought for it all along? If they were really fighting against the Communist dictatorship and democracy they would not oppose a democratic and legal manner of electing officers under the supervision of an impartial committee. Their refusal to let the members decide on the struggle was actuated by the knowledge that through democratic, constitutional and legal methods they could never remain in the union because the membership will never elect insurance and real estate agents as their leaders.

Mass Movement.

We are not building a Communist Union, as "The Forward" would have it, but a union of all cloak and dressmakers, regardless of their opinions, race or color. In the shop the boss does not make distinctions between workers who are left or right, socialist or Communist, Jews or Italians; there are no privileged individuals there; they are all equally exploited by the boss. In the same way, if the union is to be strong enough to curb the bosses' appetite for profits and improve the conditions of the workers, the union cannot make any discriminative laws against any worker of the trade, irrespective of his political opinions or party affiliations. Exception and persecution laws against one part of the membership mean discrimination against all members.

A leadership which is truly representative of the members, does not have to employ the terroristic methods employed by the Sigman-Schlesinger clique. The discriminative laws and pogroms, thru which the Sigman-Schlesinger clique strove to maintain itself in power, are an open confession of their total demoralization as labor leaders, and thru it they have sown the seeds of their own destruction.

The great mass of the cloak and dressmakers pay no heed to the International clique which hurls accusations of "Sulkises" and "scab agents" at us in its despair. The workers know that we are building a union which will give the members the fullest possibilities and fullest rights to express their opinion and exercise their control over it. They know that we are building a union of cloak and dressmakers which will not be controlled by a clique, where the cloak and dressmakers will be sole rulers, making its laws, electing its officers and deciding upon its policies.

WOMEN WORKERS AND ELECTIONS OF 1928

By REBECCA GRECHT

The Workers (Communist) Party must regard as one of its most important tasks in the coming elections the campaign to win the allegiance of the workingclass women, who constitute a potential and actual political force of tremendous significance in the revolutionary movement. Our Party must expose the capitalist parties and the meaning of their present election manoeuvres not only as concerns the women workers, but in relation to the entire working class of which women are a part. We must expose also the treachery of the petty-bourgeois socialist party, which in its national platform has not a single word to say about the working women.

All possible support must be rallied for the Communist program and Communist candidates among women workers in organized and unorganized shops and in trade unions, and among workingclass housewives and mothers in every city. Throughout the country every left wing progressive organization must mobilize its women members and the wives of its male members for the Communist election campaign.

So, also, must the United Councils of Working Women, and in New York, Detroit, Boston, Chicago, the Working Women's Federations, be drawn into the movement to make the working women more effective participants in the struggle against capitalism—a struggle which can express itself in the elections only in the support of the Workers (Communist) Party.

To vote for capitalist candidates means, for the women workers, to vote for long hours, starvation wages, the continuation of the exploitation and oppression of the working class.

To vote for the Communist standard bearers means to support the immediate fight for adequate protection and better conditions for working women.

More than that—it means to support the struggle for the abolition of the capitalist system. For only a Communist society can lift the double burden of housekeeping and factory work from the woman of the working class, and give her full freedom and equality.

Told You So

THERE are several angles to this business of "outlawing" war—a business in which our good man Kellogg is directing,—that should be taken note of by husky young men whose physiques are entitled to favorable consideration by draft board doctors when the next "war to end war" breaks out. Practically all the liberals and pacifists have swallowed the Kellogg treaty without a grimace. Perhaps, because it is pre-war stuff—pre the next war. Radicals however are not accustomed to take the anti-war maneuvers of the imperialists seriously, except in the light of war preparations.

HOW can any intelligent and honest person believe that a country that is now at war with Nicaragua for no reason in the world except that the workers and peasants of Nicaragua insist on defending themselves against Wall Street exploitation, honestly aim to abolish war as a means of settling international disputes? Yet the papers are deluged with hokum in favor of this fake treaty. Norman Thomas the socialist and Adolph Ochs the multi-millionaire owner of the New York Times are supporting Kellogg's war maneuver under the guise of peace

THE truth is that this Kellogg treaty is a maneuver against the League of Nations which is right now in England's vest pocket. And being a maneuver against the league it is a maneuver against England. Several straws show which way the winds of the next war are blowing. For instance, Kellogg is said to be preparing an arbitration pact with Egypt. The British foreign office has raised its monocle and looked severely in the general direction of Washington. What are the American blighters up to? Fawney dealing with a country which is under the "protection" of the Mother Country! The British are jolly well willing to look after Egyptian interests, that is the interests of Britain's capitalists in Egypt.

THIS is rather queer business for Mr. Kellogg to engage in if he is so anxious to avoid war. Would Mr. Kellogg look with an unconcerned eye on the intrusion of the British government into the affairs of Nicaragua which the American government is willing to chaperon with marines? It would seem to an innocent bystander that these two imperialist powers are poaching on each other and I would not be a bit surprised to see American newspapers that uphold the rape of Nicaragua protest against the rape of Egypt by the British.

IT IS also reported that Kellogg intends to pay a visit to Ireland after he signs the anti-war pact in Paris. If the present plans carry thru "Nervous Nellie" will be transported to the Free State on a United States naval vessel. Why this sudden regard for Ireland on the part of a man, who while ambassador to the Court of Saint James, outdid the most extreme tory jingo in his expressed admiration for the British Empire? Because a pro-United States Ireland in the almost inevitable war between Great Britain and the United States would be a convenient landing place for American submarines and a base of operations against England. The pacifists should read the news more carefully unless they wish to be wilfully blind

IN THE by-elections in Aberdeen Scotland, the Communist candidate ran ahead of the Liberals. A Laborite won by a large majority. This is the first time that the Communist Party of Great Britain ran a candidate in opposition to the official Labor Party ticket. The British Labor Party is saturated with imperialism. The leaders of the parliamentary labor party are always invited to royal functions. Ramsay MacDonald, speaking in Canada last week declared that the British Labor Party is not a class party but a party of intellectuals.

A NEW YORK tabloid got nicely taken in, it appears on the "Siamese Twins" story. It was reported that one of the girls was in love and wished to be surgically separated from her sister so that she could marry. Bernarr MacFadden, the big muscle and mush man immediately called his Graphic staff together and got his art editor to have them pose for composographs of the twins, the surgeons, the nurses and the surgical instruments. It now develops that the whole business was a clever publicity stunt and some press agent is laughing quietly and contemplating his share of the contract money, the twins being showered with offers to appear in vaudeville.

THOMAS LAMONT, just to show that there are still a few left in Wall Street who have not come out for Al Smith, threw his boodle into Herbert Hoover's campaign chest. Lamont voted for John D. Davis in 1924, but this time he will cast his ballot for Herbert. This is additional proof that the republican and democratic parties are as closely allied economically as the Siamese twins.

FIGHT CAPITALIST "JUSTICE," RED AID URGES ON SACCO MEMORIAL

On the first anniversary of the execution of Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti, the Executive Committee of the International Red Aid has issued a call to the world workers to intensify their fight against the rapacious white terror.

"A year has passed," says the appeal, "since the class justice of the American bourgeoisie brutally murdered Sacco and Vanzetti despite the storm of protests all over the world and the passionate indignation of the workers everywhere and despite the fact that they were both clearly innocent of the crimes with which they were charged.

"By this bloody act of vengeance the bourgeoisie proved once again to the masses that it was prepared for all crime and all bloodshed in its struggle against the revolutionary movement."

"The nearer the approach of the danger of a new imperialist war and intervention against the Soviet Union which the international bourgeoisie is preparing, the more bitter and brutal grows the international struggle against the workers' and peasants' movement, the more ruthless grow the methods used to smash the revolutionary movement, the more furious grows the hatred of the bourgeoisie against the revolutionary advance guard of the workers and peasants."

In order to make the path clearer and easier for its imperialist plans, the statement says, the master class intends first of all to crush out the vitality of the revolutionary movement, to break the resistance of the workers and peasants once and for all.

"The bloody violence and the mass executions in China, the white terror in India and Indonesia, the bestial sentences, the murders and tortures in fascist Italy, the persecutions and white terror in Poland, Rumania, Bulgaria and in the so-called democratic countries like Great Britain, France and Germany, show all too clearly that the bourgeoisie is adopting the most brutal and ruthless methods at its disposal in its struggle against the revolutionary movement."

The appeal concludes:

"Workers! Do not forget the murder of Sacco and Vanzetti! Remember the thousands of murdered victims of the white terror in China!

"Remember the hundreds of thousands of class war prisoners who are still in the torture chambers of the bourgeoisie!

"Demand the abolition of the prison regime! Demand the abolition of torture as a weapon against the working class!

"Demand the abolition of the Exceptional Laws and the Special Tribunals against the working class! Demand the release of all class war prisoners! American workers, join the International Labor Defense. Demand the release of Mooney and Billings."

SACCO-VANZETTI DEMONSTRATION ON UNION SQ. TODAY

TWO NEGROES ON WORKERS PARTY NEBRASKA TICKET

Davis, Albert Named at Ratification Convention

Ratify Party Platform

With the endorsement of Foster and Gitlow, the nomination of eight electors and a complete state ticket, the Workers (Communist) Party concluded a ratification convention in Omaha, Nebraska, on Aug. 19 which set a new mark for the Party in that state and aroused the enthusiasm of the delegates and sympathizers, according to a telegram from Roy Stephans, special organizer in Nebraska.

An outstanding feature of the convention was the nomination of two Negroes on the state ticket.

Unanimous Acceptance.

The following nominations were made and unanimously accepted: Edward L. Schlekau of South Omaha for Governor; W. E. Davis, a Negro, for Lieutenant-Governor; Dole Albert, a Negro, for Secretary of State, Charles. Dayton, Sioux City, for auditor: and Roy Stephens, Congressman, for the second district.

In accepting the nomination for Lieutenant-Governor, Davis declared that the Party shows that it champions the cause of the Negroes by

NATIONAL SACCO VANZETTI MEETS

Demonstrations Thru-out Country

Hundreds of thousands of workers will meet today in mass demonstrations throughout the United States to honor the memories of the two labor martyrs, Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti, who were legally murdered a year ago today by the labor hating and reactionary courts of American big business, and to pledge themselves to the destruction of the capitalist system that made the murders possible.

The meetings, in addition to reaffirming the mass protest against the killing of Sacco and Vanzetti, will be turned into fiery protests against the incarceration of Tom Mooney, Warren K. Billings, and the Centralia prisoners.

SAY MEXICAN NUN LED ASSASSINS

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 21 (UP). —The nun, Maria De La Concepcion, held with a number of other suspects in connection with the assassination of President-elect Alvaro Obregon, was the leader of plots to kill both Obregon and President Calles many months before the actual crime, according to a police statement issued tonight.

The arrests of seven women and five men alleged to have been associated in plotting the assassinations, revealed the existence of a group which, besides seeking the death of political leaders, was responsible for placing bombs in both the chamber of deputies and Obregon headquarters, police charged.

WHITING GIVEN COMMERCE POST

Anti-Union Paper Boss Picked by Coolidge

(By United Press)

SUPERIOR, Wis., Aug. 21.—President Coolidge today accepted the resignation of Herbert Hoover as Secretary of Commerce and appointed William F. Whiting of Holyoke, Mass., as the new secretary.

The oath of office was administered at Coolidge's private office here by court attaches of Superior. Whiting arrived here early today to hold a conference with Coolidge.

William W. Whiting, new secretary of Commerce to succeed Herbert Hoover, is president of the Whiting Paper Company of Holyoke, and a notorious union-hater. Recently his corporation merged with the American Writing Paper Company, then the largest organization of its kind in the world. Combined, they own many score of open shop mills thruout the United States and Canada.

HILLMAN THUGS ASSAIL WORKER

Attack Tailor While at Work in Shop

Alarmed at the rapidly growing sentiment among the workers against paying dues to the officialdom of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers Union because of their resentment at the transformation of their once powerful organization into a company union, the machine in control decided to begin a new form of terror by beating up workers while they are at work in the shop.

Workers in the big plant of William T. Goldman, manufacturer of GGG men's clothing, had told Hillman's dues collectors that they felt reluctant to pay dues to an organization that has fast become an efficiency instrument of the employers, the right wing business agent, Tony Frunzi of Local 161, came up to this factory yesterday with a gang of thugs and viciously assaulted Abraham Jacobs, a lapel maker, who though criticizing the union officialdom nevertheless never advocated non-payment of dues.

After crashing a workers' mouth with a bunt weapon that knocked out three teeth and cut his lip, one of the assailants, J. Schneider, member of the executive board of Local 161, reached his hand into the prostrate worker's pockets and emptied them of about $44 he had there in pay just received.

Threatening similar treatment to all those who oppose the dictates of the machine in control the squad of underworld officials left the factory. Jacobs was later treated by an ambulance from St. Catherine's Hospital. The doctor in closing the torn lip was compelled to take four stitches.

"GOOD WILL" FLIGHT

GUATEMALA CITY, Guatemala, Aug. 21 (UP).—Lieutenant-Colonel Roberto Fierro, who started from Havana this morning on a non-stop flight here as the first leg of his good-will flight around Central America, is reported to have landed at Belize, capital of British Honduras, at 1:05 p. m., due to bad weather.

HUGE USSR OIL EXPORT

Four Times as Much as Under Czar

MOSCOW, Aug. 21 (UP).—As an indication of the enormous expansion of the Petroleum Industry in the Soviet Union may be cited the fact that for the three months May to July exports almost equaled the total for the entire year of 1913.

It is announced here that 855,000 tons of oil and oil products were exported in those three months. That is 61 per cent more than in the corresponding quarter last year. Exports for the nine months of the Russian fiscal year, beginning November 1, amounted to 1,951,500 tons, or 40 per cent. More than last year, and twice the amount exported in the same period of 1925-26.

Steel, Railroad and Textile Workers Strike in India

CALCUTTA AND BOMBAY TIED UP BY HUGE STRIKE

Troops in North Meet Peasant Resistance on Roads

Government Alarmed

(By United Press.)

MOSCOW, Aug. 21 (UP).—Twenty-five thousand rubles, sent for the relief of striking railroad workers in India by the Railwaymen's Union of the Soviet Union, have been returned by the bank in Calcutta, through whom the transfer was to have been made.

The Soviet press was inclined to doubt the bank's explanation that the All-Indian Federation of Railroad Workers refused to accept the gift. The "Evening Moscow," in a satirical tirade, charged that the bank held up the money transfer to hurt the Indian strikers. It claims that the federation denies having refused the money.

TRAINMEN READY FOR STRIKE CALL

Rank and File May Act Despite Officials

CLEVELAND, O., Aug. 21 (UP)—Members of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen on lines west of Chicago whose wage increase demands were recently rejected, are voting heavily to strike, A. F. Whitney, Brotherhood president, said here today.

The strike vote was ordered last week after the collapse of a conference in Chicago at which the Brotherhood rejected a wage increase offer with the provision that certain working rules be abolished.

CHICAGO, Ill., Aug. 21.—Informed labor leaders here declared that there is a widespread sentiment among rank and file trainmen on the western lines for strike action.

SHOE WORKERS ISSUE APPEAL

Urge the Building of Strong Union

A mobilization call to all shoe workers of Greater New York and vicinity was issued yesterday by the Joint Council of the Independent Shoe Workers' Union appealing to these workers to unite for the task of building a powerful and militant Shoe Workers' Union in the city.

The appeal calls attention to the recent Unity Conference called at the initiative of the workers of the S. Liberman shop, the purpose of which was to unify the various actions of the shoe workers.

The unity committee has now completed its work, the statement declares. The place for every worker is now within the ranks of the union.

One Year Ago: Sacco, Vanzetti Manacled After Sentence

After Judge Webster Thayer, agent of the Massachusetts capitalists, had completed his job for them with the sentence of death passed upon Sacco and Vanzetti, the two workers were led out of the Dedham courthouse manacled to detectives.

INTENSIFY RED WEEK CAMPAIGN

Choice of Maihold by G. O. P. Significant

Two events of utmost importance were ushered into the political arena on Monday; the beginning of the Red Week financial drive of the Workers (Communist) Party in New York, and the appointment of H. Edmund Machold as chairman of the republican state committee. The latter, while it has no revolutionary import, is significant of the support of Hoover and the republican state ticket by the power interests and their $11,000,000,000 of propaganda money.

While the workers of New York—that portion which is class-conscious—do not expect the total of their contributions to the Communist Campaign Fund to compete with the huge sums being showered into the laps of the capitalist candidates by public utilities and munitions benefactors, the intensity of the Red Week campaign will in no degree be lessened.

Labor-Hating G. O. P.

The appointment of H. Edmund Machold to the republican state chairmanship, for a pertinent example, brings to mind the number of power companies Machold controls, and it is rather safe to predict comfortable "presents" from the interlocking directorateships of

EXPEL MILITANT FROM CAP UNION

UnderworldMarshalled by Chicago Officials

CHICAGO, Aug. 21.—Marshaling all their underworld characters, the reactionary officials of the Chicago Capmakers' Local 5 and the heads of the right wing Chicago Hebrew Trades, came down to a membership meeting of the local Monday night, and after creating an atmosphere of terror railroaded through a measure expelling from union membership Morris Feingold, a leader of the left wing in the union and until recently a general field organizer.

A mass meeting of protest against these terrorist methods of retaining control of the union will be held this Thursday evening, August 23, in the Capitol building, 159 N. State St., Room 803, leaders of the progressive forces in the organization declared this afternoon.

BERLIN, Aug. 21.—Representatives from all parts of the world consolidated their fight against imperialism at the meeting of the Executive Committee of the Anti-Imperialist League, which opened its sessions here on Saturday. The position of the Second International on the colonial independence movements was severely criticized.

After Muenzenberg made the Secretariat report and Saklatvala, Maxton, Ledebour and Lessing discussed it, Chattopadyaya reported on the Indian situation, Bridgemann on Britain, Vanmunster on Holland and Madame Drevet on France. Speaking for the English delegation Maxton declared himself in favor of absolute independence for India.

EXPECT RECORD CROWD TO HONOR HEROIC MARTYRS

Fifty Labor Unions; Many Speakers to Participate

1,000 Police on Guard

One of the largest demonstrations ever held by the workers of Greater New York is expected to take place this afternoon at 5 p. m. on the anniversary of the murder of Sacco and Vanzetti who one year ago today fell victims to the rapaciousness and vengeance of American capitalism. From every section of the city and its outlying districts members of the rising working class in the interest of which the two labor martyrs laid down their lives will journey to the demonstration.

Wide Representation.

More than 50 labor unions have already signified their intention of being represented. Forty-seven nationally known speakers will address the vast throng from four specially constructed platforms. The speaking stands will be draped in red and black, flowers will be banked at the foot of the center platform and large pictures of the two martyrs will decorate each stand.

From police headquarters, it was learned, that more than 1,000 uniformed and plain clothes cops will be on hand to see that "order" is preserved. The meeting, however, is expected to have all the surge and fire which marked last year's Sacco-Vanzetti demonstration. The usual attempt is being made by the police to create the impression that violence may occur.

Thousands To Participate.

Word was received yesterday at the International Labor Defense headquarters that many fraternal organizations and labor units will assemble at their respective headquarters and will march in mass formation to the scene of the demonstration. All organizations affiliated with the Working Women's Federation will meet at the Labor Temple at 5 p. m. and march in a body to Union Square. They will carry banners and slogans and will be but one of the colorful incidents in the monster demonstration.

Telegrams, letters and messages still continue to pour into the office of the New York section of the I. L. D. pledging support from the various fraternal and labor organizations. Unions and clubs which will take part in the huge meeting are as follows:

Unions To Be Present.

United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners, Local 1090; International Seamen's Union; Window Cleaners' Protective Union, Local 8; Paper Box Makers' Union; Architectural Iron and Bronze Workers' Union; United Council of Working Class Women; Amalgamated Food Workers of America; Furriers' Union; International Ladies' Garment Workers, Locals 22 and 43; twenty-seven branches of the Workmen's Circle; Suit Case, Bag and Portfolio Makers' Union; Hand Millinery Workers' Union, Local 43; Shoe and Slipper Workers' Union; Workers (Communist) Party, Young Workers (Communist) League; Young Pioneers of America; 45 branches of the New York section of the International Labor Defense, under whose aus-

Miners Prepare for Big Pittsburgh Convention to Build a New and Militant Union

ALL DISTRICTS SEND DELEGATES TO HUGE MEET

Local After Local Pledges Support

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 21.—Reports are now coming in steadily of the increasing sentiment among miners in all districts for the building of the new union and the sending of delegates to the Pittsburgh convention which begins September 9, according to an announcement made by the National Arrangements Committee for a new miners' union.

"Realizing that the first job facing every progressive miner right now is the election of delegates to the coming convention," the statement says, "hundreds of militants have thrown themselves into the work. Mining camps are more busy with preparations than at any time since the famous April 1 conference called by the Save-the-Union Committee.

"District 5 was whipped into line Friday, August 19, at a district conference in Walton Hall. Fifty leading progressives came together to report on work actually done and make final plans for covering the district, electing delegates, affiliating with the National Miners' Convention Arrangements Committee, and putting a dues card in the hands of every miner who is interested in building an honest union.

"Representatives at the conference proved that they have been on the job. Delegates have already been elected in dozens of locals on the basis of one for every local and an additional delegate for every hundred members.

"Mike Stenovich, of Renton, Pa., reported that he and many other organizers under Vincent Kemenovitch's direction are organizing local after local in the unorganized fields of Pennsylvania. Westmoreland, Somersett, Fayette and Green counties are all lined up for the big job of organizing one militant union which will fight for every miner in the country."

SOVIET STATION IN ARCTIC REGION

Scientists Push Plans for Base

MOSCOW, Aug. 21 (UP).—Soviet scientists are pushing the project of establishing a series of permanent scientific stations in the Arctic regions.

The scheme, as outlined here, contemplates formation of an international aero-Arctic society, financed by all the nations bordering on the Arctic, to carry on this work.

In a signed article published in a local newspaper the prominent academician, Professor A. N. Fersman said that until permanent stations are established at Spitzbergen, Nova Semyla, Franz Joseph Land and other points, Arctic exploration will involve tragedies such as followed General Umberto Nobile's efforts.

these power companies to the republican party of Hoover, the protege of the public utilities interests. Smith, Hoover Against Workers.

That the power interests are playing both ends against the middle is evident from the support given by Owen D. Young, president of the General Electric Co., to Smith, the anti-labor candidate of the democratic party.

Just as financial support is the most valuable in the capitalist campaigns, money is also needed for the campaign of the Workers (Communist) Party. Speakers' expenses must be paid, tons of literature must be printed and distributed. All workers are urged to collect and donate for the Communist Campaign Fund during Red Week, which ends August 28, and to participate in the Tag Days of next Saturday and Sunday.

SURVEY EXPOSES MINE CONDITIONS

Starvation Brings New Menace

A medical survey of twenty mining towns where the strike has been in progress sixteen months indicates that the dread Pellagria and beri beri may be expected if the lack of essential foods continues. This survey is based upon a personal investigation made by George A. Parker, M. D.

Maternity cases, Dr. Parker said, lack suitable attention. Sometimes they are conducted with the aid of neighboring women hastily summoned. Often attempts to obtain medical aid have proved unavailing, he asserted, due to financial handicaps. General medical attention is limited, since miners lack funds to pay for physicians or medicines.

Children's ailments uncared for listed in the report, are enlarged glands, intestinal disturbances, subacute and chronic disorders, tonsils, etc.

Hospitals Overcrowded.

The hospitalization available is totally inadequate, the survey indicates. The free ward at the Miners' hospital in Spangler is overcrowded. They are no other free wards or clinics in the entire district. Should an epidemic break out, the results would be extremely dangerous, contributing markedly to an increased per cent in fatalities. The lowered vitality of the miners and their families brought about by inadequate nourishment and living conditions, life in the barracks, the approach of cold and inclement weather, and the opening of school are listed as factors influencing the spread of epidemics.

To combat this situation, Dr. Parker whose survey was conducted under the auspices of the Emergency for Miners Relief, proposes organized medical relief which would give especial consideration to maternity cases, children's diseases and incipient epidemics.

A detailed program for clinics to be conducted two days a week in Barnesboro and Portage, reserving the remainder of the time for more distant and smaller settlements, as well as whatever emergencies might present themselves. Cooperation from hospitals and school boards to obtain rooms for urgent cases, and surveys of children's health, is also outlined. The cost of the project is estimated at $50 a week for doctor's salary and personal expenses, and $5,000 for medical supplies, hospitalization, etc., for a four months period.

Official Committee Active.

Meanwhile, the National Miners Relief Committee is straining its resources to send the minimum necessities to as many camps as possible, to fight off starvation and disease, where the miners have not yet returned to work.

The black-listing of local leaders, the aftermath of lost strikes, is already in effect starving the militant miners out of the industry. In numerous camps, the miners are banding together, demanding that everybody be employed together. In this way, the blacklist has been effectively eliminated in numerous mines.

TORNADO KILLS 7 IN MINNESOTA

AUSTIN, Minn., Aug. 21 (UP).—An army of relief workers today invaded the path of the destructive tornado which late yesterday swept southern Minnesota and northern Iowa, causing at least eight deaths and damage estimated at $1,500,000.

Five persons were injured fatally in Austin and the damage was estimated today at more than $500,000.

of the numerous gangsters, arrogantly announced the decision of the executive board to expel Feingold and declared that no discussion would be permitted. Regardless of the union constitution, he said, Feingold stands expelled.

Thugs, rallied by the right wing forces in Chicago, openly threatened the lives of many protesting members. When Feingold himself arose to speak, in defiance of the bureaucrats' orders, he was curtly ordered to shut up and sit down.

Thugs Create Terror.

United Hebrew Trades leaders then took the floor and spoke cynically of the "so-called rights of the membership," declaring that they will stop at nothing to halt any probable protests.

Although many of the members at the meeting were silenced by the threatening terror, they nevertheless manifested bitter protest at these fascist methods and declared their intention of fighting against it.

The fight against the right wing disrupters and agents of the employers will be begun in earnest at the protest meeting, progressive leaders declared.

in the name of the Central Committee and the Moscow Committee of the Young Communist League of the Soviet Union.

Bukharin, greeted with storms of applause, then addressed the Congress.

"The Fifth Congress of the Young Communist International", he said, "is opening at a moment when the war danger is extremely great, and it is your task, therefore, to make all efforts to organize the resistance of the proletariat against the imperialists who would destroy the workers and peasants state of the Soviet Union."

In conclusion, Bukharin praised the great deeds of the Chinese Youth during the Canton insurrection and appealed to the Communist youth to struggle with all their strength for the proletarian revolution.

Welcomes Congress.

After immense applause for Bukharin, representatives of the Moscow youth spoke. Smith answered in the name of the Praesidium. Delegates of the Kim division then welcomed the Congress amidst further display of enthusiasm. Madame Krupskaya, widow of Lenin, was greeted with a minute long ovation when she delivered her speech of welcome.

After Thaelmann had finished his greeting to the Congress, the Pioneers marched in the hall and thirteen-year-old Avkeyeitvch welcomed the Congress in their name.

Elect Secretariat.

Other speeches were made by Cachin, France; Liu Wu Tchu, China; Phillips and Rosseginol. In the midst of these speeches, the International delegation of the Spartakiad entered the hall.

Ferrat, of Italy, answered the speeches on behalf of the members of the Praesidium.

After the Secretariat and the Commissions had been elected, every one present rose and sang the International and the "Young Guard" under the guidance of the famous conductor-composer, Degeyter.

LABOR DEFENSE AIDS STRIKERS

Bails Out Arrested Steel Pickets

CANTON, Ohio, Aug. 21.—The latest maneuver of the officials of the Central Alloy Steel Corporation to keep its strikers off the picket lines by imposing exorbitant bail on them has resulted in the first participation of the International Labor Defense in the steel strike and the complete rout of the corporation.

The initial trial of the Labor Defense organization came last Friday night with the arrest of three strikers by police, who hailed them to the station house because "they were suspicious." A strikebreaker said that he was afraid they were going to beat him.

At first the judge ordered them charged and set bail at $150. Following a conversation with a company guard, however, he immediately raised the bond to $1,500.

The International Labor Defense then stepped into the case and secured bail for the strikers, who were released, going straight from the jail to their strike meeting. The incident has caused the greatest enthusiasm among the steel strikers.

Fifteen strikers have been arrested to date by the police and held on charges of "suspicion" or others more serious involving deportation proceedings. The International Labor Defense, however, has announced its determination to fight to the last ditch the courts controlled by the steel corporation.

The Cleveland office of the International Labor Defense has pledged itself to defend every striker and requests its friends to help by sending contributions to the Cleveland District Office, Room 306, 226 West Superior Ave., Cleveland, Ohio.

faces the demonstration has been arranged.

Rose Sacco To Attend.

It is expected that Rose Sacco, widow of the murdered revolutionist will attend the Union Square meeting. Greco and Carrillo, who narrowly escaped a death similar to the ones suffered by Sacco and Vanzetti, will also attend the demonstration. It will be remembered that Greco and Carrillo were saved from electrocution when the frame-up against them was exposed by the International Labor Defense.

Among the speakers who will address the meeting are:

Scott Nearing, Communist lecturer and economist; Robert Minor, editor of the Daily Worker; Moissaye J. Olgin, editor of the Hammer; John J. Ballam, acting District 2 organizer of the Workers Party; Ben Gold, manager of the Furriers' Joint Board; Bert Miller, organization secretary District 2, Workers Party; Meilech Epstein, editor of the Freiheit; Richard B. Moore, secretary of the Negro Labor Congress; Carlo Tresca, editor of Il Martello, Bishop Paul Jones of the Fellowship of Reconciliation and many other speakers representing Communist, anarchist, labor and fraternal organizations. There will also be speakers from the Young Workers (Communist) League, from the International Labor Defense and from many other organizations.

WORKERS BEGIN TO ANSWER CALL OF CHINA UNIONS

Philadelphia, Seattle Committees Formed

Increased activity throughout the United States on behalf of the aid of the Chinese labor unions was indicated yesterday through the receipt at the office of the Committee to Aid the Chinese Trade Unions of communications from several big cities throughout the country announcing the formation and preparations for the formation of other committees, the purpose of which will be the raising of funds for the relief of the suppressed Chinese trade unionists.

Thus far, a beginning of several hundred dollars has been realized by the Committee. These funds were raised mainly through the efforts of those who participated in the Tag Day of two Sundays ago. However, the collection lists continue to be sent out, and the money raised in this manner will probably start coming in by the end of this week. The complete returns of the Tag Day have also not been turned in, and the definite sum collected during that day is still a matter of speculation.

Philadelphia Committee.

The communication from Philadelphia, received yesterday at the office of the Committee, says that "a Conference to aid the Chinese Trade Unions has been organized in Philadelphia." This conference, the communication states, will enlist the aid of many labor and fraternal organizations in the city. At a recent picnic held here, a Chinese speaker described the terrorism and persecution of the Chinese trade unionists by the reactionary Kuomintang Nanking government. After the speech, a collection was held among the people present, and the money will be sent immediately to the Committee to aid the Chinese Trade Unions in New York, thence to be sent to China. Besides this, house to house collections and mass meetings are being planned in Philadelphia, both of which are expected to net considerable sums for the Chinese worker and peasant relief.

SACCO LEAFLET GIVERS JAILED

Announced Meeting in Union Square

Two workers, Louis Objiler and Helen Kass were arrested yesterday afternoon at 37th St. and 5th Ave., for distributing leaflets announcing the Sacco-Vanzetti memorial meeting to be held today on Union Sq.

The workers were distributing leaflets from a truck which was covered with signs announcing the meeting, when police ordered them to stop and arrested them immediately.

They were taken to the 30th Street Police Station and released under $500 bail each on the charge of "disorderly conduct." The International Labor Defense, New York section, provided the bail, and the I. L. D. lawyer, Buitenkamp, will defend the workers when they appear tomorrow morning at 9 a. m. at the Jefferson Market Court.

NEARING TO BE IN EXTENSIVE DRIVE IN NEW JERSEY

Will Expose Wall St. Control of State

The New Jersey Workers (Communist) Party campaign committee will invade the enemies' territory when Scott Nearing, the Party's candidate for governor, appears in Perth Amboy on the 26th of August, Sunday night. This city is the home of Morgan F. Larson, the candidate for big business on the republican ticket.

Nearing will expose the Wall Street domination of the two old party candidates, Hoover and Smith and at the same time expose the control of the corporations over the state politics. He will stress the investigations of Hudson county and Atlantic county.

Nearing will continue his itinerary then to Jersey City and speak in the home town of Mayor Hague; from there he will appear in Newark on the 30th and in Passaic on the 31st of August. Next Nearing will come back to Bayonne, the Standard Oil center, on the first of September; in Elizabeth on the 4th and wind up in Paterson on the 5th of the month.

NOVEMBER 7—On the seoond anniversary of the Bolshevik Revolution, agents of the Department of Justice, under instructions from A. Mitchell Palmer, attorney general, swooped down on Communist meetings, workers clubs, societies, etc., and jailed hundreds of workers as a first step in the campaign of "red raids."

MARCH (During first week)—Andrea Salsedo, Brooklyn printer, is arrested for radical activities. Held incommunicado in a secret detention room of the Department of Justice in Park Row, New York.

MAY 2 — Bartolomeo Vanzetti comes to New York as a representative of the Galliani anarchist group in New England to arrange for legal defense for Salsedo. They had learned that he was being subjected to third-degree tortures by the department of Justice.

MAY 3—The body of Salsedo is found crushed on the sidewalk before the Park Row building of the Department of Justice. The impact had crushed it to a pulp. It is now generally agreed that Salzedo was either pushed from the 14th floor of the building or threw himself out when he could endure the torture of the Department of Justice agents no longer.

MAY 5—Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti are arrested on a street car while going from West Bridgewater to Brockton, Mass., while engaged in arranging protest meetings among Italian workers of the community following the death of Salsedo.

AUGUST 16—Vanzetti is charged with attempteing to rob a cashier in Bridgewater on December 24, 1919, and is sentenced to prison for from 12 to 15 years by Judge Thayer in Plymouth.

SEPTEMBER 11—Sacco and Vanzetti are accused of being the chief participants in the murder that occurred in South Braintree on April 15, 1920, where, near the shoe factory of Slater and Morrill Co., Ferdinand Parmenter and his guard, Alexander Berardelli, were killed. The $15,000 payroll in their possession had been stolen.

MAY 31—Sacco and Vanzetti are brought to trial in Dedham, Mass., again before Judge Thayer. They are indicted on a charge of first degree murder.

JULY 14—After five hours, the jury returns a verdict of guilty of murder in the first degree against Sacco and Vanzetti.

OCTOBER 12—The workers of Paris conduct a huge protest demonstration against the verdict. Twenty workers are wounded when the demonstration is broken up by the police. (It is impossible here to list the tens of thousands of meetings, demonstrations, strikes, etc., that took place in every corner of the world in solidarity with the two martyrs.)

OCTOBER 30—Workers in Cuba, in a demonstration before the American consulate, demand the release of Sacco and Vanzetti.

JANUARY 1—The defense announces that it is in possession of new evidence to prove the innocence of Sacco and Vanzetti.

MARCH 23—The workers of Sofia, Bulgaria, warn the American embassy that they will not remain silent if the American capitalist class determines to murder Sacco and Vanzetti.

FEBRUARY 16—Sacco begins a hunger strike in the Norfolk County Jail which lasts 30 days.

OCTOBER 1—Judge Thayer denies five motions of the defense to challenge the verdict of the jury in the Sacco-Vanzetti case.

NOVEMBER 21 — William Thompson, former Boston district attorney, assumes charge of the defense. The defense enters a bill of exceptions to make possible the institution of a new trial.

JANUARY 10—Celestino Madeiros, a sentenced criminal, declares that he knows that the murder of Parmenter and Berardelli was committed by members of the notorious Morelli gang of Providence, R. I.

MAY 12—The state supreme court denies a new trial to Sacco and Vanzetti on the basis of the bill of exceptions. The court maintains that they were legally convicted.

SEPTEMBER 13—The defense demands a new trial on the basis of the Madeiros confession.

OCTOBER 21—Judge Thayer denied the motion for a new trial.

JANUARY 27—Defense attorneys argue before the judges of the state supreme court and demand new action on the basis of Judge Thayer's prejudicial conduct during the trial of Sacco and Vanzetti.

APRIL 5—The state supreme court denies all pleas for a new trial.

APRIL 9—Judge Thayer hands down a decision that Sacco and Vanzetti shall die in the electric chair on July 10, 1927.

APRIL 10—International Labor Defense issues call for demonstrations of protest thruout the United States, and appeals to the labor movement of the rest of the world to join in a final mvoement to save Sacco and Vanzetti from being murdered.

APRIL 23—Gov. Alvan T. Fuller of Massachusetts institutes his star chamber investigation committee to give sanctity to the legal execuion. It includes President Lowell of Harvard, and President Stratton of Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

JUNE 29—Gov. Fuller postpones the date of execution to August 10. The postponement refers to Sacco, Vanzetti and Madeiros.

JULY 7—A quarter of a million workers strike in protest in New York. Over 25,000 attend demonstration in Union Square.

JULY 17—Sacco and Vanzetti begin a hunger strike.

(In the meantime, strikes, demonstrations and meetings are taking place in every part of the world, demanding the release of Sacco and Vanzetti, or the granting of a new trial. Tens of millions of workers are set into motion against the planned assassination. Some of the worker's leading men and women of letters, arts and science join the world-wide protest movement. Gov. Fuller's office is swamped with thousands upon thousands of letters, telegrams and cablegrams of protest.)

AUGUST 8—The supreme judicial court of Massachusetts refuses to grant a writ of habeas corpus in order to halt the execution. Judge Thayer again refuses to grant a new trial.

AUGUST 10—Twenty minutes before the time set for the execution, and while millions of workers thruout the world are demonstrating their hatred to the Massachusetts murderers—on the streets, Gov. Fuller continues the torture of the two workers by again postponing the date of execution to August 22.

AUGUST 11—Judge Sanderson decides that the question of a new trial must be decided by the full court. Vanzetti ends his hunger strike.

AUGUST 15—Sacco ends his hunger strike, because he is threatened with forcible feeding.

AUGUST 16—The defense argues before the supreme judicial court for a new trial, demonstrating the prejudice of Judge Thayer.

AUGUST 19—The court denies the pleas of the defense.

AUGUST 20—Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes, "liberal" member of the United States supreme court, denies the plea of the defense for a writ of habeas corpus. Fuller refuses to grant any further postponement.

AUGUST 21—Louis Brandies, another "liberal" member of the U. S. supreme court, also denies the pleas of the defense attorneys.

AUGUST 22—Rosa, wife of Sacco, and Luigia, sister of Vanzetti, approach Gov. Fuller for last minute action. He declines to act.

A few minutes after midnight: the execution. The current of death is sent thru the tortured bodies of the workers. The Puritan hyenas of Massachusetts capitalism have won their victory.

The Family of Bartolomeo Vanzetti: Labor Martyr

HOW PALMER TRIED TO FRAME MARTYRS

By ART SHIELDS
(Federated Press).

I MET Nick Sacco first eight years years ago. He had already been caged six months and prison paller hed set in. Nick was muscular and supple, but lack of exercise and prison food were telling on him.

On my second visit to Dedham jail, just after Thanksgiving Day, 1920, a department of justice spy who had been put in the cell adjoining Sacco was discovered. Fred Moore, Nick's attorney, was along. Moore had uncovered spies before when he was handling cases for western loggers and oil workers and the textile workers of Lawrence, Mass., and his quick thinking was successful n ths emeirgency.

Nick was nervous when they led him through the barred doors of the corridor to the central waiting room of the prison. He bent forward and whispered his suspicions as the fat gray old keeper sat sleepily some distance away by the desk where the prisoner's entry book rested. Nick said a strange Italian was put into the next cell. That stranger, posing as a fellow radical, sought to incite him to enter into a bombing conspiracy.

His cell neighbor talked to him in the corridor when they were both let out for an exercise period. The man claimed he was arrested in a payroll case like Nick, that he was a radical, too, an I. W. W. from Chicago. Nick was no I. W. W. He was an anarchist, but he had a friendly feeling for wobblies. However this fellow did not ring true.

A little later the stranger suggested Nick ask his radical friends to bring dynamite and blow up the prison. Then Nick became pretty sure the man was crooked. At this point he noticed that the prison authorities had prolonged the exercise time to two hours. That looked queer.

MOORE listened to the story, then acted like a flash. With a disarming smile he was at the keeper's side, engaging him in careless conversation. In another minute, before theold fellow woke up to the situation, Moore was copying an Italian name from the prison book. There was a fat-handed attempt of the keeper to get the book away, but the western lawyer's hand was too strong. The strange Italian was charged with attempted assault and robbery, but no committing magistrate was listed.

That stool-pigeon was placed in the cell next to Sacco at the order of the department of justice and District Attorney Katzmann. A confidential agent of Moore got that from the sheriff's office soon after. It was a definite link connecting A. Mitchell Palmer with the prosecution of the two workingmen and in pamphlets ,news stories and magazine articles that followed, the attack was driven home.

I met Vanzetti about the same time at Charlestown penitentiary. I met him again during the years, as he grew older in body but not in spirit in his Massachusetts cage. One day he summed up his two chief desires for me as follows:

"If I am ever free," he said, "I want to live in the open air close to nature and I want to live for the social reolution."

Vanzetti was more given to abtract thought than his comrade; he read more and he wrote more. But Sacco's last days showed to the world a realistic outlook that any revolutionist might be proud of. He saw that there was no hope for mercy from his class enemies, and yet he was entirely fearless. Both met their deaths with supreme beauty and courage—yet differently: Vanzetti with forgiveness for his enemies, Sacco with defiance.

ONE YEAR HAS PASSED

(In Memory of Sacco and Vanzetti).

By H. T. TSAING

Fast! Fast!
One year has past!
Dead! Dead!
You will reborn never!
Who said, "There will be resurrection"?
Why did we not see any of those gentlemen
Who were willing to take your places?
What are the uses of petition, protest and demonstration?
They may now refire the cold ashes of our martyrs,
And can never soften the murderers' hearts.
What are the uses of tears, sighs and complaints?
They may expect the embraces of their dear mothers,
And can never get pardons from the blood-thirsty masters.
Have you ever seen the sheep and pigs being dragged to the axe?
How pitifully thy cry!
How terribly they tremble!
Yet men all enjoy their delicious flesh, just the same!
Sheep, pigs, workers, foreigners!
Your flesh is fresh,
Your blood is sweet,
Your sweat is fertile.

O Vanzetti!
Did you say:
"I wish to forgive some people for what they are now doing to me"?
Certainly, you can forgive them as you like,
But you are the Wop, the fish peddler, the worker.
And haven't anything in the bank.
Isn't it a great insult to say "forgive to your honorable master?"

O martyrs!
Dead! Dead!
You were dead.
Never, never Live again.
Fast! fast!
But one year has past.
Years are piling up the immortal bricks of your lofty monument.
O martyrs!
Look at the autumn flowers
They are dying!
Dying! dying!
But
The trees, the roots from which
The flowers are coming,
Never, never die!
When the spring comes
We shall again see the pretty flowers
Blooming,
Perfuming,
Salute to the warming sun;
Wrestling with the mild wind
And kissing with the charming butterflies.
O martyrs!
Dead, dead. You are dead!
But
Your human tree and your human root
Is budding,
Blooming,
And growing!
Listen to the war cries of your living brothers!
This is the incense we are burning for you!

"VILLAFALLETTO," A VISIT TO FAMILY OF VANZETTI

By H. W. L. DANA.

"VILLAFALLETTO," cried the railway guard at last, and as I stepped off the train at a little isolated station in northern Italy. I read on a sign the word that had been already imprinted on my memory: "Villafalletto."

Often during the long seven years of his imprisonment, Bartolomeo Vanzetti used to describe to me his native town. "Villafalletto rises on the right bank of the Magra in the shadow of a beautiful chain of hills," he wrote and added, "The deep green of the north Italian valleys is a living thing in my mind today." Shortly before he was put to death he wrote to me urging me, if ever I were in Italy, to go and visit his family. Now at last I was able to do so and had come to see the surroundings in which he had grown up and which had always meant so much to him.

Twenty Years Ago.

As I got off on the platform, I realized that it was here at this same railroad station that Vanzetti had said goodbye to his family twenty years ago when he had left home, being, as he put it, "drawn to America by my love of freedom." The freedom for the working class which he had not found there, he had fought to give America, and America had given him death.

From the railway station it was more than a mile's drive up to the hill town of Villafalletto itself. I got into a covered wagon crowded with villagers who had returned by the train and the wagon made its way slowly up the winding road towards the little town among the foothills. Already the sun had set behind the mountains and the night was fast coming on.

Villafalletto and Dedham.

At length we rattled across the little bridge over the Magra and passing through an old gateway like that of a castle entered the town of Villafalletto. The one central street with the stream of water flowing through the middle of it at which the women washed their clothes offered a striking contrast to the wide lawns of the bourgeois estates in the town of Dedham, Massachusetts, where Vanzetti had been condemned to death. I thought once more of the contrast in the courtroom between the bronzed figure of Vanzetti himself and the shrivelled form of the New England judge. In the two towns as in the two men, Italian labor and American capital seemed face to face.

As I alighted then from the carriage and set foot in this town, I found myself trembling with shame and indignation for my own country. Here was I from Massachusetts, venturing to come here. At the inn, said to be the oldest in Italy, I asked for Vanzetti's home. I was conscious at once of penetrating glances and yet a warm sympathy. There had been around the whole world a great rending cry at the execution of Sacco and Vanzetti—the voice of an "international of justice" such as the world had never heard before.

In Czechoslovakia in one of the cities the central square that had ten years ago been christened "Wilson Square" has now been renamed "Sacco and Vanzetti Square." In Moscow there is a "Sacco and Vanzetti Theatre" with large portraits of them on the facade. Instances of this sort can be found today in every country showing that their memory is still alive.

"Gentle, Thoughtful."

Yet the inhabitants of this little town of Villafalletto seemed unaware of the world importance their Bartolomeo Vanzetti had come to hold. They pressed around me with questions about the trial and the execution in America and volunteered all sorts of information about Vanzetti's life at Villafalletto. One old woman remembered him as the most gentle and thoughtful boy their town had ever known. One of his schoolmates told me of his brilliance in his studies and of his unquenchable ardor for reading. One and all in Villafalletto were convinced of his complete innocence of the crime attributed to him. But I found in them a sort of mute acceptance of injustice which I came to feel characteristic of poor workers like these under a fascist regime.

They pointed out to me across the darkened street the yellow lights from the windows of Vanzetti's house. There I found his family warm-hearted in their hospitality through all the anguish of their suffering. I came to see in them the very traits I had learned to love in him. His two sisters, Luiga and Vincenzina, were kindly thoughtful and alert in interest. His younger brother, Ettore, was a shy but friendly lad. The father, a fine old Italian with a face that seemed carved out of hardest granite, came in later. He was courteous and kind but seemed a broken man, unable to talk about the case and sat throughout our conversation ominously silent. From neighboring houses in the course of the evening there dropped in an aunt, some young cousins, and a woman who, Vanzetti had told me, had been after his mother's death a sort of second mother to him.

They led me to a table and insisted in giving me things to eat and drink. In the letter of introduction which Vanzetti had given me to his family he had written with characteristic thoughtfulness and naivete: "Give Professor Dana white wine because that is better suited to Americans, since they are not accustomed to drink." With a smile they offered me my choice from the well supplied wine store of the father.

Vanzetti's Letter.

After supper, I read them the various letters I had received from Bartolomeo, and showed them the pictures in the newspapers, the cartoons, and the posters about Sacco and Vanzetti that I had gathered in America and the various countries of Europe. They in turn showed me family portraits, pictures of Bartolomeo at various ages from earliest childhood, and a long series of letters from him during the seven years of the trial—much the most complete record of his thoughts that exists and one which must be taken into account in any attempt to write the full story of his life. They told me of the terrible days of suspense they had passed and the night of anguish waiting for the final news. They spoke too, of the family of Sacco at Torre Maggiore in the extreme southeast of Italy as they were in the extreme northwest. Half the night was spent in our talk before we finally went to bed.

The next day they took me out of doors, through the courtyard surrounded by galleries and through a lane to the vegetable garden where Bartolomeo had told me he used to love to work as a boy. Here now his young brother, Ettore, was at work and pointed out with pride the trees Bartolomeo had planted. The cousins told me of the sympathetic fondness he had felt for all living things in this garden. It all bore out Sacco's spontaneous characterization of Vanzetti as "the man kind to all."

His Own Room.

The sisters showed me the room where their mother had died while Bartolomeo was a boy and I remembered his account of his pathetic attempts to stop all sounds that might disturb her during her sickness, rushing out into the street to implore noisy groups of young men please to go elsewhere. We saw the forest where he used to wander in despair after her death and the bridge where he used to stand and look longingly at the bed of the stream beneath.

The family did not share, did not understand Vanzetti's views, but I always felt their ardent confidence in his character and their complete conviction of his innocence. If they did not raise their voices in strident outcries against the 'deep damnation of his taking off, it seemed to me only a part of that same dumb submission to unjust authority which I had already felt when I first spoke to these humble village workers in Mussolini's Italy. But there was not a trace of any sense of shame, only of silent pride.

His Last Letter.

This was brought out clearly when they came to read aloud to me Vanzetti's last letter of which they allowed me to make a copy. It was a letter written just before his death—a letter full of calm preparation and proud strength. It was dated: "The New Era: The First Day" and was in part as follows:

"I am calm and prepared for all that may come. I swear to you my complete innocence of the crimes attributed to me and of all other crimes. Do not feel ashamed of me. A day will come in which my life will be known such as it really was and then all you who call yourselves by the name of Vanzetti will be happy and proud of that name. Already all those who know me love and respect me. I have inscribed my gravestone with twenty years of life consecrated to the pursuit of justice and liberty for all. If I must now die through fault of the greatest injustice of men and of circumstances, I can rest assured that no one of those who have been my enemies will be mourned as I shall be....I shall fight to the last moment in order to conquer. Then lift up your spirits."

As I watched the dignified, exalted look on the faces of the family as they stood listening to the reading of this letter, I felt confident that they had lifted up their spirits and that they were proud to bear the name of Vanzetti.

VANZETTI TO JUDGE THAYER

"If it had not been for these things, I might have live out my life, talking at street corners to scorning men. I might have die unmarked, unknown, a failure. This is our career and our triumph. Never in our full life can we hope to do such work for tolerance, for jeostice, for man's onderstanding of man, as now we do by an accident. 'Ou words—our lives—our pains—nothing! The taking of our lives—lives of a good shoemaker and a poor fish peddler—all! That last moment belong to us—that agony is our triumph!"

Sacco and Vanzetti

By HENRY REICH, JR.

A year has passed—and these two shining names'
Still move like fire across the earthly lands,
And weld our brotherhood in singing flames
And join again the countless workers' hands.

These names, withstanding all the blows of fate,
Now rise immortal from the earth again
To mock the masters' venom and their hate,
To live forever in the hearts of men.

Vanzetti! Sacco! These two names shall spell
Another word for revolution now,
Upon the winds these names shall rise and swell,
Upon men's lips they shall be like a vow.

For when the revolution's mighty tide
Shall sweep the earth and rend reaction's gloom,
Our crimson banners then afolt in pride
Shall bear these names that seal the masters' doom!

The International Situation and Tasks of Communist International

Comrade Bukharin's Report of the Executive Committee of the Communist International

This is the concluding instalment of Bukharin's report, made to the Sixth Congress of the Communist International on July 18 and 19, the first half of which appeared in the Daily Worker last Saturday, August 18. The portion published Saturday consisted of: "I. A General Analysis of Modern Capitalism and the Special Forms of the Crisis of Capitalism," and "II. Internal Political Processes in the Bourgeois Countries." The report continues:

III. Our Line of Tactics.

THE CHANGE IN TACTIC CORRESPONDS TO THE CHANGE IN THE OBJECTIVE SITUATION.

The changes in the objective situation compelled us to change our tactics. It was a proper reaction to the altered state of affairs. A clear example of this is afforded by Great Britain. The Labor Party, which at one time was a loose organization without party discipline is now becoming a real social democratic party on the model of the continental parties. It has a program and party discipline; it is striving to bind us politically by means of its influence in the trade unions. It expels us, it launches attacks against us. If we were to retain our former attitude at the present time and preserve our former relationship so as not to break the common front of the organized proletariat, we would be doomed. We would lose our political independence and thereby our right to existence. The enemy would break us. It would be silly not to draw the proper conclusions from such a state of affairs. The change in the attitude of our British party was determined by the change in the objective situation, by the new organizational methods of the labor party, by new relationships that arose between our party and the labor party. These are all political factors of first rate importance.

The same may be said about France. It is no accident that the contemporary representatives of social democracy in France are Paul Boncour, with his military law and Albert Thomas, who is boosting Mussolini. The Thomases and Boncours are not expelled. On the contrary, the social democrats strive to justify their conduct. The "left" Fritz Adler writes a pitiful article in which he actually tries to defend Thomas, the bard of fascism. Thas is how the most "left" elements of the II. International act, and that is how the man, who during the war assassinated a cabinet minister as a protest against the war, writes now!

As far as the Communist Party of France is concerned, there were certain other considerations compelling us to change our tactics. It is a well-known fact that survivals of parliamentary illusions are still prevalent in the French Party. The recent elections marked a turning point for the Party, a turning point which must be regarded not only from the viewpoint of the elections, but also from the angle of the entire future policy of the French Communist Party. Having come to the conclusion that we were on the eve of great class conflicts in which parliamentarism, in the worst sense of the word, may play a very pernicious role, we had to do everything in our power to break down this tradition.

Thus the change in our tactics was bound up with the change in the objective situation and this was the signal for a change in the tactics in the larger of our Communist Parties. The political pivot of this change is our changed attitude towards the social democratic parties. The question of our attitude towards the social democratic parties is a cardinal political question. Intensification of the struggle against social democracy—such is the political orientation of the Communist International, and I think that this slogan, this political orientation, will be adopted by the VI. Congress. At the same time I must emphasise that the adoption of sharper methods of struggle against the social democratic parties is not in any way identical with the abandonment of the united front tactics, as some comrades are inclined to think. On the contrary, the more sharply we come out against social democracy and against its political line, the more determinedly must we take up the task of capturing the masses, including the mass of rank and file social democrats, including the mass of workers who follow the lead of social democracy, and the more strenuously must we fight to win these masses. But in order to conduct a successful struggle for the masses we must employ proper methods of approaching them. Only those lacking intelligence would argue that since we are waging a desperate struggle against social democracy we must have no dealings with rank and file social democratic workers. There are many comrades who still fail to appreciate this two-fold task. Many have not as yet given serious thought to the matter. But the fact is that this is one of our most important and fundamental tasks.

IV. The Revolution in Colonial and Semi-Colonial Countries.

CORRECTNESS OF THE MAIN LINE AND BLUNDERS IN ITS APPLICATION TO CHINA.

Before analyzing our fundamental tasks in general, I should like to deal with the question of the colonial movements. I will deal with China and India, but will limit myself merely to a few remarks, because these questions will be dealt with partly in discussing the programme and, particularly, in discussing the colonial question.

On the questions of the Chinese revolution, we had an extensive discussion with our opposition on points of principle. Here we can in retrospect deal once again with some of the major problems of the Chinese revolution. The Communist Party of China, as all of you know, has suffered a severe defeat. This is a fact. The question arises, was this defeat a result of the wrong tactics pursued by the Comintern in the Chinese revolution? Perhaps indeed, it was inexpedient to have entered into a bloc with the bourgeoisie; perhaps this was the original sin, the basic error, which determined all other errors, and, gradually, step by step, brought about the defeat of the Chinese proletariat? Most likely this question will be analyzed in great detail at this Congress when the colonial problem will be up for discussion in as much as this in an extremely vital question which must be critically and scrupulously examined and analyzed. But I think, and the analyzis will bear me out in this, that the mistake does not lie here.

On the whole, it is not the main line of tactics that was at fault, but the political actions and the practical application of the line pursued in China. Firstly, at the beginning of the Chinese revolution, in the period of collaboration with the Kuomintang, our mistake was that we did not sufficiently criticize the Kuomintang. Instead of being an ally, our Party was at times an accessory of the Kuomintang. Secondly, the Communist Party of China failed to understand the change that took place in the objective situation, the transition from one stage to another. Thus, it was possible for a time to march together with the national bourgeoisie, but at a certain stage of development it was necessary to foresee imminent changes. It was necessary to prepare for that. In concluding an alliance it is always necessary to bear in mind the possibility of changes and, consequently, to prepare for a struggle. On a critical analysis of all phases of the Chinese revolution we find that the C. C. of the Chinese Party and partly also our representative in China committed a grave blunder. They did not take this coming change into account, they did not foresee it and therefore did not effect a timely change when the former ally turned into a deadly foe. Thirdly, our Party at times acted as a brake on the mass movement, a brake on the agrarian revolution, and a brake on the labor movement. These were fatal blunders and, naturally, they helped to bring about the defeat of the Communist Party and of the Chinese proletariat. After a whole series of defeats the Party set to work resolutely to rectify its opportunist blunders. But this time, as frequently happens, some comrades fell into the other extreme. They did not prepare uprisings with sufficient care, they displayed glaring putschist tendencies and adventurism of the worst type. The IX. Plenum of the C. I. called for a change in the tactics of the Communist Party of China, but not in the same direction as that of the West European parties.

By manipulating such terms as "Left," "Right," etc., we can say that in France and Great Britain a change has been effected towards the "Left" and in China towards the "Right." However, I wish to make a reservation: I am not in favor of such terminology. It little suits the occasion and explains nothing. The purpose of analyzing any given situation is to discover whether certain tactics are correct or not, suitable or unsuitable for the given situation and not whether the tactics are "Right" or "Left."

THE RETURN OF THE REVOLUTIONARY TIDE IN CHINA IS INEVITABLE.

We characterize the present period in the Chinese revolution as the culminating point of a great period when the revolutionary wave rose high and the beginning of a period in which the main task is to unite the masses and to rally the forces in preparation for a new great revolutionary upheaval.

All objective symptoms show that another revolutionary upheaval is inevitable. The whole experience of the past struggle shows that without gigantic mass movements it will be impossible to solve the problem of the Chinese revolution and that the objective pre-requisites for its victorious completion exist. But this brings us against the main task of uniting the masses so as to deprive the enemy of the opportunity to gradually destroy our proletarian army unit by unit. Iron necessity demanded that the Party abandon the position of immediate insurrection and take up the position of preparation, mass preparation, for an uprising with a maximum chance of victory. I think that the resolution adopted by the IX. Plenum on the Chinese question helped greatly to further the development of the Communist Party of China. I hope that the Congress decisions will be in keeping with the spirit of the resolution.

NEW PROCESSES IN INDIA.

The situation in India is shaping itself differently. There the situation and the correlation of forces are different from those in China, where in the course of an entire period, in the course of many years, the bourgeoisie conducted an armed struggle against the imperialists. This is a fact. It is otherwise in India. There it is inconceivable that the bourgeoisie will play a revolutionary role for any length of time. This of course, does not apply to the various petty bourgeois parties or terroristic organizations now existing in India. I have in mind the principal cadres of the bourgeoisie, the Swaraj Party.

I am not in a position to make an economic analysis of the situation in India, but I should like to state that I do not share the opinion that India is ceasing to be a colonial country and that a process of decolonization is going on there. That theory is a one-sided one. On the contrary, recently, following the period of concessions, British imperialism has increased its colonial oppression of India in general and of the Indian bourgeoisie in particular. This compels the Swaraj Party once again to maneuver against British imperialism. It is maneuvering. But this is a far-cry from armed struggle. At the very first outbreak of mass action the Swaraj Party will turn towards British imperialism and seek to compromise with it. I have in mind such mass action in which the masses will advance independent radical slogans such as a demand to confiscate the land or radical slogans for the defense of working class interests. It seems to me that in the event of independent mass action and the advancement of more or less revolutionary slogans the Swaraj bourgeoisie will very rapidly come to an agreement and compromise with British imperialism. Now it maneuvers. At some points, it may play even an objectively revolutionary role, but it is inconceivable that it will play a revloutionary role for any length of time. There is no doubt, and this must be emphasized, that the bourgeoisie will desert to the camp of counter-revolution at the first manifestation of a mass movement. The Communist Party must from the very outset expose the half-heartedness of the bourgeoisie, accentuate the slogans, from the very beginning come out against the bourgeoisie and open the eyes of the masses of the workers to the future behavior of the Indian Swarajist bourgeoisie. A mechanical application of Chinese tactics to India is fraught with great danger. A special analysis and special tactics based on the particular conditions prevailing in India are necessary.

V. Our Main Tasks and Our Shortcomings.

MORE INTERNATIONALISM!

Comrades, I now come to our main tasks and our shortcomings. From my analysis of the world situation, certain conclusions follow in relation to our basic orientation in the sphere of tactical problems. First of all, I will deal with the question of the international character of our movement. It stands to reason that in the present period, when great political questions occupy the center of attention of the Communist Parties, when the war problem is the main problem, the activities of the Communist International must be chiefly based on international training and on the tasks of the Communist Parties arising from them. Regarding our Party activity from this viewpoint, it must be stated that notwithstanding the relative numerical weakness of our Communist Parties, we have achieved fairly great successes in regard to the Bolshevization of our Parties: we have quite considerable gains, and increase in influence to record, we have ideologically gained new territories for Communism, etc. Nevertheless, the degree of internationalism of the Communist Parties is still very small compared with the tasks confronting the Communist International and its Sections. Experience of recent years has revealed these shortcomings and I think that it is our duty to speak of them openly. A frank admission of these shortcomings is an important prerequisite for their elimination.

During the strike in Great Britain many Parties inadequately supported the British working class and this we have stated in the resolutions of Enlarged Plenums of the Communist International. With the exception of a few Parties, and particularly the Communist Party of the Soviet Union, the Parties rendered very meagre help to the British proletariat.

Practically the same thing was manifested in connection with the Chinese events. The magnitude of the international campaign in defense of the Chinese Revolution did not fully correspond to the objects and requirements of the period and the revolutionary duty fo the Parties. Interest in the Chinese Revolution was not sufficiently sustained. Nor did the Party press deal adequately with the Bolshevization of the Communist Party of China and the Bolshevization of the labor and peasant movement in China. Thoroughgoing and systematic work in this sphere was not observed. Sufficiently broad political campaigns corresponding to the requirements were not conducted. Sporadic attempts were made to remove these shortcomings, but persistent systematic work was not undertaken and as a result, the Parties were not always able to cope with the tasks that confronted them in the period of big campaigns.

Take the question of Fascism. I have in mind not only Italian Fascism; I want to deal with this question on somewhat broader lines, I want to take up the question of Fascism in Italy, in Poland and Fascism in general. The Communist Parties' struggle against Fascism and the attention they paid to this question was totally inadequate.

Events like the United States incursion in Nicaragua have not been sufficiently counteracted, particularly by the American Party. Even the American Party, for which this question should have been the Central Question in all its activity, was not in a position to develop a sufficiently broad campaign. This is no less true of the other Parties. Nicaragua is far away from Europe, but geographical conditions should not so seriously affect the work of Communist Parties. In some Parties, particularly in Europe, both small and large, certain survivals of provincialism are to be observed; a lack of understanding of the significance of international high politics. If we are to prepare seriously for world historical events like imminent war, we must now stress the problems of high international politics, for otherwise, we will be unable to prepare seriously for the outbreak of war. It stands to reason that in order to launch this campaign properly, in order to carry it on with the necessary energy, we must link up questions of international high politics with questions of daily life and revolutionary activity in the respective countries. Here again the problem of war comes to the fore. Almost all internal political questions, including questions of the labor movement of each country, encounter this problem. The capitalist offensive is bound up with the bourgeois preparations for war and is called forth by the necessity to strengthen the positions of the bourgeoisie, to establish civil peace, to organize protection against the workers, etc. Generally speaking, this is a very complicated problem. While handling day to day questions it is necessary at the same time to make them the basis for the further development of our more general slogans and tasks. A certain politico-tactical art is involved in this. But this is an argument in favor of taking up big political questions, and it is precisely here that the art of Bolshevik tactics comes in, namely, to start out with minor questions and to lead them up to big questions. If we fail to acquire this art, if we fail to react sufficiently to great international problems it will signify that we will fail to carry on systematic work in preparation for a struggle against war. This we must understand and state in our resolution. The question of war, the question of defending the revolution in the U. S. S. R. and in China—are questions of central and decisive significance. Systematic work in this direction is the fundamental task of all Parties, of all Sections of the Communist International

The question of the general line of the Communist Parties is a question of attitude towards the present form of capitalism and to the capitalist state. In this sphere, minor questions imperceptibly grow into big political problems. If, for example, we take the tactical orientation of the Social Democratic Parties—I have already referred to that in passing—we find a fully consistent line. It is a line of unity with the employers' organizations. It passes on from the individual factory to the League of Nations. The social democrats advocate "industrial peace" and the so-called "American" method of collaboration between labor and capital. Such is the main line of contemporary social democracy. This main policy finds its reflection also in the sphere of foreign affairs. But we also meet with it in dealing with questions of home affairs, in the question of relations with the state, the question of coalitions, the attitude towards the so-called employers' organizations, viz., the magnates of Trust Capital.. The social democratic slogan is a slogan of unity with trust capital. The question of the class struggle no longer exists as far as they are concerned. In the economic sphere they are opposed to strikes, they are opposed to the industrial struggle. They stand for industrial peace. Instead of extension of strikes, they stand for compulsory arbitration. To them it is not a question of the dependence or independence of the labor organizations, they stand for collaboration between the labor organizations and the employers' organizations. This is an integral system of tactics. From the reformist viewpoint the labor organizations must abandon their class independence. Class struggle has become "obsolete" in the eyes of these gentlemen. The Social Democratic line is a line of grafting the reformist labor organizations with the organizations of monopolist capital and the monopolist capitalist state. We see these consistent Social Democratic tactics operating all along the line.

What is our tactical orientation? Our tactical orientation in all these questions, from the factory nucleus to the League of Nations is diametrically opposite to that of the social democrats. Not industrial peace, but class struggle, not arbitration, but struggle against compulsory arbitration; exposure of all the traps which the capitalist organizations or the capitalist state are laying down for the working class; fight against every attempt to fetter the strike movement, etc. This is our basic tactical orientation. We have discussed these questions on many occasions already and our answer to them in my opinion was absolutely clear. The final conclusion to be drawn from this tactical line is, that we must steer a course for the overthrow of the bourgeois state power—for revolution. This does not in the least imply that we must abandon the tactics of the united front. But, regarding the sharpening of our struggle against social democracy, certain changes must be made in the conduct of that struggle. United front tactics must, in most cases, now be applied only from below. No appeals to the central committee of the social democratic parties. In rare cases appeals may be made to local social democratic committees. In the main, we must appeal only to the social democratic masses, to the rank and file social democratic workers.

The united front tactic is closely bound up with the questions of our systematic work.

TRADE UNION WORK.—A VITAL PROBLEM.

We are not concerned here with the various campaigns conducted from time to time. All these tactical questions first and foremost concern systematic work. You are all aware of the theses laid down in numerous resolutions of the Communist International to the effect that in this domain the most important problem is trade union work. We have already pointed to many of the shortcomings of our Parties in this respect. The trade union problem must be taken up also at this Congress. We will put the experience of our Parties under the microscope and search carefully for the causes of our defects in this sphere. If there is a section of our work that stands in need of thorough self-criticism it is these very sections of our work in the trade union. Our ideological influence is growing in the trade unions as in other spheres, but as trade unonists the authority of our comrades is still negligible. The authority of our comrades as political leaders, as initiators of big political campaigns, fighters in the revolutionary class front of the proletariat, as defenders of its great historical interests, is growing. But their specific authority as trade unionists, is not great enough. The disproportion between the authority of our comrades as political leaders and their authority as trade unionists is very big and this is due to the various shortcomings of our work in the trade unions. I would like to give a few illustrations. Take France for example: here, the Communists in the trade union movement have committed a series of errors. The relations between the Communists and the non-Party trade union members are not what they should be. The Communists have got into the habit of commanding, they do not exercise their influence by persuasion, they do not work systematically enough. Many other shortcomings can be mentioned. On the other hand there are trade unionists who do their trade union work "well." But this trade union work is almost social democratic work. It almost entirely lacks the specifically Bolshevik formulation of trade union problems, specifically Communist problems. Such trade unionists may have a very good reputation among the trade union masses, but their work cannot be approved of from the Communist viewpoint. Experience in Germany shows that some comrades have become so accustomed to social democratic methods of work that they do not carry out Party instructions; during elections they refuse to publish our Party appeals, etc. They have submitted to general reformist trade union discipline in order to become "good" trade union workers. This is another unsatisfactory side of Communist work in the trade unions. We have also observed blunders committed by our trade unionist Comrades during strike movements—a very serious aspect of our trade union work. In some cases we meet with what is known as khvostism, i. e. the lack of initiative and inability to play a leading role. In time of strikes we are carried along by the masses instead of leading them. In the past period, in France for example, there have been cases where strikes have taken place without participation.

On the other hand, very often we play with revolutionary phrases in time of strikes, but do not devote sufficient attention to the solid preparation of campaigns connected with such strikes, we do not sufficiently take into account the objective situation and all the possibilities of the strikes; we are unable to choose the proper moment for declaring strikes or for calling them off and we are unable to lead them properly, etc. But all these qualities of leadership are absolutely essential precisely at the present time, because the situation as far as strike leadership is concerned, is a very serious one. Potentially, almost every strike has the more or less marked tendency to grow into a big political event. It is possible to lead strikes under such conditions only if one has a good knowledge of the situation and is able to take into account all phases of the movement. Revolutionary enthusiasm is necessary, of course, but that alone is not enough. A knowledge of the economic and political conditions of the struggle is essential. Never have questions of strike struggles been so involved as they are now. At the bottom of this complex problem lies partly the correlation betweeen the forces of capitalism and the united forces of the working class. But, comrades, the situation is that these specific circumstances have not yet been realized. For instance, the problem of uniting the factory committees on the lines of the organization of trusts has as yet remained unsolved and it is still insufficiently advocated in the Communist Parties even of the most developed capitalist countries. Howeer, this propaganda in favor of unification, this centralization of the struggle, must be our reply to the merging of trustified capital. In the trade union domain we are now waging a struggle not so much against individual employers as against capitalist trusts. The word trust must be emphasized, it must be accentuated. It is the specific feature of the situation with which we now have to deal.

THE YOUTH PROBLEM—ONE OF OUR MAJOR TASKS.

Comrades, there are shortcomings that I want to refer to, shortcomings in our mass organizations, although we have made great progress in this sphere. For example, our Young Communist movement. In this sphere, we have certain considerable achievements to record, particularly in our anti-militarist struggle and in the various military campaigns. Take the French youth organization during the Morocco war and the work of our Young Communists in the struggle against the war danger in general. Nevertheless, we have great shortcomings. The number of organized young comrades is either declining or stationary. There is no doubt that the youth movement suffers from excessive sectarianism; our Youth International is unable to penetrate all the organizations where masses of young workers are to be found and to influence them. Our tactical orientation in the youth organizations is still distinguished by a certain narrowness. These short-comings have lately become even more marked. This is one of the most dangerous spots in our activity. Some comrades, realizing that great blunders have been committed, that we suffer from great defects in this respect, seek to remedy it by doses of medicine, so big that we run the risk of the Young Communist League's losing their specific political and Communist features. I think that this is a mistake. The youth organization must be a Communist organization. Of course, it must not duplicate the Party, but the general Communist orientation in the struggle must be the basis of Young Communist development in the future.

MAXIMUM OF VARIETY AND FLEXIBILITY IN THE METHODS OF WORK.

What we lack, and what we must acquire, is diversified methods of work. We must endeavor to bring about a situation in which the youth organization will react, not only to questions of high politics and to big political campaigns, but also to political and cultural questions, to all questions of interest to the youth. Our young comrades must have their say in all spheres, from sport to the Chinese revolution; they must react organizationally and politically, as the instructions point out, to carry our influence to all organizations where young workers are to be found. We must abandon sectarianism and restricted methods of work, the general effect of which is to nullify united front tactics in the sphere of the youth movement.

Comrades, the youth problem is one of the most vital problems of our time. In Western Europe, in America and in other countries, this problem is an exceedingly grave one for us. The bourgeoisie is waging a feverish and strenuous struggle for the youth and is waging it with great skill, much more skilfully than we are waging it. All the big sport organizations, which some regard as a method of fostering bourgeois culture, are, in general, of very great political significance. The importance of sport organizations is closely related with the central problems of politics, first and foremost with the question of war. Through these organizations the imperialist bourgeoisie provide military training for the youth in a form which appears innocent and non-political, but which, if regarded in the light of the general process of development, and not as an isolated fact—plays a great political role in these days. The young worker becomes absorbed in and enthusiastic over football, but imperceptibly he is caught in the web of bourgeois organization. Various military gymnastic stunts take the place of military training, not only from the technical viewpoint, but also from the viewpoint of politics, from the problem of war. And if we devote our attention mainly to great political problems without at the same time trying to penetrate all mass organizations—I do not speak directly of organizational penetration, I have in mind our influence and our political authority—the great masses of the young human material will be lost to our cause.

Why do I say that the youth problem is one of our central problems? Firstly, because, while we have devoted considerable attention to the trade union problem, for example, we have paid very little attention lately to the youth movement. What is the situation in the youth movement? The youth are now much worse organized than the adult proletariat. This is as true of the social democratic youth as of our youth.

One of the most striking historical paradoxes of the present day is that the post-war generation, the generation born during the war, is worse organized than the preceding generation. What does this signify? I think, partly, this means that large sections of the youth have either directly or indirectly been neutralized by the bourgeoisie, or that the youth has become non-political. This, too, is to be explained by the influence of the imperialist bourgeoisie, because the bourgeoisie is quite satisfied if it succeeds merely in neutralizing the youth. It does not require more than that.

An improvement of our work in the youth organizations is therefore absolutely necessary. We must say this definitely and the congress must give corresponding instructions to the Young Communist International.

MORE ATTENTION TO THE PEASANT PROBLEM.

Further, there is the question of sympathizing organizations. If it is correct to say that we are approaching catastrophic events, although we cannot tell exactly when they will occur, in what year and on what day—it would be absurd to predict dates, we must understand that it is precisely because of such perspectives that the question of auxiliary organizations play a very important role. In the near future we shall have to take up the question of the peasant movement and of the Farmers' and Peasants' International and analyze it separately. The election results in Germany and France have shown that our influence in the rural districts in those countries has not increased; on the contrary it has somewhat diminished. This is an important symptom. Of course, our work among the peasants in many advanced capitalist countries is not easy, but it must be borne in mind that it is the masses of the peasantry that are hurled against us in the struggle and we must not forget that the bourgeoisie is working feverishly in this domain. The bourgeoisie does its utmost to win over the masses of peasants whereas the Communist Parties have forgotten about their work among the peasants. In some countries we have allowed opportunities to slip by—recall the great peasant movement in Rumania. True, the Communist Party of Rumania was smashed, but no one uttered the warning that great events were approaching in Rumania. Neither the Comintern as a whole nor the executive committee foresaw them, nor did they take timely measures to meet them. This was a great oversight, even if we admit that the situation was a very difficult one and that we had almost no connection with Rumania. These events occurred without our Party exercising hardly any influence upon them. Therefore we must draw certain conclusions regarding the peasant movement in all Balkan countries, not only in Rumania, but also in Yugoslavia, Bulgaria, etc., and even in Poland.

We must devote more attention to the peasant question and from this viewpoint we must help the Farmers and Peasants International to become a real live organization. I cannot give you a report on the activities of that organization, but I must say that they are more or less of a propagandist character, that its work consists chiefly in publishing various material. Its organizational connections are exceedingly meagre. The numerical strength of the organization is negligible, although it has certain successes to its record. I think that in this the Farmers' and Peasants' International is not alone to blame; the fault rests also on the Comintern. We have not appropriated sufficient forces for that organization, we have not devoted sufficient attention to its work. This is clearly borne out by the Rumanian events and the election results in France and Germany. We must take this question up in the immediate future and do everything we can to remedy the defects.

I think we are not giving enough support to the Anti-Imperialist League. Some comrades think that, in general, this league is not worth maintaining. In reality, experience has shown something quite different. Experience has shown that this organization has great potential powers and chances of development and that we are doing very little to help to release these potential forces. It is said that the congress of the league wah a grand parade, a big political demonstration. But his was not an accident. This "parade" was a big political demonstraion because the objective need for such a parade existed and the revlutionary forces were really in need of unification. From the viewoint of our general strategy, we must say that the more rallying points here will be along our line of march in the shape of our sympathizing orces—be it in Europe, Asia, Africa, or any other continent—the more repared will we be for the moment of catastrophic upheavals, the reater will be the number of real live organizations in the revolutionry camp. Why we should hold a liquidatory viewpoint on this queson I cannot understand. People sometimes try to throw all blame pon the objective situation, upon forces and events outside of our phere of influence. This is a grave mistake. We are mostly to blame, ecause we have given too little aid to that organization.

LINKING UP OF LEGAL WITH ILLEGAL WORK.

I will now touch another question—the problem of linking up gal with illegal work. Again, if our analysis of the general situaon is correct, then we must immediately commence illegal work, we ust immediately undertake the task of linking up our legal activity ith illegal activity. We have now gathered considerable experience f illegal work in some countries. We have such experience in Poland, the Balkan countries, in Italy, and now in Japan. Finally, we ave a wealth of experiences in China, etc. Some parties have had no ich experience. This applies mainly to the west European parties. ut, comrades, the attacks upon us will from now on become more vere. Our French Party has already had a taste of what it may xpect in the future. There is no doubt that immediately on the e of war and even some time before that, a series of extraordinary ws will be passed against our Parties. Of this there is no doubt. his must be foreseen. That is why it is necessary now to lay the oundation of our underground organizations, particularly in the army nd navy, etc. Otherwise, events will take us by surprise and because f lack of preparation we will suffer great losses. The questions of legal organizations, which includes also the question of legal and legal connections in the army and navy, is now a very acute one. ou can understand why I cannot go into details, give advice and structions here. But this task must be brought to the forefront of r attention and dealt with thoroughly. We cannot confine ourselves generalities. We must work out concrete instructions for our daily ractical work and these instructions must be registered.

If we apply the united front tactics in our trade union work, in e youth organizations and in our sympathizing organizations proper we will be able to remove the notorious discrepancy between the rowth of our political influence and its organizational consolidation.

SYMPTOMS OF BUREAUCRACY.

I want to draw attention to another drawback in our Party work. seems to me—and I must say this openly—that the symptoms of ureaucracy have lately increased, not only in our Party, the Commust Party of the Soviet Union, but in many other Parties. Now and en this finds expression in super-centralised leadership, in the total ck of initiative on the part of local organizations, etc. Of course, ntralism is necessary and so is centralized leadership. Central Comittees must be strong, leading bodies. This is an elementary truth. But we find that very often local organizations display no initiative, that the pulse of political life does not always beat fast enough in our nuclei, that many campaigns and questions of trade union struggle play an exceedingly insignificant role in our nuclei, that minor officials and rank and file members work on a very small scale and that inner Party life consists in very many cases of the activities of a group of officials. This defect is related to other defects. We strongly advocate the reanimation of the rank and file, drawing new people into the leadership, attracting new people into the Party. But these new people do not fall from the skies as ready made practical workers. They must receive training in the process of active Party life not only on the part of officials, but also of the rank and file. Unless we succeed in eliminating these shortcomings, we shall run short of active Party workers. Unless we accelerate the pulse of Party life among the lower ranks of the Party, we shall not be able to provide a reservoir from which to draw able Party leaders. In surveying the Party Congresses and the Congresses of the Communist International, one is struck by the fact that the percentage of rank and file workers participating in them has not increased. Here too a tendency is observed to delegate Party officials, professional and paid Party officials to these Congresses exclusively. This tendency is obvious here. Of course, the danger must not be exaggerated, but a warning must be uttered against it. This is only bound up with a whole series of highly complicated problems of internal Party life. We must draw attention to the inadequate beat of the pulse of inner Party life particularly among the lower ranks of the Party, in the factory nuclei, etc. This must be placed on record so that the situation may be improved.

THE NEED FOR IMPROVING THE PARTY CADRES.

A few more words on the cultural and political level of our Parties and our Party cadres—the method of inner Party discussions. Here again there is a discrepancy between the objective requirements of the mass of the membership and the abilities and qualifications of our Prty cadres. It seems to me that we have ignored a whole series of theoretical tasks, that our Party cadres are devoting too little time to studies, that our literature is weak and does not correspond to the present objective requirements; that we do not work out our problem deeply and intelligently enough—and this reflects itself in the methods of our discussion. I have already said at a previous Congress, or Plenum, that our inner Party discussions largely consist of making strong, sweeping statements and that they reveal an insufficiently serious attitude to the problems under discussion on the part of those participating in them. We have learned very well to perform operations with various kinds of deviations, this we do splendidly, but as far as a genuine study of the problems is concerned, the presentation of sound arguments instead of merely slogging away at an opponent—this we have not yet learned sufficiently.

However, every further step our Party takes along the path of development demands that we must deepen our political thinking, and that we must manipulate, maneuvre and react in every situation in a thoughtful manner. This is one of the extremely important problems that face us. I think we must devote serious attention to raising our theoretical level, to improving our press and to the development of studies in our Parties.

VI. Tendencies in the Communist International.

RIGHT TENDENCY, THE GREATEST DANGER.

Comrades, I will now say a few words about the various tendencies the Communist International. Some time ago, the greatest danger the Communist International came from the so-called "ultra lefts," ho endeavored to set up an international organization. After the deats of the opposition in the Communist Party of the Soviet Union, ese were frustrated, but the very process of disintegration of the pposition, the culminating point of which was the collapse of the soalled "Lenin Bund," leads us inevitably to certain conclusions. We rested that Trotskyism is a social democratic tendency. Some comades in their inward mind consider this to be a gross exaggeration. ut the history of the Lenin Bund has shown that the core of the pposition has migrated to the Social Democrats. Was this a chance ccurrence? Certainly not. We can see distinctly the dialectics of the elationships between the so-called "ultra-Left" and the Right. At resent the principal danger comes from the Right tendency, if we ake the Communist International as a whole. The period of stabilizaon, which I have analyzed, the survival of parliamentarism, the inuence of Social Democracy, certain specific peculiarities in trade nion activity—are the main elements which keep this danger alive. his danger assumes various forms in the individual Parties. How did manifest itself? Firstly by aspiration to legality at any price, by e Parties' fear to exceed the limits of bourgeois legality, even in ases when it was necessary to go beyond such limits; by excessive ubmission to bourgeois laws. This Right tendency manifested itself lso in ignoring the necessity for accentuating the class struggle, for stance, during strikes; necessary strikes were not carried out. This endency manifested itself also in the adoption of a wrong policy owards Social Democracy and in an insufficient accentuation of the truggle against "Left" Social Democratic leaders. It manifested itself lso in the inadequate internationalism of the Parties. We notice that n the whole even Parties with a correct orientation do not always erform their international duties, as was the case in regard to the hinese revolution. This certainly is a definitely Right tendency. The ame tendency is observed also in the trade union activity, where genral trade union discipline is frequently considered more important ıan our Party discipline, as well as in various other forms with which will deal presently.

LEFT TENDENCIES.

Failure to understand what relations should be between the Party nd the trade unions, results in that the Party sometimes rules over e masses in its capacity of Communist vanguard without endeavoring convince these masses and without carrying on systematic work. here is also a general tendency to abandon the tactic of the United ront.

Following on a period of gross right-wing errors, left tendencies re also noticeable in China. There they take the form of putschist ıoods and tactics. But on the whole deviations from the correct line re at present more to the Right than to the Left. Take France, for xample. In our French Party strong parliamentary traditions in the ad sense of this term are still to be observed. These manifested hemselves at the recent elections when a tendency to sabotage our actical measures was very marked. This, of course, is due to the omewhat exaggerated orientation towards parliamentarism, with some pportunistic deviations from the correct political path. In the French 'arty these tendencies originate in deeply rooted historical traditions, nd it goes without saying that our French brother Party must coninue systematically to combat this phenomenon and must endeavor irst of all to persuade its own members that these methods are now bsolete. This is not a matter of combating individuals. Rather is it matter of attacking the strong and time honored traditions of public ife in France, the practice of the Socialist Party, a considerable secion of which formed the Communist Party. These tendencies were bserved also in the French Party when the question of so-called epressions came up for discussion, when a number of French comrades, nd the whole Party made mistakes, which they subsequently remedied.

We also notice such errors in our Czecho-Slovak brother Party. Our Party in Czechoslovakia is a real mass Party but it is seriously fflicted with the "legality" disease. The Czech Party sometimes cannot nake up its mind to go to the masses to organize protests against nti-Communist laws. If we continually make concessions to the govrnment and do not exert sufficient effort to mobilize the masses for truggle against legislation and government regulations directed gainst Communists, we will never be able to pave the way for the reparation of mass actions on a larger scale, which infringe the coneption of bourgeois legality. Some comrades have not the ghost of notion as to how events will develop. They argue somewhat like his: We will work within legal limits up to such and such a day, for nstance, up to the outbreak of war, and then we will change our actics. But comrades, we must make preparations beforehand. Mass ctions must be regarded as one of the best means in our struggle. Our tactics must be: to mobilize the masses, to become masters of the treets, to attack again and again the law and order of the bourgeois State and to smash it, to capture the street by revolutionary means, n the strict sense of the word and then to go further. Only on the basis f a whole series of such events and on the basis of the development f these events—mass actions, etc., only through such a process can we prepare ourselves for fiercer and more stubborn mass struggles on larger scale.

Then again in regard to the strike movement and the inadequate eadership of this movement. There have been cases when certain Party organizations did not even know that a strike was brewing in particular factory. We had several cases like this in France.

In regard to the erroneous attitude towards Social Democracy, we have several striking examples of mistakes made by many Parties, in Germany, France, Czechoslovakia, etc. These erroneous political tendencies at times assumed the form of erroneous slogans, mainly in Germany where several comrades issued the slogan: "Control of production," when the necessary revolutionary situation for this did not exist: objectively, this was nothing but a step towards the Social Democratic tactics of "economic democracy," towards adapting ourselves to the system of "industrial peace." Therefore, a slogan which is correct and revolutionary in itself becomes the very opposite if the necessary revolutionary situation does not exist. In such a case it ceases to be merely an erroneous political line. This Right danger is assuming considerable proportions just now, and it is but natural that after smashing the Trotskyist opposition, we must adopt a very definite policy against these Right tendencies and small Right oppositional groupings.

Now is the time to criticize our other shortcomings, to examine them, so to speak, through the microscope. In regard to some Parties we observe that they cannot cope with the newly arisen situation and generally fail to see that something new has occurred. This, for instance, was the case in France when Poincare came into power. We have a similar example in Great Britain when the Labor Party and the General Council of the Trade Union Congress made a complete turn. We witnessed another example of this in Great Britain when a new phase in the correlation of social forces was ushered in. Neither did we react with the necessary rapidity in Germany when the so-called "Burger-Bloc" was formed, etc.

INADEQUATE APPRECIATION OF THE CONCRETE SITUATION.

Thus, in regard to almost everyone of our Parties we must say that it reacts too late to changes in the situation. Even when the situation has already changed our Parties fail to react, or react too late; they issue directive slogans much too late, etc. It seems to me that this applies also to the Comintern and its executive: the Comintern does not always react in good time to new circumstances, new events to a newly arisen situation. Directive slogans are not always issued at the right moment, we are not always prepared and ready at the moment when general fundamental slogans should be issued. It happens sometimes that in one and the same party twenty diverse slogans are brought forward; if twenty slogans are issued simultaneously they lose their significance, the attention of the party is split up in too many directions. It happens sometimes that the leading party organs are unable to coordinate these slogans properly: to group secondary slogans around the most important ones. This is a great defect in our leadership. At times it happens also that slogans, which are in themselves correct, are put into practice without the necessary zest.

On the one hand we issue too many slogans without having a single central slogan. On the other hand we sometimes adopt general revolutionary language, forgetting all about the slogans of every day "routine" work and struggle. The thesis regarding the accentuation of the struggle against social democracy is perfectly correct. The mistake we make is that we do not directly approach the social democratic workers themselves. The more we talk about the errors of the social democratic party, the more we must try to convince the social democratic workers of the correctness of our own policy.

We have not yet learned to link up questions of every day work with our chief aims and tasks. We either talk big about world problems and do nothing to solve every day questions, or we do not get beyond every day questions and forget that it is essential to link them up with big political questions: moreover, in many cases our parties are unable to make a timely and correct appreciation of current events with all their specific implications. Another defect our parties suffer from is that they do not grasp it quickly enough, do not give a clear enough characterization of it and do not always issue an adequate slogan depicting the new situation as a whole. I am dwelling on these defects at length in order that they may be subjected to business-like criticism. It seems to me, particularly since so long a time has elapsed since the last congress, that we must lay stress on these defects and weaknesses of ours also in respect to our Communist International. Take the question of organizational defects, the fact that the carrying out of decisions is not sufficiently controlled. We send out various circulars, open letters and other communications but we do not ascertain if all this has been put into practice. We use up a tremendous amount of paper for all this, but our control over the actual carrying out of our decisions is very weak. We have repeatedly resolved that in regard to this our executive must be truly international and that individual parties must send to the Executive Committee of the Communist International their best representatives for permanent work. Bu up till now this has been merely a pious resolution.

AGAINST FRACTIONAL STRIFE.

I must also lay stress on something else which is perhaps not directly connected with the present question but which is nevertheless of considerable importance to the existence of the Communist Parties. I mean fractional struggle carried on without adequate political reasons and without adequate political justification. The main reasons for this are very complicated; they are to a certain extent connected with historical traditions. In some parties the danger of fractional strife is, in my opinion, so great that it will be necessary to adopt extraordinary measures to combat it. Allow me to give you two examples.

Take the situation within the Yugo-Slav Party. Fractional strife on a big scale went on for seven years and did much harm to the party. At all our recent international conferences, congresses, plenums etc., there was a consensus of opinion that political differences are gradually subsiding. In spite of solemn declarations made that henceforth fractional strife will be brought to a stop, this strife continued, and waxed fiercer and fiercer. The party suffered serious damage not so much as a result of police terrorism as because of internal fractional strife. Reorganization is taking place now on the basis of a complete regrouping within the party itself; a new rank and file and new leders have been created. It was a miracle that the party was saved even by these means. I think we must ponder very deeply over this matter and draw our lesson from it. The crisis within the Yugo-Slav Party which lasted so long has been more or less overcome by means of the extraordinary measures I have already mentioned.

We are now confronted by another danger which is threatening a very big party, namely, the Polish Communist Party. Up to now I have not spoken about individual parties, I merely summed up the various shortcomings of our parties and mentioned some of them as examples. But I consider it my duty to deal separately with the Polish question. In the present situation our Polish Party occupies a very responsible post. Everyone realizes what an important role our brother party in Poland is destined to play in the event of war. The party will become one of the principal forces at the disposal of the Communist International. At the time of the Pilsudski coup d'etat the Polish Party committed a gross and dangerous opportunist error. This error was committed by the leaders of all tendencies without exception. Responsibility for this fundamental opportunist error cannot by any means be placed on the shoulders of any one group, as we, the Comintern, have already declared. At the last Congress of the Communist Party of Poland, which lasted over three months—because on every question and in regard to every incident differences and disputes arose between the two fractions—the representatives of the Comintern were unanimous in declaring that political differences within the Polish Party have been practically reduced to nought. And yet after this congress, the only thing that prevented the disruption of the Polish Party was the extremely strong pressure brought to bear upon it by the executive and the whole Comintern. Had we not intervened there would have been two parties in the Polish Communist movement, notwithstanding that political differences—I say this with a full sense of responsibility—were reduced to a minimum. We must consider that this has been going on recently, in an atmosphere in which the Pilsudski-ites are openly preparing for war; at a time when it is clear to everyone that the insults hurled at Se'm, etc., are not merely the coarse antics of a man who has taken leave of his senses, but a definite Caesarist policy directed first and foremost against the Soviet Union—and I must say that this Caesarist policy is an extremely clever and agile one. Pilsudski-ism has really succeeded in splitting several oppositional parties, it has succeeded in splitting our Ukrainian Party, the opposition in the White Russian Hromada, etc. Finally, in international politics, Pilsudski-ism has carried out successfully a very cunning policy. (A voice from the audience: "It succeeded in innoculating the working class with its policy.") Yes, it succeeded in penetrating into the working class. In fact, it was not our party alone that achieved victories in Poland, a considerable number of Warsaw workers voted for Pilsudski. Our party achieved considerable success in the situation which has arisen: a positively brilliant success. But from the last report received the day before yesterday we learn that there are now two committees in the Warsaw organizations. I do not think that this is a matter that the Communist Party, or the Communist International can be proud of (applause). Comrades, I think—although I did not draw up the draft theses—that the Congress will be unanimous in empowering the Executive Committee to adopt measures that will secure unity. (Loud applause.) It will be far better to have a united party headed by ordinary workers who, in the event of war, will fight boldly as soldiers of the revolution, than to have an organization of leaders who are continually quarreling and who at the moment of extreme danger will ruin our party. (Applause.)

VII. Favorable Perspective.

FORWARD: TO THE STRUGGLE AND TO VICTORY!

Comrades, I have not dwelt so much on our shortcomings because I consider the general situation and the general premises for our activity unsatisfactory or unfavorable. On the contrary. The big political questions, such as the war danger and the situation arising from the ever-growing contradictions in capitalist stabilization, provide us with increasingly favorable ground for our work among the whole working class. That ours is the predominating influence in colonial countries is an indisputable fact, particularly so in China; we are on the eve of it becoming an indisputable fact also in India; our influence is also predominating, beyond dispute, among the working class of west European countries, where we confront them with important questions like the war danger. Therefore, having regard to the accentuation of general contradictions, the accentuation of the inherent contradictions of capitalism and the accentuation of the class struggle, i. e., having regard to the conditions as they exist objectively at present everywhere, the ground and the prospects of our work and our success can be said to be favorable. There is not the slightest ground for saying that technical progress, the partial consolidation of the capitalist organism, the process of capitalist stabilization will break us as the social democrats have prophesised. On the contrary, the more acute these contradictions which are the inevitable concomitant of the present situation become, the wider and the more solid becomes the ground under our feet. When we have learned—and we will of course finally do so—to link up our every day work with important political questions, we will succeed in winning over the broad masses of the working class in the west European countries, we will bring under our influence the labor movement in the big capitalist states and we will be able to link them up with the truly powerful and great historical movement of the oppressed peoples. And when the hour, when imperialism will raise its standard of war, approaches, our Communist International, all our Parties, the great phalanx of the world's workers will be ready to take up the challenge. They will hurl forth the battle-cry of civil war, of a fight to a finish against imperialism. And this battle-cry will be the cry of the Communist International! (Loud and prolonged applause. The delegates rise to their feet and sing the "Internationale.")

Judgment Day Arrives in Dedham, Mass.

"I Know the Sentence Will Be Between the Oppressed and Rich Class"—Vanzetti

By EUGENE LYONS.

(From First Anniversary Memorial Edition of "The Life and Death of Sacco and Vanzetti. International Publishers, New York).

SACCO and Vanzetti were brought into the neatly swept court room at Dedham on April 9, 1927, to hear themselves sentenced to die in the electric chair. The scene was fully illumined; the press of the entire world was represented, millions who felt deeply about the case watched with bated breath. The sentencing was merely a formality, yet it seemed that something might happen....

And something did happen. Vanzetti made a speech to the court. For the great epic of the class struggle there is a prologue ready-made: Bartolomeo Vanzetti and Judge Webster Thayer facing each other in the illumined court room of Dedham.

Judge Thayer on the rostrum of authority, a narrow figure mumbling dead words: Words as cold and precise as corpses. Words disinterred from the morgues of statute and precedent. Words that evoke a musty ingrown past.

And Vanzetti in the prisoner's cage. Alive, far-seeing, reaching out for words to express a new vision, groping for electric words to light up new vistas. Finding words that touch off the imagination and explode the walls of the narrow court room.

Behind Thayer, the dead accumulation of precedent and wealth and privilege, guarded by bayonets. A narrow world that is organized, rigid and unfeeling. Behind Vanzetti, the multitudes, as yet unorganized: the amorphous multitudes, surging forward and retreating and surging further forward, their live bodies and their live hopes against the dead past and its bayonets.

Thayer barricaded by statute books and surrounded by bayonets is yet a weak, shrinking figure, frightened by his own black cowl, by the sinister memories of witch-hangings, by the sting of light on eyes accustomed to shadow. He rises to pronounce the dead formula of death.

"The jury did it," he mumbles, "the jury, not I. The jury and the law and the court—not I. I am just a small sick man about to die."

And Vanzetti standing, it seems alone, but erect and unafraid, speaking with the voice of a million. He, too, pronounces a death verdict. It is directed against the decaying past; not merely against the lonely frightened figure on the rostrum of authority. He speaks for the weak, the despised, the intimidated. Vanzetti does not explain nor apologize. He condemns with words of fire and challenges with the resonance of a million throats.

Thayer—old, worn, dyspeptic, bitter—has come to judge the men in the prisoner's cage. But he shrinks from their words and their gaze. The skeleton clatter of his formula is lost in the echoes of Vanzetti's verdict. For it is Vanzetti—calm, eloquent in the awareness of multitudes speaking thru his voice—who does the judging.

"Nicola Sacco," the clerk asked, "have you anything to say why sentence of death should not be passed upon you?"

Sacco replied that his friend Vanzetti would speak for both.

Nevertheless his feelings got the better of him, and he exclaimed:

"I never knew, never heard, even read in history anything so cruel as this court. After seven years' prosecuting they still consider us guilty.

"I know the sentence will be between two classes, the oppressed class and the rich class, and there will be always collision between one and the other. We fraternize the people with the books, with the literature. You persecute the people, tyrannize them and kill them. We try the education of people always. You try to put a path between us and some other nationality that hates each other. That is why I am here today on this bench, for having been of the oppressed class. Well, you are the oppressor.

"You know it, Judge Thayer—you know all my life, you know why I have been here, and after seven years that you have been persecuting me and my poor wife, and you still today sentence us to death. I would like to tell all my life, but what is the use?"

"Bartolomeo Vanzetti," the clerk repeated, "have you anything to say why sentence of death should not be passed upon you?"

"Yes," Vanzetti replied.

He talked quietly, with a gentle smile, as one talks to children. He paused to find a word in the tongue foreign to him—but the simple homely sentiments which are not in law books came without pauses, from somewhere deep within him.

"What I say," Vanzetti began, "is that I am innocent, not only of the Braintree crime, but also of the Bridgewater crime. That I am not only innocent of these two crimes, but in all my life I have never stolen and I have never killed and I have never spilled blood. That is what I want to say. And it is not all. Not only am I innocent of these two crimes, not only in all my life I have never stolen, never killed, never spilled blood, but I have struggled all my life, since I began to reason, to eliminate crime from the earth.

"Everybody that knows these two arms knows very well that I did not need to go into the streets and kill a man or try to take money. I can live by my two hands and live well. But besides that, I can live even without work with my hands for other people. I have had plenty of chance to live independently and to live what the world conceives to be a higher life than to gain our bread with the sweat of our brow.

"My father in Italy is in a good condition. I could have come back in Italy and he would have welcomed me every time with open arms. Even if I come back there with not a cent in my pocket, my father could have given me a position, not to work but to make business, or to oversee upon the land that he owns.

"...Well, I want to reach a little point farther, and it is this, that not only have I not been trying to steal in Bridgewater, not only have I not been in Braintree to steal and kill and have never stolen or killed or spilt blood in all my life, not only have I struggled hard against crimes, but I have refused myself of what are considered the commodity and glories of life, the prides of a life of a good position, because in my consideration it is not right to exploit man. I have refused to go in business because I understand that business is a speculation on profit upon certain people that must depend upon the business man, and I do not consider that that is right and therefore I refuse to do that.

"Now, I should say that I am not only innocent of all these things, not only have I never committed a real crime in my life—though some sins but not crimes—not only have I struggled all my life to eliminate crimes, the crimes that the official law and the moral law condemns, but also the crime that the moral law and the official law sanction and sanctify—the exploitation and the oppression of the man by the man, and if there is a reason why I am here as a guilty man, if there is a reason why you in a few minutes can doom me, it is this reason and none else.

"There is the best man I ever cast my eyes upon since I lived, a man that will last and will grow always more near to and more dear to the heart of the people, so long as admiration for goodness, for virtues, and for sacrifice will last. I mean Eugene Victor Debs. He has said that not even a dog that kills chickens would have found an American jury disposed to convict it with the proof that the commonwealth has produced against us.

"...He knew, and not only he knew, but every man of understanding in the world, not only in this country but also in other countries, men to whom we have provided a certain amount of the records of the case at times, they all know and still stick with us, the flower of mankind of Europe, the better writers, the greatest thinkers of Europe, have pleaded in our favor. The greatest scientists, the greatest statesmen of Europe have pleaded in our favor.

"Is it possible that only a few, a handful of men of the jury, only two or three other men, who would shame their mother for worldly honor and for earthly fortune; is it possible that they are right against the world? For the whole world has said that it is wrong and I know that it is wrong. If there is one that should know it, if it is right or if it is wrong, it is I and this man. You see, it is seven years that we are in jail. What we have suffered during these years no human tongue can say, and yet you see me before you, not trembling, you see me looking you in your eyes straight, not blushing, not changing color, not ashamed or in fear.

"...We have proved that there could not have been another judge on the face of the earth more prejudiced, more cruel and more hostile than you have been against us. We have proven that. Still they refuse the new trial. We know, and you know in your heart, that you have been against us from the very beginning, before you see us. Before you see us you already know that we were radicals, that we were underdogs, that we were the enemy of the institutions that you can believe in good faith in their goodness—I don't want to discuss that—and that it was easy at the time of the first trial to get a verdict of guilty.

"We know that you have spoken yourself, and have spoke your hostility against us, and your despisement against us with friends of yours on the train, at the University Club of Boston, at the Golf Club of Worcester. I am sure that if the people who know all what you say against us have the civil courage to take the stand, maybe Your Honor—I am sorry to say this because you are an old man, and I have an old father—but maybe you would be beside us in good justice at this time.

"...We were tried during a time whose character has now passed into history. I mean by that, a time when there was a hysteria of resentment and hate against the people of our principles, against the foreigners, against slackers, and it seems to me—rather, I am positive of it, that both you and Mr. Katzmann have done all what it were in your power in order to work out, in order to agitate still more the passion of the juror, the prejudice of the juror, against us.

"...We believe more now than ever that war is wrong, and we are against war more now than ever, and I am glad to be on the doomed scaffold if I can say to mankind, 'Look out; you are in a catacomb of the flower of mankind. For what? All that they say to you, all that they have promised to you—it was a lie, it was an illusion, it was a cheat, it was a fraud, it was a crime. They promised you liberty. Where is liberty? They promised you prosperity. Where is prosperity? They have promised you elevation. Where is the elevation?

"From the day that I went in Charlestown, the misfortunate, the population of Charlestown, has doubled in number. Where is the moral good that the war has given to the world? Where is the spiritual progress that we have achieved from the war? Where are the security of life, the security of the things that we possess for our necessity? Where is the respect for human life? Where are the respect and the admiration for the good characteristics and the good of the human nature? Never before

France, England, Italy Concentrate Armies as Diplomats Go to Sign Kellogg Pact

SECRET TROOP MOVES FEATURE "PEACE" PLANS

Britain, France Hold Joint Maneuvers

By United Press.

PARIS, Aug. 21.—With the signing of the Kellogg anti-war treaty less than a wek away, the armed forces of England, France and Italy are mased in their respective countries, preparing against possible war.

Annual maneuvers are being held by all three countries.

In England, artillery, cavalry, tanks, armored cars and airplanes began their maneuvers on Salisbury Plain today, coinciding with "navy week," during which the people are permitted to inspect navy ships at the various ports. Last week, London was "bombed" unmercifully in sham airplane maneuvers.

French troops are maneuvering with great secrecy this week in the mountains and valleys of that country, while joint Franco-British maneuvers were decided on for the Rhineland, despite protests from Germany.

Italy also is having expensive troop maneuvers.

Meanwhile, preparations went forward here for a great gathering of diplomats to attend the formal signing next Monday of the Kellogg treaty, a movement to end wars of aggression or conquest.

Secretary Kellogg is due on the Ile De France in a few days. He will stop at the home of Myron T. Herrick, United States ambassador to France, Herrick announced today.

Kellogg sent a wireless today saying he was enjoying the trip and in perfect health.

The American embassy announced today that Kellogg would repay the visit of President William T. Cosgrave of the Irish Free State before he returns home. Kellogg probably will leave Havre on the cruiser Detroit on August 29, landing at Queenstown, Ireland.

SOVIET MONGOLS ISSUE DENIAL

Charge Japanese Move to Gain Manchuria

ULAN BATOR, Mongolia, Aug. 21.—In a statement issued today the Mongolian Soviet Republic emphatically denied that it had instigated the revolt in inner Mongolia against the Manchurian government denouncing these reports as propaganda and provocation by the Japanese with a view to gaining a free hand in Manchuria. The government resents the publication of these reports in the Japanese and English press. The statement says in part:

"Lately the foreign press and the radio have announced a people's insurrection in and about Barga. The Japanese press particularly spreads news of this rebellion and in addition reoprts that Mongolian troops are participating.

"The Mongolian Government emphatically denies its participation or the participation of its army in any rebellion. It requests citizens of the republic adequately to controvert these provocative rumors."

AUTOMOBILE-NEW GIANT

Special Forms of Exploiting Workers

By BEN LIFSCHITZ

(This is the fifth in the series of articles on "Automobile—Symbol of Modern Slavery." The preceding articles have covered the scope of the industry, the giant mergers, the driving forces to imperialist war and the competition betwen Ford and the General Motors.)

The automobile industry can truly be designated as the real "American" industry. It marks the highest point of American capitalism in technical development, mass production, concentration of industry, sales methods and financing.

The automobile industry is indeed the pride of American capitalism. At the hearing of the bar association, held in New York, James A. Emery, general counsel of the National Manufacturers Association, pointed to the automobile industry as an example to prove the soundness of the American plan of production, the Open Shop.

"The cost of production is reduced to the minimum and the wages of the workers have been at comparatively high levels." It is working out so well for the capitalists that the manufacturers of the leading European countries: England, Germany and France, are sending over their technicians and efficiency men to study the American plan of production and exploitation. It has also appealed very much to the labor leaders of England and Germany, who have sent over their representatives to study this "millenium," where the accepted slomilenium," where the accepted slogan is "the higher the production, the higher the wage."

Greatest Exploitation.

A careful study of conditions, however, will convince any observer that nowhere is the exploitation of the worker so sharp as in the automobile industry, notwithstanding the fact that the average production for the individual worker is so high.

The economists term this acute form of exploitation as "various forms of wage payments"—but the workers in the automobile industry know from bitter experience that all these various forms of wage payments are introduced to squeeze out every atom of energy in order to produce more and more work for the same money and most of the time for less.

Speed-up is manifested in various ways: Piece-work is one of the systems evolved by the employing class to increase production by giving the workers a certain price per piece. The more pieces they turn out, the more they get up to a certain point. Under this system many bosses may be dispensed with. Time-study men are employed to walk around with a stop-watch and observe different operations. When they think that a worker is making his money too easily, or getting too much for the operation, his piecework is cut down and the worker must work all the harder to catch up.

Then the conveyer line may be screwed up a little faster. The steam may even be turned low in winter to keep the workers a bit chilly and, hence, more in the mood to move faster at the machine. Raising the task of the individual worker or the group is the most common speed-up system.

The Whip—Fear.

The lay-off method, or the mere rumor of lay-offs, may be used to put fear in the hearts and hands. Under the stimulus, they give closer attention to the belt. The workers' names and production records may be put on a black-board and competition encouraged. The gang or group piece-work system may be used.

This makes the workers boss each other. Each realizes that the harder he pushes the other fellow the more the return to each other under the gang payment system.

The department percentage scheme is practiced in the Hudson Motor Car Company, where the company guarantees 200 per cent of the day rate, provided the work is done in a given time. However, the workers are ignorant as to the rates. This company practices schemes of reduction of forces, expecting the smaller group of workers to produce the same amount of work.

The "Buick Worker" tells how the gang system works in plant No. 66. When a new man comes in, instead of the company paying him day rate while he breaks in on the job, the workers (the gang) have to pay him out of their own small wages.

At the Chevrolet plant in Flint, Mich., they hire in some departments at a flat rate of 42 cents an hour, promising a bonus which will run them up to 65-70 cents in three months. They increase the bonus in the first few days and then fire them out before they reach the high bonus.

Ford Conveyor System

Above are two views of the conveyor system bringing parts and materials to the workers who stand still at their task.

Group Piece-Work.

In the Fisher Body plants the group piece-work system is now developed into a still further form of exploitation, best illustrated by one of the Fisher Body shops in Cleveland. Here they hire the workers at a basic day rate, fluctuating between 55 and 70 cents an hour. The company has designated for itself a certain rate for the operation. The company allows the workers to make one dollar an hour. The work is given out in lots, which take between 1½ weeks and two weeks to perform. This lot, say, of 100 fenders, is to be finished in a certain time in order to get the dollar an hour. This group of workers, however, do not get its bonus at the end of each week, but when the lot is completed. If the worker is laid off, or quits himself, he gets only his day rate. They use the same form of group system in the Sterns-Knight plant of Cleveland. In the Chandler Cleveland Motors Corporation the same group system is used. The workers do not know what they make every day. They only find out what they make on their bonus at the end of a pay period of two weeks.

The extent to which this group system demoralizes the workers, and makes them drive one another, could best be shown by the peculiar strike which broke out in the crank shaft department of the Buick Motor Company, where the gang demanded of the superintendent that two workers that were not fast enough to keep up a high speed of production should be taken out from the gang!

The Ford Company does not use this system. Instead of giving the man extra money for more production, Ford pays this money to a large gang of bosses and straw bosses, who keep razzing the men all the time. These "drivers" have received many millions of dollars, in the past, as bonuses and they, in turn, saw to it that Ford got it back many times over from the sweat and blood of the workers.

Evolve New Schemes.

But with the increased competition in the industry the Ford Company has evolved new schemes. One of the favorite ways of cutting wages is known as the "systematic Ford plan." "The Ford Worker" of June, 1928, tells the story:

"A herd of hunting dogs of the service department are placed under the direction of a specially trained hound bearing the license number, Star 262. These animals roam over the plant, hunting for some worker they can send to the employment office for talking, or wiping the filth off his hands before the bell rings, running to the lunch wagon or walking away from his machine towards the tool crib. These dogs take your number and send you to the employment office, where you are usually fired. This is invariably the case if you happen to be getting above $7 a day. Then you are replaced by a man standing for $5 a day or by a student at 25 cents an hour."

In the horse-shoe department, B building, Fordson, as throughout the whole plant, it is reported by many workers that boys getting around 35 cents an hour are being hired. The company feeds them a lot of taffy and calls them "students." They are expected to turn out as much production as the higher paid man next to them. They are promised a raise if they make good. The bosses "forget" about it. The one thing they never forget is "step on it"—more production, speed-up, raise the standard of efficiency. These boys are being used to beat down the wages of the men.

Systematic Terror.

This story of a superintendent, printed in the "Auto Workers News," June, 1928, will give the reader an idea of the systematic terror which is used by the various companies to speed up production and to transform the worker into a real slave:

In one of the biggest departments of the River Rouge plant, production was running smoothly. In fact, more production was being turned out by this particular superintendent than by any of the others. Nevertheless an efficiency expert one day walked over to him and told him to fire fifteen men. "Which fifteen men?" asked the head of the department. "Oh, any fifteen will do." "And the reason?" asked the superintendent. "You don't have to give any reasons," was the reply. "Well, even if I don't give the men a reason, I want to know why just the same," insisted the speaker.

"Very well, then, I'll tell you," said the efficiency expert. "You are too friendly with the men. We have noticed that when you go through the department no one is afraid of you. No one is more on the alert, more uneasy and trying to work harder than before. It is different in the other departments. Any one can tell when the superintendents are passing through. The men are all uneasy and trying to goad themselves to the maximum effort. All the men think the heads of their departments are son —— ——s."

"Are you not satisfied with the production record here?" asked the superintendent. "That part is quite O. K.," was the reply.

Unusual Foreman.

The superintendent then stated, "Henry Ford may be able to make what he wants out of other men, but he is not going to make a son —— —— out of me. I quit."

Something like the above story could be told about executives in the Fisher Body, Pontiac plant, and in other plants of the automobile industry. It illustrates the labor policy of this industry. Manufacturers don't want leaders, they want slave-drivers. They don't want workers to have any spirit of independence and self-respect, they want obedient, docile slaves.

The process of acceleration of production, of speed-up never stops. Here are a few examples. A Dodge worker writes that "in the Duco work we now spray the Victory Six with two coats instead of one, and at the same price." A Packard man writes, "In the body division we used to do six jobs a day. Now we do eight, and 20 per cent. of the men have been laid off. And in the hood painting department of the same plant they used to turn out 16 jobs a day. Now 38 are required. And of course several men were fired."

Race-Track Speed.

At the Ford plants, most famous for their race-track speed, the soldering department has increased production from 35 to 80 pieces per hour in one year. At one of the Fisher Body plants where they used to make 150 to 160 bodies a day, they now finish from 235 to 240 with the same number of men on the job. At the Hudson plant they more than doubled the output for the same number of men in one year, at the same time reducing the wage an average of 10 cents an hour. (Auto Workers News, June, 1928.)

A worker from Briggs writes: "We're still speeding up plenty these days, on a piece work basis. Just as soon as we increase our efficiency, we're due for a cut in prices. Men still start at the average wage of 45 cents per hour, and women at 35 cents per hour.

On a certain operation a man has to handle 4,500 doors to make $8, and on another operation 12,000 pieces of metalstrips must be put through the rolls to earn the same amount of money. There is everything here to make a worker feel that he is in prison: hard labor, slave-drivers and hard-boiled guards.

Set Women Against Men.

Another way used to cut wages is by replacing men with women. In the core-making department of Plant No. 20, men working for $5-$7 a day are now being replaced by women, who are paid only $3-$4 a day and often less for doing the same work.

The process of acceleration of production as shown above, is proceeding at an ever increasing pace. This in conjunction with the fact that that the automobile market is nearing the saturation point, is producing ever increasing unemployment in the industry.

With the development of so many new styles, the manufacturers are very careful to keep up production as nearly as possible to the orders placed for given season. This leads to a situation where work is becoming more seasonal and the duration of the seasons much shorter.

In the next article, we will deal with the phase covering health conditions, wages, hours and profits.

JUGOSLAV NOTE WILL STIR UP MORE ANGER

Dalmatian Workers in Rage at Pact

ZAGREB, Yugoslavia, Aug. 21.—The note of the Belgrade government to the Italian government promising it the full satisfaction for the recent anti-Italian incidents in Sebenico and Spalato, is expected to lead to further demonstrations against the Nettuno pact and the Belgrade regime in Dalmatia and Croatia.

The note was sent as an apology for the demonstrations of workers, peasants and students in Spalato and Sebenico when Jugoslav workers were discharged from Italian factories to make way for imported Italians, as provided for in the Nettuno pact.

The demonstrations grew to serious proportions in Sebenico, where windows of Italian shops were reported smashed, an attempt was made to storm the Italian consulate and Italian sailors, who attempted to break the demonstration, were attacked.

All-Opposition Coalition.

BELGRADE, Jugoslavia, Aug. 21.—The formation of an all-nationality opposition coalition is indicated by latest reports from Zagreb, where the Croation peasant party and democratic party leaders have already formed a coalition.

Dissident members of the Belgrade parliament, notably the few remaining Croatian representatives, some deputies of the Serbian peasant party and of the German minority are expected to join the Croats and Dalmatian parties against the Belgrade regime. Ivo Milich, the Croatian member of the government "radical" party, has already given up his membership and joined the Croatian peasant party.

welcoming the attitude of the Communist International was unanimously adopted. It was decided to hold the next congress of the League in Paris at the end of July, 1929.

At the Sunday session General Denyanda, Madame Drevet, and the representative of the Communist Party, Tchaukai spoke. Saklavala analyzed the situation in India, Drevet on Indo-China, Mohammed Hatta on Indo-Asia.

On the motion of the British delegation a sharp resolution against the second international's decision regarding India was adopted. In his closing speech Maxton, of the Independent Labor Party, sverely attacked the second international's decision against participation in the Anti-Imperialist League.

"...Well, I have already said that I not only am not guilty of these two crimes, but I never committed a crime in my life. "I have finished. Thank you."

Then Judge Thayer rose to speak. He rose to pronounce sentence of death. But first he paused to apologize. He paused to exhibit a stainless legal conscience—and his thin voice trembled.

"Under the law of Massachusetts," he began, "the jury says whether a defendant is guilty or innocent. The court has absolutely nothing to do with that question. The law of Massachusetts provides that a judge cannot deal in any way with the facts. As far as he can go under our law is to state the evidence.

"During the trial many exceptions were taken. Those exceptions were taken to the Supreme Judicial Court. That court, after examining the entire record, after examining all the exceptions—that court in its final words said, 'The verdict of the jury should stand; exceptions overruled.' That being true there is only one thing that this court can do. It is not a matter of discretion. It is a matter of statutory requirement, and that being true there is only one duty that now devolves upon this court, and that is to pronounce the sentence.

"It is considered and ordered by the court that you, Nicola Sacco, suffer the punishment of death by the passage of a current of electricity thru your body within the week beginning on Sunday, the tenth day of July, in the year of our Lord one thousand, nine hundred and twenty-seven. This is the sentence of the law.

"It is considered and ordered by the court that you, Bartolomeo Vanzetti..."

Vanzetti: "Wait a minute, please, Your Honor. May I speak a minute with my lawyer, Mr. Thompson?"

Thompson: "I do not know what he has to say."

Thayer: "I think I should pronounce the sentence. Bartolomeo Vanzetti, suffer the punishment of death..."

Sacco (interrupting): "You know I am innocent. Those are the same words I pronounced seven years ago. You condemn two innocent men."

Thayer: "...by the passage of a current of electricity thru your body within the week beginning on Sunday, the tenth day of July, in the year of our Lord, one thousand nine hundred and twenty-seven. This is the sentence of the law."

BRITISH; U. S. RUBBER RIVALS AGREE TO MEET

Huge Boost Planned in Prices

AMSTERDAM, Holland, Aug. 21 (UP).—The Dutch rubber committee announced today that British producers are ready to co-operate in a proposed conference with American manufacturers to stabilize the industry.

In a circular to producers, the committee said the British were not willing to send delegates to the United States, however, and added that negotiations with Belgian and French producers had resulted in no agreement.

The circular added that in response to a request for mediation, the Dutch minister at Washington replied that although the American consumers would not take the responsibility for inviting the Dutch, they are ready to deliberate if the latter formulate definite proposals.

M'COY SATISFIED WITH NICARAGUA

MANAGUA, Aug. 21.—General Frank McCoy, American supervisor of the elections in Nicaragua this fall, has returned from a twelve-day tour of the country and reports himself satisfied with the progress of the American occupation throughout the country.

He said further that the Nicaraguan national guard, officered by American marines, was replacing the police in many towns and was doing "effective work."

MAN INJURED, ROBBED.

ASHLAND, Pa., Aug. 21 (UP).—James Lewis of New York was in the state hospital here today in serious condition from injuries received when he was held up and robbed early this morning.

National Biscuit Co. Cuts Wages and Speeds Up Thousands of Workers in Plants

HANdOuTS

The baloney battle between the comic fundamentalist, Rev. John Roach Straton, who believes the world was constructed in a week of stupid labor on the part of God, and the odorous Tammanyite, Al Smith, seems to be a draw. The first round was undoubtedly won by the Rev. Straton when Al Smith refused to answer in a public hall the preacher's charges that he was a high-powered vice generator. One of Al's seconds, the Daily World, revived the reeling governor with a bucket of water when it sent one of its inquiring photographers to the Rev. Straton's Sterling Forest Hotel at Greenwood Lake, New York. Here the newspaperman found a speakeasy in a flourishing condition. The preacher with the insect's name thereupon countered with the remark that all reporters on the World are a "pack of liars," which is probably correct as a general estimate. However, the bootlegger maintains that he pays his rent only with the money that comes over the bar.

Byrd Dog

Commander Richard Babyface Byrd who was recently stored in the rear end of a trans-Atlantic plane and transported to France now expects to be shipped into the Antarctic regions by the aid of a lot of unknown workers. The capitalists just adore expeditions such as Byrd's. It spreads the air psychology and keeps the workers' minds off the main ideas. Above is Dr. David E. Buckingham who selected one hundred dogs for Byrd. Byrd himself has contributed to the success of the expedition in the past few weeks by getting beauty treatments, speaking at Rotary luncheons and being photographed in a new starched uniform.

Jordan Puets celebrated his 94th birthday in Milwaukee recently by chopping wood. The U. S. S. R. has a place for aged workers, but it isn't near a wood-pile. It's in a quiet spot in one of the palaces hurriedly vacated by the parasitical noblemen who are now gaining a livelihood in Paris sponging dishes and trying to pass checks on Czarist banks.

Alive and Useless

Under that ridiculous system of living known as capitalism, the more you give to society the less you get. In fact a worker doesn't worry nearly as much about having a pleasant old age as having some. A worker is lucky if he lives until he is 45 without having something fall on him. Then he may wake up any morning and find his lungs gone. On the other hand you have a social leech like John D. Rockefeller hanging onto life until he is 89. His value to society isn't past, it never existed. He wouldn't know now which end of a broom to sweep a floor with. His idea of generosity is to relieve the working class of a million and give a street urchin a new dime whenever a cameraman is around.

Gems of Learning

Major General Henry T. Allen: "I think Governor Smith appeals to the soldiers."

He is appealing to everybody, but the question is will he get any response.

Ramsay MacDonald: "Wages and hours of labor are tremendously important, but do not let us forget that we also have to stand by the beauties of our country so that our children and grandchildren may enjoy them."

Tell it to the millions of unemployed who have such a hard time appreciating beauty on an empty stomach.

EXPLOITATION OF WORKERS GAINS $8,500,000 PROFIT

Correspondent Urges Reading of 'Daily'

(By a Worker Correspondent)

We workers of the National Biscuit Company work only four and a half days a week. We are forced to take a "vacation one day every week regardless of whether we want it or not, as we are being laid off by the company every Monday. And you know what that means. It means that the majority of us workers can hardly keep going till the end of the week on such reduced, meagre wages.

The cause of all this is the horrid speed-up system of the company. We work all day like horses and if we are not finished with the work we are overtaxed with at the end of the day we are compelled to stay on the job and finish even if it takes half an hour to do it.

Wages Cut Continually.

The cutting of wages and laying off of workers is continually going on. The wages of the packers have been reduced from 24 dollars to 22 and 21 dollars per week. Some packers are getting as low as 14 dollars a week, which is just enough to starve on. Also we are very often compelled to go to other departments and do various jobs which should be done by other workers. The bosses say that this is necessary, because there is not enough work, if so, why do they have a sign up "girls wanted?" While we are being laid off our company has piled up nearly $8,500,000 protit for the first six months of this year. The company also bought a new large plant, the Christie, Brown Co. of Canada. The only way we could improve our condition of work and get higher wages for our work is to organize ourselves and protect our interests. If we do not do it ourselves, surely the company will not do it for us. There is one paper in this country that is ready and willing to help us fight to improve our conditions.

BOMBAY TIED UP BY HUGE STRIKE

Troops in North Meet Peasant Resistance

Works. The action was in protest against an ultimatum of the directors refusing to re-employ some of the men who already had walked out.

The movement was sponsored by Haschandra Bose, leader of the Bengal Swarajists and new president of the Jamshedpur Labor Association.

Industrial unrest appeared today to be spreading through India. The English language press blames Communism. A manifesto was reported to have been sent to the Central Committee of the Communist Party in India by M. N. Roy, exiled Communist, advocating the establishment of a Communist nucleus in every factory and agricultural district to "attack the landlord system and overthrow capitalism."

(By United Press.)

BOMBAY, India, Aug. 21.—Workers in the Bombay area of the great Indian Peninsula Railroad are threatening to strike, it was reported today. The strike in the locomotive shops of the Guaranteed State Railroads at Nizam, Hyderabad, spread to enginemen and other workers.

The Times of India, in an article calling attention to the recent strike on the South India Railway, said the government must take steps to "check Communist mischief before it destroys the peace of the land."

Mill Strike Spreads.

The Bombay mill strike, already in its fourth month, has affected Madras workers, where a strike was called in the Choolai mills in protest against the double loom system.

There has been much talk in the press of a threatened "revolution," and the government was called on by several papers to step in.

Troops in Bombay.

BOMBAY, Aug. 21.—British detachments, with armored car and airplane support, have arrived in the northern part of the Bombay presidency, and the peasants, who have been peacefully resisting the efforts of collectors to gather taxes there, are massing along the roads to prevent the troops from occupying confiscated lands. The lands have been taken over by the peasants against government orders and worked and harvested.

Butler Knocks Hoover But Decides That He Will Support G. O. P.

Hoover's position on prohibition and naval armaments were criticized yesterday by Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, one of the wet leaders of the republican party and president of Columbia University, in a letter made public yesterday.

Butler, however, at his summer home in Southampton, L. I., hastily denied that he had intended to make any statement that a "good republican" would not make, indicating that he would support the G. O. P. reactionary program "in spite of its faults."

CHINA WORKERS HELP MOONEY AND BILLINGS

Leaders at Red Meet Cable Labor Defense

A message of working class solidarity, proclaiming the intention of the working class leaders in China to carry on the fight against the white terror and oppression of the Nanking regime was received here by the International Labor Defense from the Chinese delegation to the Sixth World Congress of the Communist International at Moscow. Thec cablegram follows:

"The Chinese delegation of the Sixth Congress of the Communist International sends to all working class prisoners in the United States its fervent greetings. We swear to fight our common battle with renewed energy.

(Signed) "Li Kwang, chairman of the Chinese Delegation."

GIANTS HOLD LEAD; YANKS AND A'S WIN

The Brooklyn Robins spoiled St. Louis' chance to return to first place in the National League race Tuesday by beating them 6 to 1, after the New York Giants had dropped a 3 to 2 decision to Cincinnati.

The Robins clinched their victory over the Cardinals with a run in the fifth inning with the score tied at one all. They added four runs in the ninth for their margin of victory. Doug McWeeney held the Cards to three hits.

Cincinnati scored all their runs in the second inning and the Giants were unable to overtake them, despite Terry's home run in the ninth. Red Lucas pitched excellent ball, allowing the Giants only five hits.

The New York Yankees maintained their lead of 5½ games over the second place Philadelphia Athletics Tuesday by defeating St. Louis, 3 to 1, in a pitching dual. With Sam Gray pitching for the Browns and Waite Hoyt on the mound for New York, the game proved a thriller from the first. New York's two runs in the second were enough to win, but not until Hoyt had pitched the Yanks out of some very tight spots.

Philadelphia, in contrast, had no trouble disposing of Cleveland, 12 to 4. The Athletics scored 6 runs in the first inning and held a lead of 12-0 before Cleveland rallied with four runs in the eighth. Four Cleveland pitchers opposed the ancient and victorious Jack Quinn.

nominating them on the Communist ticket and by demanding complete social and political equality for them. Davis urged the Negro workers to quit the republican and democratic parties, both now parties of slavery, agents of Wall Street and both equally responsible for the lynching of Negroes in the South and the general discrimination against Negroes throughout the United States.

Workers From All Parts.

Roy Stephens declared that a ratification convention was the most representative of Nebraska workers ever held in the state. He scored Senator Norris and Norman Thomas, the Socialist candidate, as supporters and defenders of the capitalist system.

Prior to the ratification convention the workers had already collected the necessary number of signatures to place the Party ticket on the ballot in the state.

William Z. Foster will speak in Omaha on Sept. 29 and Benjamin Gitlow on Oct. 22.

Sacco and Vanzetti

One year ago, in the death house of Charlestown prison were fitted the steel head-pieces of the electric chair upon the heads of the two Italian laborers whose names are now the best-known Italian names and the best-loved in the entire world.

The historical moment in the United States called for a savage blow against the militant section of the working class (and thus of course against the working class as a whole); it was "sound policy" from the capitalist point of view to murder Sacco and Vanzetti. Also the international situation made it psychologically necessary and a "sound policy" to throw the murdered bodies of the two Italian laborers into the faces of the score of Latin-American and European nations whose masses had dared to "meddle" in the case. By throwing the dead bodies onto the world-stage American imperialism said: "Who is master in this world?"

Millions of workers, raised under the sodden slave-philosophy given them through every channel of capitalist culture, believe in the everlasting character of the capitalist society, believe also in the one great, abstract justice, rising in godly grandeur above human affairs, uninfluenced by class conflicts and dealing even-handedly with all men—a theological conception, one of the most important in the ideological structure of the capitalist system.

From the very insistence of the capitalist authorities that the killing of Sacco and Vanzetti represented "justice," the working class begins to get a new understanding of what "justice" is. In the course of long and painful months the working class of the world has had it burned upon its minds that the murder of two innocent workers as an act symbolizing the mastery of the capitalist class over the working class, is "justice." Yes, justice, in a capitalist order, means murder. Justice means perjury and bribery, lying, swindling and murder or anything else which will under the circumstances tend to uphold the present order of society, the capitalist society of exploitation.

Sacco and Vanzetti received the only kind of justice there is in this country. It is the only kind of justice that can exist in a capitalist country. Evidence has nothing to do with political trials, except fictitious evidence employed to maintain the illusions of the masses. It is demonstrated that evidence had nothing to do with the Sacco-Vanzetti case. All concerned know beyond a shadow of doubt that both were innocent. The only question was: "What outcome will best benefit the social order of capitalist property?" As the spokesman of the whole United States capitalism, Thayer answered: "To hang these anarchist bastards."

If Sacco and Vanzetti are not to have died in vain, then we are duty bound to bring sharply to the minds of the working class just what their deaths mean. We must make the workers understand that in the murder of these innocent men there was nothing inconsistent with the administration of capitalist laws, but that the murder was the most typical, characteristic action of the legal system of capitalism in general, and of the United States in particular. It was an act of the class struggle.

The workers must learn the class nature of capitalist institutions. They must learn that there is no justice in the skies above, but that capitalist "justice" resides in the filthy little person of a Judge Thayer, sitting in a little court house administering a man-made system which has the purpose of preserving a certain form of property-relationships and social organization.

Justice, in a class society, can only be class justice.

Besides the capitalist class justice that Sacco and Vanzetti received, there is only one other justice existing in the world today. It also is class justice, but of another class. It is the justice of the revolutionary tribunals of the working class, set up by free workers to try such criminals as Thayer and Fuller. Such justice of the working class exists only in the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics—for the present. It will come later throughout the world.

Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti were anarchists. Today there is practically nothing remaining of proletarian revolutionary composition in the anarchist movement. But Sacco and Vanzetti died as revolutionists, and their fearlessness and loyalty are the pride of the revolutionary working class of the world. Nicola and Bartolomeo belonged to the revolution, and the accrued result of their martyrdom is a strong ligament in the mighty body of revolution. What form does the revolution take? A form which the two martyrs could not see, but which nevertheless their martyrdom will help to strengthen.

Vanzetti and Sacco were revolutionists in that they believed in and fought for the realization of a free society—free from exploitation of man by man—and in that they trusted to the working class to bring that change by class struggle. Their aim was a society without government of compulsion—a state-less society. Insofar as this alone is concerned they were correct, but the methods of the long struggle to attain their aims were lost for them in a confusion of idealistic thinking.

All of the hard and cruel facts of the murder of Sacco and Vanzetti demonstrated with ruthless logic exactly the flaws that exist in the anarchist views they held. The central point is the question of the state. Nothing more than the unswerving murderous course of the American capitalist class and its institutions in the Sacco-Vanzetti case, proves that the working class cannot accomplish the overthrow and suppression of the present ruling class without, first, the revolutionary organization and mass discipline and second, the ruthless dictatorship of the victorious proletariat. Nothing better proves that the proletariat cannot win its struggle without the organization of the firmest elements of the proletariat in the revolutionary party of the Communist revolution.

If Sacco and Vanzetti are not to have died in vain, the working class must learn from their martyrdom some knowledge useful for destroying the system that murdered them, and for attaining the free society of which they dreamed.

They must learn the nature of the capitalist state, an instrument for the suppression of a class by another class, and not an "impartial" institution above the classes, serving all "equally."

They must learn that for the realization of the ideals of Sacco and Vanzetti, this capitalist class must be overthrown and must be ruthlessly suppressed by the power of the working class itself organized as a revolutionary state power of the new form of workers' councils—soviets.

And above all they must learn to fight, and to fight with the iron discipline of class loyalty and revolutionary organization which alone can lead to victory and free society, and vengeance for Sacco and Vanzetti.

They must learn that the building of the revolutionary Communist Party is the immediate answer to the murder of labor's martyrs.

CAMPAIGN CORNER

Now, let us see what our campaign organizers are doing. Sidney Bloomfield, campaign manager for the New England states, writes:

"Winfield A. Dwyer has invaded New Hampshire to collect signatures on our petitions. Comrade Walter Paanenen of West Concord, New Hampshire, is actively engaged in this task, and is covering the nearby towns of Hilford, Wilton and Concord. He has just ordered a shipment of Party Platforms. Comrades Chase and Iram, both of whom are Party candidates in New Hampshire, have just covered several points, including Newport, Claremont and Stoddard. Dwyer is scheduled to go to Manchester, where the great Amoskeag Mills are located. We are arranging a Weisbord tour and making arrangements for the Foster-Gitlow meetings. But the main job will be done by local speakers, whom we are planning to utilize to the utmost."

Comrade Benjamin, organizer for District 3, sends in the following communique:

"The Party office in District 3 is in receipt of a contribution of $10 to the $100,000 Communist Campaign Fund from Joseph Chilofsky, a member of the Electrical Workers' Union. This worker states that he sends this contribution from the first pay he has received after several months of unemployment, as his answer to the brutalities of the police, whom he witnessed arresting a speaker at an open-air meeting. Other contributions have been received by the district office from the Ruthenberg Branch of the Independent Workmen's Circle, which sent $5, the first installment of a $25 pledge which they have made. The North Philadelphia branch of the Workers Club sent in $10 through their delegate to the enlarged campaign committee which has been formed in this city."

The Face of the Workers Enemy

Sacco and Vanzetti Will Live in Workers' Hearts as Labor Martyrs

By MOISSAYE J. OLGIN

We stood with lowered heads before the graves of Sacco and Vanzetti. They died the heroic death of revolutionary fighters. They died irreconcilable enemies of the capitalist order. Their methods of struggle may only partly approach mass proletarian action, yet they gave the working class an example of men rising to immense spiritual heights in defiance of the most formidable foe with death staring in the face. Their death is saturated with the essence of greatness.

> "Our words—our lives—nothing! The taking of our lives—lives of a good shoemaker and a poor fish peddler—all! That last moment belongs to us—that agony is our triumph!"

In Hearts of Workers.

The working class has taken the two martyrs to its heart. The workers of the world see in those two victims, picked out at random by the ruling class from among all its opponents, an example of strength, courage, humaneness so widespread among the exploited masses. One, a man of iron; the other a man of dreamy softness; one, a silent and stubborn recluse; the other a poet opening his heart to all the winds; one, in Vanzetti's words, "a man, a lover of nature and mankind, a man of action"; the other, in his own words, "a living hurricane of thoughts, feelings and sentiments." Both made of that metal that breaks but does not bend.

We pay our heart's tribute to the dead martyred friends, but our eyes are turned to the living foe. Our Sacco-Vanzetti memorials must give the workers a clear picture of the rulers under whom we are compelled to live. The conviction and execution of the two victims shed a lurid light on the state of mind of concentrated capital which is the law of this land.

Part of Class Struggle.

The liberals and socialists are wont to blame the "Massachusetts courts." To them it is an "unfortunate episode" which one ought to remember for the sake of history and in the name of justice. To the workers this is not an accident and not an isolated case. To the workers it only reveals in one flash the face of the enemy which they see every day in less tragic but no less significant encounters.

The Massachusetts courts do not stand alone. Judge Thayer did not care whether the "bastards" were guilty or not, but how many judges in every state of the union care to know the innocence or guilt of labor fighters brought before their bench?

Guilty Because Militant.

Sacco and Vanzetti were found guilty because they dared to challenge the existing system; thousands of strikers, strike organizers, labor agitators, are found guilty everywhere in the United States for the sole reason that they fight the manufacturers and financiers. The most outrageous law violation was perpetrated against two peaceful, radical workers, but does any state or any city of this country follow its own laws when it comes to workers fighting for a better life? Sacco and Vanzetti fell the victims of a crudely executed "frame-up," but does anybody know the number of "frame-ups" employed everywhere against workers seized on the picket line, against workers distributing class literature, against speakers denouncing Wall Street? With grim determination the millionaire governor of Massachusetts upheld the criminal action of his judges, but isn't it the conviction of every governor, every cabinet member, every president, that the "law" must be upheld under all circumstances once its edge is directed against the working class? Lowell, Grant and Stratton, representing the "intelligentsia" of the country, proved as biased and as hostile to Sacco and Vanzetti as was the judge himself; but isn't the average American college president, editor, engineer or lawyer full of the same class prejudice and class hatred as that famous trinity?

Massachusetts Not Alone.

Massachusetts does not stand alone. Sacco and Vanzetti are no "unfortunate exception" to the rule. It is time for the working class, for all of us, to realize that there is no liberty for the working class in this country; that the struggling, unsatisfied worker is deprived of all the so-called constitutional guarantees; that he is confronted by a solid wall of the organized state power that does not shirk before the most hideous crime; that in this respect his position is hardly better, and in many instances it is even worse, than it was in Russia under the czar after 1905.

The working class must see the enemy's face. It will then realize that it can rely on nothing but its own organized force.

Garvey, Negro Misleader, As a Democrat

"Blind Moses" Takes Bosses' Gold to Betray Workers of His Race

By OTTO E. HUISWOOD

Marcus Garvey, the "blind" Negro "Moses," "Provisional President" of Africa, has for once turned his attention to American domestic politics. This sponsor of the "Back to Africa" movement and the naive philosophy of Negroes voluntarily isolating themselves from their natural allies, the class-conscious workers of all countries, has at last seen a light—the glitter of gold. He is now championing the cause of the democratic party and Al Smith, the arch-enemies of the Negro masses.

It is rather curious that Garvey, who during the many years of his activities in the United States spurned all active participation in the struggles of the masses for the improvement of their condition in America has now aligned himself with the party of slavery and the lynching bee. But, for Mr. Garvey, principles and consistency do not exist. His policies are rather based on a catch-as-catch-can philosophy.

A Different Song.

A few years back Marcus Garvey addressed a letter to a number of white business men and prominent public officials, soliciting their aid, morally and financially for the purpose of repatriating Negroes to Africa. He had an interview with Simmons, the then Imperial Wizard of the Ku Klux Klan, and the subject of his conversation with this Grand Cyclops, was to the effect that this is a white man's country, that the white man was entitled to his supremacy here, but, on the other hand, Africa was the home of the black race, and that he should be aided in establishing a nation of his own on that continent. Today he is singing a different song.

In the "Negro World" of July 28, Marcus Garvey says: "Once more the time has come for the American Negro to use his ballot wisely in the interest of domestic politics and supremely in the interests of the black race." And he proceeds to tell his readers that they must vote for Al Smith, "not because the democratic party has been more kindly disposed toward the Negro than the republican party, but because Hoover represents a gang of politicians who mean absolutely nothing good to the black man in America nor anywhere else for that matter."

The inference from this statement is no doubt that the democratic politicians do mean some good to the Negro. Do they not hang and burn him at the stake, and is not jim-crowism, disfranchisement, segregation, and peonage the law in the South—the stronghold of the democratic party? And what does it matter to Mr. Garvey, if Robert Powell is lynched in Houston, Texas, just at the time of the national convention of the democratic party and only a few miles from the convention hall? Does the fact that Negro visitors to the democratic convention were placed aside like lepers in a cage-like structure mean anything to the "Moses"?

Raskob and DuPont.

Garvey opposes Hoover and the republican party, because he was convicted for using the mails to defraud and deported under a republican administration, and because "this Mr. Hoover in this our present century has come upon the scene to assist big American interests to reduce Liberia to slavery, the slavery from which Abraham Lincoln freed us in America in 1865."

It is evident that Marcus Garvey, the leader, believes in the myth that Abraham Lincoln freed the Negro. This proves his complete ignorance of the social conflict at that time, which made it imperative that chattel slavery, a primitive system of production, be abolished and make way for wage slavery. Besides, it is apparent that he entertains the illusion that the democratic party is the party of the "small businessman." He has no doubt never heard of John J. Raskob, Pierre DuPont, and the other financial magnates who are the power behind the democrats and who have just as great an interest in the subjugation of Liberia.

In speaking of the occupation of Haiti, Garvey says: "It is true that it was under Woodrow Wilson's regime that America assumed control of Haiti, but Woodrow Wilson never intended Haiti to be exploited as the republican party has done." But Mr. Garvey does not tell us of his secret information as to how Wilson and the democratic party intended that Haiti should be exploited. Here he exposes himself as the apologist of Wilson and the democratic party in their armed intervention in Haiti and the slaughtering of thousands of poor, defenseless workers. The one thing that that the democratic administration he does not dare tell his readers is that under democratic administration the National City Bank and other big interests will not exploit Haiti.

He knows too well that no Negro, not even the biggest moron in his organization, would believe that. But let Mr. Garvey tell us the real reason for his endorsement of the democrats: " . . . and it is now time for every Negro to vote for Al Smith and the democratic party, so that we may expect something of service in return for the support given whole-heartedly." What is this "something of service" that "we may expect in return"?

Betrays Negroes.

Marcus Garvey stands revealed as one of those misleaders who for some paltry consideration is ready to aid in riveting the chain of oppression on the Negro masses. His endorsement of the democratic party, the party of the solid south, with its policy of violent repression of the Negro workers, is a base betrayal of the Negro race. This blatant clown has placed the stamp of approval on the business interests who thrive upon the exploitation and enslavement of the Negro masses.

Through the bitter experience of every-day struggle the Negro will learn that both the democratic and republican parties are the agencies of the employing class, which exploits both black and white workers and whose policy it is to keep the Negro at the bottom of capitalist society. The Negro workers must learn that both parties stand for the same thing—lynching, segregation and exploitation.

The Negro workers must support the party which champions his cause, the party which fights against the system that oppresses and abuses him, the party which unites all workers regardless of race and, which is dedicated to the common struggle for the abolition of the capitalist system which divides and exploits both black and white workers. This party is the Workers (Communist) Party.

TO MASSACHUSETTS—A YEAR AFTER

Now that they're ashes, light as thistledown,
To blow with all the winds that ever blow,
Are you at ease, securer in your crown,
And has your commonwealth no other foe?
Are their lives gone?—and does no tempest grow
To leap upon your courts and tear them down?

THEY LIVE

When you lived you were bound by bars,
But what bars are big enough, strong enough
To bind you today, Sacco and Vanzetti!

—HENRY GEORGE WEISS.

Told You So

THIS is the first anniversary of the legal murder of Sacco and Vanzetti by the capitalist government of the state of Massachusetts. Today millions of workers in every part of the world will hold demonstrations commemorating the lives of those two gallant workingclass warriors and pledging themselves to fight on against the capitalist system that sent Sacco and Vanzetti to their doom.

THERE will be two kinds of memorial meetings today. One kind will be held under the auspices of the Communist movement in the United States and other countries; the other under the auspices of liberals, anarchists and pacifists. The Communists will not only point out that Sacco and Vanzetti were framed by the authorities, that they were killed in the electric chair not because of a crime of which they were innocent but because they fought for the workingclass, but they will also point out that there never is and never can be any more justice under a class government than that class can afford to grant its suppressed class enemy.

THE liberals would have us believe that a "good" governor in the position of Governor Fuller of Massachusetts would have used his office to grant Sacco and Vanzetti a new trial. This is a dangerous illusion to hold up before the workingclass. This is on a par with the A. F. of L. political policy of "reward your friends and punish your enemies." This kind of nonsense means that the workers do not have to organize into a revolutionary class party to fight against judicial assassination now, and for their ultimate emancipation from wage slavery.

FROM the beginning of the Sacco-Vanzetti defense fight the Communists made a mass issue out of it, knowing that the power of the masses only could stay the hands of the executioners. Unfortunately the American workingclass were still too much under the sway of the reactionary labor bureaucrats to throw their collective weight behind the protest. The leaders of the A. F. of L. confined themselves to uttering platonic doubts of the guilt of Sacco and Vanzetti. The liberals depended on intellectuals and bourgeois editors and politicians who crawfished when the campaign carried on by the Communists threatened to assume mass proportions.

THE Workers (Communist) Party, as a member of the great united front labor defense organization the I. L. D., was the driving force behind the movement to save Sacco and Vanzetti. Tho not in agreement with the anarchist philosophy held by the two doomed men, it saw in them protagonists of the workingclass who were willing to sacrifice their lives for the cause of labor, and saw that it was because of this that the capitalist government of Massachusetts decreed that they must die. Had Sacco and Vanzetti been parlor anarchists of the type to be found on many capitalist newspapers, they would be living today. But they believed in organizing the workers and fighting for higher wages and working conditions and that is why they were executed.

THE mass demonstrations today will be utilized, in addition to refreshing the memory of the workingclass regarding the crime committed against Sacco and Vanzetti, to mobilize the masses for a great drive to free Tom Mooney and Warren K. Billings, now incarcerated in living tombs in the state of California and to open the jail gates for the I. W. W. prisoners in Walla Walla, Washington. The International Labor Defense is organizing this drive. The movement to free these class war victims will not be based on liberals and intellectuals, tho the assistance of all human beings will be welcome, but it will be based on the exploited masses of the United States.

WHILE those workers are suffering the tortures of the damned in jail, millions of their class are going their way heedless of their agonies. In this election campaign, neither the republican, democratic nor Socialist parties have a word to say about the class war prisoners. The Workers (Communist) Party only places the release of all class war victims in the forefront of its program. The more sacred duty remains to be performed by the American workingclass than to compel the arrogant jailers of Tom Mooney, Billings and the victims of the Centralia frame-up to open the jail gates for our comrades.

AS Vanzetti wrote before the executioner pulled the fatal switch in Charlestown prison, he and his comrade Sacco might have spoken from soap boxes against the capitalist system until the end of their days without awakening the proletariat of the world as they were able to do thru their execution on a framed-up charge by the ruling classes of Massachusetts. Those two humble men became workingclass heroes thru their sacrifice for the cause of the oppressed. Their memories will be honored for ages to come, when the rotten system that sent them to their doom, will be a historical blot and the names of their executioners recalled only to be cursed.

JAPAN MUNITIONS FOR UPRISING IN MONGOLIA FOUND

Seeks Excuse for Armed Intervention in North China

Arms are Intercepted

(By United Press)

VLADIVOSTOK, Aug. 22. — A large shipment of alleged contraband munitions arrived here, August 13, and were confiscated, it has been announced. The munitions were on board the steamship Kahimara and were allegedly from a firm in Osaka and addressed to a firm in Harbin.

Imperialist Scheme Exposed.

VLADIVOSTOK, Siberia, Aug. 22.—The munitions sent by Japan bound for Harbin, via the Chinese Eastern Railroad, and seized here, is taken to indicate that the Japanese government was instigating a revolt in Manchuria in order to create an excuse for military intervention, as was hinted in a statement released a few days ago by the Soviet government of Outer Mongolia.

Reports have been current in both Japanese and British papers that the attack of Inner Mongolian tribesmen on the northwestern section of Manchuria, which cut the Chinese Eastern Railroad at two points, were instigated by Soviet government authorities in order to create a Soviet Republic out of Inner Mongolia, which is under Chinese rule. On the basis of this charge Vice-Director Lasevitch, of the Eastern Chinese Railway was arrested by Manchurian officials.

The new developments, however, seem to indicate that Japan is attempting to prepare the way for armed intervention in Manchuria, where its interests are at stake, by provocative statements. The discovery of the shipment of munitions is considered by many to be adequate proof that the Japanese government has a hand in Manchurian uprisings.

AL TAKES WALL ST. NOMINATION

Against Injunctions, If "Unwarranted"

ALBANY, N. Y., August 22.—Speaking on this anniversary of the murder of Sacco and Vanzetti by American capitalism, but with no sign of recognition of its significance to the working class of the world, Alfred E. Smith, Tammany-Wall Street candidate for the presidency of the United States, tonight accepted the democratic party's nomination.

Smith's speech was a peculiar mixture of the promise of humble obedience to the will of finance-capital with an appeal to elements within the republican party. This appeal to republicans is seen in the words:

"Dominant in the republican party today is the element which proclaims and executes the political theories against which the party liberals like Roosevelt and La Follette and their party insurgents have rebelled. This reactionary element seeks to vindicate the theory of benevolent oligarchy. It assumes that material prosperity, the very existence of which is challenged, is an excuse for political inequality. It makes the concern of the government, not people, but material things".

But the governor immediately hastened to cover up:

"It is a fallacy that there is inconsistency between progressive measures protecting the rights of the people, including the poor and the weak, and a just regard for the rights of legitimate business, great or small. Therefore, while I emphasize my belief that legitimate business promotes the national welfare, let me warn the forces of corruption and favoritism, that democratic victory means that they will be relegated to the rear and the front seats will be occupied by the friends of equal opportunity."

The expected retreat of the Tam-

Children Starving, Wants Them Adopted

Unwilling to see her little children suffer hunger and privation, Mrs. Olga Larkin, 28, a widow of Elizabeth, N. J., is offering them for adoption. Under a ruthless profit system no provision is made for caring for those families who become dependent upon the sullen charity of professional "philanthropic" agencies. Forced to Bare Company Guilt In Mine Blast

HARRISBURG, Pa., Aug. 22.—Faced by inescapable evidence of the criminal negligence of the officials which resulted in the death of 13 miners following an explosion in the mine of the Irvona Coal and Coke Company, near Coalport, four district inspectors were today forced to charge the management with "carlessness" in carrying out the provisions of the mining laws.

The report which covered the investigation made by the inspectors was made public by Walter H. Glasgow, secretary of mines.

DISCUSS NEGRO AT WORLD MEET

Colonial Issue Theme at Red Congress

MOSCOW, U. S. S. R., Aug. 22.—At the thirty-fourth session of the Sixth World Congress of the Communist International this morning the discussion on the colonial question continued. Those who participated in the discussions were Manaver, of Indonesia; Fokin, of the Young Communist International; Tchousteumet, of China; Ford, of the United States; Lacerda of Brazil; Schneller, of the Young Communist International; Paredes, of Ecuador; Martinov and Travin, of the Soviet Union.

Ford, American Negro, declared that the American social democrats were actively supporting the imperialist attack on Nicaragua. The "socialists," he said, permitted an imperialist agent to make a speech from the "socialist" broadcasting station, "Eugene Debs," defending the American robber policy in Nicaragua. The Negro and colonial population, he declared, can only be freed under the leadership of the Communist International.

Lacerda, who spoke next, declared that the Latin-American countries are semi-colonies. British influences in Brazil, he said, caused exceptional laws against the Communists on the basis of forged documents. United States capitalism, he continued, is striving to drive the British out of Brazil and has already achieved some success. He said that the Brazilian Communist Party was working illegally and making progress.

Paredes declared that the bourgeois democratic revolutions in Latin-America must receive more attention. Numerous revolutions of

TAUNTON POLICE STOP MILL RALLY

T.M.C. to Arrange New Weisbord Meeting

TAUNTON, Mass., Aug. 22.—A mass meeting of textile workers, scheduled to be held here yesterday to hear Albert Wisbord, national secretary of the Textile Mill Committees, was stopped by the chief of police, who was carrying out a last minute order of the mayor.

The meeting was arranged by the Taunton unit of the Textile Mill Committees, and was to be held as part of a drive to establish new factory groups of the organization there. Albert Weisbord was scheduled to speak at the meeting about the coming convention of textile workers' organizations, which will be held in New York September 22 and 23, for the purpose of launching a new national union of mill operatives.

Leaders of the organization work here declared that another meeting is already being arranged for despite police prohibition. "If necessary," they stated, "meeting after meeting will be called to test the 'authority' of the mill bosses' city hall office boys, as was done by our Fall River organization."

CLOAK WORKERS DRIVE BROADENS

Hold Spirited Delegate Parleys in N.Y., Boston

More than one thousand shop delegates, representing many thousands of workers in the ladies garment manufacturing industry concluded their second monthly shop chairmens' and delegates' conference at Webster Hall Tuesday night, with the unanimous adoption of measures providing for the continuance of the organization drive with which they are building the new union and the widening of its scope to take in every shop in the trade where union conditions are not enjoyed by the workers.

The other outstanding feature of the enthusiastic conference was the answer given by all the speakers to the recent public decision of the reactionary chiefs of the United Hebrew Trades to organize a "Vigilante Committee" of underworld characters for the admitted purpose of breaking up left wing meetings and attacking left wing leaders. Sacco Anniversary Is Signal for Action

RIGA, Latvia, Aug. 22 (UP).—Four hundred men were arrested today during a disturbance attending a protest strike of 5,000 harbor workers.

The men struck in protest against trial of Communist agitators.

Mounted police frustrated an attempt to invade the courtroom.

KOVNO, Lithuania, Aug. 22.—Scores of workers were injured in Riga today when police attempted to break up an open air meeting in the center of the city where the workers protested against the government proclamation disbanding the radical trade unions, and simultaneously the longshoremen and workers in several industries went on strike.

The fighting began when a reinforced patrol of police attempted to break the demonstration at noon, when thousands of workers were present. Strikers, workers and sympathizers then withdrew to other sections of the city and resumed their meetings in defiance of the police.

When news reached the government that the meetings were being continued they sent detachments of heavily armed police to the outlying districts. The workers refused to disband and latest reports indicate that the street fighting still continues.

The decree of the government disbanding the unions was directed especially against those unions which were strong in Communist membership, which included almost all the major unions in Latvia. Simultaneously with the issuance of the decree many working class leaders were arrested and the revolutionary press ordered suspended.

That the first memorial of the execution of Sacco and Vanzetti was chosen as the occasion for the workers' demonstration and strikes in several industries, has greatly alarmed the authorities who have feared such an outbreak on August 22.

4 FUR LOCALS IN NEW UNION VOTE

Meet Here Tonight Simultaneously

Members of all four craft locals of the left wing New York Joint Board, Furriers Union, cutters, operators, nailers and finishers will meet tonight immediately after work to take up the important question of endorsing the action of their leaders in launching a new national union of fur workers. Cutters' Local 1, Operators' Local 5, and Nailers' Local 10 meets in Irving Plaza Hall, 15th St. and Irving Place; Finishers' Local 15 will meet in Stuyvesant Casino, 142 Second St.

The new union movement, launched at a recent conference in which all but two local unions of the International Fur Workers' Union of the A. F. of L. participated, has already been endorsed by the membership of three locals at their meetings several days ago. The last one to take this action was the Boston local which met Tuesday night, according to a report received today.

The tremendous sentiment for the construction of a new and real workers organization in the industry has brought about the union wrecking policy of the A. F. of L. and socialist officialdom who attempted to destroy the Joint Board because of its left wing leadership. In the ensuing two year struggle all union conditions were destroyed the out

ARREST MISSOURI WORKER LEADERS

Oehler and Cushing Held Incommunicado

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Aug. 22.—Hugo Oehler, district organizer of the Workers (Communist) Party in the Kansas district, and Cushing, a member of the district executive committee of the Young Workers (Communist) League of District 10, were arrested today in front of the Armour Company's packing plant here, while they were speaking to workers employed there, during the noon lunch hour.

Bond was refused them, and efforts of friends to see them were prohibited by the police authorities, who arrested them under the instigation of the Armour Company officials.

Both Oehler and Cushing are being held on charges of vagrancy. The case will be called for trial at 8 o'clock tomorrow morning.

WESTERN UNION ABSORBS POSTAL

Morgan Now Supreme Over Telegraph

The merger of the Western Union Telegraph with the Postal Telegraph lines, if not already actually accomplished, is seen here as an immediate prospect in the announcement made public yesterday that the Postal would in the future use the same wires and services as the Western Union thru an agreement with the American Telephone and Telegraph Company which controls the Western Union and provides service to it.

Morgan Move.

The agreement is expected to make millions for the Morgan interests which now own both lines. J. P. Morgan and Company is represented on the directorate of the International Telephone and Telegraph Company, the new owner of the Postal, by Russell C. Leffingwell, one of the Morgan partners.

Telephone and several telegraph messages simultaneously are to be transmitted on the same long distance wire circuits of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company.

The new relations between the Telephone and the Telegraph Companies are to make use of inventions which are expected to eliminate to a large extent the necessity of parallel pole lines and wire circuits of the two companies.

No estimate of the probable economies of the scheme was made by Walter S. Gifford, president of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, but it is known that millions will be made.

U.S.S.R. Holds Meets

(By United Press.)

ROSARIO, Argentina, Aug. 22.—The labor unions here have decided to call a general strike tomorrow in commemoration of the first anniversary of the Sacco-Vanzetti executions.

MOSCOW, U. S. S. R., Aug. 22.—All newspapers devoted liberal space today to the first anniversary tomorrow of the Sacco-Vanzetti executions.

The press, recalling the 1927 demonstrations against the executions, said the workers of the world never will forget the American class murders.

One year after Sacco and Vanzetti were executed by capitalist justice, working class demonstrations have been held all over the United States and throughout the world.

Rosario.

In Rosario, where stevedores, street-car workers, bakers, telephone operators, transportation workers, have been on strike for a number of months and have finally forced the street car company (Belgium-owned) to rehire the fired Communist and anarchist members of the union, all workers have downed their tools, as a memorial to the class murder of Sacco and Vanzetti, and a protest against capitalist justice.

U. S. S. R.

Every newspaper in the Soviet Union has called the attention of the workers and peasants to the class murder of Sacco and Vanzetti. They recalled the heroic struggle against capitalist justice carried on by the two revolutionary workers, with the eyes of all the workers in the world fixed on the Dedham courthouse.

Cherbourg.

In Cherbourg, the scene of an angry working class demonstration on the arrival of the American

WORKERS ANGRY AT JINGO THREAT

Many to Attend Astoria Meeting Tonight

The threatening letter received by the District Office of the Workers (Communist) Party from a patriot who signs himself "A Real Veteran," in which the patriot intimates that the meetings being held by the Workers (Communist) Party at the corner of Jamaica and Steinway Aves., Astoria, will not be allowed to continue by the Veterans of Foreign Wars, has enraged thousands of New York workers, and made them more than ever determined that those meetings shall be held every Thursday, as scheduled.

The Communist speakers scheduled to speak at the corner of Steinway and Jamaica Aves. tonight are Reiss, Heder, Blake, Tom O'Flaherty and Martin Abern, acting secretary of the International Labor Defense.

MINERS ACTIVE IN UNION DRIVE

Unorganized Fields are Responding

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 22.—Indications of the broadening influence of the movement for a new miners' union are had here daily in the numerous reports which come in to the National Arrangements Committee.

In Fayette County, when organizers succeeded in getting into a company town and told the miners there about the new miners union which was being built to replace the collapsed U. M. W. of A., one miner said: "The whole world is moving and we're standing still!" Two weeks later a strong local was organized. Credentials for three representatives from there were received today at the Arrangement Committee headquarters.

Freeman Thompson on Job!

Freeman Thompson is directing the job of reorganizing West Virginia. West Virginia will be well represented at the National Miners Convention in Pittsburgh, September ninth, credentials already received indicate.

Organizers tell many interesting stories about their experience in organizing locals in southern West Virginia.

"The men in West Virginia sure are behind the new union!" this organizer says. "I asked one fellow how things were, and he told me that the boys earn enough to buy bread, but they got to send to the old country for enough to buy meat! It's about time they had a fighting union!"

Bas Relief Being Made for Sacco, Vanzetti

BOSTON, Aug. 22 (UP).—Gutzon Borglum, famed sculptor, has completed a bas relief of Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti, the internationally known radicals who were executed for a double murder at Charleston State Prison a year ago Thursday.

The bas relief, depicting Sacco and Vanzetti in life size, will bear the following inscription, taken from Vanzetti's last letter:

"What I wish more than all in this last hour of agony is that our case and our faith may be understood in their real being and serve as a tremendous lesson to the forces of freedom so that our suffering and death will not have been in vain."

'THE LAND OF VITALITY'

Labor Lawyer Returns from the USSR

By SENDER GARLIN

A vivid, enthusiastic report of life in the Soviet Union has been brought back by Joseph Brodsky, New York labor attorney, who has just returned following a visit lasting nearly three months.

Leaving this city on the "Acquitania" on May 30, as leader of a group of 65 traveling under the auspices of the World Tourists, Inc., Brodsky visited the larger centers of the U. S. S. R., spoke to hundreds of workers, peasants, Red soldiers and students. He sat through all the sessions of the Shachta trial of the foreign technicians convicted of criminal sabotage against the Soviet Union and was in Moscow during the World Congress of the Communist International, which is still in session.

Rain Cause of Delay

The demonstration in honor of Sacco and Vanzetti will take place at 5 o'clock today on Union Square. Benjamin Gitlow, candidate for vice president on the Workers (Communist) Party ticket, was added to the list of those to speak at the meeting which was postponed yesterday because of the heavy rain.

New York's shops and factories late yesterday afternoon poured forth thousands of workers who thronged Union Square to attend the memorial demonstration called by the New York section of the International Labor Defense to commemorate the anniversary of the der of Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti.

A heavy downpour of rain which continued thruout the entire day caused the demonstration to be postponed until today at 5 p. m. For over an hour thousands of workers waited about in the square until they were definitely assured that the demonstration would not take place at the scheduled time.

Police Arrive.

Making good his threat that the New York police department would assign at least 1,000 uniformed and plainclothes cops to the meeting, Police Commissioner Warren yesterday instructed his men to exercise "extraordinary police watchfulness over public buildings and the homes of prominent citizens" and directed his patrolmen "to arrest on sight anyone distributing handbills in connection with the demonstration."

Inspector Patrick McCormick, in charge of maintaining "order," was on hand with a special detail from headquarters. All parades in connection with the Sacco-Vanzetti demonstration were prohibited by official ukase.

Workers Eager.

While the possibility of the demonstration hung in the balance due to the shifting weather conditions,

WORKERS CALLED TO SACCO MEET

Labor Defense Issues Statement

A call to the workers of New York to come in thousands to the Sacco-Vanzetti memorial demonstration to be held at Union Square today at 5 p. m. was issued last night. The call, which is signed by Rose Baron, New York Section of International Labor Defense which is arranging the meeting, says in full:

"To the workers of New York:

"The blood lust of the American master class was not slaked with the blood of Sacco and Vanzetti. New frame-ups, arrests, clubbings are the order of the day. The mass protests last August were answered by clubs and bayonets and machine guns. The class war has flared on a dozen new fronts in Pennsylvania, Ohio, New Bedford, Fall River and elsewhere. Mooney and Billings are suffering a living death in Folsom and San Quentin prisons.

"On to Union Square at 5 today!

"Make today's demonstration a smashing challenge to the forces that strangled Sacco and Vanzetti. Come in your thousands and tens of thousands. Bring your comrades and fellow workers!

"Remember Sacco and Vanzetti!

"Release Mooney and Billings!

"Challenge the class murderers!

"On to Union Square."

"Socialist" Official of United Hebrew Trades Faces Court on Charge of Extortion

GROCER TRAPPED HELLER, LEADER OF 'WAR ON REDS'

Doublecrosses His Meal Ticket, Boss Assn.

Always outstanding as one of the most boisterous shouters in camp of the "socialist" trade union officialdom here for the blood of all Communists and left-wingers, Samuel Heller, manager of the right wing Grocery Clerks Union, Local 338, of the A. F. of L., was yesterday held in $500 bail for a hearing August 28 when arraigned in Bridge Plaza Court yesterday on charges of attempted extortion.

Among the raucous cries for "war to the death on Communists," that filled the air at Monday's meeting of the United Hebrew Trades officialdom, the voice of Heller could be heard to bluster, "I demand that a new fight be begun against the left wing Grocery Clerks' Union." This union, in a recent struggle for the confidence of the workers and their allegiance, had compelled the Hebrew Trades to withdraw from the field.

Now, Barney Cantor, grocer, of 367 South Third St., Brooklyn, has taken out a warrant for Heller's arrest because the yellow labor "leader" is said to have demanded a large sum in cash graft if he didn't want his store picketed by right wing hirelings.

The grocery store owner stated he had been threatened by the store owners association of Brooklyn to get out of business or join their organization. Upon his refusal to do so, Cantor said, the employers association had sent the so-called union official to him to make the threat more graphic. After threatening to drive the store owner out of business, Heller is said to have demanded money if Cantor wanted to avoid becoming a member of the bosses association. Heller is alleged to have declared that he had the power to protect him from the other employers.

The grocer, however, knows that the right wing grocery clerks union not only has no members, but is no union, being merely a racketeering outfit. He therefore defied the "Communist-eater" and arranged for his arrest.

LEAGUE SCHOOL NOW IN SESSION

24 Young Workers are Attending Courses

Twenty-four members of the Young Workers (Communist) League are attending full-time sessions of the League school which is now in session at the Workers School, 26-28 Union Square.

Composed of workers from the anthracite, textile and needle trades, the students, half of whom are girls, are spending eight hours daily in lectures and discussions on subjects which include American history, economic theory, imperialism, public speaking, workers' correspondence and youth problems and the history of the youth movement.

The course is organized for the purpose of "giving the leading League functionaries a training in the principles of the class struggle, and to train them for leadership in all struggles of the young workers."

Instructors include Gil Green, national agitprop director of the Young Workers (Communist) League; Hyman Gordan, district agitprop director of the League; Philip Frankfeld, acting district organizer of the League; Sender Garlin, of the staff of the Daily Worker; Karl Weisberg, and others.

Open-air speaking, signature collections in connection with the Workers Party election campaign and activity for the youth conference comprise some of the work engaged in by the students after the school sessions.

CLOAK CUTTERS BUILDING UNION

In a call announcing considerable gains in membership since the recent Bronx Stadium meeting, cloak and dressmakers yesterday appealed to all cutters in the ladies' garment industry to leave the reactionary Local 10 and take out membership books in the new cloak and dressmakers' union. The statement also announces a meeting of the organization tonight, immediately after work, at 16 W. 21st St.

The recently chosen executive committee of the Cutters' Welfare League has elected A. Horowitz to attend to complaints made by members of the league.

Hundreds of cutters have joined the league in the past few weeks, and are participating enthusiastically in the campaign to build a union controlled and run in the workers' interests, the statement says. Cutters in all shops are called upon to come to the meeting tonight and to bring their fellow workers with them.

PHILADELPHIA WORKERS CONSIDER THEMSELVES "LUCKY" ON $25 WAGES

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 22 (FP).—Along smoke-blackened river fronts of the Delaware and Schuylkill, 250,000 industrial workers toil in more than 5,000 mills, factories and shops. Philadelphia, hodgepodge of industry, turning out everything from rugs to locomotives, gets little of the front page publicity that shines on Detroit, Pittsburgh and other centers where industry concentrates on autos, steel or textiles. Yet Philadelphia turns out products for each of these industries and for half a hundred more.

From Quaker City shops have been spawned many of America's greatest fortunes, but her workers consider themselves lucky to average $25 a week. Rotary optimists boast of the $319,000,000 payroll, but never bother to split it up into 250,000 units and to inquire of themselves whether they'd like to live on so little.

Philadelphia, conservative though the town is, believes in equality of men and women in industry. Consequently 80,000 women are hard at work for an average of $16 a week. In addition a majority of the 56,000 salaried workers employed in offices and stores are women. Because this classification includes higher paid executives, the average salary is $2,500 a year.

This huge bedlam of factories prides itself on diversified products, but nevertheless 90,000—more than a third of all her workers—are employed in some 1,500 textile mills and garment shops. Another 50,000 work in metal and metal products shops. Chemicals, food products, leather goods, paper and printing, and tobacco are other major industries.

Although each industrial worker, for his $1,200 a year wage, turns out products valued at $7,000, Philadelphia is too poor to provide decent housing conditions for a large part of the community. So bad were conditions that 10,000 complaints were made last year to the Philadelphia Housing Association. Defective plumbing, bad sanitation, unsafe structures, insufficient equipment, poor drainage, flooded cellars, filthy conditions and leaky roofs and walls were some of the reasons why workers appealed, in last resort, to this private society for relief.

Typical of vicious century-old tenements in which Quaker City workers must live is one which has a continuous record of complaints since 1912. It has been inspected 72 times since then, to little avail. This dwelling has only six rooms, but it is usually occupied by three families, and at times by as many as seven. Two of the rooms are in the attic and have sloping ceilings and small windows.

many candidate on the tariff question was made in the words: "The democratic party does not andunder m y leadership will not advocate any sudden or drastic revolution in our economic system which would cause business upheaval and popular distress."

Smith a Wilsonian Imeprialist.

Smith showed a cunning hand in pronouncing stereotyped phrases of "sympathy" for Latin-America, but wound up by standing on the positions of the two arch imperialists, Elihu Root and Wilson.

Smith's stand on what he chooses to call the question of "labor" is an adroit paraphrase of some of the mouthings of William Green and and Mathew Woll, with even an evasion of much of the weasel-wording used by those gentlemen. He made plain that he is in favor of the use of injunctions in labor disputes, but makes a distinction (entirely meaningless) between what he considers warranted injunctions and "unwarranted" injunctions against the workers. The portion of the speech devoted to "labor" came toward the close. It reads:

"The American people constitute a structure of many component parts. One of its foundations is labor. The reasonable contentment of those who toil with the conditions under which they live and work is an essential basis of the nation's well-being. The welfare of our country therefore demands governmental concern for the legitimate interest of labor.

"The democratic party has always recognized this fact and under the administration of Woodrow Wilson, a large body of progressive legislation for the protection of those laboring in industry, was encated. Our platform continues that tradition of the party. We declare for the principle of collective bargaining which alone can put the laborer upon a basis of fair equality with the employer; for the human principle that labor is not a commodity; for fair treatment t ogovernment and federal employes; and for specific and immediate attention to the serious problems of unemployment.

"From these premises it was inevitable that our platform should further recognize grave abuses in the issuance of injunctions in labor disputes which threaten the very principle of collective bargaining. Chief Justice Taft in 1919 stated that government of the relations between capital and labor by injunction was an absurdity. Justice Holmes and Justcie Brandeis of the U. S. Supreme Court unite in an opinion which describes the restraints on labor imposed by a federal injunction as a reminder of involuntary servitude.

Against Injunctions — If "Unwarranted"

"Dissatisfaction and social unrest have grown from these abuses and undoubtedly legislation must be framed to meet just causes for complaint in regard to the unwarranted issuance of injunctions.

"The Judiciary Committee of the United States Senate has already in progress a careful study of this situation. I promise full cooperation to the end that a definite remedy by law be brought forth to end the existing evils and preserve the constitutional guarantees of individual liberty, free assemblage and speech and the rights of peaceful persuasion.

"I shall continue my sympathetic interest in the advancement of progressive legislation for the protection and advancement of working men and women. Promotion of proper care of maternity, infancy and childhood and the encouragement of those scientific activities of the national government which advance the safeguards of public health, are so fundamental as to need no expression from me other than my record as legislator and as governor.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 22.—J. He charged that there was "humiliating segregation within the civil service."

workers thruout Greater New York made systematic preparations for attending the memorial en masse.

At the Labor Temple, 14th St. and Second Ave., several hundred members of the United Council of Working Women met to prepare the march to Union Square. Fiery slogans and banners denouncing capitalist class "justice" which was responsible for the frenzied murder of Sacco and Vanzetti were being prepared for the demonstration. These will be carried thru the downtown streets enroute to Union Square today.

Shops Active.

Organized groups were formed by members of the International Labor Defense in their own shops and preparations were made to attend the giant rally in a body. During the entire afternoon the telephones of the Daily Worker and International Labor Defense were flooded with queries as to whether or not the demonstration was to take place despite the rain.

A hurried consultation of the officials of the New York section of the I. L. D. held at an eleventh hour resulted in the decision to postpone the meeting until today. Confidence was expressed that the magnitude of today's demonstration would be increased as a result of the delay under the circumstances.

In a statement issued by Rose Baron, I. L. D. local secretary late yesterday afternoon, she pointed out that the "holding of the memorial meeting on August 23 would be on the correct anniversary of the death of the two martyrs inasmuch as Sacco and Vanzetti were executed a few minutes after midnight of August 22."

Meetings Thruout World.

Simultaneously with the announcement of the postponement of the Union Square meeting until today, news came of demonstrations thruout the world.

Until the last minute prior to the official postponement, telegrams, murder of Nicola Sacco and Barpour into the office of the New York section of the I. L. D. pledging support from the various fraternal and labor organizations. Unions and clubs which will take part in the huge meeting are as follows:

Unions To Be Present.

United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners, Local 1090; International Seamen's Union; Window Cleaners' Protective Union, Local 8; Paper Box Makers' Union; Architectural Iron and Bronze Workers' Union; United Council of Working Class Women; Amalgamated Food Workers of America; Furriers' Union; International Ladies' Garment Workers, Locals 22 and 43; twenty-seven branches of the Workmen's Circle; Suit Case Bag and Portfolio Makers' Union; Hand Millinery Workers' Union, Local 43; Shoe and Slipper Workers' Union; Workers (Communist) Party, Young Workers (Communist) League; Young Pioneers of America; 45 branches of the New York section of the International Labor Defense, under whose auspices the demonstration has been arranged.

Rose Sacco To Attend.

It is expected that Rose Sacco, widow of the murdered revolutionist will attend the Union Square meeting. Greco and Carrillo, who narrowly escaped a death similar to the ones suffered by Sacco and Vanzetti, will also attend the demonstration. It will be remembered that Greco and Carrillo were saved from electrocution when the frame-up against them was exposed by the International Labor Defense.

Among the speakers who will address the meeting are:

Many Speakers.

Benjamin Gitlow, Workers (Communist) Party candidate for vice president; Robert Minor, editor of the Daily Worker; Ben Gold, manager Joint Board Furriers' Union; Louis Hyman, manager N. Y. Joint Board Cloak and Dressmakers' Union; Jack Stachel, organizational secretary, Workers (Communist) Party; Robert W. Dunn; Alexander Trachtenberg; Scott Nearing, Communist lecturer and writer; M. J. Olgin, editor of the "Hammer," Yiddish Communist monthly; Leonard D. Abbott; George Powers, secretary, Architectural Iron and Bronze Workers' Union; Bert Miller, organizational secretary Dist. 2, Workers (Communist) Party; Sasha Zimmerman, manager Dress Division, Joint Board Cloak and Dressmakers; Richard Moore, secretary Negro Labor Congress; A. Markoff; Bishop Paul Jones, of Fellowship of Reconciliation; Benjamin Lipshutz, secretary Jewish Language Bureau, Workers (Communist) Party; Louis Baum, secretary Photographers' Union; Mike Gold, editor "New Masses"; Leon Rostovsky, editor Uj Elore, Hungarian Communist Daily; Morris Taft, manager International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union, Local 41; Martin Abern, acting national secretary, International Labor Defense; J. Ballam, acting organizer Dist. 2, Workers (Communist) Party; W. Van Valkenburgh; Kate Gitlow, secretary United Council of Working Class Women; D. Benjamin, assistant director, Workers School; Rebecca Grecht, state election campaign manager, Workers Party; Carlo Tresca, editor Il Martello; Max Shachtman, editor Labor Defender, official organ of I. L. D.; Nina Siracusa, Il Lavoratorie, Italian Communist daily and John Peppan; Anthony Bimba, editor Laisve, Lithuanian Communist Daily; Pat Moore; I. Zimmerman; Jos. J. Padgug, of Commercial Telegraphers of America.

Representing Young Workers (Communist) League: Phil Frankfeld, Carl Winter, M. Yucen, Knox Helfand.

Representing N. Y. Working Women's Federation: Paulina Roggers, Gertrude Welsh, Ellen Yushkevich.

Representing Independent Shoe Workers: Guisseppe Magliacano, Stephen Gerardi.

BOSTON, Mass., Aug. 22.—At a crowded membership meeting of Boston Local 30 held here Tuesday night, a resolution of endorsement of the new union launched by the International United Front Committee, was carried enthusiastically by a unanimous vote.

A. Winnick, representing the United Front Committee addressed the local in its name. Leaders of the local, business agent Perlman and president Meddoff who are also members of the International Committee then told the workers that a National Executive Committee was to be elected which will serve as an executive body for the organization till the national convention elects a permanent central executive.

Funeral of Leo Strauss, Young Militant, Today

The funeral of Leo Strauss, 16-year-old member of the Young Workers (Communist) League, who was drowned last Sunday when he ventured beyond his depth in the water near Pleasant Bay Park, will be held today at 142 Ludlow St.

Delegations of Young Pioneers, from which the dead youth had recently been graduated into the Young Workers (Communist) League, will assemble before the procession and take part in the simple exercises.

special resolution was passed giving the official attitude toward these threats of the right wing gangs.

Act of Fear.

"Frightened out of their wits by the rising tide of mass resentment evidenced by the needle trades workers thru their rapid adhesion to the new left wing unions," the statement declares, "the yellow reformist betrayers of the workers bluster publicly about a terror with which to halt the movement."

The statement makes clear that these attacks will not go unchallenged, and that the workers will know how to defend themselves.

Simultaneously with the conference going on here, a similar conference of shop delegates was being held in Boston, the details of which were brought back by Charles S. Zimmerman, who acted as a N. O. C. representative there. The conference there was the first to be held in Boston while the New York parley was the second.

High Spirit.

Remarkable enthusiasm was manifested by the 200 delegates representing over 57 shops in that city, at the prospect of finally beginning the structural work on the new union that will replace the organization of the bosses and the Sigman-Schlesinger gang.

After Zimmerman, Levine and Yaninsky from the National Organization Committee had delivered their reports and after the meeting had inaugurated the organization drive, the conference voted unanimously to affiliate with the N. O. C. An executive committee of 23, elected immediately, was then chosen to carry on the work until the regular elections planned will have taken place. An appeal to the workers to pay the voluntary $10 tax was also adopted.

J. H. Cohen, chairman of the New York Local Committee of the N. O. C. opened the conference here and acted as chairman.

Signs Up Shops.

Joseph Borachovich, Louis Hyman and H. Korets were the main speakers. Borachivich reported on the general situation, Korets on the brilliant prosecution of the organization drive and Hyman summed up with the concluding speech. Korets presented figures and names showing that over 100 shops had been struck by the union, 46 of which have already signed contracts agreeing to union conditions.

Borachivich and Hyman, in their speeches, stressed particularly the bankruptcy of the Sigman fake union, pointing to their impotent threats of violence against workers as evidence.

Left Wing Leaders to Greet Workers at Trade Union League Festival

Two of the best known left wing leaders of this city, Ben Gold, militant leader of the furriers and Louis Hyman, leader of the left wing cloakmakers, in a statement issued last night greeted the annual Workers Festival to be held by the Trade Union Educational League next Saturday at Ulmer Park, and urged all left wing workers of New York to support the picnic by their attendance.

Both Gold and Hyman will be present at the picnic and will speak, but only if requested to. John J. Ballam, secretary of the New York T. U. E. L. will also be at the festival.

One of the outstanding events of the picnic will be the Red Poets Forum. Those who will read their revolutionary poetry include Michael Gold, A. B. Magil, Edwin Rolfe, Henry George Weiss, H. T. $500,000 SUIT AGAINST J. D., JR.

Bright Still Fights Corruptionists

A new suit for $500,000 against John D. Rockefeller, Jr., together with applications for injunction relief against the psalm-singing oil magnate as well as Federal Judge Augustus Hand, Supreme Court Justice Mitchell May, Edwin P. Hesse, police superintendent of Washington, the Morgan controlled Equitable Trust Company, John J. McKelvey, Charles P. Howland, George Gordon Battle, Rockefeller attorneys, was yesterday begun by Charles Bright, who has for years been carrying on a legal battle against the combination.

Bright, who is the son of John Bright, the famous British commoner, is known to have been defrauded by the Rockefeller gang of several millions of dollars he had expected to realize out of public utility and other concessions in Argentina, Uruguay and Paraguay. Through their control over the state department and through the forgery of documents, these concessions were cancelled. Bright has won a number of legal suits against the Rockefellers but they have thus far succeeded in preventing a final accounting.

Bright has been engaged in the past ten years in exposing the corrupt judges and public officials of New York City and other cities who do the bidding of the big capitalists.

NEGRO WORKERS MEET TOMORROW

Moore, Padmore and Campbell to Speak

Noted Negro leaders will address the Monster Mass Meeting to be held tomorrow evening at 8 p. m. at the Boyles Memorial E. Church, Gates Avenue and Irving Pl., Brooklyn, under the auspices of the American Negro Labor Congress.

Richard B. Moore, national organizer of the American Negro Labor Congress; Grace P. Campbell, chairman of the Harlem Educational League, George Padmore, Henry Rosemond and Edwin H. Best will address the Negro workers who are expected to appear in hundreds. Conrad A. Walters will be chairman.

A statement issued by the American Negro Labor Congress last night announces that "The A. N. L. C. has a message for every Negro man, woman and child who has to work for a living—a message for every Negro whose soul burns with indignation at the indignities heaped upon his group in this country, partitioned Africa, and slaughtered Haiti."

The Congress invites every Negro in New York to come and hear the aims of the organization.

ANSWER G. O. P. ON 'PROSPERITY'

Campaign Hits Work's Falsehoods

The work of class-conscious New York workers to swell the Communist Campaign Funds during Red Week, and especially the mass turnout of New York workers on the Red Tag Days, Saturday and Sunday, Aug. 25 and 26, will answer the lies of "high wages" and "prosperity" being spread by the capitalist publicity agents high in the councils of the republican and democratic parties.

Urge Contributions.

If at a stated time all the workers of this country were asked to shout their answers to the capitalist lies, the resulting thunder would effectively nail those lies, but since it would be impracticable to arrange for such a vocal demonstration, New York workers are urged to make fitting reply to the unfounded capitalist propaganda in the most concrete and substantial manner by collecting for and contributing to the Communist War Chest all week. Workers are urged to report at one of the many stations established thruout the city for participating in the Red Tag Days, Saturday and Sunday. Only by means of a solid campaign fund can the capitalist lies be answered with Communist literature and speakers thruout the country.

Bishop Brown Joins Committee

Continuing their drive for the raising of funds for the relief of the Chinese workers and peasants now persecuted by the Nanking government through the suppression of their labor and farm unions, the Committee to Aid the Chinese Trade Unions yesterday made known the enlistment of Bishop William Montgomery Brown as a member of the Committee.

Enclosing a check for the amount of $25, for the Chinese trade unionists, Bishop Brown sent the following letter to Robert W. Dunn, secretary of the Committee:

Contributes $25.

"Your letter of July 19th is just at hand, though I have not time to read the appeal of the dear workers of China just now. I know about their conditions, however, through what I have read in the daily newspapers, and I shall be delighted to serve on the American committee on their behalf.

"Enclosed we are handing you our check for $25.00 toward the fund to be raised for them.

"Wishing that we could make it $2,500.00 or more, I am

"Most Cordially yours,

(signed) W'm. M. Brown.

Letter From Jeng.

The committee again urged the participation of workers throughout the United States in their drive for raising the necessary relief yesterday following the receipt of a letter of appeal from Sou Chao Jeng, chairman of the All-China Federation of Labor Unions, describing the misery and torture to which the Chinese militants are subjected.

"Do you know," Jeng writes, "that in April of last year Chiang Kai-shek and Li Ti-sing in Canton murdered over 4,000 workers because they wished to "reorganize" the unions, i.e., to dissolve them? Do you know that since the April coup d'etat in Kwantung there have been over 2,000 workers killed?

"Do you know that in Hunan and Hupeh 20,000 peasants have been shot for the sole offense that they did not wish any longer to die of starvation upon their little plots of land and to give up the last cupful of rice to the militarists?

Women Burned Alive.

"Do you know the Canton rebellion of the workers, directed against the yoke of the imperialist murderers has been suppressed? Do you know that over 5,000 workers' corpses were thrown upon the streets of Canton? Do you know that working women were tied together in batches of five and burned alive?"

Jeng's letter ends with a fervent appeal for aid. "Help us in our struggle," he says, "in our struggle for life, for liberty and the loosening of the yoke that hangs like a sword over the heads of the millions of Chinese workers and peasants."

Imperialist Wars Threaten the World on Eve of Signing of Kellogg's "Peace" Pact

TROOPS MASSED MAY DRAW ALL INTO CONFLICT

Danger of Attack on Soviet Union

By C. P. WILLIAMSON.
(United Press Staff Correspondent.)

Wars, rebellions, revolutions and military, naval and air activities, involving five continents and a score of nations, is the situation in which the world finds itself today—less than a week from the time the Kellogg anti-war pact will be signed in Paris in an effort to outlaw armed conflicts for all time.

In no period since the end of the Great War has the world been involved in such a host of warlike, or threatened warlike, activities.

Great Britain has just concluded the greatest air maneuvers the people of England have seen since the world war. British army maneuvers and artillery have now begun in Wiltshire.

In Paris yesterday Premier Poincare announced there can be no reduction in taxes for the coming year since the new budget must provide for expenditures of more than $160,000,000 for reorganization of the army and construction of a vast system of fortresses and trenches along the eastern frontier. Cruisers will be modernized and the most modern air force possible for both defensive and offensive purposes will be built.

Maneuvers Near Italian Line.

France is now carrying out vast military maneuvers along the Italian frontier, in the Pyrenees and in the Rhineland.

Charges and counter charges of vast troop movements along the Polish-Lithuanian frontier have been filtering into the capitals of Europe for weeks from both Kovno and Warsaw.

Anti-Italian demonstrations in Jugoslavia, which have frequently overshadowed quiet periods in Europe since the war, have broken out again, and Jugoslavia has again been forced to offer "satisfaction" to Italy for the attacks on Italian subjects in Dalmatia.

In Ar African provinces, where the native tribes have been carrying on a minor war against Italy for a long time, recently forty-three natives were killed in an engagement with Italian troops. The Italians lost twelve killed and thirty wounded.

French Suppression.

From Jerusalem it is reported that sixty persons were killed in a recent clash between Druse mountaineers and French troops in a mountain stronghold in Syria, but this report was denied by the French Foreign Office. The actual political situation in Syria has been somewhat questionable for some time. Aside from the minor war which has been waged by the French Foreign Legion ever since France accepted the mandate for the country the French are having difficulty with the Syrian constituent assembly.

British Suppression.

The British are having their troubles apparently, for, according to Arab sources, the situation in Trans-Jordania, and particularly along the eastern boundaries, is critical, due to the continuance in office of the premier of one of the provinces despite the request of the Emir Abdullah that the government resign. It is alleged that the British are supporting the usurping premier.

The French and British ministers recently made representations to the Bulgarian government emphasizing that energetic measures must be taken immediately against the revolutionaries in Macedonia, whom the two nations consider "a menace to the peace of neighboring nations and the world." It is frequently remarked that some minor activity of theirs might very well inflame all the Balkans.

In Spain there is a movement—entirely political in character—against the government of Dictator Primo de Rivera. Political conditions in Spain have been quiet since the disruption of the Catalonia Separatist plot last year.

While Europe, Asia and Africa have been occupying themselves mainly with questions of international ramifications, revolutions are occurring or have just been suppressed in North and South America. In Mexico, rebel attacks, few of which could hardly be called serious, have taken place in many sections.

CONDITIONS IN THE AUTO INDUSTRY

Menaces to Health

Declining Wages

Increasing Profits

By BEN LIFSCHITZ

(This is the sixth in the series on "Automobile—Symbol of the Modern Slavery." The previous installments have outlined the scope of the industry, the giant combinations, the conflict between Ford and General Motors, the driving forces to war. Tomorrow's issue will outline the causes and lessons of the recent Flint strike.)

Serious health danger confront the workers in all branches of the automobile industry. Painters, wood workers, trimmers, blacksmiths, machine shop workers, foundry workers, metal grinders. Those who do welding, brazing, soldering, core making, polishing, acid dipping, buffing, electro-planting and other sections of the work.

Breathing poisonous fumes, chemicals, dusts and gases, cause occupational diseases. High power machines, tools and speed-up systems lead to accidents, nervous disorders and broken health. In departments where all the processes are conducted on one floor, every worker is exposed to all the dangers, all the time.

Among 17,783 automobile workers examined in Ohio 5 to 10 per cent of all the workers had tuberculosis. 5 to 10 per cent of all the carpenters, temperers, painters and varnishers had lead or turpentine poisoning.

Deadly Dangers.

Painters and other workers are poisoned by: lead dust from dry rubbing down or sandpapering automobile bodies and scraping paint and by fumes from burning off old paint. Lead is insidious poison. It stores up in the body. The smallest amount may do damage. Less than a grain of lead breathed each day will cause poisoning.

Dry sandpapering caused an epidemic of lead poisoning among automobile workers in Detroit in 1922. 99 workers were sent to the hospital. In Ohio there were 104 cases of leading poisoning among auto workers from dry sandpapering in the same year. Lead poisoning causes paralysis of body and brain. In the last stages workers are helpless, unable to feed or clothe themselves. Lead poisoning causes painters colic, anemia, apoplexy, hardens the blood vessels and affects the heart and kidney.

Automobile bodies must have smooth, durable, glossy coats, new patent paints used for this purpose have brough new dangers. Deadly poisons such as benzol, the irritating, suffocating fumes of other volatile poisons cause suffering and distress among the workers. Benzol may cause death in a few moments. Control of the fumes is practically impossible. The National Safety Council report shows one man in three poisoned among 81 workers examined.

Spraying Poison.

Spray painting has invaded the automobile industry increasing every danger. The spray gun works by air pressure. Poisonous spray is splashed all over the room. Open spraying is a menace to all workers in the shop compelled to breath the air. Flimsy compo board partitions do not protect respirators, do not keep out fumes and spray.

The automobile industry which is piling up hundreds of millions of dollars profit from the sweat and toil of the workers, has no money to install special ventillating systems to carry off these dusts, fumes and the spray gun menaces to which the workers are exposed to all day long.

In addition to these facts compiled by the Workers Health Buro of America, March 1927, we want to point out the few things prevalent in the industry. The Ford Motor Company which is directed by such a "humane" personality as Mr. Ford, the company only allows 15 minutes for lunch for those working 8 hours. In these 15 minutes the worker must stay in line and get his food, eat the lunch. There is certainly no time left for anyone to wash up. The other automobile concerns are no better in this respect. In the factories of Flint, Michigan, there are no adequate sanitary facilities, no wash rooms or separate rooms away from the fumes and dust. The workers are compelled to eat their lunch with their dirty hands, and all the poisonous gases and all the poisonous materials which are used in handling the material is actually being transmitted into the bodies of the workers.

No Wash Rooms.

The most striking example of the conditions of the workers in the automobile industry is that many the workers in Flint, Michigan, including the women, walk with their overalls from their homes to the shops because there are no adequate dressing rooms or wash rooms.

These are the sanitary and health conditions which prevail in one of the most important American industries which the capitalist class of the United States speaks with pride and points out to the automobile industry as an example to prove the soundness of the American plan of production and the open shop.

Wages.

It is very hard to ascertain the exact wage that the workers receive in the various branches of the industry, first, because in all the reports made by the various companies on payments on wages, they usually include executives and the staff-supervisors which swells up the average wage of the workers in the industry. Second, the wage compiled by the manufacturers association or by the labor department statistics, include all the bonuses and extra premiums that the workers get.

According to the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce, 1922 males received from 49 cents an hour for labor to 93 cents an hour for letterers, varnishers, stripers, which used to be a very high skilled trade. Now machines are used to do that work.

In 1925 males received from 57 cents for laborers to $1.05 for dingmen. Women received in 1922 68 cents and lathe operators from 36 to 69 cents.

The average full time earnings for males was in 1922, 33 cents and in 1925, 36 cents.

Low Average.

According to the figures of the National Industrial Conference Board, the average wage for 1919 was $34.19, the average weekly earnings for all the workers for the first quarter of 1926 was $32.87.

Unskilled Male	$27.63
Skilled male	34.81

In 1922 there were paid out in wages $585,823,733 to 324,665 workers which made an average wage of $1804.39 against $2,003, which was the average wage paid out in 1920, the boom year in the automobile industry.

According to the survey made by the executive council of the American Federation of Labor in the automobile factories of Detroit for the month of July 1926, the boom year in the automobile industry, common labor inside was paid 50 cents an hour on the average. Pig-iron loaders receievd 50 cents, cupo-molders from 60 cents to $1, assemblers in automobile plants from 70 to 90 cents, asemblers outside from 53 to 80 cents, electricians from 70 to 75 cents, machinists from 70 to 70 cents, shop carpenters from 60 to 80 cents, hand truckers from 45 to 50 cents and electric truckers from 55 to 65 cents. They only maximum wage rates that were above $1 an hour were $1.15 maximum for cranemen and $1.25 for wood patternmakers. Maximum wages of $1 an hour were possible to coremakers, machine molders, hand floor molders on heavy work, machine operators on production and acetylene welders.

Some of the classes of workers in Detroit factories who start at 50 cents an hour are time clerks, oilers, stock chasers, millwright helpers, steamfitter helpers, electrician helpers, blacksmith helpers, firemen, truck drivers, crane operators, and several classes of machine operators. In certain factories a rate of 40 to 45 cents is paid to beginners in some of these classes and to workers in various other grades.

Profits.

According to the report of the Wall Street Journal of June 1928, five companies in the automobile industry: General Motors, Chrysler, Hudson, Studebaker, Packard, have increased their net income 250 per cent in 3 years.

The profits in these concerns were in 1926, $299,481,000, in 1927, $314,-977,000 of which the General Motors alone made a net income available for dividends $235,104,826.

However, the wages of the workers are gradually going down. According to the figures of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce, the averages yearly earnings of all those employed in the industry is now about $1800 a year which is $200 less than the average for 1920.

The wages of the masses of workers excluding executives and supervisors staff, included in the general average range from about $20 to $36 during the week of 50 hours.

Since the Federal Labor Department investigated wages in the industry in 1925, finding that the average full time weekly wage for women was $23 and for men $36, the industry has been hit by an epidemic of wage cuts.

Scheme of Wage Cutting.

Wage cuts are not delivered at one stroke throughout the industry, but are made piecemeal, plant by plant and department by department. Thus the resentment of large groups of workers is not aroused simultaneously.

It is, therefore, no surprise that the workers in the automobile industry are gradually beginning to react. The most appropriate term for which should be "department walkouts" accuring quite often in the various plants in the automobile industry.

Recently about 200 men on three assembly lines on Oakland, Pontiac Plant walked off the job when the company failed to keep its promise of giving a raise of 5 cents an hour and bonus.

There have been walkouts in the Buick plant of Flint, Michigan, in the Nash automobile works in Kenosha and the strike of the oil sanders in Flint, Mich.

In the next article we will deal with the cause of the strike in the oil centers of Flint, Mich. and also the lessons to be derived from the strike.

that a real progressive movement has been launched in Indiana. Mass meetings are held right along. Powers Hapgood, Mother Bloor and Freeman Thompson have been among the speakers.

The National Miners Arrangements Committee instructed each district to hold organizational conferences in every sub-district to make final preparations for the election of delegates and affiliation.

It also instructed John Watt to attend the Ohio conference, Freeman Thompson, the Indiana and Kentucky conferences, and Anthony Minerich, the anthracite tri-district conferences.

To knit together the Indiana forces for the new union, conferences are being held in Clinton, Bicknell and Blandsford. Where locals have fallen to pieces, they will be reorganized and elect their delegates; where there is no organization, the militants are on the job to organize every mine, and elect delegates. Every coal digger wants to have a share in building the new union. If he cannot come to the National Miners Convention himself, he wants to vote for a representative

One of the serious problems facing the National Arrangements Committee, it was announced, is that of financing the convention, the printing, postage, hall rent and other expense. Hundreds of delegates planning to attend will be unable to secure funds for railway fare, it was stated. The success of the convention depends on whether sufficient money can be raised to provide for these immediate costs. The committee has made an urgent appeal to the labor movement to send contributions to Room 411, 119 Federal St. Pittsburgh, N. S.

LABOR ATTORNEY BACK FROM USSR LAUDS NEW LIFE

Tells of the "Land of Vitality"

visitor to the Soviet Union gets," Brodsky said yesterday, "is the enormous vitality of the nation. Building is brisk, factories are being enlarged; there is great activity everywhere."

The workers and peasants of the Soviet Union, he said, are utterly convinced of the inevitability of a joint imperialist attack upon their country. "They are determined to resist this attack," Brodsky reported, "and are confident that in the event of war the world proletariat will stand by them."

"The country belongs to the workers," said Brodsky. "Of this fact they are profoundly convinced. A visit to the opera house, to the vacation places, rest homes and theatres dramatizes this fact. Everywhere are workers."

Tens of thousands of workers visit the museums each day, Brodsky reports. "Interpreters and guides are provided and the way of the visitor is facilitated to the greatest extent."

Complete refutal of the slanderous propaganda in capitalist countries that the Soviet government has despoiled its art treasures is found, Brodsky stated, in the fact that all the art galleries, museums, parks and public buildings have been preserved for the use of the workers and peasants.

Stability.

That the Soviet government is stable and will endure is attested to not only by the enthusiasm of the millions of workers and peasants who are prepared to die to defend it against the world imperialists, but also by the "despairing attitude of many of the former members of the bourgeoisie, some of whom include Nepmen."

The Soviet Union is dedicated to the service of the youth, the labor attorney said. "All energies are bent to their development as citizens of the workers' and peasants' republic." The schools, universities, clubs, the sport unions—all are saturated with the enthusiasm and vitality which is characteristic of the new social order, he said.

The legal system of the Soviet Union differs from the legal system of the United States and other capitalist countries as night does from day, Brodsky said. "The distinguishing characteristic of the Soviet jurisprudence is its lack of formality. Every case is decided on its individual merits and not on precedents and citations founded on medieval law. There are no loopholes through which cunning lawyers, hired by wealthy and powerful corporations, can take advantage of," he reported.

Law for Workers.

Obscure Latin terms and involved pleading and procedure, which in capitalist countries are used to confuse the poor client, does not exist in Soviet jurisprudence. "Nevertheless," Brodsky said, "the codification of the Soviet law is being accomplished gradually."

All courts have three members, Brodsky said, one being the chief magistrate, who may be but is not necessarily a lawyer, and two workers. These workers are sent by various unions, and there is a system of rotation. The two workers can overrule the judge, and very frequently do so, he stated.

No "Sharks."

No such institution as the bail system, as it is known in the United States, exists in the Soviet Union. Consequently, there are no bond sharks, surety agents and other parasites. In the U. S. S. R., Brodsky said, the defendant is given the opportunity to seek a friend who will simply vouch for his appearance on the day of trial. "Financial standing is not necessary, only that the friend be a member of a trade union, and no money is involved."

Public trials in the Soviet Unions are not spectacles to provide cheap "thrills" to idlers, but rather a forum for the education of the masses. The Shakta trial, Brodsky said, is a vivid illustration of this.

Speaking of England, France and Germany, Brodsky said that the workers there are dominated by poverty and despair. "In England, unemployment, poverty and prostitution are growing daily, and the same thing is true of the other countries in Europe."

Tour Soon.

Only Soviet Russia alone, Brodsky said, is free from this depression. "There the workers, in control of their economic and political life, are energetic, active, alert, enthusiastic—sure that their country is but the first of the nations of the world where the workers will come into their own."

The World Tourists, Inc., 69 Fifth Ave., of which Brodsky is president, and Alexander Trachtenberg, treasurer, is arranging a tour to the Soviet Union in time to witness the 11th Anniversary Celebration of the November Revolution. The group will sail on October 17, on the Cunard express steamer "Mauretania" to London.

are expected to be broken, there will be many spectacular performances, and the thousands expected to attend have been assured by the Labor Sports Union that they will not suffer from lack of excitement. The comparative strength of the competitors augor well for many close races, and winners will achieve victory in many of the events only through the closest of decisions.

Besides organizing the young workers in sports clubs as is done in the Soviet Union, Germany, and other countries of Europe, the Labor Sports Union has the additional purpose of offsetting the propaganda spread by the various bosses' organizations such as the American Athletic Union and the Y. M. C. A. and developing a strong class-consciousness among those athletics in the United States who are workers, and whose struggle for existence does not afford them the opportunity of extended practise that is allowed to the pampered college athletes.

40,000 BERLIN TAILORS STRIKE

Demand 11 Percent Raise in Wages

BERLIN, Aug. 22.—Forty thousand workers in the men's clothing industry here will go on strike today, due to the refusal of the employers to grant the workers' demands of an 11 per cent. increase in wages over the present wage scale. The entire industry will be involved.

Among the first of the nation's workers to be hit by the German employers' rationalization schemes, which slashed wages and increased production, the needle trades workers decided to launch demands to ease the continued pressure put on them by the bosses.

That the employers will fight is evidenced by its refusal of an arbitration proposal made by the Reichstag recently. The sentiment among the workers will allow no "arbitration" schemes to interfere with the enforcement of their demands.

Imperialism Is Main Theme at Congress

this kind, he said, occurred in recent years with the support of the workers and peasants. The workers must strive to secure a hegemony with the peasants in these revolutions.

Decolonization False.

Martinov declared that the decolonization theory was false. The capital export from the imperialist motherlands to the colonies, he said, was aimed at exploiting the raw-stuff sources and not at developing native industry. The essential factor in the imperialist colonial policy, he continued, was not predatory exploitation of cheap colonial labor power, but undermining the basis for the development of native industry. The bourgeois democratic revolutions, he concluded, must be regarded as revolutionary factors.

Thirty-fifth Session.

At the thirty-fifth session in the afternoon the following spoke: Abderdarame, Algeria; Vassilyev, of the Soviet Union; Germanetto, for the Red International of Labor Unions; Cox, of Britain; Lu Hai-cho, of China; Martinez, of Venezuela; Mustaphe, of Tunis; Ibarola, of Paraguay.

Colonial Parties.

Vassilyev declared that the chief attention of the Communist International must be directed towards China, India, Egypt and Latin-America. The chief task, he said, was to strengthen the existing Communist Parties, of forming new ones where necessary. The weakness of the Communist Parties in some colonies leads to the tendencies to form mass workers' and peasants' parties outside of the Communist Party. Clarity must be created in the colonies concerning the role of the Communist Party, he said. No Communist Party exists in India, he continued, but four workers' and peasants' parties do exist which are developing into a united party. The Communists work in these parties, he said, but have no fraction. The chief task in India, therefore, is to form a Communist Party from the various Communist groups and to form fractions in all workers' and peasants' organizations. The chief task in Egypt, Vassilyev continued, is to strengthen the Communist Party, to organize fractions in the trade unions and other mass organizations, to expose the Wafd and win the peasants and workers away from the Wafd. The ground for Communism in Latin-America is good, he said, and therefore we must not form workers' and peasants' parties, but Communist Parties, or strengthen the existing parties. (Applause.)

Cox declared that the idea of the theses that India is only agricultural and a dependent of Britain was false. Imperialism, he said, does not retard industrial development in the colonies, but controls this development. The question of the bourgeois democratic revolution must be more clearly formulated in the theses he declared.

Must Expose Reformists.

Martinez declared that the growing activity of the workers' movement in Latin-America produced increasing aggressiveness of American imperialism. United States reformism is also striving to penetrate into the Latin-American workers' movement, he said, and the Latin-American bourgeoisie is inclined to make an agreement with the imperialists. The reformists, he continued, are striving to win the movement with the help of the Pan-American Federation of Labor. The Communist Parties must expose their own bourgeois reformists and United States imperialists, he concluded.

At the continuation of the thirty-sixth session on August 18 the discussion proceeded. The following spoke: Alinin, of Indonesia; Loesrey, of France; Narayan, of India; Griffin, of New Zealand; Jones, of the United States; Contreras, of Mexico; Pepper, of the United States, and Nala, of Uruguay.

Organize Negro Workers.

Jones declared that the revolutionary activity of the Negroes was not strong enough because too little attention was paid to the Negro question. However, the American Communist Party, he said, approves the slogan of self-determination of the Negroes to form a Negro republic. The most important thing, he continued, is the organization of the Negro workers for the Revolution.

LAND BARONS IN NICARAGUA TO HELP MARINES

Land Owners in Move Against Sandino

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, Aug. 22. Vigilance committees in the State of Neuva Segovia have been organized by sixty landowners and mineowners to help the United States marines in their fight against the Sandino Army of Independence, and to help the marines in patroling the towns when the elections take place.

This action on the part of the landowners and mineowners is an attempt to prevent the nationalization of their land and property by General Sandino, who has proclaimed his own government in the Department of Neuva Segovia.

The nationalization of large estates and mines has provided the Sandino government with provisions and gold for manufacture of money. The committee of vigilants has its counterpart in the vigilantes used by large companies throughout South America, composed mostly of men imported from the United States, to prevent the organization of militant unions.

Simultaneously the United States election board has announced its approval of Moncada, the liberal candidate, for the presidency, and General McCoy, the election supervisor, has expressed his approval of the formation of the vigilantes to help him in supervising the elections.

"That's George N. Peek who has just been taking one at Governor Smith."

"Well, what does he work at or is he a politician, too?"

"Yes, Adolph. He's chairman of the Corn Belt Committee."

"He wants to get relief for the farmers?"

"Not the poor ones. He wants to relieve the farmers who make $20-000 a year of their envy for the manufacturers who make $100,000."

"What did Al promise him?"

"Al said he would grow 3 ears of corn on every stalk if he was elected and to spread the news."

Lands a Count

The market is very low for honesty in the U. S. at the present time whereas dishonesty is selling high and moving fast. For instance in so-called high-society the odor of corruption can easily be detected. Debutantes are sold openly for what they will bring. If a title so much the better. In Europe counts are no account and most of them haven't got carfare and cigarette money. These degenerates have squandered everything in booze and gambling except their titles which they can't pass as an ante in any poker game. The only place a title is negotiable is in the U. S. that doesn't believe in royalty. Above is a picture of Estelle Manville who has just been engaged to Count Folke Bernadotte of Sweden. So commercialized has the game become that many counts will announce to their friends the date of divorce along with the date of marriage.

ADLER GARMENT WORKERS EAGER FOR "DAILIES"

Progressive Group Issues Demands

(By a Worker Correspondent)

MILWAUKEE (By Mail).—The distribution of The DAILY WORKER and the Il Lavoratore among the locked-out clothing workers of the Adler shops was objected to by the local Amalgamated union officials.

Not Against Rank and File.

The reason given by the officials for their bitter opposition to The DAILY WORKER and Il Lavoratore is "attacking the Amalgamated 'union.'" When Pippenhager, business agent of the Amalgamated here, made this accusation in the presence of the members of the union on the picket line, I protested against the statement, pointing out that the criticism by The DAILY WORKER was not directed against the rank and file of the Amalgamated union, but against the class-collaboration policy of the officialdom.

"This policy of the Amalgamated," said Sidney Hillman, president of the Amalgamated, while in Milwaukee some time ago "is to help the employers to be as prosperous as possible." Against this policy of the officialdom the Communists will always object and fight.

The officials of the Amalgamated here are up in arms because leaflets were distributed among the members of the union signed by the Amalgamated Progressive Group. The Progressive Group in this leaflet demanded that more effective picketing be ignored by the union. The leaflets criticized the policy of co-operation with the bosses by the officials. The Progressive Group put forward the following demands: 100 per cent. union ship; 40-hour week; no piece work; increase in wages; no arbitration clause in the agreement.

The officialdom of the Amalgamated has placed the responsibility for the issuing of the leaflets by the Progressive Group to the Workers (Communist) Party. The officials were telling the workers that only agents of Adler Company could issue such leaflets. They have done everything to antagonize the members of the union to the Workers (Communist) Party.

Misrepresent Communists.

This fight of the officials of the Amalgamated against the Party has another reason in the fact that Leo Krzicki, the organizer of the Amalgamated has been nominated as the candidate of the "socialist" party for the office of secretary of state in the coming elections. The Amalgamated officialdom is lined up in support of Leo Krzicki and against the Workers (Communist) Party. They are attempting in an underhand manner to misrepresent the Party in the eyes of the Amalgamated union members.

Slanderous accusations against our Party are not the only means used by the officialdom. They are threatening to use violence against those who would dare to distribute the literature of the Progressive Group or of the Party among the Amalgamated rank and file members.

They are prohibiting members of the Party from participating in picketing the Adler shops. The business agent, Pippenhager, called upon the policemen, who are protecting the Adler scabs, to remove the writer of these lines from the picket line, saying that if the policeman will not do it then he, Pippenhager himself, will remove me.

Under protest I have left the picket line, stating that the actions of the business agent will be published in The DAILY WORKER.

Threats of violence by the officials of the Amalgamated only show that they have no satisfactory answer to the criticism of the Progressive Group and the Communists.

Fall River workers answered by striking when the Textile Mill Committees called them to struggle against the wage cut.

STORE CLERKS TO HELP RED DRIVE

Banquet Funds to Be Given for Campaign

As part of the Red Week mobilization of all workers, labor unions and workers' clubs for the financial drive of the Workers (Communist) Party Campaign Fund, the progressive group of Local 203 of the Waiters' Union—also affiliated with the United Hebrew Trades, has decided to hold a banquet and concert, all of the proceeds, of which will be donated to the campaign fund of the Workers (Communist) Party.

The affair will be held on Friday evening, September 7, at the United Workers Co-operative Restaurant, 2731 White Plains Ave. The workers present will have the opportunity of listening to P. Yuditch, labor editor of the Freiheit, Jewish Communist daily, well known to all Jewish workers for his able analyses of labor problems which affect left wing workers in New York. An effort is being made, also, to secure Rebecca Grecht, campaign manager of District 2 of the Workers (Communist) Party, as another speaker.

The progressive group of Local 302 recently ousted the reactionary officials and is putting up a fight for amalgamation with Local 719, Cooks and Broilers.

Workers Party Meeting Continues Despite New Attack by Hoodlums

A Workers (Communist) Party open-air election campaign meeting, held at Lexington and 26th St., last night, continued its program despite attacks by hoodlums and members of the state militia, who threw water from the armory windows located on the corner at which the meeting was being conducted.

A crowd of about 60 workers were listening attentively to the argument of the speakers when windows above the crowd were opened, catcalls were made and finally paper bags filled with water were thrown down on the speakers. Among those who addressed the workers were A. Gusakoff and Edward Wright. The meeting was successful and a collection taken up for the campaign netted $3.

Coal Company Trick Evades Compensation

(By a Worker Correspondent)

MOLONAUER, Pa., (By Mail).—The rush and hurry for profits and because it costs money to buy props to prop up the roof of the mine, often causes the coal miner to meet with accident or often with death.

On July 7, 1925 in a mine at Molonauer, Pennsylvania, George Milko was injured by a fall of slate. He was granted compensation by the state board until November 14, 1926, when the company went into court and had the court rule on whether he was entitled to as much compensation as he was getting. This is a slick trick resorted to by the coal companies. When a miner or other worker is injured they let the compensation be fixed at a high rate and then when they wish to have the compensation shut off they go into court for a readjustment and bring in their books and prove that the rate of pay earned by the worker is not as represented but is much lower on the average paid by them to the worker over a given period.

After several hearings of the case at court the court decides in favor of the company. Now this worker is denied the right of compensation by a decision of the state board of review July 28, 1928 and he must go to the poor house or rely on the charity of his friends for a living.

SOCIALISTS IN KANSAS COLLECT SMALL CROWDS

Meetings Smaller Than City's Pioneers

KANSAS CITY, Kas. (By Mail).—The socialist campaign and the tour of Norman Thomas, events which were termed by the socialist New Leader as a revival of the defunct corps of the socialist party, has proved, at least as far as Kansas City is concerned, a total fiasco.

With thousands of leaflets distributed by the local "party organization," with notices and write-ups appearing two weeks in advance in the local capitalist press about Norman Thomas' arrival and the meetings where he was to speak, the meeting drew less people than half the membership of the Young Pioneers here.

There were two meetings scheduled, one in Bethany Park, which was not held at all for the reason that, besides Norman Thomas and his aides, nobody showed up. The second meeting was held at the Pythian Hall, 626 Minnesota Ave.

Only twenty-five showed up to this meeting. This included one farmer and the news reporters.

McAllister Coleman, the first speaker, was introduced as a "journalist who writes with power."

His job was to tell about the tour. He started by saying what was evidently a lie, that in New York the socialist party had a picnic of 10,000 workers. At any rate, it was a rather poor way of boosting the strength of the socialist party, if it will be remembered that it always points to the Communists as a Party which has nothing west of Chicago. He referred to a meeting in West Virginia and Wichita, Kansas. According to him there was more hope for a socialist party in Wichita, because all the socialists invested their money in oil stocks.

So the socialist party is getting to be just as respectable as the two capitalist parties, even acquiring socialist Tea Pot Domers.

Then Norman Thomas was introduced. In his preliminary remarks he said that there are many issues involved, but his whole speech was a thorough evasion of the real issues. About unemployment he advised his audiences to read the socialist party leaflet. The farm question he approached in a typical Smith and Hoover method, expressing good wishes. He said, "I do not know anything about the farmers."

But he, the socialist standard-bearer, justified it by the fact that neither does Smith know anything. "But I believe that we ought to create conditions where the farmer could market his whole product, and also bring about the elimination of the middlemen." But about how this is to be done or under what conditions it is to be accomplished he said nothing. He did not even mention the war danger, Soviet Union, injunctions and other vital problems. He mustered up his entire strength and loudly exclaimed, "But the big problem before us is liberty, civil liberties." This was the biggest issue before the American workers: Most of his talk dealt with denial of civil liberties by the sheriffs and lower courts, as if everything was O. K. with the higher governmental authorities and institutions. Then he declared that the socialist party has a special message to (I thought to workers) but no, to cities. "Yes," he repeated, "to cities, clean streets, smooth sidewalks, better sewer pipes, etc."

Then Norman Thomas was very respectable. In respectability he aped the democratic and republican party to the minute details. He refrained from attacking Hoover and Smith, not only that, but he even refrained from attacking the republican and democratic parties as such. Evidently the socialist party has also entered the "gentleman's agreement" to carry on a "clean campaign." On this occasion it will be well to make a comparison of strength between that party which refers to itself as "We Americans" and the "Foreigners," the Communist Party. The above remark that all socialist audiences is even less than the Pioneers in this city is sufficient to show the strength of the party that competes with the K. K. K. for the title of "American."

"He Understood Women" Has a Dislike for Understanding

MICHAEL KALLESSER and Francis Lynch in their play, "He Understood Women," at the Belmont, seem to have settled down to make an accurate true-to-life picture of modern commercial and military circles, with the following cast:

Joseph Granby, as Julian Romain, First Adulterer, and wealthy. He says he understands women.

Allan Devitt, as Lieut. (afterwards Capt.) Maurice Lonsaine, Second Adulterer, and in debt.

Hilda Spong, as Baroness LeLong, Adulteress, and somewhat aged.

William Augustin, as Baron LeLong, Suspecting Husband of Adulteress.

Peggy Allenby, as Aline, Maid to Adulteress, Mistress of Second Adulterer, afterwards Wife of First Adulterer, and Grand Opera Singer.

Frank G. Bond, as Auguste Bertrand, whose sole purpose in the play is to answer when First Adulterer wants to talk philosophy, and to accelerate the plot when it stalls on dead center.

The scene is laid in France at the time of the subjugation of Morocco.

The Second Adulterer persuades his admirer, the Adulteress, to sell herself to the First Adulterer, who, through his wealth, can dictate to the war department both promotions and demotions of French officers. The price is to be a captain's commission for the Second Adulterer.

While the Second Adulterer is hiding in the Adultress' bedroom from the First Adulterer, who is engaged in a love scene with the Adultress in the parlor, the Suspecting Husband arrives in the parlor, and is angry. He says harsh things to his wife, and is challenged to a duel and killed by the First Adulterer for insulting a lady. The lieutenant becomes a captain, and immediately deserts the Adulteress to take up with the maid. He tires of her soon and persuades the First Adulterer to marry her in order to have a son to whom he can pass on his secrets of the science of love.

The Adulteress out of jealousy tells the First Adulterer about her maid's amour with the Second Adulterer, whereupon he casts off his wife and has the Second Adulterer sent on active duty to Morocco.

After a year the wife has become a great singer, the First Adulterer crushed by the discovery that women yield to him only for value received, and the Second Adulterer begs on his knees to be taken out of Morocco to serve his country in some easier way. The Adulteress then whitewashes him, by saying that she exaggerated his sins with Aline, and Aline is reinstated as wife of the First Adulterer.

The aged Adulteress then woos unwilling Second Adulterer. So he enters with her into the holy state of matrimony.

The theatre is badly attended. Marx and Engels say:

"Our bourgeoisie, not content with having the wives and daughters of their proletarians at their disposal, not to speak of common prostitutes, take the greatest pleasure in seducing each other's wives. Bourgeois marriage is in reality a system of wives in common...."

And there were signs even last season that the portion of the bourgeoisie which goes to plays is tired of looking in mirrors.

YoungWorkersLeague Mourn Member's Death

The Young Workers (Communist) League issued the following statement yesterday commemorating the death of L. Strauss, 16-year-old member of the Young Workers (Communist) League who was drowned at the Daily Worker Carnival Sunday at Pleasant Bay Park when he ventured beyond his depth while swimming:

The Young Workers (Communist) League is deeply grieved over the untimely death of one of the young fighters in its ranks, Comrade L. Strauss.

Comrade L. Strauss was born in Russia, and as a child lived thru the Russian Revolution and was imbued with a revolutionary spirit even as a child. When he came to America, he immediately joined the Young Pioneers. He was one of the most active Pioneers and before his death helped in leading a Pioneers group. Last year he graduated from the Pioneers into the League.

Comrade Strauss was 16 years old age when he met his untimely death by drowning.

COLLIER MAKES CLERKS SLAVE ON NEWSSTANDS

Pay Averages $22 a Week

(By a Worker Correspondent)

The infamous Collier, the publisher who controls the subway news-stands in Greater New York City, has been pointed out as one of the worst labor offenders in the country by organized labor. The subway news-stand slaves are exploited in the worst manner by the interests of Collier who do not value human labor to the least extent, except to get as much as possible out of them.

Conditions on the stands are unbearable. In the summer time there is the foul heat and dust the clerks are forced to inhale into their system and in the winter they are compelled to brave the cold and moist. It is a common occurrence amongst the news-stand employes to be affected with all sorts of ailments due to the environment in which they are compelled to work in. They are on the job from the early hours of the morning until the late hours of the night. The "stand" must always be attended and the clerk must wait for an inspector to come along and relieve him to attend to his personal wants.

The average pay is about $22 per week for all the smaller stands and the poor paying stands, larger and better paid stands the clerks work for a commission of 12 per cent which is lowered gradually to bring the pay envelope to about $30 per week. Each stand is charged up with a certain amount of merchandise and, for instance, one stand is charged with $175 in merchandise at the retail price, at the end of the week the daily report is tabulated and if $150 in sales was taken in, then there must be $25 in merchandise to account for.

Clerks are held responsible for all shortages at the end of the week. A shortage sometimes amounts to $25 of the week's earnings of the stand, which is deducted from the clerk's weekly salary. The inspectors come around several times during the day to keep tab on the efficiency of the clerks.

MILL WORKERS' STRIKE AID FUNDS GROW, NEED MORE

Murdoch Release Means New Boss Attack

NEW BEDFORD, Mass., Aug. 22.—Workers throughout the United States are rallying to the aid of the striking textile workers of New Bedford and Fall River. Funds for the relief and defense of workers arrested in these two cities are being received daily by the Workers International Relief, 49 William St., New Bedford, Mass.

With the release from prison of William Murdock, general organizer of the New Bedford Textile Workers' Union, a campaign for new union members is being conducted by the N. B. T. W. U. Increased activity on the part of the union means that the bosses' agents will arrest more strikers in the future. The need of increasing the relief machinery of the Workers' International Relief is also absolutely necessary at the present time.

Fred G. Biedenkapp, national secretary of the Workers' International Relief, now in this city, said today that funds for the relief and defense of the strikers are being received in increasing amounts, but yet the sums received are far from sufficient to cover the ever-increasing expenses incurred. He called upon the workers to send a generous donation to the W. I. R., 49 William St., New Bedford, Mass.

Among the contributions received today is a check for $242.85 sent by the national office of the Independent Workmen's Circle, Boston; $250 from the Workers International Relief, of Lynn, Mass., the proceeds of a recent picnic; $50 from a Finnish Reading Club, Potter Hill, R. I.; and $56.35 colllected by Andrew D. Young of Fitzwilliam Depot, N. H.

SIGMAN AND CO. FROTH AT MEET

Cry. "Break Left Wing Meetings"

Julius Hochman and Morris Sigman, leaders of the attack against the cloakmakers that smashed the cloakmakers' union, together with other bureaucrats in the New York Jewish labor movement, indulged in frothy vituperation of the left wing movement and their recently inaugurated policy of building real unions in the needle trades, at a meeting of the United Hebrew Trades held Monday night in the building owned by the yellow Jewish Forward.

They openly advocated a policy of intensified terror against the left wing, as the only method that will halt their growth.

Hochman and Sigman called for the organization of a Committee of 1,000 to "smash windows of those who write lies about the 'union'," and also to break up meetings of the left wing. In smashing the windows he is believed to have referred to the Freiheit building.

NEGRO WORKERS JOINING PARTY

Communist Recruits in Harlem Increase

At the last two open-air election campaign meetings held by the Workers (Communist) Party in Harlem twelve Negro workers, attracted by the fighting platform of the Workers Party, made application to join the Party. These meetings were held at 137th St. and Lenox Ave., and at 131st St. and Seventh Ave., both in the heart of the workingclass section of Negro Harlem.

The election campaign waged by Section 4, the Harlem branch of the Workers (Communist) Party has been especially fruitful in the matter of recruiting new members from among the Negro workers of Harlem. Hardly an open-air meeting is held in the Negro section without the resulting applications for membership of several Negro workers.

Negro workers when approached by signature solicitors, have evinced an interest in the Workers (Communist) Party, have asked questions concerning its platform, especially with respect to the party's attitude on the question of race equality and lynching.

Last Thursday evening, the Negro unit of the Workers (Communist) Party held an open meeting at the Harlem headquarters, 143 E. 103rd St., which was attended by 125 Negro workers. At the close of the meeting five Negro workers made application to join the Communist Party.

FRENCH, BRITISH FORCE CRISIS IN BULGAR CABINET

Demand Macedonian Movement Crushed

VIENNA, Aug. 22 (UP).—Seventy members of the government party in the Bulgarian parliament have protested to Premier Liapcheff against the resignation of War Minister Vulkov, a dispatch from Sofia said. They claimed Foreign Minister Buroff forced Vulkov to resign because he was accused of complicity in the present revolutionary activity in Macedonia, against which France and Britain have warned Bulgaria.

SOFIA, Bulgaria, Aug. 22.—The cabinet crisis caused by the resignation of A. Buroff, foreign minister, and two other members yesterday, following the arrival of a note from the French and British governments through their representatives here demanding that the Macedonian autonomy movement be suppressed, was brought to a point today with the resignation of the war minister, Vulkov.

When Buroff resigned yesterday he gave as his reason that the inability of the Bulgarian government to meet the demands of Britain and France was due to the complicity of the war minister in the Macedonian movement.

War Minister Volkoff has also been charged by the former premier, Zankoff, of receiving bribes from those interests in the Macedonian border section who would like to see a Macedonia separate from the British and French controlled Bulgaria.

Shoe Workers Urged to Participate in Sacco-Vanzetti Meet in N. Y.

The Independent Shoe Workers Union of Great New York and vicinity yesterday issued a statement to the shoe workers in the city on the anniversary of the deaths of Sacco and Vanzetti which says in part:

"Nicola Sacco who was a shoe worker all his life was always in the front ranks of the shoe workers struggles in the state of Massachusetts. We the Independent Shoe Workers Union of Greater New York and Vicinity call upon all the shoe workers of Greater New York to come and participate in the open-air memorial meeting in Union Square, New York City on Thursday, August 23, at 5 p. m.

"We urge all the members of the union and the large mass of shoe workers generally to demonstrate our protest against class murder and the frame-up system of which Sacco and Vanzetti have fallen as victims."

GIANTS, CARDS, LOSE; ATHLETICS WIN AGAIN

The Giants and the Cardinals both lost close games yesterday. Luque, Cincinnati's Cuban pitcher, outpitched Aldridge, 5 to 4. The Robins again kept the Cardinals from regaining first place, winning, 3-2. Petty and Clark pitched for Brooklyn, against Mitchell.

In the American, the Athletics made hay while rain kept the Yanks idle. Rommel won a corking 17-inning game, 6-5, after Ernshaw was removed. Uhle and Miljus pitched for Cleveland.

DEMAND END OF ZARITSKY TERROR

Officialdom Violates Constitution, Charge

Samuel Boerum, leading left winger in the New York Capmakers Local 1, who was recently removed from his job because of his activities against the reactionary leadership, and whose "punishment" was later changed to a fine of $50 when the officialdom changed their decision in retreating before the resentment of the membership, yesterday made public an appeal he sent to the general executive board of the Cloth Hat, Cap and Millinery Workers International demanding a halt to these terrorist tactics.

Although not expecting the reactionary officialdom of the International organization to take any action, since President Zaritsky himself is the leader of the expulsion policy against all progressive members, Boerum nevertheless decided to appeal to the Board. Boerum brands the action of the local officialdom unconstitutional and violating 3 distinct sections of the constitution.

legionnaires shortly after the execution of Sacco and Vanzetti, another demonstration, marking the first memorial of the murder of the martyrs, and directed specifically against Secretary Kellogg, who is arriving in the "Ile-de-France," a ship manned by strikebreakers conscripted from the French navy, has taken place and has alarmed the French government.

Berlin.

From Berlin comes news of a monster demonstration in Lustgarten, addressed by many speakers, recalling the trial and execution of Sacco and Vanzetti and pointing out the implications for the working class. Thousands of Red Front fighters led the demonstration and the Lustgarten was crowded with Berlin workers.

United States.

Similar working class demonstrations have taken place throughout the United States and are scheduled to take place in the course of the week. The demonstration scheduled for yesterday on Union Square, New York City, was postponed on account of rain, to the great disappointment of many workers who had gathered to pay tribute to the martyrs. The demonstration, however, will be held today in Union Square at 5 p. m. Boston, San Francisco, Detroit, Omaha City, Poughkeepsie were also scenes of working class protest. Philadelphia workers will gather on August 24, with Max Schachtman, editor of the "Labor Defender," Herbert Benjamin, organizer of the Workers Party and an Italian speaker.

At Milwaukee the Sacco-Vanzetti meeting will take place on August 25, at Harmony Hall, 1st Ave. and Mineral St., with English and Italian speakers.

The Reconciliation of the Socialist Party With Gumshoe Pete

W. E. Woodward, novelist, author of "Bunk," of a biography of George Washington and one of General Grant, has made a contribution toward clarifying the recent shift of the socialist party from the extreme right to the ultra-extreme right, the elimination of all reference to the class struggle from its constitution and the general adjustment of that party's formal front to its actual front of warfare against the working class for the preservation of the capitalist system.

Mr. Woodward has announced that he is "a socialist of the deepest dye"—then he explains why and when he got the deepest shade of the safron socialist dye upon his clothes. The explanation comes in the text of a letter written by him to a select number of artists and writers to ask their support of the Reverend Norman Thomas for president. Such a vote, says he, "will help to make American politics more realistic," and will "help lay the foundation for a powerful party of progress and social justice." Nothing about the working class of course. It is a small American echo of Ramsay MacDonald's recent declaration that the British social-democrats constitute, not a class party, but a party of intellectuals.

That sufficiently explains why Mr. Woodward joins himself to the socialist party. But the greatest significance is to be found in his explanation on the point of the time of his joining. For Mr. Woodward makes plain that he would not have joined the socialist party in any previous period, but only now because of the changes that time has wrought.

Let Woodward speak for himself:

> "Ten years ago it might have been embarrassing for me to have urged anyone to serve on a committee for socialist candidates. Names of those affiliated would have been on the blacklists and Gumshoe Pete from Washington would have had his accusing eye on one's window."

In other words, ten years ago the Ruthenbergs and Gitlows and John Reeds were in the socialist party; there was class struggle still expressed in a portion of the conglomerate group that was then the socialist party; there was still a connection with revolutionary workers; there was danger; there was Debs in prison, with Ruthenberg and Gitlow and hundreds of others soon to go for long terms; Palmer raids on left wing socialist party members—all of this was still connected with the socialist party ten years ago, and it would not do at all for a respectable gentleman like Mr. Woodward (or the Reverend Thomas, then preaching the gospel of Jesus to the fashionable Brick Presbyterian church) to have anything to do with that.

Since then the flames of struggle have separated the revolutionary elements of the socialist party of that day from the yellow dross which is the socialist party today. The socialist party has sunk to the level of contempt for the working class, and the gumshoe men of Washington smile upon it since it has ceased to be of the working class and has begun its role of open strikebreaking and belligerent support of the capitalist system.

In 1918 Mr. Woodward could not possibly have been a member of the same party with Ruthenberg, and with the Debs who declared himself a "Bolshevik" and took ten years' sentence to Atlanta prison.

> "But all that has long ago been laughed to death," continues Mr. Woodward. "I am not only a supporter in this campaign of Thomas and Maurer, but I am a socialist of the deepest dye. I am one of those optimists who believe that humanity is capable of getting rid of wolfish greed and dirt and poverty and war. Yet my books are read in the most respectable homes. Even members of the stock exchange write me nice admiring letters."

And "Comrade" Woodward now will find pleasant diversion in preaching down at the working class that "humanity" (capitalist society) "is capable of getting rid of wolfish greed and dirt and poverty"; and by preaching that capitalist "humanity can get rid of ...war," he will be very useful and "respectable" to the same imperialists who are preparing feverishly for the coming world war, and who need the Kelloggs and also the Reverend Thomases and the Woodwards to flimflam the working class with illusions that there is to be no war. Mr. Woodward adds his voice to the chorus of Hillquits, Bergers and Boncours who chant in unison that it is not necessary to overthrow the capitalist system.

"Gumshoe Pete from Washington" will not bother you, Mr. Woodward; he will be ready at all times to cooperate with you while revolutionary workers struggle and starve, go to jail, and fight to transform the next "War to End War" into a revolutionary struggle for the establishment of the rule of the only class that can and will abolish capitalist greed and poverty and war.

Mr. Woodward, shake hands with Mr. Gumshoe Pete; you're in the socialist party now.

Japan's Stronghold on Shantung

By M. L.

I.

THE reactionary government of Japan has sent tens of thousands more soldiers to China and occupied the whole of the province of Shantung, taken over the railway line Tchingtau-Tchinau and occupied the nearby mines and other industrial undertakings. The army operating in Manchuria is growing unceasingly and a new expedition has been set up along the frontier of Corea and Manchuria. In Tientsin strong Japanese military forces are "protecting the town" and for this reason they have occupied the greater part of it. Japanese military planes have made military demonstrations over the town.

That is no simple intervention, but open war against the Chinese people. The Kuomintang, under its reactionary leaders, does not even think of offering any serious resistance to these Japanese imperialist encroachments, but has even subordinated itself to the imperialists. The "appeals" and "protests" of the Kuomintang have no real weight. The Kuomintang in its present composition has ceased to be a danger to the imperialists. The Japanese interventionists know this as well as anyone. The Japanese are sending continual reinforcements to Manchuria and other parts of North China and declare quite openly that Manchuria is a Japanese possession and that anyone who thinks of taking up a threatening position towards the dominance of Japan in Manchuria must be devoured.

Position Strengthened.

At the same time the Japanese imperialists are using every possible intrigue to strengthen their position. They are ready to use any and every Chinese general for their purpose and are negotiating with Feng Yu-hsiang and Yen Si-shang with this aim in view.

In his speech at the opening of the Japanese parliament, the prime minister and Foreign Minister Tanaka declared that Japan had a "great mission" in the far east. This "great mission" of course is nothing but the maintenance of Japanese hegemony in China by the oppression of the Chinese people, the destruction of the revolution and the annihilation of the "Red danger." One can trust the government of Tanaka to do all in its power to be true to this "great mission."

Its Fight With Britain.

When the great revolution threatened chiefly the positions of the British during the advance of the Canton army against the north, Japan did everything in its power to exploit the situation in order to take over the positions of the British. This was the time of the diplomacy of Shidekharas, or the period of the economic penetration of China. At that time Japan was unwilling to co-operate with Great Britain openly. The concern Mitsubishi, whose political representative was the ruling party of the day, the Kanseikai (at present Minseito) had not so much in the pool as the concern Nitsui, the backer of the present governmental party Seiynkai. Further, the smaller merchants who made considerable profits out of the temporary flourishment of trade with China were on the whole against an intervention. When, however, the revolution extended to the valley of the Yangtse and the national-revolutionary troops occupied Shanghai, the Japanese capitalists began to cry for help. Then the government of Tanaka, supported by all the reactionary forces of Japan, came forward with its open policy of aggression. Strong forces were sent to China and Chiang Kai-shek was bribed. The directorial boards of five of the most important large scale banks openly welcomed this "positive" course. Before the so-called eastern conference, which was initiated by the government of Tanaka, the executive power in Southern Manchuria was divided amongst three persons, the administrative chief of the South Manchurian Railway, the general consul in Mukden and the general governor of Kwangtung. The Tanaka government concentrated all power in the hands of the administrative chief of the South Manchurian Railway and Yamamoto, an agent of the Mitsui concern, was appointed to take over this post.

Nothing can now keep the Pullman porters from striking! After being endorsed by several religious organizations, one or two insurance societies; after having their recent strike sabatoged by William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, the climax came yesterday when the organization received an endorsement from a Negro employers' association.

Mill Workers Must Build Union

Look Forward to Big Convention in New York Sept. 22-23

By ALBERT WEISBORD

Textile workers throughout the country are looking with eager eyes toward the coming convention called for September 22-23 in New York City by the National Textile Mills Committee. They see in this convention the first step toward the organization of a new union for the textile industry which will fight to lift the workers out of their present wretched condition of long hours, speed-up and wage-cuts.

From Maine to Alabama the textile workers are sweating in a misery which can scarcely be surpassed in any other industry. Whether it be in cotton, in silk or in wool manufacture, whether in the dye works of Paterson or in the knitting mills of New York City, whether in the carpet mills of Philadelphia or in the silk throwing mills in the anthracite, everywhere the wage slaves in all branches of this big and important industry are seeing a worsening of their conditions.

Hours are growing longer than ever. The Massachusetts textile barons through their lobby in the legislature are planning to wipe out the 48-hour week. In Rhode Island, Maine and other parts of New England the hours run from 54 up. In South Carolina women are slaving as many as 60 hours a week. Not only are the hours longer than they were a few years ago, but the quantity of production the workers are forced to turn out is greater than ever. The number of machines to be tended is doubled, tripled and even more. Machinery is run at a higher speed. The life and heart eaten out of the worker in a nerve-wracking grind.

Wages in textile mills have always been low. It is the lowest paid of any big industry. On top of average wages of about $17 a week, which is all the textile workers can average in these times of slack work and unemployment, the textile bosses in New England have instituted wage cuts of 10 per cent. Whole families are finding themselves reduced to starvation.

Lack of organization and false leadership in the past has hampered the efforts of the textile workers to better their conditions. Only small and weak unions have existed, mostly on a craft basis. The principal union, the UTW (United Textile Workers) because of its black reactionary leadership is looked upon with hatred by all workers who have had any dealings with it. The UTW, in the place of militant fight to win better conditions for the workers, has left a slimy trail of sell-outs, collaboration with the bosses, neglect and betrayals. The vast masses of the one million unorganized textile workers it has never attempted to reach.

The call for a new union comes like a beacon of hope to all those who are suffering in the textile hells. With a militant leadership, the same leadership that conducted the splendid fight made by the woolen workers in Passaic two years ago and is now in charge of the spirited battle being put up in New Bedford and Fall River, with such a leadership the workers feel confident that their ranks will be organized and mobilized for struggle.

The National Textile Mills Committee calls upon all unorganized and organized textile workers everywhere to communicate with the National Secretary, Albert Weisbord, at 96 Fifth Ave., Room 311, New York City, sending in names and addresses of all those interested in the national convention. The convention is called for Sept. 22 and 23 at Irving Plaza, 15th St. and Irving Place, New York City.

Rob Injured Children of Compensation

Percentage of Accidents in Pennsylvania High; Courts are Harsh

By W. J. WHITE

Pennsylvania is noted for its brutality to workers. No state in the entire United States is more callous to the needs and miseries of its wealth producers. This arises from the fact that Pennsylvania is one of the most productive of the states and that its productivity has passed into the hands of a few mighty oligarchs, who, in their race for the surplus wealth produced by the workers, have thrown other considerations to the winds.

Children in Mills and Factories.

In the competition for mass production and a cheapening of the articles produced in the mills and factories of the state, notwithstanding that there is a child labor law in the state, many young boys and girls are employed in the many dangerous occupations where machinery of the most massive and dangerous type is used. Thousands of these young workers are forced, through the poverty of their parents, to lie outright and falsify their age when they apply at the mill or factory for work. Where these young workers have been employed, under such circumstances, the supreme court of the state has placed itself on record against the children and in favor of the employers.

Record of Capitalist Courts.

In 1927 there were investigated by the Bureau of Women and Children's Department of the Compensation Board, 515 cases of accidents to children under this illegal employment. This represents 12 per cent of the total accidents in the state. Out of these, 258 were denied compensation, which represents 50 per cent of the cases investigated by the bureau under a special investigator.

This means that one half of those injured whose cases were investigated could not get any compensation when they went into the courts and sued the employer. The supreme court of the state denied them compensation.

Some idea of the productive capacity of Greater Pittsburgh and the number of men, women and children it employs can be imparted by recounting some of the products of this industrial area.

Record Production.

The production of pig iron is greater in the Pittsburgh area than in any country of Europe. Its production of this basic product is one-tenth of the world total and one-fifth of the United States total. In money values it represents $200,000,000. The pig iron industry employs 7,000 people and has a pay roll of $13,500,000 annually. It has a greater pay roll than the total pay roll of Arizona, New Mexico, Nevada, North Dakota and South Dakota combined. Its 57 blast furnaces represent 13 per cent. of the blast furnace capacity of the United States. All of these represent an outlay of $13,000,000. Notice that the production sells for $70,000,000 more than the invested capital annually. The production of this pig metal uses up 28,500,000 tons of iron ore, limestone, coke, and other raw materials. This represents 600,000 railroad cars of material, which, if placed end to end, would reach for a distance of 4,500 miles.

In steel, Greater Pittsburgh outdistances all other cities in the country. No other city can even compare with it.

Its production of this commodity is 25 per cent. of the entire country. It gives employment to more than 100,000 workers and the annual pay roll is $200,000,000. The value of the product when marketed is more than $750,000,000, and of this many millions are profits produced by the workers for the Thaws, Morgans and Mellons for nothing.

The Greater Pittsburgh steel works annually produce eleven and one-half million tons of steel ingots and castings, which is about 25 per cent. of the country's production and 15 per cent. of the output of the entire world.

Greater Pittsburgh's steel works and rolling mills, annually produce nine and one-half million tons of finished steel rolled products and forgings, which sell on the world's markets for more than 500 million of dollars, and not one state in the entire country can meet or excel this record, except the state of Pennsylvania.

Pittsburgh has one hundred and one steel works and rolling mills within its confines and all of them together have a grand capacity of fifteen millions of tons of steel annually.

Steel, Coal, Railroads and Oil.

In these mills and factories young and ill-paid workers toil side by side with their parents. In the deadly heat and exhausting labor they can be found risking their lives amid the most massive and dangerous machinery. Not a day passes but a toll of injury and death is exacted from the young and inexperienced in life and limb. Yet when they go into court for compensation they are met with the barbarous maxim of the common law of England, "That they do not come into court with clean hands"—that is, that by under-stating their age become partners to an illegal contract and can not recover.

Coal and Railroads Take Their Toll.

In coal and on the railroads the percentage of accidents is even higher. In the coal mines especially now that they are, in many cases, filled with inexperienced strikebreakers and scabs, the death toll is very high. The risk of the average railroader is the highest, or among the highest, in all industry and in these the young workers pay they debt to "rationalization" and the speed-up of greed. Yet when it comes to getting pay for their injuries, here also the mandate of the owned and paid-for courts stand as a bulwark to defend the interests of those who profit from things as they are.

THE REVEREND THOMAS FIZZLES IN OMAHA

(By Special Correspondent)

OMAHA, Neb., Aug. 16 (By Mail).—Norman Thomas and his socialist followers failed last night in their attempt to hold a big mass convention of 500 voters as is required by the state election laws to place their party ticket on the ballot in Nebraska.

For three weeks it had been advertised that Thomas would speak at the meeting and thousands of leaflets had been distributed in hopes of inducing a few hundred workers to attend the meeting. Only about three hundred came to the meeting and they were given leaflets at the door by several class-conscious workers exposing the socialist party as an enemy of the working class. Norman's followers became indignant when they discovered the nature of the leaflet and started grabbing them from the hands of the persons who received them before they had time to read even the first line. One lady got so peeved over this that she demanded that she be given another and Norman's henchman very meekly got one and handed it to her. He quickly got the police and chased the workers away, but they had already passed out about 200 of the dodgers.

Workers Leave Hall.

Before Thomas spoke August Claessens of New York announced that the meeting was in reality a convention and that at the conclusion of the presidential candidates' speech all who were socialists or believed in what Norman was about to say should remain and take part in the convention. Almost the entire audience walked out when Thomas finished speaking. The chairman yelled frantically for them to remain but only about fifty did so.

Told You So

THERE is a rather healthy rebellion in the ranks of the social-democratic party of Germany over the action of the socialist ministers of the Imperial Republic in approving the outlay of $20,000,000 for cruisers. Prior to the elections, the socialists promised to "outlaw" war and devote the money that their capitalist political opponents would spend on war preparations on welfare work and unemployment. The fact is that the social-democratic party of Germany stands for imperialism as firmly as the most extreme fascist group.

THOSE who have followed the actions of the British Labor Party ministers when MacDonald was premier will not be surprised that the German socialists favor building a big navy to protect the interests of German imperialism. MacDonald sanctioned the building of five new cruisers and there was little more than a peep of protest from the liberals and pacifists in England and other countries, the very people who howl because the workingclass government of the Soviet Union maintains a powerful proletarian military and naval force for the defense of the revolution.

ADVICES from Berlin indicate that the masses of the social-democratic party have been aroused to action by this fresh act of treachery of their leaders. Several meetings of socialist workers were held at which motions demanding the resignation of the socialist ministry were passed. This is a good sign. There is no hope for a successful struggle against capitalism in any European country until the masses break away from the socialists and join the Communist Party.

ACCORDING to a headline, Prince Charles of Belgium is the working people's pet. The prince likes to drive an engine, work in railroad shops and coal mines and tinker with motor cars. This should more than compensate the Belgian workingclass for any discomforts they may suffer from having to keep this member of a parasite brood in luxury.

Tom O'Flaherty

CAMPAIGN CORNER

A second order for "Vote Communist" stamps has been received from Baltimore. The first ten books ordered have been quickly disposed of, and the present order is expected to last only a few days. Preparations are going forward to make the rally and picnic on Labor Day, when Benjamin Gitlow will speak, the biggest affair of the kind since the war. Scores of workers' organizations are co-operating in the arrangements of this huge affair. All eyes in the Quaker City are turned toward Schuetzen Grove, where this rally will be held.

Edward McCormack of Denver mailed a letter to Comrade George Saul, the hustling Rocky Mountain organizer, with a Vote Communist stamp pasted where the stamp of Morgan's uncle is supposed to be. It was returned marked "unmailable." Uncle is particular. He probably thinks that Benjamin Franklin is a better looking man than Benjamin Gitlow. He certainly has more hair on his head than Gitlow and Foster combined.

There is enough news of New York activities to fill several campaign corners. Rebecca Grecht, the campaign manager, and Lawrence Ross, the district publicity man, are nifty with tongue and typewriter, so there is much activity among the comrades in the Empire State and much talking and writing about it. Signatures are coming in in big bundles, and the workers and poor farmers of the wealthiest state in the union will have an opportunity to mark their ballots for William F. Dunne for governor, Robert Minor for United States senator, and the smaller (though not less worthy) fry on the state ticket. More about New York in another "corner."

"Funds, funds and more funds," to paraphrase Danton or darned near it in the absence of the correct quotation. Fives and tens are now pouring in on contribution blanks. New states are going on the ballot every week now, or the Communist ticket is going on the ballot in new states every week. It's all the same either way. Action brings more action and money. The campaign is now beginning to hit its stride. The dog days are rapidly going to the dogs, and with the approach of bearable weather the morale of the comrades is due for a rise. Never mind if the Gulf Stream switched its course and changed the climate. We'll restore the status quo after the revolution. In the meantime, make the shekels fly this way. Remember what Hearst wired his correspondent in Cuba before the Spanish War: "You give us the news, and we will give you the war." Comrades and sympathizers: "You give us the money, and we will give you the campaign"—and a peppy one at that. Forward your contributions at once to the National Election Campaign Committee, 43 E. 125th St., New York City. Alexander Trachtenberg, treasurer.

DEFY POLICE TERROR; HOLD SACCO-VANZETTI MEETINGS

URGES NEGROES TO AID WORKERS PARTY CAMPAIGN

Communists Champion of Race, Says Moore

Takes Up Challenge

In answer to the challenge made in an article that appeared in the New York Amsterdam News by Dr. Thomas L. Harten, pastor of the Holy Trinity Baptist church of Brooklyn, in which Harten declared that he would give $200 for the campaign of any colored man who is nominated for any office, who would be an actual fighter for the cause of the Negroes, the Workers (Communist) Party, through its candidate for congress in the 21st Congressional District, Richard B. Moore, yesterday made public a letter which discusses the points raised by the pastor's article.

The letter, agreeing with Dr. Harten's summary of the republican and democratic parties as not only holding out no inducements for the Negro but being definitely against the entire race, claims his support for the Workers (Communist) Party Negro candidate, Richard B. Moore.

"The Workers (Communist) Party," the letter reads, "stands forth

MURDOCH SPEAKS IN FALL RIVER

Flays Uniformed Thug Brutality

FALL RIVER, Mass., Aug. 23.—Fall River textile workers at a mass meeting held on Liberty Lot yesterday evening welcomed William T. Murdoch, New Bedford strike leader recently released from jail, with an enthusiastic demonstration. This was his first appearance before a meeting of the Fall River Textile Mill Committees.

In the speech that followed Murdoch commented on the chairman's introductory remark that he had been jailed without any justifiable cause. Murdoch declared that he had been imprisoned for the greatest reason that the bosses can have. "That reason," said he, "is that I represented the Textile Mill Committees which had come in and carried on the strike that Batty had planned to sell out, just as the yellow traitors, the officialdom of the Fall River Unions, had sold out the workers when the wage cut was enforced here in January." We are also the mill owners' most dangerous enemy because we proceeded to organize the masses of workers that the Battys term "unorganizable."

He then launched a slashing at-

WORKERS TO HOLD RED TAG DAYS

"Why change and disrupt the orderly process of government which would involve slowing down business?" asks Hubert Work, chairman of the republican national committee, and the answer of thousands of New York workers tomorrow and Sunday—set aside as Red Tag Days for the Workers (Communist) Party election campaign—will be couched in the language usually spoken by capitalist vote getters: money. Workers thruout New York will collect for and contribute to the Red Election Campaign, with the

LATVIAN STRIKE IS SPREADING

250 More Arrested by Police

RIGA, Latvia, Aug. 23.—Fighting between strikers and police was resumed here today.

The government was considering proclaiming a state of siege.

Two hundred and fifty workers were arrested today in addition to 400 arrested yesterday. Police were firing continually in the air to intimidate the rioters.

Minister of War Kalminisch returned from his vacation.

The strike movement, which began yesterday among 5,000 harbor workers who walked out in protest against the trial of Communist agitators in the Riga District Court, spread today to the street railway workers.

RIGA, Aug. 23.—Police continued to patrol the streets of this city today following the demonstrations of thousands of Latvian workers against the government's attempt to disband all unions which are predominantly Communist in composition.

The demonstration yesterday followed an attempt of the government to close the offices of a number of trade unions. The unions have a majority Communist membership. The suppression orders brought response from thousands of workers in the capital in the form of demonstrations which marched on the center of the town. Police attempting to stop the marchers fired into the procession wounding several.

N. Y. FUR LOCALS BACK NEW UNION

Greek Furriers Meet Tonight

Members of all four craft locals making up the New York Joint Board Furriers' Union held enthusiastic and crowded meetings last night in four separate halls here and after hearing their officers report of the decision of the International United Front Committee to form a new national fur workers' organization, unanimously adopted the report and proceeded to elect two representatives from each local to membership on the Provisional National Executive Committee. This committee is to function as a central body till a permanent one is chosen by the coming convention of the new union.

Cutters' Local 1, Operators' Local 5 and Mailers' Local 10 held their meetings in three halls of the Irving Plaza, 15th St. and Irving Place, and the Finishers' Local 15 met in Stuyvesant Casino, Second Ave.

U. S. IN RUBBER GRAB

To Force Filipinos to Increase Grants

MANILA, Aug. 23.—The first step in the program of leasing large scale plantations to American syndicates, chiefly for the purpose of cultivating rubber, was taken yesterday with the introduction of a new land law into the national legislature. The law would increase the amount of land which may be leased from the government to 5,000 hectares.

The law further provides that leases on the land may be renewed at fifty per year intervals, which will assure the large rubber corporations. This proviso has been stipulated by the large rubber interests who will not undertake investments under the terms of leases which might expire at shorter periods.

The present land laws, which prevent the leasing of large acre

13,000 WORKERS DEMONSTRATE IN N. Y. 'RED SQUARE'

Demand the Release of Mooney, Billings at Meet

Rap Frame-up System

In the face of a score of mounted police, armored motorcycles, and several hundred uniformed cops and plainclothesmen, about 13,000 New York workers yesterday crowded the north side of Union Square at the first anniversary memorial demonstration of the murder of Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti.

Reminiscent of the great demonstrations held in the same square last year during the last days prior to the execution of the two labor martyrs, yesterday's meeting was characterized by militancy and enthusiasm.

From three platforms nearly 50 speakers representing the Workers (Communist) Party, left wing trade unions, New York anarchist groups, working women's organizations and fraternal societies denounced the "rapacious system which was responsible for the death of Sacco and Vanzetti," and explained the class character of the prosecution of the two Italian immigrant workers.

Communist speakers declared that the overthrow of the capitalist system and the establishment of a dictatorship of the working class alone would prevent the recurrence of such brazen frame-ups as was made upon Sacco and Vanzetti.

The meeting was opened by Rose Baron, secretary of the New York Section of International Labor Defense, under whose auspices the meeting was arranged. Morris E. Taft, manager of Local 41, International Ladies Garment Workers Union, was chairman.

Prolonged cheers greeted the name of Mooney and Billings whenever they were mentioned. The names of the assassins of Sacco and Vanzetti—Thayer, Fuller, Katzman, were greeted by boos and hisses.

Electrifying bursts of cheering swept the throng as the verdict of the New England overlords was exposed as a means of assassinating the two militant workers who dared to challenge their authority.

"Will Not Be Forgotten."

Speaker after speaker, during the three hours that the meeting continued, declared that the crime perpetrated in Massachusetts just a year ago would not soon be forgotten. They pointed out that the delusions of the liberals that the two workers would ultimately be freed because individuals of prominence in the business and professional world had "interceded" in their behalf had proved itself to be hollow, and would serve as an object lesson to the working class in the future.

Capitalist "Justice."

They pointed out that the Sacco-Vanzetti case was not a "miscarriage of justice," as the liberal apologists for the capitalist system would have the workers believe, but a normal "dispensation of capitalist 'justice' when applied to militant workers."

Several speakers who made slighting references toward the Communist program from the anarchist platform were repeatedly booed by the crowd, and as a result cut their speeches short and left the platform.

Several minutes later a cordon of police made a ring around the platform and remained until the conclusion of the meeting.

Fiery Slogans.

Among them were: "Free Mooney and Billings"; "Down with the Fullers and the Thayers"; "Down with Capitalist Justice"; "The I. L. D. Fights for Class War Prisoners"; "The Cause for which Sacco and Vanzetti died lives on"; "Break the Prison Bars which Hold the Champions of Labor"; "How Long Shall We Let Them Murder Us?"; "Only the Rule of the Workers Will Smash the Frame-up System"; "Long Live the First Workers' and Peasants' Republic"; "Rally to the Cause for Which Sacco and Vanzetti Died"; "There Are 30,000 Textile Workers on Strike in the State Which Murdered Sacco and Vanzetti"; "Sacco and Vanzetti Gave Their Lives for the Class Struggle—Vote for the Workers (Communist) Party of the Class Struggle."

Speakers at the meeting included

MINERS PREDICT NEW ERA AHEAD

All Eyes Turn to Big Convention

(Special to the Daily Worker.)

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 23.—September 9 will mark the beginning of a new era for the miners, according to the view generally expressed by progressive mine leaders and rank and file coal diggers who are making every preparation for the big national conference which opens here on that date. At the headquarters of the National Arrangements Committee, 119 Federal St. N. S., signs of the greatest activity are in evidence.

"Our enthusiasm and confidence is based not on mere hopes but on our knowledge of the situation," it was declared. "Reports from practically every organized and unorganized field are uniform in declaring that sentiment for the new union is rising.

Kentucky Active.

"Organization work in Kentucky for instance, is booming," leaders stated. "Powderly, Browder, Hillside, Beech Creek are already lined up with the movement to build a new miners union. When William Duncan, Lewis' local 'boss' comes to the mass meetings with armed gangsters, with the handles of knives sticking out of their belts and draped on their fat stomachs, the men simply laugh at him and go on with their plans for more and more mass meetings, organizing more locals, electing delegates.

"'You've done your share, Duncan!' they tell him. 'You've wrecked what was left of the U. M. W. of A. in Kentucky. Now we're doing this job. We are going to build an honest, militant miners' union, and a thousand Lewises and Duncans can't stop us!'

"Even in far off Wasington the

ELECTION FUNDS NEEDED

With the Workers (Communist) Party ticket on the ballot in fifteen states and at least fifteen more expected to be in the red column within the next six weeks, the need for funds to cover this large territory with speakers and campaign literature is becoming daily more critical.

William Z. Foster and Benjamin Gitlow are to start their national campaign tours the first week in September, and several other nationally known speakers are scheduled to go on the road shortly. It costs money to tour speakers and to print literature.

The tremendous circularization of the readers of the Party press, the sending out of a quarter million pieces of mail, placed a heavy financial burden on the campaign committee. Thousands of dollars were expended for printing and stamps alone. Unless there is a generous response to this appeal, not only will there be no net return for the $100,000 Communist Campaign Fund but the campaign itself will be hard hit by the heavy deficit.

The National Election Campaign Committee again appeals to the readers of the Communist press to contribute generously and at once to the Campaign Fund.

If every Communist who reads this appeal will take at least one single dollar and send it at once to Alexander Trachtenberg, 43 East 125th Street, New York City, our problem will be solved and the campaign will go ahead. Help. The emergency is great. You are urged not only to contribute yourself but also to canvass the shop in which you work, the members of the working class fraternal organizations to which you belong, and the members of your trade unions.

Many have already responded, and hundreds of dollars are reaching the National Office for the Campaign Fund, but thousands are needed—and now—and unless the flood of contributions is substantially increased, the campaign will suffer a terrible blow.

The National Election Campaign Committee points out to the class conscious workers who are supporting the Communist ticket the seriousness of the situation and the urgent need for funds. Every worker who realizes the importance of the election campaign and the great opportunities that it presents to radicalize the workers ideologically, must look on this appeal as a personal one and join actively in the drive to raise the $100,000 campaign fund.

If you have not already acted, help now and save the campaign from a most disastrous blow just when we are beginning to go full steam ahead.

TEN ARRESTED AT SACCO MEET IN KANSAS CITY

Oehler, Cushing Now Face Long Prison Sentences

Plan Protest Meeting

(Special to the Daily Worker)

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Aug. 23.—Hugo Oehler, district organizer of the Workers (Communist) Party, and Cushing, a member of the executive committee of District 10 of the Young Workers (Communist) League, are facing the possibility of long prison terms under the "criminal syndicalism" law of this state, following a raid on a Sacco-Vanzetti memorial demonstration at Shawnee Park last night.

Seven other workers, members of the International Labor Defense, who were arrested at the same time, were later released.

The attack was instigated by the Armour Company of this city, before whose gates a similar meeting was held the day before, workers charge. At that time Oehler and Cushing were arrested. They were later freed under bail.

Despite the general police intimidation which exists throughout the city, the International Labor Defense is mobilizing all forces at its command for a series of protest meetings and a general united front conference of labor organizations in a few days.

REPORT HASSELL PLANE SIGHTED

Seen Over Greenland Sunday

JULIANEHAAB, Greenland, Aug. 23 (UP).—A plane believed to have been the Greater Rockford was seen on Sunday passing over the village of Fiswenaesset, the governor of South Greenland, announced today.

A message from the governor received at the radio station here said there was no doubt about the plane having passed, as it was seen by the entire population of Fiskenaesset and the neighboring village of Lichtenfel.

The plane was sighted at 10:30 a. m., Sunday, flying from the north and going low over Fiskenaesset, as though looking for a landing place.

ARREST FIVE PICKETS AT NEW BEDFORD MILLS

NEW BEDFORD, Mass., Aug. 23.—Four strikers were arrested this morning, three of them women, when they insisted on their legal right to picket at the Potomska Mill gates this morning. Germina Medieros, strike committee member on her way to a meeting at union headquarters was also arrested on a warrant issued against her on charges of "disturbing the peace."

Maria Valente, Laura Nunes, Joseph Gomes and 16-year-old Blanche Almeda after being twice driven away from the factory gates by a squad of police came back to reform the picket line for the third time, which resulted in the arrests on charges of peace disturbance and loitering.

William T. Murdoch, general organizer of the New Bedford Textile Workers' Union, who was just released from jail appeared this morning at the mills to lead the picket lines.

Tampico Workers Go on Strike as Sacco-Vanzetti Memorial

(By United Press.)

TAMPICO, Mexico, Aug. 23.—Labor organizations held street demonstrations today outside the American and Italian consulates and the newspaper El Mundo's offices in commemoration of the Sacco-Vanzetti executions a year ago.

Fiery speeches were made, but there was no disorder, beyond the suspension of traffic. Three general stoppages were reported at noon.

DISCUSS INDIAN REVOLT TACTICS

Red Congress Holds 37th Session

(Wireless to the Daily Worker)

MOSCOW, USSR, Aug. 23.—The thirty-seventh session of the Sixth World Congress of the Communist International opened on the afternoon of August 18 with Schueller as chairman. Continuing the colonial debate the following spoke: Fachri of Turkey, Murphy of Britain, Mondok of Czechoslovakia, Losovski of the Red International of Labor Unions, Neumann of Germany, Page Arnot of Britain, Devries of Holland, Dutt of India.

De-Colonization Theory.

Murphy opened his speech by saying that he spoke for himself and not for the British delegation. He said that he was completely in agreement with the theses. He declared that Bennet gave a menshevist picture of the industrial development in India. Bennet's de-colonization ideas would lead to the conclusion that no revolutionary perspective was possible before the industrialization of India, he said. The decisive factor in the colonial revolution Murphy designated as the accumulation of imperialist contradictions and not industrialization. The retarding process of industrialization in the colonies is the common character of all imperialist colonial policies, he said. Statistics prove that Britain always followed the same policy of hindering the industrial development in India with the exception of the war years. Bennet's contention that the whole Indian bourgeoisie is already in the counter-revolutionary camp, he termed a false statement.

THOMAS MAKES LEAGUE APPEAL

The Reverend Talks to Round Table Knights

TOLEDO, Ohio, Aug. 23 (UP).—Norman Thomas, socialist candidate for president, said today that Governor Smith's speech of acceptance was a "clever emotional appeal to liberals for support of a program impossible of achievement through the democratic party to the knights of the round table here.

"I question the sincerity of Smith's general attitude," said Thomas. The socialist leader criticized the failure of the democratic nominee to include the world court, the league of nations, the war debt settlement, and the Russian recognition issues in his speech.

BOSTON WORKERS DEFY POLICE TO HOLD MEMORIAL

Hold Meeting in Street After Lock-out at Paine Hall

Crowd Cheers Gitlow

(Special To The Daily Worker.)

BOSTON, Mass., Aug. 23.—In direct defiance of local police authorities who earlier in the day had caused the doors of the Paine Memorial hall to be shut, 2,000 workers last night joined in a huge memorial demonstration in honor of Sacco and Vanzetti in the streets outside the hall.

Benjamin Gitlow, vice presidential candidate on the Workers (Communist) Party ticket, and principal speaker at the meeting, received a tremendous ovation. Other speakers were Jessica Henderson, who opened the meeting on behalf of the International Labor Defense and Harry A. Cantor, of the Workers (Communist) Party, who acted as chairman.

Gitlow, reviewing the seven years of torture thru which Sacco and Vanzetti were led, declared that the most effective way to honor their memory is to build the militant,

FIFTY SPEAKERS AT SACCO MEET

Minor, Olgin, Tresca at N. Y. Memorial

Following are excerpts from speeches made at the Sacco-Vanzetti demonstration at Union Square yesterday:

Robert Minor, editor of the Daily Workers and Communist Candidate for U. S. Senator—"Sacco and Vanzetti were murdered just a year ago because the historical moment in the U. S. called for a savage blow against the militant section of the working class and against the working class as a whole. It was 'sound policy' from the capitalist point of view to execute Sacco and Vanzetti.

"The international situation made it a shrewd political act of American imperialism to throw the charred bodies of the two Italian laborers into the faces of the working class of nations whose masses had dared to 'meddle' in the case.

"The capitalist class rose to power by revolution and will go down by revolution. We pledge ourselves not to 'forgive' the murderers of Sacco and Vanzetti, not to be passive, but to go ahead, work, fight—sacrifice our lives if need be—to realize the overthrow of the capitalist class that murdered them, and to establish the dictatorship of the working class in the United States."

Carlo Tresca, editor of Il Martello—"The employing class in the United States is one of the most brutal in the world, and its treatment of Sacco and Vanzetti was not an isolated incident but characteristic of it. Fascist Italy, under the bloody Mussolini, is murdering thousands of the best workers without a hint of protest from the United States. . . ."

M. J. Olgin, editor of the "Hammer"—"We are gathered here under the red flag of revolution to do honor to the memory of Sacco and Vanzetti. We workers do not believe this drivel that their execution was a miscarriage of justice. The attack upon the labor movement must be resisted. Only in this way can we do honor to the memory of Sacco and Vanzetti."

5,000 Strikers Honor Sacco, Vanzetti

NEW BEDFORD, Mass., Aug. 23.—Over five thousand striking textile workers crowded into Saulniers Lot yesterday at a Sacco-Vanzetti memorial demonstration held under the auspices of the International Labor Defense.

Out of a sick bed, Augustus Pinto, the heroic young strike leader came to the meeting, declaring he felt he must speak to the strikers on the day when the world's workers mourn the death of their martyred comrades. Another speaker was A. Gaspar, arrested last year in the demonstrations arranged by the local Portuguese revolutionary paper, "A Luta."

G. Zamieras, representing the Workers (Communist) Party, in an impassioned speech in Portuguese declared that the oligarchy that had

Four Western Railroads Merge to Form One of the Largest Combines in Country

FIRST PLANNED IN 1923, MOVE ENDS LONG WAR

Seen as Blow at Wage Demands

CHICAGO, Aug. 23.—A merger of the largest western railroads on which trainmen are now taking a strike vote was seen as a certainty today with the announcement of the appointment of Hale Holden, president of the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Line as chairman of the Southern Pacific. The Southern Pacific, the Burlington Systems, the Great Northern, and the Northern Pacific are involved in what is one of the greatest railroad mergers in history.

The move is seen among other things as a more effective means of fighting the demands of the workers.

Long Planned Move.

CHICAGO, Aug. 23 (U.P.).—Consolidation of four western railroads was predicted today as the result of the appointment of Hale Holden, president of the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy line, to the chairmanship of the executive committee of the Southern Pacific Railroad. The roads involved are the Southern Pacific, the Great Northern, the Burlington systems and the Northern Pacific.

Railroad officials recalled that in 1923 Holden submitted to the Interstate Commerce Commission a plan for the merging of all western roads into four major lines.

Holden's appointment is expected to end the opposition of the Southern Pacific and Santa Fe to the expansion of the Western Pacific and to increase co-operation among the western roads.

HOSTILE VESSEL BARRED BY USSR

British Warship Not to Remove Sub Dead

MOSCOW, Aug. 23.—A British warship will not be allowed to enter Soviet waters in order to bring back to England the bodies of the sailors found on the British submarine L-55, which was sunk by the navy of the Soviet Union while the L-55 was participating in the invasion and counter-revolution in 1919, according to Tass, Soviet news agency.

The British government made the request which was received in Moscow on August 20. The L-55 was salvaged by the Soviet navy about two weeks ago in order to discover whether the submarine had been sunk by a mine or by volleys from the Soviet navy, the latter proving to be the case.

Although the Soviet government would not allow a battleship of a country with whom all diplomatic and trade relations were cut, it expressed its willingness to permit a warship of a friendly government, or a British merchantman to dock at its ports.

RED SQUAD WILL INVADE BROOKLYN

Sections 2 and 3 are Active in Drive

The, by this time, famous Red Squad of Section 2, which made its lasting reputation last Sunday by its fine work in obtaining signatures in the Fourth and Fifth Assembly Districts of the Bronx, will this Sunday tackle Brownsville.

The squad will meet at 154 Watkins St., in the Brownsville section of Brooklyn, at 9 o'clock Sunday morning, and will go through the Twenty-third and Twenty-second Assembly Districts until 12 a. m. After that hour the members of the squad will further participate in the election campaign by taking collection boxes of the Red Tag Day and soliciting cash contributions.

Squad is Confident.

Members of the Section 2 Red Campaign Squad, interviewed last night in their headquarters at 101 West 27th St., expressed full confidence in their ability to clean up both the Brownsville Election Districts on Sunday morning.

Should the work of the section two squad prove as fruitful next Sunday as it did last Sunday in the Bronx, the movement which is on foot in the District Office to have their names inscribed on a special honor role will doubtless gain headway.

Section 3 Active.

Section 3, whose Red Squad last week worked from the 2075 Clinton Ave. headquarters of the Bronx, is also mobilizing this week for participation in the Brownsville election raid. A good deal of friendly rivalry has developed between the two sections, and although the Section 2 Squad succeeded in obtaining more signatures in the Bronx, the Section 3 Squad is determined to obtain more in Brownsville.

ARREST FOUR AT CLEVELAND MEET

Were Giving Leaflets to Workers

(Special to the Daily Worker)

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Aug. 23.—Police yesterday broke up a mass meeting held on the Public Square here, and arrested four students attending the Ohio Young Workers Training School who were selling Communist literautre to the assembled workers, in an effort to stop the campaign which the Workers (Communist) Party is carrying on in this city.

In order to make the arrests legal a communication from Cleveland states, the Cleveland authorities dug up for the first time in many years an obsolete ordinance which prohibits the sale or distribution of literature, leaflets and other printed matter at open-air meetings.

Suppression of Workers.

"Every method to suppress the propagation of Communist ideas and to stop the growing influence of the Workers (Communist) Party and Young Workers (Communist) League on the masses of workers," the communication continues, "is being employed by the Ohio authorities. In recent months the workers of Cleveland have seen the strict enforcement of old city ordinances that have been lying dormant for years. These ordinances have been revived for the sole purpose of crushing the revolutionary working class movement."

Terrorist Campaign.

Police last week caused the arrest of seven young workers in the Ashtabula school and the threat of arraignment under the Ohio Criminal Syndicalist Law of two instructors of the school.

The four young workers were arrested on the Public Square, a place originally dedicated to "free speech." One of them was held for "investigation" overnight, and released the following morning under $100 bail.

express purpose of ultimately radically changing the form of government advocated by the republican chairman, Work, and his democratic Siamese Twin.

Reports from the thirty Red Stations which punctuate every section of the city indicate that there will be an unprecedented turnout of workers for participation in the Red Fund campaign. Thousands of collection boxes have been distributed to thousands of enthusiastic collectors.

Tomorrow and Sunday a dash of color will be added to New York's streets and beaches by the red-lettered arm-bands which will encircle the left wings of thousands of class conscious workers for the Communist campaign.

"Every worker who donates to the Communist Campaign Fund will do his bit toward making the slogan of the collection boxes, 'Down With the Government of Wall Street,' a reality," is the statement of the District Campaign Committee of the Workers (Communist) Party. "All workers are urged to strike a blow for the immediate relief of the unemployed, for the abrogation of government by injunction, for a struggle against imperialist war and for a workers' and farmers' government in the United States."

"Butcher" Machado to Aid Sugar Barons

HAVANA, Cuba, Aug. 23 (UP).—President Machado conferred for two hours today with several groups of sugar growers, including representatives of the Punta Alegre Sugar Company and several other powerful sugar centrals.

Although the sugar men refused to make a statement as to the result of the conference, it was reported reliably at the palace that the Cuban government's 1928-1929 crop policy was discussed and that all indications are for no further crop restrictions.

Worker Killed, Many Hurt in Train Wreck

STILLWATER, Minn., Aug. 23 (UP).—One person was killed and at least seven persons injured when an Omaha-Northwestern passenger train struck a helping engine and was derailed here today.

The body of William Richardson, Minneapolis, engineer of the passenger train, was pinned under the locomotive. Five cars, in addition to the engine, left the track, piled up and were badly damaged.

No definite check could be made of the injured persons as they were taken to St. Paul by an auxiliary train.

at the time the huge Cooper Union meeting was held, the New York fur workers accelerated the movement that will drive out of the trade the A. F. of L. and socialist officials of the old International that had sold to the bosses the workers' union standards.

The election of delegates to the provisional N. E. C. was held at the end of the meetings and were as follows: Ben Gold and S. Liebowitz, from Local 1; Aaron Gross and B. Baraz, from Local 5; Louis Cohen and H. Herschkowitz from Local 10; Lena Rabinowitz and J. Winogradsky from Local 15.

To Form Greek Local.

All Greek fur workers are called to a meeting tomorrow night for the purpose of registering their votes on the decision to build a new furriers' union and to establish a united local of Greek furriers. Workers in all fur manufacturing shops, whether they belong to the Greek branch of the New York Joint Board or to the Greek Local 70 of the A. F. of L. International, are called to this meeting.

Officers of the A. F. of L. Local 70, as well as the leaders of the Joint Board branch, will speak at the meeting to explain the step taken by the International United Front Committee. A. Winnick will also be there to represent the Progressive Bloc of the right wing Joint Council, which split off from the reactionary scab union to join in the new union movement. B. Gold, manager of the New York Joint Board, will address the meeting also.

The Greek Branch of the Joint Board and the officers of Local 70 joined in a call to the chairmen of all shops in the industry to instruct the Greek workers in their shops that they must attend the meeting without fail.

WORKING WOMEN HOLD OUTING

The United Council of Working Women will hold an outing on Sunday, August 26th, at Van Cortlandt Park, beginning at 1 p. m.

BOSTON, Aug. 23 (UP).—Thirty-eight residents of North Adams and vicinity, including a former mayor, six members of the police department, and several business men, must appear before a federal grand jury here today.

President Edward Piker of the city council, a former mayor of North Adams, was among those summoned.

MILLER, MOORE SPEAK IN HARLEM

Negro Workers Show Enthusiasm

At a large and enthusiastic meeting of Negro workers held Tuesday night at the corner of 133rd Street and Lenox Ave., which was the first meeting held by the new Unit 1 of Negro comrades of the Workers (Communist) Party, Bert Miller, organizational secretary of the Workers Party and Richard Moore, in charge of Negro work, spoke on the problems confronting the Negro workers of this and other cities and urged the unity of all Negro workers with white workers against capitalist oppressors of all races.

The importance of the election campaign was outlined by Miller, who emphasized the anti-Negro role of both the democratic and republican parties by citing the segregation of Negroes at the republican convention, which also refused to seat Mrs. Booze, a Negro delegate, at one of the party meetings, and by the barring of Negroes from the Texas primaries by the democrats and the lynching of a Negro worker which marked the opening of the democratic convention.

In proving the essential anti-Negro worker role of the republican party, Moore proceeded to shatter the illusion of Lincoln having been a friend of the Negroes, upon which illusion the republican party has been "trading upon the ghost of Lincoln." Moore cited Lincoln's letter to Horace Greeley in which he wrote "if I can save the union by freeing all the slaves, they shall be freed; if I can free the union by freeing some of the slaves, some shall be freed, and if I can save the union buy not freeing the slaves, they shall not be freed."

Moore and Miller, recalling the police brutality against Negro workers in Harlem a short while back, called on the Negro workers present to support the candidates of and join the Workers (Communist) Party, "the only party that has taken an uncompromising, four-square position on the Negro question."

NEGRO WORKERS HOLD MASS MEET

To Discuss Aims of Labor Congress

The aims and purposes of the American Negro Labor Congress will be discussed tonight at a mass meeting called for 8 o'clock at Boyles Memorial M. E. Zion church, Gates Ave. and Irving Place, Brooklyn.

Leaflets distributed for the meeting invite all workers to attend and declare that the congress has "a message for every Negro man, woman and child who has to work for a living—a message for every Negro whose soul burns with indignation at the indignities heaped upon his group in this country, in partitioned Africa and slaughtered Haiti."

Speakers include Richard B. Moore, national organizer of the American Negro Labor Congress; Grace P. Campbell, chairman Harlem Educational Forum; George Padmore, Henry Resemond, Edwin H. Best, Chairman, Conrad A. Walters.

TUNNEY IN DUBLIN

DUBLIN, Aug. 23 (UP).—James Joseph Tunney arrived here tonight from London.

MILLIONS ATTEND SACCO-VANZETTI MEETS IN U.S.S.R.

World Tourists to See Soviet Anniversary

Millions of workers throughout the Soviet Union joined in memorial meetings to honor Sacco and Vanzetti on the anniversary of their murder by the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, according to reports received here. As in the case of Tom Mooney, for whom protest demonstrations were held in the U. S. S. R. long before the great majority of the American workers realized that he and Billings would almost certainly be executed, the Russian workers demonstrated again their solidarity with the victims of capitalist class "justice."

Meetings and demonstrations in the Soviet Union are conducted not only in the great public squares of the important cities, including Moscow, Leningrad, Kiev, Odessa, etc., but in many of the former palaces of the czarist "nobles," since expropriated by the first workers' and peasants' government.

Many Americans Expected.

A large number of Americans are expected to see for themselves the new order of things in the U. S. S. R. This will be made possible by the special tour to the Soviet Union arranged by the World Tourists, Inc., 69 Fifth Ave., New York City. They will not only be enabled to visit the various cities of the U. S. S. R., study the new life of the Russian workers and peasants, but will be privileged to witness the Eleventh Anniversary Celebration of the November Revolution.

The Seventh of November (25th of October, old Russian) is the day of inspiring celebrations and unique festivities over the U. S. S. R. The entire Red Army and Fleet of Russian workers and peasants participate in pageants which surpass those of any other national holiday.

Organize Big Tour.

The World Tourists, Inc., is organizing an October tour, to arrive in Russia in time for this celebration. By special arrangement with the Official Travel Bureau of the Soviet government it is in a position to greatly reduce the cost of this tour, enabling the average worker to avail himself of it.

The group will sail from New York on October 17, on the Cunard express steamer "Mauretania" to London.

U. S. S. R. GRAIN ABOVE AVERAGE

Wheat, Rye, Barley Oats Continue Good

According to cabled reports received yesterday by the Amtorg Trading Corporation, the grain crop prospects in the U. S. S. R. continue favorable. The Central Statistical Administration estimates the condition of all grain crops on August 1 at 115.6, taking 100 as the average crop. Last year the condition of the crops on August 1 was estimated at 107.

Spring wheat showed the most favorable condition, being estimated at 37 per cent above the normal on August 1. Rye was 9 per cent above the average, barley 12 per cent above and oats 28 per cent. Winter wheat is estimated at 8 per cent below normal.

GANG LEADER SHOT

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 23 (UP).—William F. (Big Bill) Davis, gang leader, was shot and killed today by a police squad which trapped him as he allegedly was extorting tribute from a soft drink parlor.

Election Mass Meeting on September 28

The workers of New York will have an opportunity of hearing all of the candidates of the Workers (Communist) Party in New York State at the monster election campaign rally to be held at the Central Opera House, 67th Street and Third Avenue, on Friday evening, September 28th.

While the general subject of the talks by the various candidates will be the election platform of the Party, special attention will be paid to New York questions, chief of which are the Tammany role, the political power of the power and public utilities corporations sheltered under the wing of New York republicanism and the role played by the socialist party in labor struggles of the city and state.

All workers' organizations are requested by the District Campaign Committee to keep this date open and arrange no conflicting affairs.

TO HOLD T.U.E.L. FETE TOMORROW

Dances, Folk Songs to Feature

Thousands of left wing workers of this city and environment will frolic and make merry tomorrow at Ulmer Park, Brooklyn, at the annual Workers' Open Air Festival held by the New York local of the Trade Union Educational League.

Tickets, which may be bought at 26-28 Union Square, the new home of the Trade Union Educational League, for fifty cents each, contain the admonition "12 noon to 12 morning," although, if the left-wingers of this city are as good merrymakers as they are fighters, the time limit will be disregarded.

In more than one way will the T. U. E. L. frolic be unique among openair events. The program of sports will be more complete and competition more keen; the program of eats will be more varied and exciting; the Red Poets' Forum, led by Mike Gold, will be the first such forum to be held at an open-air affair.

Costumed groups of singers will render folk songs in many languages, to be followed immediately by folk dances. After the folk dances there will be general dancing by those present to the tunes of violins, fifes and harmonicas.

Arrangements have been made by M. Pasternak, of the local T. U. E. L., for the presence of Chinese left wing workers who have offered to prepare Chinese food, among which is not included the American version of Chop Suey. Armenian cooks will prepare their national culinary pride, "Shashlik," and the food race will be on.

The workers present at the picnic will be greeted by John J. Ballam, Secretary of the T. U. E. L., Louis Hyman of the Cloakmakers' union and Ben Gold of the Furriers' union.

All left wing workers and sympathizers, their wives and sweethearts, urged to attend the festival in support of the T. U. E. L. and its policies.

Every new reader of The DAILY WORKER is a potential soldier in the coming battles of the workers.

BALKAN CRISIS SEEN BREWING IN JUGOSLAVIA

Minorities Continue Demonstrations

ESSEG, Jugoslavia, Aug. 23.—Numerous students and peasants were arrested here when they staged a furious demonstration against the Belgrade government and its suppression of the national minorities.

The demonstration followed a memorial meeting in honor of the dead Croatian leader, Stefan Raditch.

Leaders Uncertain.

ZAGREB, Yugoslavia, Aug. 23.—Members of the Croatian peasant party here expressed themselves, in interviews to the foreign press correspondents, to be entirely in favor of an autonomous Croatia, often repeating the term "free Croatia" and "Belgrade suppression," but the leaders of the party were not quite certain as to how this aim was to be attained.

Charges of suppression, fraud, fascist tendencies against the Belgrade officials, filled the interview. When questioned as to how the free Croatia was to be obtained, Dr. Krnjevic, secretary of the Croatian peasant party, was not sure, but said, "We shall see."

In face of the pacifist resistance of the Croatian leaders, mass demonstrations, in many cases very militant, have taken place in Dalmatian and Croatian cities against the Yugoslav regime and the Netuno pact with the fascists.

Since the next regular elections will not take place until 1931, many observers here doubt the ability of the present leaders to convince the mass of Croatian peasants and Dalmatian workers to continue a policy of passive resistance. In view of the fact that Italy is so interested in Jugoslav development and the development of an Italian Adriatic lake, trouble for the Balkans, which may have wider repercussions, is forecast.

UNITY CAMP TO AID THE 'DAILY'

Workers spending their short vacations in the Cooperative Camp Unity, Wingdale, N. Y., are this week striving to better the record of $1,100 collected last week at Camp Nitgedaiget. A "Daily Worker Week," similar to the one which was held at the latter camp, has been inaugurated at Unity.

The program includes a moonlight excursion on the lake on which the camp is situated; two days during which a camp judge will be elected; and the "Prohibition Day," during which all workers whose actions deviate from the regular camp routine will be fined, proceeds to go to the Daily Worker. This day has been set for Friday.

The program will continue with a "Salome Night" on Friday evening, a literary day on Saturday, to conclude with a Soviet Costume Ball which will last until the early hours of Sunday.

Office Workers Will Celebrate Formation of Union With Dance

A dance celebrating the formation of the office workers union, with offices at the Labor Temple, Second Avenue and 14th St., will be held Monday evening, Aug. 27, at 8 p. m., on the roof garden of the Herkscher Foundation Building, Fifth Avenue and 104th St.

All workers are invited to attend the festivities that will be held on the evening of the dance attendent to the formation of the union.

CAP UNION HEAD ASKS BOSS WRIT

"Socialist" in Court Against Left Wing

BOSTON, Mass., Aug. 23.—The "socialist" president of the International Cloth Hat, Cap and Millinery Workers Union, Zaritsky, and his lawyer, the "socialist" leader, Bearak, appeared yesterday before Court Referee Martin Witt to argue his application for a permanent injunction against the left wing leaders of the Boston Capmakers Local 7, whose leadership the right wing seeks to replace. J. Miller, the left wing local manager, and Harry Hoffman, labor attorney, came to argue in opposition.

The leader of the "socialist" party, Bearak, eloquently enumerated "fact" after "fact" to prove to the capitalist judge that Miller and the other left wing officers were Communists whose control of a trade union was dangerous to the honorable referee.

The hearing, however, has not yet been ended. It is to be continued Friday before the same referee. After the completion of the hearing, Zaritsky's referee will have power to decide whether the Boston members of the union are entitled to the leadership they chose at a legal election held recently under the supervision of a right wing committee from the general executive board.

SHOE WORKERS MEET TONIGHT

Organization Drive to Be Launched

Plans for a united shoe workers' conference to mobilize forces for the building of the union were announced yesterday by the Independent Shoe Workers' Union of Greater New York and vicinity.

The conference which will be held tonight at 8 p. m. sharp at 51 E. 10th St. is called to discuss the next step for the future progress of the union, according to Joseph Magliacano, organizer of the shoe workers.

Shop chairmen, shop committees and organization committees in addition to rank and file shoe workers will attend the meeting. Conditions in the industry have become more and more deplorable, workers declare, and the only way to remedy them is to build the organization. A large attendance is expected at tonight's meeting.

Workers in Berlin, Leipzig, Cologne Protest Social Democratic Cruiser Building

CROWDED MEETS DEMAND WARSHIP ORDERS REVOKED

Communists Leading Protest

BERLIN, Aug. 23.—Demands that the social democratic government of Chancellor Mueller revoke its armament program initiated with the order for the building of a new cruiser at Kiel, are sweeping over the German working class and finding expression in hundreds of meetings and demonstrations of which the largest took place in Berlin yesterday.

Cities as widely separated as Cologne, Breslau and Leipzig have also held similar meteings.

In Berlin a crowded gathering demanded that the social democrats cease their apologies together with the program for armament construction and revoke the orders for the Kiel cruiser.

The demand, which was put in the form of a resolution, was passed by a huge majority.

Similar resolutions were carried in other meetings thruout the country.

The Communist Party, which is leading the German working class in its protest against the war danger implied in the building of the cruiser is also pointing out the political capital the reactionary parties hope to make out of the issue. The reactionaries are secretly pleased with the social democratic action as is evidenced by President Hindenburg's refusal to permit a referendum. At the same time they are eager to drive the social democrats from office and the cruiser issue offers them the easiest way.

So widespread is the feeling among the German workers against the cruiser construction that it is believed the social democrats will be unable much longer to ignore the growing protest movement.

DISCUSS INDIAN REVOLT TACTICS

the Second Congress theses and build up strong Communist Parties in the colonies which can fulfill their tasks in the bourgeois democratic period," he concluded.

Losovsky Speaks.

Losovsky declared that the new factor since the adoption of Lenin's resolution at the Second Congress is that since then the proletariat appeared as an independent force in numerous colonies. This fact is connected with certain industrial developments, he said. It would be false, however, to adopt a de-colonization theory from this fact. It was also false, he said, that colonies are the only sources of raw material and food for the motherlands. Such an assumption would make it difficult to set forth the slogan of the dictatorship of the proletariat and peasantry because this slogan assumes a certain stage in industrial development. Some comrades, he said, particularly the Latin Americans, wrongly fear that the slogan of the bourgeois democratic revolution diminishes the role of the proletariat and the Communist Party. Leninism demands, however, that the proletariat play a leading role in the bourgeois democratic revolutions.

This fact, Losovsky continued, and the character of the Bolshevist slogan of the dictatorship of the proletariat and peasantry must be made clearer in the theses. It is theoretically correct that the proletariat may temporarily support the colonial bourgeoisie and even make agreements with it but it is politically incorrect when the theses declare that the task of the Indian proletariat is the formation of an independent revolutionary working class movement and cleaning the revolutionary organizations from the Swarajists. The theses contain practically nothing about colonial reformism, he said.

Situation in India.

Neumann declared that Lenin's lesson of the avoidability of the capitalist development stage in the path of the colonies to socialism must be stressed. The de-colonization theory inevitably contradicts Lenin's standpoint, he said. The Indian proletariat must not conclude an alliance with the native bourgeoisie even temporarily because the Swarajists will betray the struggle at the first opportunity. The old leadership of the Communist Party of China, he said, made not only opportunist errors but even counter-revolutionary errors, for instance when it appealed for the suppression of the peasant "excesses." The present leadership of the Communist Party of China showed toleration towards the putchist tendencies in the beginning but since has corrected its errors.

Page Arnot of Britain declared that the British delegation never represented the de-colonization theory. The Indian industry is not dominant but growing, he said. The theoretical error of the theses is the attempt to explain the present policy of the British monopolist capitalism in India on the basis of the descripton of the period of industrial capitalism. The theses should have shown clearly the general law of capitalist development according to which capital exports produce a tendency to increase the speed of development of industry in the colonies. Imperialism tends to foster the growth of industry, he said. The normal form of capital export is investment in state loans, which contributes to the Indian industry, particularly in steel production, he said.

Dutt declared that it was incorrect to say imperialism hinders the growth of industry and it was also incorrect to say that it fosters industry. To a certain extent, he said, British imperialism hampers the growth of industry but having regard to the inevitable development, imperialism strives to bring Indian industry under its control. The Indian bourgeosie betrayed the national revolution but is still a factor of contradiction towards British imperialism, but is also a counter-revolutionary factor towards the proletariat. Recognition of the counter-revolutionary character of the Indian bourgeoisie must not prevent us from utilizing it in order to develop a mass revolution, Dutt concluded.

THE FLINT STRIKE AND ITS LESSONS

First Strike Against the Intense Speed-Up in Fisher Plant

(This the seventh of the series of articles on "Automobile—Symbol of The Modern Slavery." Previous articles have discussed the scope of the industry, the giant combinations, the driving forces to war, the health conditions in the various plants. Tomorrow's article will deal with the question of "Who Will Organize the Auto Workers?").

By BEN LIFSCHITZ

The strike in Flint, Michigan was one of those department walkouts to which we have referred in the last article as a manifestation of the resistance the workers in the Automobile Industry are beginning to show.

The strike broke out in the Oil Sanding Department of the Fisher Body Corporation in Flint, Mich. The Fisher Body Corporation took advantage of the change in the Buick model to cut down the earnings of the oil sanders.

In spite of the fact that there is added work on the 1929 Buick, the company insisted that the oil sanders do this work for the same prices they received for the 1928 model.

Extreme Abuses.

The men working in the Oil Sanding Department have to stand all day long in an inch or more of oil. They are soaked externally and internally with this same oil which is extremely detrimental to the health of the men, causing boils and sores all over their body. This constant source of irritation and poison is the cause of much heart and stomach trouble and obliges many of the men to obey the doctor's orders and quit.

The only response to the complaints of the men was a demand by the management that the men try again to make up their regular earnings by speeding it up a little bit more. Finally, being convinced that they would receive no consideration from the company, the men went out on strike Thursday, July 5th.

Elect Strike Committee, Present Demands.

That evening the strikers sent a committee to Detroit for the purpose of obtaining the assistance of the Auto Workers Union. With the help of the organizer of the Auto Workers Union, Philip Raymond, the strikers formulated a set of demands and elected a Strike Committee and Picketing Committee. The Strike Committee was instructed to present the demands of the strikers to the company at once. The demands of the strikers were as follows:

1. A 25 cent raise on coach and coupe jobs.
2. A 10 cent raise on roof rail panels and drip-molding panels.
3. A better grinding compound instead of the oil furnished, and more sandpaper.
4. Hot water for washing.
5. No victimization.

In the afternoon the committee returned and reported the results to the asembled strikers. They reported that the company insisted that the men return to work and try to earn their usual pay at the old rate. If this were found impossible, then the company promised to adjust the wages. The men unanimously refused to depend on further promises from the Fisher Body Corporation and voted to continue the strike until their demands were granted.

Strike Holds Up New 1929 Model

By Tuesday the strike had seriously held up production throughout the whole plant. The Buick Motor Company was held up by the lack of bodies. Many workers, both in the Fisher body plant and the Buick Motor Company were sent home because of the tie-up in the production.

Meetings were held in the afternoon opposite the Fisher Body plant. During the week a large meeting was held of about 800 workers in the Labor Temple under the auspices of the Auto Workers Union.

On Saturday, the 14th of July, a meeting was held with representatives from several of the other departments of the Fisher Body Corporation, which were ready to come out on strike in support of the oil sanders and also to gain their own demands. These representatives agreed that their departments would come out on Monday. To prevent the further growth of organization among the workers, the company voluntarily gave its vet sanders an increase of 25 cents per body.

Others Walk Out.

At two o'clock that afternoon a large group of metal finishers walked off the job. They stated their determination to support the demands of the oil sanders. That evening a committee, elected by the metal finishers, in a meeting with the strike committee agreed to the plan of going on the job the next morning for the purpose of bringing the rest of the men in their department out on strike, unless the company acceded to the demands of the oil sanders. The next morning the company countered this move by guaranteeing all the men $1 an hour whether there was work for them to do or not. A majority of the metal finishers also failed to realize the necessity of supporting the efforts of the oil sanders. By this time it had become obvious that without support from the other departments the oil sanders could no longer prevent the company from slowly but surely reaching the point of normal production. At a meeting of the strikers that evening, the strike was called off.

Proof of Solidarity.

In an interview between the writer and Mr. Frank McGrogan, the leader of the strike, he stated that to his knowledge this strike was one of the best illustrations from the point of view of the solidarity of the workers in that department that ever took place in the Fisher body plant. It [illegible] the first time that over one hundred and eighty workers, mostly Americans, struck against the increasing speed-up system being introduced into the Fisher body and in all the other plants in the automobile industry.

In order to understand the significance of this strike, we must know that there was no union or any other organized group within that shop. That this walkout was simply a sporadic outburst on the part of the workers which expresses the accumulated resentment, dissatisfaction and the growing spread of revolt which is continually, slowly but surely, growing among the automobile workers.

Shortcomings of the Strike.

It is true that the Flint strike shows that we are still in the first stages of the rude awakening of class consciousness among the automobile workers. In the interview with Frank McGrogan, he stated, "Well, the Company treated me pretty fair for about three years, but last year this wage-slashing campaign started and now suddenly they come along with another wage-cut of about $7 a week. This was more than any of us could stand."

It should be noted that McGrogan showed real qualities of leadership. Taking his sentiments as typical of those expressed by other workers, we have to realize that the level of class consciousness is yet quite low among the workers in the automobile industry.

However, even some of our leading comrades in the Detroit district underestimated this strike believing, as one of our comrades expressed it, that this "was the old usual department walkout."

Our comrades did not fully realize that the conditions in the automobile industry at present have reached the point where any department walkout may and can be broadened and sharpened into a larger struggle because the rationalization process in the automobile industry does not only result in a cut of wages but produces instability and job insecurity for the worker.

Changing Conditions.

The automobile industry is becoming more seasonal, the ever-changing styles of cars are giving the employers more and mere of an opportunity to speed up production and get more work out in a given time. Therefore the average unemployment time among the automobile workers is becoming greater. We must bear in mind that as long as the worker is sure of his weekly earnings, more or less commensurate with his standard of living, he will not be so ready to resist. But when this base of security is taken away from him, and this is not only in General Motors but also in Fords, then under the pressure of conditions, he will resist. We therefore must view every department walkout as a manifestation of a changing frame of mind among the automobile workers, and we must try to broaden and extend this resistance.

The second shortcoming in the Flint strike was that there were no general demands to draw into the the strike the workers of the other related crafts. In the automobile industry, as in all modern industries, the production of the machine is divided into given units, each one of these units being made up of a group of operations. The production of the whole car can be tied up if we learn and know how to tie up the correlated operations which make up the component parts of the machine.

Broaden Demands.

We must, therefore, issue such demands as will appeal to the workers of the other crafts in the industry so that strike will mean something to them and encourage them to participate in order to maintain or improve their conditions.

The third shortcoming of this strike was that the leadership of the strike did not sufficiently try to extend the strike to the other plants of the Fisher body in Detroit, Cleveland and other cities.

We must remember that the present highly developed industries work on the basis of ever increasing production. These companies create enough subsidiaries to enable them to carry on production in case of labor troubles. We therefore, find that these large concerns always have branches in other cities, under their own name and aften under other names.

The strikers from the Fisher body plant of Flint, Michigan, should try to hold meetings at the Fisher body plants of Detroit and to extend the strike in the several Fisher body plants of Detroit.

Dramatize Struggle.

Fourthly, the strike was not sufficiently dramatized in order to draw the attention both of the workers of the auto industry and all the other workers to it.

While making this criticism, we must realize that our comrades were very much handicapped because there was no Communist nucleus to give direction and form the backbone of the struggle. Not only was there no shop nucleus, but there was not even a shop committee, a union or any other organized group with connections in other departments which could make possible the spreading of the struggle to the other departments and plants of the company.

CORRUPT UNION OFFICIALS SUED

CHICAGO, Aug. 23.—Following revelations of corruption and extortion on the part of union officials of Painters' District Council 14, the Department of Justice probably in connection with certain open shop employers taking advantage of the situation, yesterday filed a suit in equity against officers and business agents of the council, charging a conspiracy in restraint of trade.

Twenty local painters' unions and their recording secretaries, all of the Brotherhood of Painters, Decoraters and Paperhangers of America; Arthur W. Wallace, secretary-treasurer, of the District Council and Frank L. Axelson, Joseph Casey, George W. Cummings, Stephen J. Dempsey, Albert Green, W. E. Hertz, Charles W. Hanson, Harry Leubbe, Joseph C. Moenich, Roy Shields and George Tuckbreiter, all business agents of the district council, are named in the suit.

Revelations last April disclosed that the union officials worked together with manufacturers to compel the purchase by retailers of certain makes of cabinets and other supplies, called strikes to enforce their demands and charged a premium of $2 up per item, for permission to use articles other than those specified. At the time it was revealed that several millions of dollars had been extorted in this way by the union officials working together with the employers.

murdered Sacco and Vanzetti was the same 28,000 textile strikers were fighting against in a struggle to regain a wage cut. Eli Keller, Jack Rubinstein and Fred E. Beale, union organizers and 11 year old John Lopez of the Young Pioneers, also spoke.

Above the platform erected for the speakers hung two huge portraits of Sacco and Vanzetti framed in red and black cloth borders. Thruout the meeting the audience showed by its reaction to the speakers that it was deeply moved.

BUENOS AYRES TAXI DRIVERS WIN WALK-OUT

Police Forced to End Cruising Regulations

BUENOS AYRES, Aug. 23.—Taxi drivers of this city who have been on strike for several days yesterday won a complete victory when the police suspended the regulations to which the men objected.

The regulations, recently introduced into Buenos Ayres, were directed against cruising by taxi cabs and parking in many sections of the city. The men declared that they would be unable to operate under such laws.

The strike of the men which quickly followed the publication of the new ordinance, was virtually one hundred per cent, the entire taxi industry in the city being tied up. The firm front of the strikers forced the city authorities to suspend the regulations and taxi service was resumed this morning.

"The workers in the United States will do the same to the czars of Massachusetts that the Russian workers did to the czars of the Russian empire," he said.

He appealed for an intensification of the campaign to force the release of Tom Mooney, Warren K. Billings, the victims of the Centralia frame-up and all class-war prisoners thruout the world.

Attacking both Gov. Smith and Herbert Hoover as equally pliable tools of Wall Street, Gitlow said that both candidates will sanction the future frame-up of militant workers as they sanctioned the frame-up of Sacco and Vanzetti.

The Sacco-Vanzetti murder, Gitlow declared, was "part of the imperialist war preparations of Wall Street to terrorize the workers so that they would be submissive to the war designs of the American imperialists."

Before introducing Gitlow, the chairman revealed how John F. Casey, head of the Boston License Bureau, had ordered the hall closed, intimidating the proprietor by threatening to revoke his license. He denounced the jailing of John Porter, militant leader of the New Bedford mill strikers, and appealed to the workers to fight for the release of all class-war prisoners by joining the International Labor Defense.

If that is not so, then the brood here is the same," he declared.

After congratulating the workers here on the splendid fight against an inhuman police terror, Murdoch ended by calling for mass representation of Fall River textile workers at the coming convention of the National Textile Mill Committees, which will begin in New York September 22.

FALL RIVER, Mass., Aug. 23.—With the intention of providing themselves with excuses for arrests for "peace disturbance," police here are constantly entering T. M. C. headquarters with complaints about leaflet distribution and the gathering of members outside the union hall. The union intends to disregard orders to halt the legal distribution of circulars.

Police agents are also invading the homes of workers in an effort to intimidate them with threats of deportation for strike activities. They also use browbeating tactics in an effort to get the parents to prevent their children from attending children's club meetings where strike songs are sung. These clubs are being organized by the union.

"Ohio is conducting a series of sub-district conferences. The first one opens in Bellaire. Others will follow in quick succession. Bob Mutusek, Frank Sepich and Andy Plechaty are leading the work there, affiliating locals with the new union, getting dues cards in circulation.

"It took a lot to knock some sense into the heads of those who have followed Lewis' lead like so many sheep all these years, while the U. M. W. of A. has gone to ruin. When the newspapers announced Lewis' latest betraya[illegible]bandonment of the Jacksonville scale and instruction to each district to beg what it could from the operators, Lewis' supporters said that it was a lie, that the progressives had made up the story!

"But when they heard the same story from Lewis' office, they understood at last. These boys are now joinng the great masses of miners who say that Lewis' betrayals are a thing of the past—a new day is dawning. September 9th will mark a new era for the miners of America!"

Pointing to the difficulties and obstacles ahead, mine leaders stressed the great importance of securing the necessary funds to make the convention possible. Hundreds of delegates who are preparing to journey to Pittsburgh have no carfare. Halls must be rented. Printing must be paid for; postage means cash.

"On the labor movement, on the progressive and left-wing forces in particular, rests the responsibility of making this important convention possible," it was declared. "Help the miners build a real union!"

LIBERAL PARTY PRESS LAMENTS FRENCH ARMIES

Fears Military Power on Continent

LONDON, Aug. 23.—"The sacrifice of a principle by Great Britain is something bigger than a concession—it is a betrayal." With these words the "Liberal" Manchester Guardian regrets the acceptance by the British foreign office of the French point of view that reserve armies are to be unlimited, alleged to be included or implied in the terms of the so-called Anglo-French naval accord. It also reopens the question of the exact nature of those terms which is vexing many unincluded governments today and initiates an attack upon the conservative party's foreign policy.

While leading its attack under cover of the blow which the British French alliance may mean to disarmament projects, the Guardian goes on to lament that a free hand is now given the French army on the continent.

"France's military supremacy in Continental Europe is accepted," the paper says, "her formidable long service army, her large conscript army and her vast trained reserves are alike to remain untouched in the disarmament plans."

It is understood that the London Daily Herald, organ of the reformists, which is following in the train of the liberal press, is planning to demand that the government publish the full text of the naval agreement, since there is "reason to believe that the real agreement is not confined to naval affairs."

age to syndicates, has been the principal stumbling block to American exploitation of the rubber growing potentialities of the Philippine Islands.

It is understood that the Firestone and a number of lesser American rubber corporations have been actively interested in the proposed amendment of the land law and contemplate an extension of the change as soon as this can be effected. Business circles are crediting the Stimson government with what is little short of a coup.

The law will chiefly affect the island of Mindanao, the center of the rubber growing area.

Albert Weisbord Will Speak at Huge Textile Relief Conference on September 15

DELEGATES FROM MANY TRADES TO BE AT MEETING

Paterson Meet to Be Held Tonight

Calling upon all the workers in the east affiliated with labor and fraternal organizations, the Workers International Relief yesterday announced the Textile Relief Conference, which will be held under its auspices at the Irving Plaza Hall, 15th St. and Irving Place, New York City, on Saturday, September 15.

Thousands of workers, representing almost every trade and industry in the United States, will attend the conference, it was announced. Miners, steel workers, train workers—all will assemble at the Irving Plaza Hall to formulate plans for the relief of their striking textile brother workers in New Bedford and Fall River, who have continued their heroic efforts to win their demands in the face of the combined brutality of the police and gangsters under the control of the company officials.

Call Sent Out.

For the purpose of insuring the presence at the conference of workers representing every trade and industry in the country, the Workers International Relief has issued a call throughout the United States asking each organization to send the names of its delegates in to the offices of the W. I. R., at 1 Union Square, New York City, as soon as possible.

Weisbord to Speak.

Albert Weisbord, militant leader of the Passaic textile strike two years ago, and one of the militant spirits in the New Bedford textile struggle, will address the representatives, outlining plans and methods of raising relief for the striking textile workers.

As the preparations for the conference continue, meetings in various cities are being planned for the textile workers relief. One of these, to be held tonight at Paterson, N. J., is expected to crowd the Carpenters Hall at 57 Van Houten.

New Bedford Strikes.

A New Bedford textile striker, who will come directly from the strike center, will describe the brutality and viciousness of the fascist police tactics with which the mill bosses have vainly attempted to break the solidarity of the 30,000 strikers in New Bedford and Fall River. He will speak of the indomitable spirit the textile strikers have shown in the face of mass arrests, beatings and clubbings; of how police rode down a defenseless woman, drowned the six-year-old son of a striker, and later broke up the funeral march of the mourning workers.

Other speakers will include Fred Beidenkapp, national secretary of the Workers International Relief, which is conducting the campaign for the textile strikers; Harvey O'Conner, of the Federated Press, and Harriet Silverman, secretary of the New York branch of the W. I. R., under whose auspices the meeting is being held. Edward J. Stanley, who is organizing the drive for textile relief in New Jersey, will be chairman.

Tammany Politician Greets Olympic Team on Return to United States

While the Spartakiade, or workers' sport festival is taking place in Moscow the members of the American team are returning to America where Mayor James Walker of New York City greets them. The American Olympic team came rather bedraggled out of the contests this year so there is not a great deal of enthusiasm. Above Tammany's mayor congratulating Johnny Weismuller, swimming champ.

Resolution adopted at Sacco-Vanzetti memorial meeting, Union Square, August 23, 1928, at 5 p. m.:

"Whereas, the legal murder of Sacco and Vanzetti brought out with shocking brutality the vicious menace of the frame-up system which is now recognized as an integral part of the machinery of American capitalism for attacking and crushing the labor movement and its best fighters, and

"Whereas, the two martyrs who were burned to death in the electric chair of Massachusetts were not the only victims of this infamous system. Tom Mooney and Warren K. Billings are still anguishing in California prisons, two working class fighters who narrowly escaped death on the scaffold for their loyalty to the labor movement. In the Walla Walla, Washington, penitentiary the eight I. W. W. members of Centralia must serve their prison terms as victims of the frame-up system. In New York, the system attempted the legal murder of two Italian anti-fascist workers, Greco and Carrillo, in collaboration with the agents of the Mussolini dictatorship. In the same city, workers on strike in the needle trades have been railroaded to prison in an effort to break the strike as in the Mineola case. In Pennsylvania, prison cells are being prepared for a score of Cheswick miners whose only crime was their participation in a protest movement for Sacco and Vanzetti, and

Whereas each new struggle, every strike and lockout adds new names to the already long list, the most active workers, the outstanding leaders or the most obscure rank and file fighters stand in constant danger of being picked out by the claws of the frame-up system, railroaded through the corrupt courts with prejudiced juries and judges on some trumped up charges and sent to prison, and

"Whereas there are now hundreds of workers in prisons or on trial or to be sent to the prisons of American capitalism, with the secred memory of Sacco and Vanzetti in mind, it is our duty to fight with all our energy to liberate those in prison for their devotion to labor's cause and to prevent the imprisonment of any more of our fighters, and

"Whereas foremost among the class war prisoners today are Tom Mooney and Warren K. Billings, who have suffered the tortures of life imprisonment for twelve years now; the Centralia I. W. W., who have been imprisoned for nine years; the scores of miners in every part of the industry and more than five hundred workers who have been indicted in the New Bedford and Fall River strikers.

"Now therefore be it resolved that the workers assembled in Union Square on the first anniversary of the legal assassinaton of Sacco and Vanzetti express their condemnation of the frame-up system and the rule of capitalist class justice in the United States. We resolve to give our determined support to the campaign of International Labor Defense for the liberation of Tom Mooney and Warren K. Billings and the hundreds of other victims of capitalist persecutions in this country.

"Build and strengthen the International Labor Defense!

"Smash the frame-up system!

"Free Tom Mooney and Warren K. Billings!

"Release all class war prisoners of American capitalism!"

GIANTS LOSE LEAD; ATHLETICS WIN, 3-1

(By United Press.)

The New York Giants split a double-header with Pittsburgh today and as a result dropped to second place in the league standing, St. Louis recapturing the lead by remaining idle. The Giants won the first game, 6 to 3, but dropped the second, 13 to 3.

Five runs in the eighth inning won the first game for the Giants after they had trailed the greater portion of the contest. In the second game Pittsburgh piled up an 8 to 1 lead in the first six innings and five runs in the seventh to smother any hopes McGraw might have held of a clean sweep.

Cincinnati climbed into the third place in the race over the Chicago Cubs, who did not play. A double victory over Brooklyn, 2-0 and 6-1, turned the trick. Kolp allowed only three hits in the first game to seven yielded by Doak. In the second game Ash was credited with a win when he held the Robins to six hits.

Philadelphia gained another half game on the New York Yankees today with a 3 to 1 win over Cleveland. The victory cut New York's lead to 4½ games. The Yanks did not play. The Athletics scored one run in the first inning and were never seriously threatened thereafter. Miller outpitched Grove, 6 hits to 8, but the Athletics made their six hits count with more effect.

today as the champion of the oppressed Negro race and of all other oppressed groups in the country. Unlike the republican and democratic parties, which segregated and excluded Negroes at the national conventions, the Workers (Communist) Party welcomed and seated 24 Negro delegates. These delegates participated on all important committees, many serving as chairmen of sessions, and helped to draft a program of action for the complete emancipation of the oppressed masses of America.

"The Workers (Communist) Party, in accordance with its stand for the complete emancipation of the Negro race, nominated three Negro candidates on its state ticket—Lovett Fort Whiteman for state comptroller; Richard B. Moore for congress, and Edward Welsh for assembly."

The letter concludes with a call to Harten to support the campaign of Richard B. Moore if he is as sincere as his article implies, and if he has the true interest of the Negro masses at heart.

☭ ☒ WORKERS (COMMUNIST) PARTY

For the Workers! For the Party of the Class Struggle! Against the Capitalists!

The Red Flag in Texas—and Elsewhere

Republican politicians claim a strong chance of carrying the state of Texas for their party in this election. Texas has been solid for the democratic party since the very beginning of its career as a state that seceded from Mexico after Mexico abolished slavery, and was brought into the United States to strengthen the bloc of slave states against the "free labor" states of the north. The possibility that Texas might go republican—a reflection of the fact that Texas is being industrialized—is interesting.

But we state categorically that a still more important matter in the long run will be the fact that in Texas this year for the first time a rousing campaign for the revolutionary Communist Party will take place throughout the state, with the ticket of Foster and Gitlow officially on the ballot.

Texas is an enormous territory—as large as the area of all of the capitalist countries of Europe combined, the whole of that continent outside of the European territory of the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics. Consistent with its historical origin, Texas is a stronghold of the meanest and pettiest reaction—a conglomeration of new, rapacious industrial capitalism with the landlordism of cattle and cotton kings, a stunted, provincial labor movement and the doubly cruel exploitation and persecution of the mass of Negroes who are a large section of the working class and tenant farmers. Texas hangs a Negro at the door of the democratic convention hall; Texas law and court rulings are that Negroes can be excluded as Negroes, for no other reason, from any party's primary election; not even the classic anti-slavery play, "Uncle Tom's Cabin," is permitted in Texas until it is transformed into a glorification of chattel-slavery.

Is it not important that the red flag of the Communist Party is being carried in the election campaign in Texas this year? The republican party means nothing for the masses of white and colored workers and farmers except a continuation of the same persecution, and perhaps even more intensive and efficient exploitation (for capitalism always adds another screw to the rack for labor). But the coming of the Communist Party to Texas, the use of the election campaign by the revolutionary party which alone can and will liberate these masses—this is of deep historical significance.

Texas is the fifteenth state in which the Communist ticket is now on the ballot. This makes one more than the total number of states in which we were on the ballot in 1924. From the early days of the campaign, the National Election Campaign Committee has aimed at putting the Party on the official ballot in thirty states. In view of the comparative numerical weakness of the Communist forces and the scarcity of funds, this figure was considered too high by many comrades, but at the rate the membership is working now there is every reason to believe that the goal set by the campaign committee will not only be reached but passed before the deadline on filing nomination petitions is reached.

It is significant that the 15 states in which we are already officially on the ballot this year include only four of those in which we were on the ballot in 1924. It is almost certain that the Party ticket will be on the ballot in the ten other states where the Communist candidates were on the official ballot in 1924. In the main these are industrial states where the requirements are severe for young parties that did not poll enough votes in a previous election to qualify them as "legal" parties. With the addition of those ten states the total would be 25, with only five more to go to reach the goal set by the National Campaign Committee. In all, work is being conducted in 42 states, and there is a chance that we may reach even 35 or 40 states this year.

The phenomenal success of the Party in the important work of getting its ticket on the ballot in so many states should spur the comrades to increased activity in securing signatures, selling campaign literature and raising funds, so that the message of the class struggle can be carried into every section of the country.

It will be a great achievement for the Young Workers (Communist) Party, despite the many handicaps under which it works, to give the workers and poor farmers in the great majority of the states an opportunity to hear the Communist message and mark their ballots for the Communist standard-bearers, Foster and Gitlow. It will establish the Party as a political party, national in scope, in the minds of the masses, and the only serious contender for the political leadership of the exploited workers and farmers.

The success achieved by the Party thus far in the campaign should be an incentive to the membership to work harder from now on. Funds must be raised. Readers of the Communist press are receiving contribution blanks for the $100,000 Communist Campaign Fund. Needless to say all the Communist papers will urge their readers to contribute to this fund to the best of their financial ability. They should give until it hurts—hurts the capitalist parties and the pale pink socialist party, which has stripped itself of all working class character in order to win the support of the liberals and the petty bourgeoisie.

Every man and woman who votes the Communist ticket in this election campaign is a potential member of the Workers (Communist) Party. Here is an excellent opportunity to help develop the Party into a great, powerful, militant mass party that will be capable of leading the exploited masses in their every-day struggles and to their final emancipation from capitalism.

From now on every member of the Workers (Communist) Party must get busy in the election campaign.

Party Campaign in Connecticut

By DAN GRAY.

With the date for filing signatures with the secretary of state approaching nearer and nearer, the signatures drive of the Workers (Communist) Party in Connecticut is increasing in tempo. The state election laws demand that 4,000 registered voters sign to place our Party on the ballot. This means that we will have to procure at least 6,000 signatures to take care of all the names that may be crossed off by the town clerks.

The task of mobilizing the Party membership to canvas for signatures is not an easy one. There is still present among the Party membership a tendency to regard the Party's participation in the elections as of secondary importance. Many of the comrades still think that the function of our Party is merely to lead the workers on the industrial field, while they do not yet realize the importance of crystallizing into a political expression the influence we have gained amongst the workers in the struggles our Party has led. Especially is this true in a district such as ours, where the Party has not yet made deep inroads amongst the masses of factory workers.

Signature Sundays.

But to those comrades who do go out regularly for signatures, the tremendous propaganda value that lies in the mere canvassing becomes at once apparent. With most of the work done in the proletarian sections, the comrades report enthusiastically the opportunities to speak to workers, to present our program by word of mouth, to leave a piece of literature, a leaflet, or a Daily Worker. Each comrade who collects signatures is an agitator for our Party. To date we have succeeded in getting small groups of comrades in New Haven, Hartford, Stamford, and Bridgeport, who go out every evening in the week. Some comrades have already topped the 300 mark. There are very few comrades in the country, even in the much-tooted Boro Park section of District 2, who can equal this record.

Now as the time begins to draw to a close, the Party units are arranging "Signature Sundays," when all the membership must report to headquarters, and report back how many names they collected.

Party on Ballot.

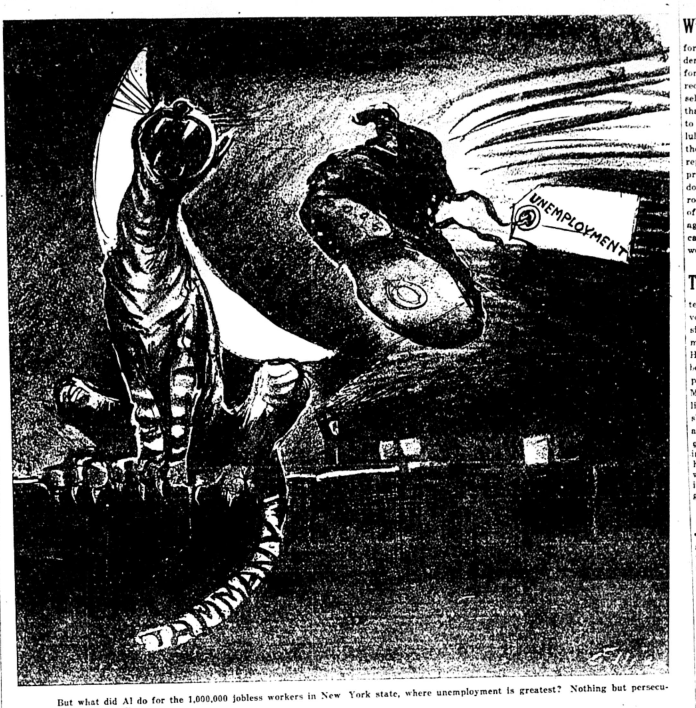
Getting our Party on the ballot will carry the name of our Party and our emblem into every hamlet in the state. Workers and farmers who never heard of the Workers (Communist) Party will see the name and the hammer and sickle on the state printed ballots. The boss-controlled state machinery will be forced to place our Party before the eyes of the workers. The fight to get the right to hold street meetings will be much easier, once the Party is on the ballot. The reactionary machinery of such cities as Waterbury and New Britain will have to think twice before they refuse us the right to street meetings.

Off the ballot, the workers regard us as an insignificant sect. They do not consider our Party in the light of a real political party. For we must admit that the average worker still considers a political party as one which participates in elections.

The task of placing the Party on the ballot is tremendous, the forces are rather meagre, but the comrades, enthused over the great propaganda results in their work, are confident that the Party will be on the ballot in the state of Connecticut.

THE AL-CAT SERENADES THE UNEMPLOYED

By Fred Ellis



But what did Al do for the 1,000,000 jobless workers in New York state, where unemployment is greatest? Nothing but persecution by Tammany police.

Told You So

WHATEVER brawls disturb the peace of the capitalist candidates for the presidency and vice-presidency there will be peace at home, for, according to their publicity directors, their wives are the most self-effacing collection of females that ever cheered male warriors on to battle for noble causes. During lulls in the election campaign, on those dog days that a prominent republican multimillionaire or a prominent democratic evengelist does not fly from his old political roost to perch on the cross beam of the former enemy, the press agents trot out to the wives of the candidates to sell them to voting women.

THE wives of vice-presidential candidates, it is true, are only potentially interesting to the woman voter. It is the probable or possible "first lady of the land" that makes the first page. Should Hoover, if elected, kick in his bucket before his term expires, then the populace will be interested in how Mrs. Curtis manages to keep Charlie's slippers handy. And in case Al should follow Tweed, Kelly, Croker and Murphy to the happy hunting grounds before he serves his term in the white house—that is, granted he is elected—then a whole nation will be ready to hear how Mrs. Robinson keeps her dry husband in grape juice.

JUST now Mrs. Hoover and Mrs. Smith are in the spotlight. We are assured that Mrs. Smith is a very fine person and that she "unselfishly keeps herself in the background—finding her greatest satisfaction in her husband's success." But Mrs. Hoover's press agent takes the cake. Here is a picture of Mrs. Hoover in the White House. "As she knits under her lamp of an evening—she loves to knit—she will be able to think with sympathy of those far-away Americans, our new pioneers, who are roaming the world in search of markets, stabilizing our prosperity. They will find, when they return, understanding listeners in the white house." We wonder what the loving Mrs. Hoover will think—while she mends Herbert's socks—of the millions of unemployed American workers who are roaming the United States in search of markets—for their labor!

WHAT the devil is the matter with petty larceny thieves, anyhow? They never seem to take a lesson from the doings of their betters. A man stole a package of safety razors for his penniless brother and he landed in jail. The brother, with a family of seven, had not had a job in two years. The news-item does not say that he is a veteran of the world war. Perhaps such incidents are becoming too commonplace and no longer news. A hero of Morgan's war who is reasonably sure of his grub nowadays is something of a novelty. But had this loving brother who stole the razors purchased an insurance company with the funds of the company and then left the concern short several millions of dollars his case would be discussed respectfully and there would be little likelihood of his seeing the inside of a dirty jail.

AT the rate Al is stealing G. O. P. millionaires maybe the G. O. P. will have to sell a few more naval oil reserves or recall Al Fall and the contents of the black satchel. One good Al deserves another. Since elections follow the biggest money bag, the G. O. P. strategists will have to do something about it. The old "Ohio Gang" could solve the problem in a jiffy. Here is a good chance for Harry Daugherty to get back into grace. And good old Jess Smith. Instead of raiding night clubs in New York he would bring them all the booze they want from Europe on United States battleships, and, incidentally, replenish the Hoover campaign treasury.

Japan's Stranglehold on Shantung Province

Imperialists Seek to Extend Sway Over North China; Manchuria a Colony

In the second part of the year 1927 the Japanese imperialists attempted to secure a closure of hostilities between Chang Tso-lin and Chiang Kai-shek, and they were successful in this. At the same time the Japanese sent new troops to Shangtung and consolidated their position in Manchuria. At the present time the Japanese consular authorities, which work with their police apparatus, are the only real power in the town and districts of southern Manchuria. The Japanese railway building plans have been extended. During the negotiations with Chang Tso-lin concerning the building of railway lines, Japan adopted an aggressive attitude from the beginning. The Chinese bourgeoisie, which only possessed a local line between Mukden and Chailun, were unable to do anything.

Japan hurried to obtain the whole building of railways in Manchuria in its own hands. It hurried in particular to complete the building of the local railway line, Shangtung-Girin-Kainei-Seoul, because the line is of strategic importance and connects Northern Corea with the center of the Girin province.

III.

MANCHURIA was turned into a colony in the literal sense of the word. In Japanese text-books for geography in the Japanese elementary schools South Manchuria is marked as Japanese territory. This principle is also maintained by Japanese politicians. "Manchuria for the Japanese," has been the consistent policy of Japanese imperialism for years. Japanese capital in Manchuria, which amounts to about a milliard (70 per cent of the shares of the South Manchurian Railway Company belong to the concerns Mitsui, Okura, Yashuda, Mitsubishi and other great trusts), must be protected. In order to "protect the rights and interests of the empire and the lives and property of the nation, energetic measures are necessary."

Increase Army.

For the carrying out of these "peaceful" plans the Japanese army in China has been brought up, according to official Japanese sources, to a strength of 54,000 men, many important districts in China have been occupied and the most important ports in China are blockaded by 55 Japanese warships.

Japan's hands are, however, not completely free. The American secretary of state, Kellogg, although he refrains from making any strong protest, has declared that the United States cannot recognize any special interests of the Japanese in Manchuria. On the other hand, however, recently one can observe a certain drawing together on the part of Great Britain and Japan.

Japan is working feverishly to exploit its favorable strategic situation and to consolidate its possession of the first piece it has robbed. At the present moment its intentions are to force Shangtung to share the fate of Manchuria. However, the other powers, which have their own "interests" in China, cannot permit Japan to seize the lion's share of the booty. The antagonism between the various imperialist powers has not been abolished and the war which Japan has begun in China can at any time develop into an imperialist war.

IV.

IS there any danger which threatens Japan's hegemony in China? There is such a danger, and that is above all the awakening of the toiling masses of South China and the growing fighting spirit of the colonial peoples.

As early as 1925 the great wave of strikes which followed the events in Shanghai exercised a great influence upon Japanese undertakings. In consequence of the impoverishment of the masses in Central China, trade with China was considerably reduced and that was particularly bad for Japan.

The strong revolutionary movement which followed did not limit itself to the south. Its consequences were shown all over the country and reached even Northern Manchuria. Even here the number of strikers grew from year to year despite the beastliness which Chang Tso-lin used to suppress them. In this he was of course supported by the Japanese imperialists. The workers and peasants, tired of the sufferings which they were forced to endure under the iron heel of the Japanese troops, commenced to revolt. Even in a far-off district like Tsitsikara a revolt of the coolies took place.

3 Athletic Meets---Amsterdam, Moscow, New York

Boosting Militarism, Nationalism at Capitalist Olympics; Workers Sports

By PETER CLARK

It is an interesting—and a fitting—coincidence that Moscow, the revolutionary center, and Amsterdam, the traditional center of reformism and working-class betrayal, should be the cities wherein were staged, respectively, during this month, the largest proletarian and bourgeois athletic meets ever held—at Moscow, the Spartakiade and at Amsterdam the Olympic games.

These two athletic meets, dramatizing, as they do, the high points of contrast and conflict between the workers' sports movement and the capitalist sports movement are of considerable significance to the class-conscious workers. But even more significant—to the militant section of the labor movement in this country—is the National Workers Athletic Meet, to be held on August 25-26 under the auspices of the Labor Sports Union of America.

We propose to indicate briefly the main points of interest for workers attached to each of these three meets.

The Amsterdam Olympics.

Organized under the auspices of the International Athletic Federation, the capitalists' world sports organization, the Amsterdam Olympics were participated in by three thousand athletes, coming from all important capitalist countries in the world. It is estimated that over three million dollars was required to finance the Olympics. The quota for the United States was $400,000, a sum which was subscribed by big business men. The American team of 350 was sent across in a special steamer, the Theodore Roosevelt. The interest of the American sporting public in the games was keyed up to a pitch equaled only by a world's series or a championship fight. For weeks the news of the Olympic games monopolized the sports pages and was the main reading fare of the twenty odd million sports fans, the big majority of them workers.

Slick Propaganda.

The important question for us is: How does this costly sports spectacle serve the interests of the bourgeoisie? The answer is threefold. First, it serves the general purpose of capitalist sports, i. e., focusing of the interest of the workers and consequent detraction from economic and political questions. Second, it is used to whip up nationalistic and patriotic sentiment. Third, it is used to boost militarism and military training. And, fourth, it is used to spread the myth of international good will and peace with which the capitalist countries are covering up their war preparations.

Flag Waving.

In the United States the drawn out process of elimination meets by which the American team was selected, was accompanied everywhere by frenzied flag waving and military displays specially arranged by army officials. At nearly all of the meets, military officials were accorded honorary officials. It is symptomatic that a militarist, General Douglas McArthur, was placed in charge of the team.

The sailing of the Theodore Roosevelt was made the occasion for an outburst of rabid patriotism and military swagger. The comparison between the conquering expedition of Pershing's doughboys in 1917, and the American athletes sailing under General McArthur, was not only used, but overworked.

"Good Will."

At Amsterdam, the sheer hypocrisy of the slogan of "promotion of international peace and good will" under which the Olympic games were being run, was completely exposed. No sooner had the games gotten under way, than a violent quarrel developed between France and Holland, with the result that a break in diplomatic relations was barely averted. All of the technical arrangements were made with an eye to giving a maximum of play to nationalistic pride. Three flag poles, varying in size, were erected in the stadium where the games were held, and as each event was run off the flag of the triumphant nation was run up on the highest pole, while the second and third place countries had their flags hoisted on the shorter poles. Great demonstrations by the groups of supporters accompanied this ceremony. National feelings ran so high that small riots were constantly breaking out between the partisans of the various countries, and it was found necessary to maintain special squads of Dutch police at the stadium to separate the combatants and quell the disorders.

Corruption.

Apart from the jingoistic atmosphere which surounded the Olympic games, the main feature was the commercialization and corruption which prevailed. The choicest seats were cornered by scalpers who resold them with prices ranging between $50 and $100. The athletes, who were supposed to be simon-pure amateurs went about the city brazenly spending large sums of money. Even among the sports correspondents, who were being paid to write up the Olympics in the proper colors for home consumption, there were many who could not help but comment on the obvious fraud connected with the games. One well known New York writer provoked beyond discretion by the hypocritical pretensions which were being made at amateurism, caustically summed up the situation as follows:

"Surely track fans would not attempt to argue that there is anything remotely connected with amateurism about the Olympic games in Amsterdam. Why they have taken 2,000 cameras away from the people in the last ten days, proving that they wont even let an amateur photographer in the joint."

A Replica.

The Amsterdam Olympics, far from being a demonstration of "international good will among nations" were a replica on a small scale of the world struggle going on amongst the capitalist powers—with the added realistic touch of America playing the dominating role.

The utilization of the Olympic games, after the manner in which the Kellogg disarmament proposals are being used, i.e., for the purpose of ideologically disarming the international working class as to the danger of a new war, as to the war preparations which are going on—this is the fundamental political significance of the Amsterdam Olympic games.

(In tomorrow's issue we will deal with the Moscow Spartakiade and the Workers National Athletic Meet scheduled for this Saturday and Sunday at Wingate Field, N.Y.)

IN CONFORMITY WITH THE HABITUAL PRACTICE OF THE NEW YORK TRACTION OFFICIALS, AN ATTEMPT WAS LAST NIGHT BEGUN TO SHIFT RESPONSIBILITY FOR THE DEATH OF AT LEAST 35 PERSONS AND THE MUTILATION OF AN UNKNOWN NUMBER OF OTHERS IN THE TIMES SQUARE CRASH TO THE SHOULDERS OF THE MAINTENANCE AND TRAIN WORKERS.

THE REAL RESPONSIBILITY FOR THE TRAGEDY WAS INADVERTENTLY STATED BY MAYOR WALKER, FOLLOWING A VISIT TO THE SCENE LAST NIGHT, WHEN HE SAID THAT HE "UNDERSTOOD THAT THE SWITCH HAD BEEN REPORTED FAULTY."

(By United Press)

A southbound Interborough subway express train was wrecked at Times Square late today, derailing three cars and telescoping two others.

An ambulance attendant at Bellevue Hospital told the United Press he had seen 35 bodies laid out in the Times Square station and he believed all of them were dead.

The train was wrecked on a split switch.

Thousands of persons, attempting to get home at the evening rush hour, were stranded on subway platforms. Extra police were called to keep order.

Just before 6 p. m. Mayor Walker arrived at Times Square. Then he came out and in the midst of a group of newspapermen said: "there will be an investigation."

"Terrible and deplorable as this is, we find some comfort in the splendid subway construction where a train would split in half, yet only one supporting column was destroyed. The rest of the structure is safe."

FIVE HOSPITALS CROWDED.

Hours after the accident ten blocks in the heart of the Times Square district, where the wreck occurred, were still closed and under police guard, with none permitted to enter.

At five hospitals 100 surgeons were busy attending the injured and reviving those who were shocked and fainted.

In morgue rooms there were strewn gruesome relics of the havco which had occurred when the thing all New Yorkers fear came suddenly upon the city.

It was just 5:10 p. m., with the rush of home going traffic approaching its peak, when the accident occurred. On the Times Square subway platform, and every other subway platform in lower Manhattan, there were crowds, almost countless in numbers, milling about and waiting for trains.

The Interborough Rapid Transit Company's New Lots Avenue express train of 10 steel cars, southbound, whirled into the Times Square station.

Jammed in Cars.

"Let 'em off; let 'em off," shouted the guards and a few left the train, their places taken by as many as the guards could squeeze inside the doors. With effort, the doors of the 10 cars were closed and inside each car was packed 200 or more people, men and women, clerks, office workers, professional men and women, laborers. The heavy train pulled out, leaving hundreds of people still on the platform, waiting for other trains.

Just about a city block beyond the end of the platform, there is a switch on the express track. The first seven cars of the train passed swiftly over it with only the usual clack and clatter.

But the eight car, for a reason which may never be known, in railroad parlance "split the switch" and went hurtling from the track. The momentum carrier it on. About 100 feet from the switch it smashed with a deafening crash into one of the great, steel pillars which support the street above.

The impact tore the car in half and ripped it loose from the forward seven cars of the train. The forward half smashed and plunged its way along some 200 feet above the stanchion. The rear half telescoped into the two cars behind it.

The 200 or more people in the eighth car, which had been torn

FIGHT THUGGERY IN ACW, IS CALL

Forming themselves into a "Committee for the Reinstatement of Abe Jacobs, of Wililam P. Goldman's shop, militant workers in that large factory yesterday issued a circular calling on the approximately 500 workers there to demand the return to the job of the worker who was recently severely slugged by the business agent of the Lapel Makers Local of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers Union.

Because he was known to the right wing gangster officialdom to be a left winger, Business Agent Frunzi and a squad of other thugs came into the factory and assaulted Jacobs while he was at work, knocking out three teeth, slashing his lip and then emptying his pockets of a pay envelope just received containing $44.

The attack was made because the other hundreds of workers in the Five of the six New England states comprising one of the greatest industrial sections of the United States will be on the Communist ballot in this election campaign according to a report made to the Central Executive Committee of the Workers (Communist) Party by Alexander Trachtenberg, chairman of the National Election Campaign Committee who has just returned from a tour of New England.

Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Connecticut, and New Hampshire are already certain to be on the ballot and the Campaign Committee of District one with headquarters in Boston, plans to send an organizing crew into Maine to whip that rock-ribbed center of reaction into line as soon as their work is complete in the other states.

Heightens Campaign.

Having already placed more states on the Communist ballot than the total in the 1924 campaign the National Election Campaign Committee is sending representatives from New York headquarters into the various districts to spur the comrades into increased activity.

Added interest is attached to the Maine fight because of the fact that the placing of the Communist ticket on the ballot there will mean a clear-cut fight between the Workers (Communist) Party and the Republican Party, the Democratic Party having quit the field in this election campaign and the Socialist Party being nowhere in evidence.

There were only two New England states on the ballot in 1924, Massachusetts and Rhode Island. The Communists polled a bigger vote in Massachusetts in that year than the Socialist Party and this year because of the activities of the Communists in the New Bedford and Fall River textile strike and the general activities of the Party in behalf of the workers in all other industries. the workers of New England are rallying to the Party standard and helping energetically in the Communist campaign.

In New Bedford alone the striking textile workers guaranteed to collect half the necessary number of signatures to place the Workers (Communist) Party ticket on the ballot and in Rhode Island the textile workers, impressed with the work of the Party in Massachusetts are turning to the Party as the only political leader of the exploited masses.

The Socialist Party is practically eliminated in New England, Comrade

FISHING SMACK DISABLED

CHATHAM, Mass., Aug. 24 (UP). — The fishing vessel, Orion, of Gloucester Mass., is disabled at latitude 48.41 north longitude 69.37 west with a broken shaft, a radio message from the S. S. Gytsun, received here today said.

A HUNDRED PER CENTER.

ROME, Aug. 24 (UP). — Secretary Turati of the fascist party in a circular to fascist federations today, deplored the use of foreign sparkling wines at fascist banquets in preference to the native beverages. "Such snobbishness is intolerable," he said.

Thousands Demand Mooney Release at N. Y. Sacco-Vanzetti Meeting

13,000 workers braved a heavy rain in Union Square, New York, Thursday to demonstrate against capitalist "justice" at the Sacco-Vanzetti memorial meeting. They pledged to smash the frame-up system and voiced a demand for the immediate release of all class war prisoners. The demonstration was held under the auspices of the New York section of the International Labor Defense.

LEWIS MACHINE GRANTS $5 DAY

Aim to Break Ranks of Ohio Miners

COLUMBUS, Ohio., Aug. 24.—Officials of the Lewis-Hall machine have worked out another betrayal of the miners in a so-called agreement signed up for about fourteen miners in district 6 which call for a wage scale of $5.00.

Most of the operators to whom the concession was granted belong to the Central Ohio Operators Association. Four of the mines are said to be in the Hocking Valley, one in the eastern Ohio district, and the remainder in Tuscarawas county.

The contract is dated September 1, and terminates March 31, 1930. It calls for $5 a day and 70 cents a ton for cutting and loading.

Rank and file miners and militant leaders are organizing their forces for the convention for a new miners union to be held in Pittsburgh September 9-16, as the only way to protect the coal diggers from the betrayals of the Lewis machine.

MEXICAN LABOR IN SACCO MEET

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 24.—Several thousand militant Mexican workers staged a fiery demonstration here yesterday on the anniversary of the execution of Sacco and Vanzetti.

Marching defiantly before the American consulate, they carried placards denouncing "Yankee imperialism" and "the assassins of Sacco and Vanzetti.

The demonstration continued for three hours and forced the closing of stories in many parts of the city. Traffic was completely paralyzed.

Three speakers were arrested for making "statements offensive to the Mexican army."

Kellogg Dodges Sacco-Vanzetti Demonstrators

PARIS, Aug. 24. — Secretary of state Kellogg arrived in Paris this morning having changed his entire schedule in an effort to dodge a Sacco and Vanzetti demonstration which he feared was waiting to receive him at the depot.

All he succeeded in outwitting was a small crowd of Americans who were waiting to welcome him on the wrong platform. Surrounded by a phalanx of gendarmes and intelligence service officers, the small figure of the American secretary was hustled out of his compartment before he was whisked away thru a little used side-door of the depot.

Elaborate precautions were taken by the French and American intelligence service conjointly to protect the secretary from Sacco and Van-

BIG PICNIC TODAY AT ULMER PARK

Thousands of left wing workers of New York, representing every nationality and every industry in the city, will meet today at Ulmer Park, Brooklyn, at the festival of the Trade Union Educational League.

A list of sport events will be staged, after which there will be general potato races, fat men's races (of whom there is a scarcity among the left wingers), and others.

In evening several well known revolutionary poets will read their creations in a Poet's Forum, led by Mike Gold, editor of the New Masses. Those who will participate are Edwin Rolfe, Hebry Heich, Jr., George Henry Weiss, Beatrice Siskind and A. B. Magil.

Ulmer Park may be reached by taking the B.-M.T. West End Line to Twenty-fifth Avenue.

COLONIAL ISSUE AT RED CONGRESS

Indian Delegate Tells of British Rule

At World Congress of the Communist International now in session Contreras declared that the main aim of the Latin-American Parties must be to found a workers' and peasants' alliance between Latin-America and the United States. He said that Humbert Droz's slogan of Latin-Americanism was dangerous. The Indians must receive more attention, he said. The Communist Party of the United States has not fulfilled its tasks in the anti-imperialist struggle, he declared, and the Central Committee of the Party is responsible.

Pepper declared that the fundamental line of the theses was correct. India was really agrarian and dependent on the motherland, he said. He thought that Bennet's ideas of decolonization were wrong. India, he said, has practically only light industries which cannot transform an agrarian into an industrial country. The transformation was only possible, he said, by the production of the means of production. Ninety per cent of British capital was sent to India, not for industry but for state loans. The basis for the revolutionary situation in India, he continued, is the collision of imperialist capital with the pre-capitalist conditions of India. The Indian bourgeoisie was not completely

MINE DISTRICTS DRIVE FOR UNION

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 24.—"The United Mine Workers of America is dead! Long live the new union!"

This is the ringing slogan now resounding throughout the mine fields as preparations for the convention of September 9-16 are speeded up. The National Arrangements Committee of which John Watt is chairman and Pat Toohey is secretary, has been receiving reports from numerous districts indicating the rising sentiment of the coal diggers for a new and militant union under their own control.

Unionism and militancy is in the life blood of the coal diggers! Texas to Pennsylvania, east to west, organized and unorganized fields—the miner is a union man. He knows the value of solidarity, the need for militancy and struggle. September 9, everyone predicts confidently, will prove the accuracy of this estimate of progressive leaders.

Throughout District 12, thousands of miners are getting together in mass meetings, to protest against

COLLECTIONS TO BE MADE TODAY, TOMORROW HERE

Communists Expose Fake Tammany Alibi

Volunteers to Cover City

In complete defiance of the threat of the Tammany police department which yesterday indicated that it would take steps to halt the Red Tag Day collections, the Workers (Communist) Party will proceed with its program, it was announced last night at the New York district office of the Party.

All the forces of the Party will be mobilized for the collections today, and the entire city will be blanketed with thousands of volunteers who will invade all sections of Greater New York.

"We propose to go forward with our collection," John J. Ballam, acting organizer of District 2, announced last night. "We shall appeal directly to the working class and carry out our original plans in spite of the attempts of Mr. Coler to prevent us."

Announcement had been made yesterday by Police Commissioner Warren that he would act on the instructions of Bird S. Coler, Commissioner of Public Welfare, advising him of the Communist collection and that "any collection of moneys by party workers would be in violation of the ordinances of the city of New York."

A Tammany Order.

Calling attention to the obvious political character of the order, the statement charges:

"Mr. Coler's party — Tammany Hall—has access to the money bags

GITLOW SCORES TAG DAY THREAT

Urges Workers Defy Tammany Order

In a scathing statement issued last night from the national campaign headquarters of the Workers (Communist) Party, 43 E. 125th St., Benjamin Gitlow, the Party's vice-presidential candidate, denounced the action of the Tammany police department in threatening to bar the Red Tag Days scheduled for today and tomorrow.

Characterizing the move as a vicious attack by Tammany Hall upon the Workers Party, and urging the workers of the city to redouble their energies in the drive, Gitlow said:

"Bird S. Coler and Police Commissioner Warren are determined to prevent the Workers (Communist) Party from collecting funds from the workers for the Communist Election Campaign. This vicious attack upon the Workers (Communist) Party is being made by the Tammany Hall Al Smith adminstration of New York. Al Smith does not seek campaign contributions from the workers. He gets his from Mr. DuPont, the powder and explosive king of America. He gets his from the big fat boys of Wall Street. The Standard Oil crowd, General Motors, the power interests, the traction interests, the trusts and super-trusts are out to elect Al Smith. They will supply millions to elect Al Smith president. These millions they have robbed from the sweat and toil of the workers and poor farmers. They want to elect Smith to continue the reign of Wall Street and a strike-breaking government. Hoover will also get millions from the same crowd for the same purpose. The millions that will be spent by Wall Street for election purposes are for corruption in government, wage cuts, injunctions, breaking up of picket lines, jailing of workers, framing up of innocent workers, Sacco and Vanzetti executions, and imperialist world war.

650 ATHLETES AT BIG LABOR SPORT MEET TODAY

Men and Women Workers Will Participate in Thirty One Events Here

The biggest workers' athletic meet ever held in the United States will get under way at Wingate (P. S. A. L.) Field, Brooklyn, N. Y., at 2 o'clock today. Thirty-one track and field events, soccer, swimming and a mass drill will top the program. In the mass drill alone, 300 will participate.

Athletes from all parts of the country have come to New York for the meet. From Sudbury and Toronto, Canada, five athletes have come, making the trip in a has-been Ford. Milwaukee, Waukegan, Chicago, Duluth, Superior, Cleveland, Buffalo and other cities have sent athletes to the meet. In all, 24 cities are represented.

Strong Waukegan Trio.

Waukegan, Ill., has probably sent the strongest trio of athletes of any one city, in Paul Venhe, Arne Jokinen and A. Karjala. Venhe and Jokinen were the two high scorers of last year's meet.

Five Negro athletes are also taking part. They are favored to grab the honors in the short distance events.

Expect Records to Fall.

Last year's 100-meter record of 11.2 seconds will undoubtedly fall before the onslaught of the sixty athletes who will take part in this event. It will be necessary to run 12 trial heats in this event in order to give every athlete a chance. Nearly all of the trials and semi-finals will be held on Saturday, with the exceptions of the 3,000-meter walk, the 400-meter district relay race and the 5,000-meter run.

The big feature of the Sunday program, which starts at 10 a. m. and continues through to 6 p. m., will be the mass drill. Three hundred trained men and women will take part in this drill. For three apart, were thrown wildly about, perhaps half of them onto the tracks, against stanchions, even under the wheels of the cars behind.

Through the train there went the shriek of hundreds of people, seized with near-panic.

But the passengers were too closely packed in to struggle much. Women fainted and men fought—but it was a futile fight for they could hardly move. Someone tore open a window in one of the rear cars; then another and another. People scrambled out.

Electric Fire.

Peter Molther of Manhattan saw two women beside him. Their faces were pale and their forms were stiff. He thought they were dead. He lifted them both through a door, left them on the track, and sought safety for himself.

Men pulled other men and women through doors and windows after them. Everyone seemed to scream for a moment and then to concentrate upon winning safety for himself and his fellows.

A hiss went through the wrecked cars and blue smoke curled from the electrical wiring, short circuited and burning. But the fire was soon out.

"As I fled from the place," Peter Molther said, "I could see bodies strewn along the track clear back as far as the stanchion which the car hit, and I could see arms and legs and parts of bodies. It was a frightful vision and I can never forget it."

Shrieks of Terror.

Back on the Times Square platform, where hundreds were crowded waiting for trains, the people heard a crash, then a shriek, and a shout of terror; the thundering of the derailed cars as they plunged along the track; and the hiss of the short-lived fire; all in such a brief space of time none could tell what sound had followed the other.

The cries were echoed from the crowd on the subway platform. Like sheep, the people crowded towards the end of the station from which the terrifying sounds had come; then turned and fought for the exits.

By 7:30 p. m. 250 workmen were engaged repairing the damage to the subway—that New York might ride to work in haste again Saturday morning, or perhaps even ride home from the theatre tonight.

While the city and the transit company centered efforts on rescue at Times Square, thousands crowded platforms at stations along the route, and extra police had to be sent to each platform to maintain order. It was mid-evening before the last of these homegoers had been moved away on emergency trains which were routed over the Broadway and East Side subways. Many of them were hours late.

It was mid-evening before the work of identification of the dead and injured was more than well underway. It may be dawn before it is completed.

About 10 p. m. Frank Hedley, president of the Interborough, came to the Seventh Precinct Headquarters and for 10 minutes talked with two assistant district attorneys in an inner office. Hedley left, accompanied by two detectives, refusing to make any comment. Rumors went around that he was under technical arrest but these were denied by officers who said he had been directed to produce immediately the switch inspector who was responsible for permitting the train to cross a switch which was not in good repair.

Spain Dictator Exiles Soldiers and Civilian Opponents to Colonies

LISBON, Aug. 24 (UP).—Major Sarmento De Beires, one of that select group of men who have flown across the Atlantic Ocean, has been transported to exile in the Portuguese colonies as a deserter, it was revealed today.

The government made public a list of those who were shipped to the colonies yesterday on the steamer Lourenco Marques. They comprised mostly military men and civilians, most of them prominent, involved in the latest attempt to overthrow the government.

Those doomed to enforced domicile in such colonies as the Azores, Angola and Mozambique included 40 officers, among them two former cabinet ministers, and others prominent in the professions.

Theremin, Noted Soviet Musician, in Program at Stadium on Monday

Professor Leon Theremin, noted Soviet scientist and musician, and inventor of the Theremin-Vox, which produces music from the ether, will appear as solo artist at the Lewisohn Stadium, Convent Ave. and 139th St., next Monday, the Stadium Concerts Committee announced yesterday.

Professor Theremin, with three of his pupils assisting him, will present a program of well-known classics as well as the improvisations that featured his recent program at the Daily Worker Concert at the Coney Island Stadium. He will be accompanied by the entire Philharmonic Orchestra in several of his renditions.

BARE RIGHT WING MURDER ATTEMPT

Sorkin, ex-McGrady Man, Exposes Plot

Accusations of startling cold-bloodedness were levelled at the right wing scab Joint Council of the fur industry and at the "Forward" chiefs, "socialists" and A. F. of L. bureaucrats at the helm of the drive to destroy the fur workers union conditions.

"Forty thousand dollars were used by the scab council in payments to those who were to 'wipe out of existance' one of the leaders of the left wing Joint Board Furriers' Union," was the statement made by Hyman Sorkin, until recently a leader of the scab council and therefore in a position to know. This statement was made by Sorkin at a meeting of the Progressive Bloc which split away from the council in order to join the movement for a new union sponsored by nearly all fur union locals.

Sorkin's declaration is substantiated by facts already known since it can be recalled that Aaron Gross, Joint Board leader, was murderously assaulted by thugs who slashed his throat in an effort to kill him.

Sorkin also bared facts relative to this attempt. He declared that in order to avoid the possibility of future investigation on the big sums paid out, finance books were destroyed. Further in the expose, it was learnt that, at the time Gross was attacked, the "socialist" party leader, Bearak, was in New York and was the recipient of a number of checks averaging $6,000. Bearak refuses to explain whether these huge sums were for himself or for people who were to do the "work."

Further disclosures made later by Sorkin, interestingly portray the complete demoralization reigning in the camp of the right wing union destroyers. A special gang of thugs are employed by the scab council, Sorkin said. Their job is to force fur workers to take out membership books from the council. Each of these gangsters always carry scores of membership books in his pockets, which they sell to the workers, pocketing the money. In rare cases only do these cut-throats force a worker to the council offices for a book or dues stamps, each one is himself a union treasurer. Books and stamps are sold on the spot.

Every time a squad of these guerrillas are sent out to stop a shop, they are paid five dollars for a morning job and three dollars for an evening job. Recently, Sorkin related, they went on strike demanding five dollars for both jobs. They won. Now that the thousands of dollars are spent in the fight to wreck union standards, many of these thugs are threatening to resign unless the Forward or the A. F. of L. "comes across."

WORKERS PARTY HAS MINE PAPER

Stanton Nucleus Will Push Election Drive

WILKESBARRE, Pa., Aug. 24.—The first coal diggers' paper ever issued by a Workers (Communist) Party mine nucleus, appeared yesterday with the publication of "The Miners' Blast," shop-paper of the miners in the vicinity of Stanton, Pa. This is the first miners' nucleus paper that has ever been issued in the United States.

Introducing itself to the coal diggers, the "Miners' Blast" prints an editorial, part of which follows:

"The Miners' Blast is published by a group of miners in Stanton, organized in the mine nucleus of the Workers (Communist) Party, the revolutionary organization of the American working class. It is your paper, the paper of the rank and file, the miner, the laborer, driver, breaker-boy, of all the workers employed in and around the mine.

"The Miners' Blast is appearing at a time when conditions in Stanton, as in all other mines and the mining industry as a whole, is becoming increasingly worse day by day. Unemployment, wage-cuts, and speed-up mark the offensive of the operators, who gloating over their victory in the soft coal fields, are now preparing to attack and smash the union in the anthracite also."

The editorial, after showing up the betrayals of Lewis's corrupt clique ends with a call to all the miners to write for the paper and to participate in the election campaign of the Workers (Communist) Party.

GOP Appoints Machold N. Y. Campaign Head

H. Edmund Machold, big anti-labor power magnate of New York, was yesterday chosen by the republican State Committee to succeed George K. Morris as G. O. P. Campaign manager of New York State.

After his selection had been assured, Machold, following in the footsteps of John J. Raskob, went through the same gesture of "officially resigning" his post as president of the Northwestern Power Company.

CANDIDATES OF WORKERS PARTY TO FIGHT CASEY

G. O. P. and Democrats Back Labor Faker

WILKES-BARRE, Aug. 24.—John J. Casey is the president of the Pennsylvania State Federation of Labor, the successor of Jim Maurer. Mr. Casy is ot only a socialist. He represents Luzerne County in Congress, elected on the republican, democrat, and socialist tickets.

The honorable congressman is a typical labor faker, a good illustration of the fusion of the "non-partisan" A. F. of L. machine with the capitalist parties. Because Mr. Casey started his career as a breaker-boy and because he comes from a district where the majority of the voters are union men, he is posing as a friend of labor.

Last February he delivered a speech about the strike in congress, appealing to the representatives of the Mellons and Rockefellers to relieve the suffering of the miners and to save the country from the Bolshevik menace. Maurer can be well proud of his successor—this flag waving, red-baiting, republican-democratic-socialist politician.

Casey is running again for re-election. The labor misleaders are working hard to get him in. Of course, the socialist party is not going to oppose him. He will have the united coal-operators-"labor" support, which will mean election.

The Anthracite Sub-district of the Workers (Communist) Party of America is going to put up a strong fight against Casey, as well as the other capitalist politicians. A rank-and-file miner will run as candidate in his district against him. The class collaboration of the A. F. of L. will be fully exposed, and the miners rallied behind the Party of the Class Struggle.

Benjamin Gitlow, vice-presidential candidate of the Workers Party, will devote quite some time in his speech to the Caseys, Lewises, and the other fakers. He will speak at the monster Picnic and Rally in Sans Souci Park, Saturday, September 1st. Judging from the interest of the miners and the publicity given to it by the capitalist papers, this affair will be a great success in our election campaign.

Perfect New Airplane for Militaristic Use

A new type of airplane, reported to be a compromise between the monoplane and biplane models now in standard use was scheduled for public exhibition and test today at Hasbrouck Heights, N. J.

The model, known as the New Standard, is the work of Charles Healy Day, veteran aircraft designer. Clarence Chamberlain, officials of many New Jersey cities, and aviation engineers will watch the tests.

ARREST 175 FOR LESE MAJESTE

Peasants are Jailed by Japanese Terror

TOKIO, Japan, Aug. 24.—The temporary suspension of police censorship has revealed that 175 men and women, chiefly peasants, were arrested in this country in April for religious practises which included a form of primitive collectivism.

The devotees are alleged to have seceded from the Shinto faith and the leaders of the movement have exhorted their followers to contribute their wealth to the common support of their sect. The government charged that this is a form of Communism and proceeded against them on accusations of lese majeste to the emperor.

Many of the adherents to the sect are peasants upon whose credulity their religious teachers imposed.

BRITISH PREPARE DIRIGIBLE BASES

LONDON, Aug. 24.—Bases for giant dirigibles are now being constructed by the British government in Cardington, England; Ismailia, Egypt; Karachi, India; St. Hubert, Canada, and Groutville, South Africa. Additional bases will be built in Australia and New Zealand.

The bases are being built to accommodate the giant airships that are now being built in England. They are capable of carrying 100 men, can travel a distance of 4,000 miles at a stretch and will use heavy oil as fuel instead of gasoline.

This, together with the world-wide wireless communication combine recently completed by the British, and the extensive construction of railways in the colonies and dominions, is taken to indicate that the British empire is being unified in preparation for war.

The democrats were equally receptive in that year. Some of their "rich unles" included:

B. M. Baruch, New York banker, $22,500; Henry Morgenthau, New York ambassador to Turkey under Wilson and real estate operator in Tammany controlled New York City; Jesse H. Jones, Houston Tex., who won notoriety in 1928 demonstration convention, $20,000; Thomas F. Ryan, public utility operator in New York City, $50,000.

After the 1924 campaign the republicans showed a surplus of $355,264 and the democrats a deficit of $265,000. On March 7, 1928 the democrats announced that the deficit was wiped out, and that the 1928 campaign fund would be begun with $250,000 in hand. Contributions: Thomas F. Ryan, $50,000; Jesse H. Jones, director of finance of democratic national committee, $50,000; William F. Kenney, $25,000; C. W. Watson, Fairmount, W. Va., former U. S. senator, and coal magnate, $25,000.

The sums of money mentioned above relate only to expenditures of the national committees and probably constitute less than half of the total cost of the national campaign.

The Party Drive In Arkansas

By WILLIAM PICKENS.

So says a news headline.—Well, what difference will it make with evolution if Arkansas votes on it? If a "Hill Billy" votes yes, what is the difference? If he votes no, what is the difference? Evolution will not be altered by a political vote. Evolution is not a town law; if it be a law at all, it is a law of the universe. And great natural laws are not to be determined by stump speeches and ignorant voters. Natural laws are only to be discovered and understood. They cannot be influenced, altered or repealed.

If there are any scientists in Arkansas, they might set about and study the theory and the laws of evolution and see if they can understand any of it, or rediscover it—or something like that.

What could be the sense of submitting the matter of evolution to the general populace "to take a vote on it?"

Food Workers Support Big Youth Conference

Local 164, of the Amalgamated Food Workers, has contributed $10 to carry on the work of the Working Youth Conference.

The Working Youth Conference, which will take place September 29 and 30, has issued thousands of leaflets to unorganized young workers. One was a general leaflet addressed to all young laundry workers. Bulletins have been distributed to department store workers in Kleins, F. and W. Grands, to Woolworths, to Ohrbacks, and many others. Leaflets have been distributed to biscuit, shoe, knitgoods, pencil workers, and to many more groups of youth workers in New York.

shop declared they refused to pay dues to Hillman's collector because the officialdom had made a company union out of the organization.

An event occurring too late to be contained in the leaflet took place when Jacobs appeared before the executive board. When he came to face that body he was told that he will be kept off the job unless he signs a statement against the Jewish Commnist Daily Freiheit and the Daily Worker which denies the truth of the story of the beating. After the worker had refused this, he was ordered to stay away from that shop.

The long expected withdrawal of Abraham Beckerman from managership of the New York Joint Board of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers Union has finally been effected by that "little Mussolini" and his name will not be put on the ballot in the so-called elections to be held by that union soon.

An internal dispute of long standing with the chief officials of the organization are known to be the cause in informed circles. The rapid and ever-growing assumption of more power in the New York market due to his popularity among the bosses because of his brazen sell-outs of the workers' interests, caused the Hillman-Schlossberg clique in the national office to look upon him as a dangerous rival.

This, and the recent exposure of a huge graft machine in his administration, coupled with loss of support of his own underworld characters, back up the generally known belief that Beckerman's resignation is imminent. It is not as yet known which henchman of Hiliman is to be assigned Beckerman's place.

KELLOGG DODGES SACCO, VANZETTI MEET IN PARIS

Izvestia Comments on Peace Pact Promise

zetti demonstrators who, they alleged were planning a protest when the secretary arrived. Ambassador Herrick, who also seems to have been suspected, was not informed and arrived several minutes too late on the platform. He was in time, however, to hear one or two of the bolder Americans, who by this time had recognized the secretary, shout "Vive, M. Kellogg." Aside from this there was no demonstration as, heavily guarded by police and detectives, the secretary proceeded to the official reception.

Announcement has been made that steps are being taken whereby the multilateral peace treaty will be opened to signature by forty-four other powers following its signature by the original Locarno pact signatories here on Monday.

It is intimated that the government of the Soviet Union also may be invited to sign the treaty, altho the American government will evade the appearance of recognizing the U. S. S. R. by delegating France to undertake this negotiation.

MOSCOW, U. S. S. R., Aug. 24.—Commenting on reports that the United States government was willing to consider the signing of the Kellogg multilateral peace treaty, the Izvestia today regretted that the announcement made by assistant secretary of state Castle is oral and unofficial. This excites perplexity and may be the cause of a number of supplementary questions, the paper states.

"We only regret that the step of the assistant secretary of state — dictated, undoubtedly, by the desire to explain questions arising in relation to the compact's complicated procedure and the fact that the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics did not participate in the preliminary discussions — still leaves many difficulties and renders more difficult considerations of the fundamental problem, which could only be aided if all questions concerning the rights of States not original signatories were illumined with the necessary fullness."

of Wall Street. Wall Street's candidates, Hoover and Smith, will be supported by contributions amounting to millions. The Workers (Communist) Party, which is the party of the working class, is determined to defeat the attempt of Mr. Coler to prevent the workers from conducting an adequate campaign.

Would Refuse Permit.

"It comes with ill grace from Mr. Coler, appointee of Tammany Hall," the Communist statement continued, "to issue such an order, after that organization has accepted the generous contributions of Mr. DuPont, the gunpowder magnate, Mr. Doheney, the oil bandit, Mr. Kenny, the contractor who reaps his rich profits from city contracts, Mr. Ryan, the traction millionaire, and Mr. Baruch, the banker."

In his letter to Warren, Coler said that he had not received an application for a permit from the Workers Party, but that he would refuse to grant one in any event.

Tammany Corruption.

It was pointed out last night that Coler's alleged support of "law" is particularly ironic in view of the well-known fact that the City Lodge House, among others, on East 25th St., one of the municipal institutions over which Coler has general supervision, has for years been a nest of corruption and general inefficiency. This was especially revealed during the so-called unemployment surveys last winter when William G. McMahon, superintendent of the lodging house, fearful of revelations that would undoubtedly be made, refused all access to his books and records.

Received No Notice.

The Communist statement concluded:

"The Workers (Communist) Party disclaims having received any notice or information from Mr. Coler in reference to its city-wide drive on August 25 and 26 for the purpose of raising funds among the workers for its election campaign. We have a legal right to approach workers for funds in the city-wide house to house drive which we have planned. The alleged statement of Mr. Coler, an agent of Tammany Hall, is an attempt to pursuade the workers of this city not to contribute to the election campaign fund of the only Party which speaks in their interests. Time and again Mr. Coler has expressed his class prejudice by preventing the raising of much-needed relief funds for strikers and now he caps the climax by attempting to prohibit workers from contributing funds for an election campaign for the Party of their choice.

"We are confident that instead of discouraging the workers, Mr. Coler's statement will serve as an added stimulus to the workers of the city of New York to support the campaign fund of the Workers (Communist) Party in this drive.

RED CONGRESS DISCUSSES THE COLONIAL ISSUE

in the imperialist camp, as Bennet says.

Bourgeois democratic revolutions are the central question for all colonies, Pepper continued. The chief errors of the Communist Party of China, he said, were, first, that it failed to notice the development of the general national into the bourgeois democratic revolution and, second, that it thought the latter was developing into a proletarian revolution. Stalin's definition of the bourgeois democratic revolution, he continued, as a unification of the struggle against imperialism and feudal remnants is classical and applies to China, India and all colonial and semi-colonial countries. The central Communist task today, Pepper declared, is to fight against imperialism and the war danger. The bourgeois democratic revolution still exists in China. Regarding the Canton insurrection, he said, I always described it as the greatest historical action of the Chinese proletariat and never opposed armed insurrection.

The Colonial Theory.

Further speakers were Remmele, of Germany, and Wolfe, of the United States. Wolfe declared that the de-colonization theory overestimates the progressive role of imperialism and leads to an opportunist apology for imperialism and weakens the struggle aaginst it. Temporarily, he continued, United States capitalism played a progressive role in Latin-America but only in order to drive out British imperialism, which was the first in the field and allied with the feudal and clerical reaction. When the American aim was achieved, he continued, the United States crushed the progressive movement it had itself released and made an alliance with the feudal reaction. The petty bourgeois theory of unity of Latin America against United States imperialism is inacceptable, he said. We aim at the unification of the revolutionary forces in Latin America and in the United States and the foundation of a Latin American workers' and peasants' Soviet Republic, he declared.

(Wireless to The Daily Worker).

MOSCOW, U. S. S. R., Aug. 22.—Discussion of the colonial question, participated in by delegates from the colonial Communist Parties and from the working class all over the world continued in the thirty-eighth session of the Sixth Congress of the Communist International, under the chairmanship of Manavar of Indonesia.

The following discussed the theses dealing with the colonial problem: Bunting, of South Africa; Raza, of India; Schubin, of the Soviet Union; Cardenas, of Columbia; Lominadse, of the Soviet Union; Raveto, of Argentina; Wurm, of the Information Department of the Communist International; Masut, of the Young Communist International; Ramirez, of Mexico; Bensaid, of Algeria; Shagri, of Persia, and Shenkuang, of China.

Closing Speech on Colonies.

At the thirty-ninth session of the World Congress under the chairmanship of Remele, Sikander, of India, commenced the closing speech on the colonial debate. The speeches of the representatives of the decolonization or industrialization theories take no account of the existing circumstances, he said. Class contradictions exist between the British and Indian capitalists and British capitalism wishes to maintain the monopoly position in India and continue its exploitation of the country as a rawstuff and food source, and a market for the motherland. Military reasons make it necessary to extend Indian railways, he continued, and this is the aim of capital export and not the development of heavy industry.

Here, continued Sikander, the thesis is correct and not the critics of it, including the majority of the British delegation. The general capitalist development of India has led to the growth of the native bourgeoisie which aims at the development of heavy duty and political independence. The Indian bourgeoisie, he declared, is counter-revolutionary and betrays the revolution, while compromising with the imperialists. The idea that the Indian bourgeoisie has not betrayed the national revolution, just as the Koumintang did, is incorrect.

The upper section of the Indian bourgeoisie is prepared to ally itself with British imperialism whereas the lower section is prepared to fight for power and utilize the masses as cannon-fodder, he continued. The fight must be conducted against the petty bourgeoisie which has an influence on the masses. The Second International strives to prove the progressive role of imperialism in the colonies. It is incredìtable, Sikander declared, that some Communists hold the industrialization theory and thus follow in the footsteps of MacDonald.

The Bunk Artists of Imperialism Get Busy

After refusing to accept the proposals of the Soviet Union for complete and immediate disarmament the imperialists got busy concocting a "peace" plan, whose only relation to world peace is to cloak the preparations which the powers are making for the next imperialist war. Above, four imperialist diplomats who will sign the Kellogg treaty in Paris August 27th. Frank B. Kellogg, upper left; Austen Chamberlain, British Foreign Minister, upper right; Aristide Briand, French Foreign Minister, lower left; Gustav Stresemann, German Foreign Minister, lower right.

GOVERNMENT TO ABET PETROLEUM IMPERIALISTS

More Concessions are Granted

BOGOTA, Colombia, Aug. 24.—Strict and comprehensive legislation against Communism, the Communist Party and revolutionary labor unions and organizations, and organization of mixed oil companies that would give greater power to foreign capital were called for in a manifesto issued today by President Dr. Abadia Mandez and his cabinet.

Legislation against the Communist Party already exists in Colombia, but the new manifesto declared the government's intention to declare revolutionary labor unions and other revolutionary organizations illegal, and would provide strict punishment for violators.

The "mixed" oil companies proposed would provide a combine, dominated by foreign capital, the main competitors being England and the United States, for the exploitation of oil lands, as well as for the refining and marketing of the oil and the construction and exploitation of public pipe-lines. The same manifesto indicates that the government will not begin exploitation of the national oil reserves, which it would consider "inconvenient at the present time."

The Andean Oil Company, British controlled, and the Standard Oil are the two chief petroleum interests in Colombia. The Gulf Refining Company was recently legislated against when the Barco concessions were repealed by the president. One national company already exists in which, it is believed, Standard holds chief control.

Who Will Organize the Auto Workers?

(This is the seventh in the series of articles on "Automobile—Symbol of the Modern Slavery." The articles thus far have given a general picture of the industry, the extent of the mergers, the conditions among the workers, etc. The recent Flint strike came in for special consideration. Who will organize the auto workers? Every worker should read this most important article.)

By BEN LIFSCHITZ

The National Automobile Chamber of Commerce, an organization of auto manufacturers, is the powerful instrument in the hands of the bosses to promote their interests. On the other hand, we find the workers completely unorganized and absolutely helpless against such powerful combinations as Ford, General Motors Corporation and the other giants in the industry. It is true that the wages of the workers, up to January, 1927, were relatively high, but since then there has been a steady reduction in wages, a lengthening of hours and ever-increasing speed-up. This intense exploitation will affect the workers much more in the future.

Who Will Organize the Auto Industry?

The problem of organizing the workers in the automobile industry is very complicated. It requires a thorough knowledge of the development of the industry, its constant changes. It requires close examination of each of these powerful producing machines.

There are only a few unions, and all of these, except one, are craft unions. There is the automobile aircraft, Vehicle Workers Union, the machinists, pattern makers, molders, electricians, polishers and a few others. All those unions (with the exception of the A. A. and V. W. U., usually called the Auto Workers Union) represent very small groups. The machinists' locals include primarily automobile mechanics working in garages and some tool and die makers from the manufacturing plants.

The central labor bodies in the auto center are made up chiefly of the building trade locals. Their leaders are usually connected with the city and state politicians of either the democratic or republican parties, depending upon which political machine is in control. Some of these officials, as is the case of Frank Wade, president of the Michigan Federation of Labor, a prominent republican, have such high regard for organized labor that he has built a new home on Third Ave., Flint, engaging the Modern Housing Corporation, a General Motors subsidiary, to do the job. This housing corporation employs only non-union labor. Much to his surprise and indignation, he was recently called before the central labor body of Flint by his union to answer charges of misconduct in betraying union labor and the principles of union labor. He admitted these charges and so heated a discussion arose in the meeting that steam roller methods had to be used by the chairman to prevent further exposures of the actions of this labor faker.

Officials' Sabotage Struggle.

It is, therefore, not surprising that in the last strike the officials of the Central Labor Body of Flint, Michigan, not only did not support the strike, but actually did everything possible to hinder the struggle.

When a mass meeting was arranged in the Labor Temple, under the auspices of the Auto Workers Union, they found the door locked and a sign placed there by officials of the organization reading that the auto workers were not to meet there that night. Even members of the A. F. of L. were indignant at such tactics, calculated to obstruct the organization of automobile workers, and they forced the custodians to open up the hall for the workers.

It is also no accident that the Flint Federation of Labor issued a pamphlet entitled "Americanism Versus Communism," in which they give a list of the business concerns co-operating with the Flint Federation of Labor in their campaign against Communism. The list includes such open-shop concerns as the DuPont de Nemours and Co. and the General Motors subsidiaries, A. C. Spark Plug and the Buick Motor Company.

Ruthless Open-Shoppers.

The General Motors Corporation is the most ruthless foe of organized labor in Michigan, and, for that matter, in the United States. Yet the Flint Federation of Labor begs the Buick Motor Company for a few tainted dollars to help fight the Communists. General Motors has declared that it will buy no more union-mined coal. Yet they do not hesitate to assist the labor fakers of Flint in their campaign against Communism. They know that by attacking the Communists they are attacking the only group that is making a determined effort to organize the workers in the automobile industry. Hence they do not hesitate to help the leaders of the Flint trade unions to stab the motor workers in the back. The workers are learning very fast about this crew of labor misleaders. When the Flint Federation of Labor called a mass meeting of these strikers not one of the strikers showed up at the meeting.

It is already almost two years since the Detroit Convention of the A. F. of L. adopted a resolution to organize the automobile workers. It is no surprise to us that practically nothing was done toward organizing these workers. We may expect even greater betrayals by the local and national leaders of the A. F. of L. when a greater and more deep-going awakening takes place among the automobile workers.

Against Mass Power.

The leaders of the A. F. of L. realize what an organized movement of hundreds of thousands of automobile workers would mean for them and they are not so anxious to build something that will turn against them.

The leaders of the American industries have already learned by this time to take the statements of the American Federation of Labor with a ton of salt. We have no doubt that the capitalists in the airplane industry have as much fear of the threat of William Green to organize this industry as when the A. F. of L. passed their resolution to organize the automobile industry.

Certainly we cannot expect the officialdom of the A. F. of L. to make a real effort to organize the workers in the automobile industry. Their latest betrayals of the miners, textile and needle workers, and their action in the Flint strike, must convince every class-conscious worker that the A. F. of L. officialdom are the enemies of the American working class.

Task of Workers Themselves.

The organization of the workers in the automobile industry must come through the initiative of the class-conscious workers themselves.

A number of problems are connected with the question of organizing the workers in the automobile industry.

The automobile industry, as we have noted in the article on "The Scope of the Industry," is the largest manufacturing industry in the United States, both in the raw material used and in the number of workers, directly and indirectly employed. The most important feature of the industry is that nowhere in the world, not even including the Clyde district of Scotland, is there such a compact mass of proletarians concentrated as there are in the Detroit-Toledo-Cleveland area, which contains close to three-quarters of a million workers employed in the factories, making motor vehicles, parts, accessories and tires. The most significant fact is that more than two-thirds of those workers are located within a radius of about sixty miles. Detroit is the center, Flint is to the northwest and Toledo to the east.

A strike in one of the large automobile plants, properly conducted, is bound to have an effect on the workers in the other shops and must result in deepening the class-consciousness of the workers in the auto industries and lead to further struggles.

Increase of Semi-Skilled.

The tendency in the automobile industry is generally in the direction of less and less skill. That does not mean that the absolute number of the skilled workers in the automobile industry is diminishing, but that the percentage of the skilled workers in relation to the amount of production is diminishing. The tendency is also to reduce the number of unskilled known as common laborers. Both tendencies are in the direction of increasing the semi-skilled workers. No matter what you are doing in the industry, some slight skill or agility is required and, as in the case of the oil senders, while the amount of skill is not high, nevertheless a particular form of skill is required which takes some time to acquire.

(Tomorrow's article, which will conclude the series, will deal with the important problem of the tactics and strategy of organizing the auto workers and the necessity of building shop committees.)

for Proletarians and Radicals

THE HEALERS
By DR. B. LIBER

A unique, extremely original story of an ideal, almost impossible, struggling truth-seeking physician, who at last leaves his practice and becomes a tramp. Many phases from his most intimate life, his childhood, sex development, love and disappointments are told. But it is mainly an exact description of all the healing professions and quacks, with many details about their shortcomings and criminal practices and a relentless picture of the social background of disease.

FROM THE PRESS:

"An unusual book. An honest and courageous setting forth of puzzling problems of healing."
"Smashing attack against the entire practice of medicine as it exists today. . . . Recalling the jeremiads of the old Hebrew prophets. . . . More absorbing than any detective story."
". . . . This sounds like crankery, but Dr. Liber is really quite sensible, just a bit too sanguine and his book makes interesting reading."
"Each page is a gem, thrillingly interesting, fiction style, but such blistering truths offered that one is amazed at the stupidity and crudeness of the human race. . . . From the writer emanates a golden glamor of idealism. . . . The leading figure, whose career from childhood, medical training, the first bitter entrance into his professional life, his romance, disappointment, all exquisitely pictured. . . . The heart of a musician, the soul of a poet, the conception of an artist, the brain of a philosopher, the perspective of a scientist. . . . Some parts remind us of Tolstoy—down in the dregs of life which we want to ignore. . . . See life as it is, stripped of stains and silks. . . . Like an oak on the high cliff, storm beaten by the opinion of all healers, the author stands, challenging the world. He favors no one. With the larger good of the suffering public in mind the book is courageous and combative."

FROM READERS:

"A revelation. I wish it co[illegible]each every one of our suffering humanity."—"The book of [illegible] century. Not merely true, interesting and educational, but a great inspiration for a better and more useful life."—"An excellent novel. The hero is a character portrayal without parallel in American literature."

From Dr. O. G., one of the most prominent men in his specialty:

"Your book is wonderful. It certainly reflects marvelously the kaleidoscopic mirror of medical life. Had the profession at large followed you as their pioneer, we would have no more abuses and fakes. I admire your courage to continue this uneven struggle against the Demigods of science."

From DR. JAMES P. WARBASSE, prominent surgeon, author and leader of the American co-operative movement:

"This book is highly informative and interesting. . . . The doctors will not like it because of the fulsome criticism of their profession. . . . Its chief value will be to those who are interested in the sociology and economics of medicine and the problems of medical practice. . . . There is too little criticism of the modern practice of medicine from the inside. You place the medical profession under obligations to you for your wise and helpful criticisms."

HANdOuTS

Everybody knows the American marines are in Nicaragua to ensure fair play at the elections and prevent the activity of disorderly elements so that the balloting can be conducted with the same serenity noted in American cities for instance Chicago. It is a fact, odd and without significance, that American investments in Latin America have jumped from 300 million in 1900 to $5,000,000,000. It is also a remarkable coincidence that there are no investments in Labrador and no marines.

Goodwill, etc.

A sure way to gain fame, when normally you wouldn't attract any more attention than a banana peel on Third Avenue, is to hire an airplane and fly off into some waste place. Above is Miss Zoe Beckley who has just completed a "Goodwill" flight to Mexico City. She is now in the market to endorse overalls, chewing tobacco or Castoria. A flight of this kind is called a Good-will flight on the absurd theory that because an airplane of one country flies over another country it is a token of friendship. This might be so if airplanes were constructed to transport olive branches instead of bombs.

CONDITIONS NOT ONLY TERRIBLE BUT HORRIBLE

Must Oust Blumberg and Colleagues

(By a Worker Correspondent)

PHILADELPHIA, (By Mail).—To be successful in an organization campaign, to organize the unorganized, it is necessary to have a correct picture and a correct analysis of the situation in the particular industry on which you intend to concentrate.

To assure the success of the organization drive it is also necessary to organize the whole membership of the union to participate in the drive, not the kind of participation that Mr. Blumberg, Weinstein and the rest of the corrupt machine want, that is 'To give out leaflets only," but the participation of the rank and file members of the union in the formulation of the policy on how to organize the clothing workers of this city.

Not Italian Situation.

The present misleaders of the Amalgamated have a narrow conception of what is actually the situation in this city. The Hillman machine has been telling to the Philadelphia clothing workers, that "Philadelphia is an Italian situation" and many sincere brothers from the Italian local and those of the Jewish locals believed and still believe that Philadelphia is an Italian situation.

This analysis is misleading for the clothing workers of this city. Being that there are a number of active clothing workers who believe that the analysis of the Hillman, Weinstein machine is a correct one, I want to prove here the incorrectness of it and how misleading this analysis is.

In 1922, we had a large number of Italians in the Philadelphia clothing workers' industry. In 1922 there were no immigration laws preventing foreign born workers from coming to America to fill the industries as there are today. We must consider that the immigration laws prevailing in America have reduced tremendously the entrance of Italians in the clothing industry in this city.

Many Italians that were working in the Philadelphia clothing market in 1922 have left their work and changed their trade due to the lower standard of wages in the clothing industry here. Many others have left the city.

This, however, does not mean that we have no Italian clothing workers in the industry here. Let me bring you some figures and that alone will convince you of the incorrectness of the analysis of the Hillman and Blumberg machine.

We have in the city of Philadelphia 15,000 clothing workers. Sixty-five per cent of whom are young workers and fifty per cent of the young workers are American born and the other percentage Americanized so that they hardly read or understand Italian. Fifty per cent of the Philadelphia clothing workers are female workers.

60% American Born.

Of the 15,000 clothing workers we can say that 80 per cent are Italians, not Italians from Italy but of Italian parentage. Sixty per cent of the 80 per cent are American born. This very clearly shows that we do not have an Italian situation when we speaking of organizing the Philadelphia clothing workers.

The reactionary Hillman, Blumberg, Weinstein machine has not the slightest intention of organizing the unorganized clothing workers and their analysis is in accord with their intention.

I want to give here some high lights of the so-called organizational drive carried on by the officialdom of the Amalgamated here. Recently Mr. Blumberg came in Philadelphia to "organize" the clothing workers. Even tho the "campaign" has not been officially called off the clothing workers can rest assured that the campaign is over.

At the beginning of the campaign before Mr. Blumberg, the dictator, arrived in town, thru the pressure of the left wing and progressives a Youth Committee was organized by the Joint Board of the A. C. W., to organize the unorganized young clothing workers. Soon as this committee started some work with organizational results the machine launched an attack. Mr. Weinstein, the manager of the Philadelphia Joint Board, viciously attacked the committee at one of the meetings of the board and declared, "This committee must not organize the young clothing workers but merely study ways and means of organizing them. When the writer of this article reported that we had a group in the Makaransky shop, and some other connections in other shops, it was considered by Mr. Weinstein and the rest of his associates, London, Licastro, etc., a crime to organize a group in a non-union shop and have connections in other non-union concerns.

Their attack did not prevent the committee from continuing its work and few parties and dances were organized by this committee with the result that hundreds of young clothing workers attended. Mr. Weinstein, Licastro and the rest of the machine feared these young workers would join the union and that the youth would have made real headway in the organization of the unorganized clothing workers, and smashed the Youth Committee to prevent the meeting of the Young Workers' Social Club (organized by the Youth Committee).

Pressers Recruit.

The Italian pressers also made some headway in recruiting pressers from open shops to come to meetings. When the pressers proved their real intention of willingness to organize, they were abandoned by the misleader, no meetings were called any more, etc.

Thru the activities of the youth and the pressers in this "campaign" some workers were fired by the bosses from Makaransky, Daroff, Middished, etc. The officialdom permitted the manufacturers to continue to terrorize the clothing workers.

The conditions of the Philadelphia clothing workers are not terrible, but horrible. Young workers, boys and girls, are working for from $6 to $15 per week and a man with a family to support does not make enough to clothe and feed his family. A general discontent prevails among the clothing workers. The to be organized. These workers Philadelphia clothing workers want have no confidence in the Hillman, Blumberg, Licastro, Weinstein, Morriconi and corrupted misleaders of the workers. Our slogan should be: "Mr. Blumberg, Weinstein, London, Morriconi, Licastro, must go. The union must be lead by the workers themselves and not by the corrupted bureaucratic politicians of the present machine."

The rank and file of the Amalgamated are interested in the organization of the clothing workers here. The corrupt machine is not interested and they must go.

An organization drive is necessary in Philadelphia. A real organization drive conducted by the rank and file members of the organization. Organization committees of hundreds of rank and file members must be mobilized who should lead the campaign. The dictator, Blumberg, must go. Jewish and Italian brothers and sisters must be made to participate in the campaign. Italian, Jewish, Poles, and Lithuanians can be found in the clothing industry of this city, and most of all young American-born elements. With a correct approach, with a correct and militant policy and with a campaign conducted by the membership of the Amalgamated we can feel confident that a successful general strike can be won. Philadelphia clothing workers, organize. Organize and fight against the corrupted misleaders of the workers. Organize for a general strike.

GERMANY SIGNS NANKING PACT

SHANGHAI, Aug. 24—The text of the treaty signed by the Nanking government and the German government has been made public and the treaty follows the same lines as that recently signed by the United States government.

It included the most-favorable-nation clause that is included in the Kellogg treaty. "In all customs and kindred matters neither of the high contracting parties shall be placed at a disadvantage in the territory of the other as compared with the treatment accorded any other country."

The treaty provides for early negotiations for trade and shipping agreement although the German government had already granted China trade autonomy in 1921.

"PROSPERITY" IN "SUNNY SOUTH" MEANS POVERTY

Workers, Farmers are Crushed

(By a Worker Correspondent)

Some of the chambers of commerce in the south are inserting large advertisements in various northern papers inducing mill owners and other manufacturers to move down south. Inducements are cheap so-called "Anglo-Saxon labor," non-unionism and other delights of the open-shoppers.

The various politicians are shouting as usual that there is prosperity in the south. Herbert "Starvation" Hoover is sending his agents thru the south with the intention of buying votes. One of his agents, congressman W. E. Evans, of California, recently visited Chatanooga, Tenn. According to the Chatanooga News of Aug. 18, he visited that city and conferred with the republican leaders. Mr. Evans called Hoover "humanitarian" and other names that sound sweet. Evans said in part, "I find a tremendous sentiment in Tennessee for him (Hoover), and this is true regardless of party."

How is "prosperity" in reality in the south? A few days ago I spoke with several people from Chatanooga who gave me a real description of conditions there.

Business is in a state of general depression. Many petty shopkeepers are closing up their establishments. Among the little shopkeepers there is great competition. The "little guys" are being swallowed up by the "big fellows," such as the Atlantic and Pacific, Piggly Wiggly and others.

Recently Sowder and Brown, two large merchants of Chatanooga, opened up a $50,000 modern grocery store. This has hit the little fellows hard and many of of them in the neighborhood have to close up their shops. They are raising a cry against the chain stores and they cannot do anything against them.

Wages of workers are being cut nearl yeverywhere. Many factories have closed down completely.

Farmers are selling most of their crops below cost. Many of them are flocking to the large cities to find employment. Their lot is pitiful.

Many of the workers are realizing that they cannot depend on the political fakers and they are joining the trade unions to better their conditions.

A strike of stone workers is now on at South Pittsburgh near Chatanooga. The ranks of the strikers are solid and no doubt they will win.

The hill people of the south are waking up from their slumbers. The trade union movement should pay more attention to the southern workers. There is a great field for organization work.

Clark's "Relations" at the Masque Up to Specifications

ONCE a year there has to be a play about Jewish small businessmen who are very excitable, easily angered, who splutter, but who have good hearts. There's money in it. "Relations," now at the Theatre Masque, is this year's.

Being one of a distinct class, drawn according to blue prints of previous successes, you cannot expect to be surprised at anything Edward Clark, producer, author and star of "Relations," brings into it. He just delivers the goods, and that's all. It sounds funny enough to explain the presence of various anti-Semites who come to have their little joke, it is sentimental enough to account for the presence of the possessors of the Ghetto inferiority complex, and therefore it should be a sure fire success; why not? All the jokes in it have been tried many times before, on many other audiences, and they always went over right.

Aside from considerable Rotarian propaganda about business men needing to help each other out, and considerable plain boss propaganda about delivering a fair day's work for a fair day's wage, "Relations" concerns itself with the clash in the retail millinery business between family loyalty, ingrained into Jewish business families by hundreds of years of persecution by the Gentiles, and the conflicting demands of profit-making, likewise a product of life and culture. "Uncle Wolfe" Michaels (he changed his name from Lubin because everybody in America changes his name) runs a small scale business, and tries to employ all his relations. They swindle him. The heroine, also a relation, calls them "slackers." Uncle Wolfe calls them numerous other things, in his effort to get more speed out of them. Finally he fires the bunch.

Edward Clark, as the testy "Uncle Wolfe," and Peggy Coudry, as the usual slangy office girl, who left a good job at Woolworth's to labor for Uncle, are the best.

JUGOSLAV GOV'T. MOVES AGAINST CROAT LEADERS

May Lead [illegible] War for [illegible]

BELGRADE, Jogoslavia, Aug. 24.—Pressure is being brought by Belgrade officials and members of the Serb party against the government to arrest M. Matchek, leader of the Croatian Peasant Party, for high treason because he sent Krnjenvitch, secretary of the party, to the Interparliamentary Union Congress at Berlin and a telegram protesting against the seating of the Yugoslav delegates who were all Serbs and calling the attention of the Union to Croatia's fight for autonomy.

In the meantime the Croatian and Democratic parties holding a coalition session in Laibach, voted an unanimous endorsement of Matchek's action and agreed, individually and collectively, to assume responsibility for it.

If the Yugoslav government now wishes to take action against those responsible for the move at Berlin they would have to take measures against all the members of the Croatian Peasant and Democratic Parties, which would amount to extraordinary measures of suppression, that could very easily lead to armed struggle for independence in view of the present mood of the Croatian and Dalmatian rank and file.

Rebecca Grecht Found Guilty of Disorderly Conduct at Long Island Magistrate Court

FLIMSY EVIDENCE CAUSE SENTENCE TO BE SUSPENDED

But Tammany Bars the Communist Collection

Rebecca Grecht, District Campaign Manager of the Workers (Communist) Party was found guilty of "disorderly conduct tending to a breach of peace" at the First Magistrates Court of Long Island City yesterday, in spite of evidence given at the trial pointing to the guilt of the fascists—none of whom were arrested—who broke up the open air meeting of the Workers (Communist) Party on August 9 and assaulted the speakers, and in spite of evidence showing that no police protection had been given the speakers.

Policeman Stewart Donnelly was the first to testify. Donnelly submitted that in the face of the commotion it was impossible to prevent the assault on Abraham Harfield, Communist candidate from the First Assembly District of Queens, that he had had no opportunity to apprehend those guilty of the assault; that he had no chance to even inquire the names and addresses of members of the Veterans of Foreign Wars who were standing in a menacing circle around Harfield. Donnelly testified, however, that he remained standing there with Harfield for a number of minutes, during which Harfield was still subjected to the attack of the members of the jingo organization.

Jingo Testifies.

At the close of Donnelly's testimony, after many glaring discrepancies and what amounted to an admission of aid to the assault had been wrung out of him by Jacques Buitenkant, representing the International Labor Defense, a righteous citizen walked up to the bench and asked permission to testify, having been present at the meeting in question. He gave his name as Alfred Heller, and proceeded to denounce the "inflammatory remarks" of Rebecca Grecht in a vicious manner.

Under cross-examination, Heller, who said he was motivated purely by his duties as a citizen in volunteering his testimony, admitted he was a member of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, but maintained that as such he is not prejudiced against the Workers (Communist) Party. This unprejudiced, righteous and indignant patriot, maintaining that he had not crossed the street from his meeting to the Communist meeting, proceeded to give "testimony" in detail of what took place around the Communist platform, details not possibly visible to anyone more than a few feet away.

Grecht on Stand.

Rebecca Grecht, called to the witness stand, testified that when the meeting was being broken up and Harfield and Mueller assaulted, no policeman was in sight, and that when one arrived she made repeated demands for attention from him, but that the policeman ignored her, and ignored her demand that those responsible for the assault be arrested. Only after she had seen Harfield's bleeding face and blood-stained shirt, Rebecca Grecht testified, did she characterize "the elements responsible for the assault on the speakers and the breaking up of the meeting as 'hoodlums.'" Upon this, the officer had arrested her.

Harfield Scores.

Harfield next testified as to what had occurred, stating definitely that the policeman who arrived in the nick of time, after he had been brutally beaten, made no effort to prevent the assault. During his testimony a court official came in and whispered in the ear of Judge Paul U. Daly. Immediately the judge walked out of the court room and a recess was declared for a few minutes. The nature of the closed-chamber consultation and the identity of the person consulted was not revealed.

In finding Rebecca Grecht guilty of disorderly conduct, Judge Daly refused to consider the circumstances of the case, refused to take into consideration the breaking up of the Communist meeting and the assault on the Communist speakers, refused to censure those responsible for the assault, and refused to censure the policeman for failure to make arrests or even inquiries as to those responsible.

MINE DISTRICTS DRIVE FOR UNION

Leaders Prepare for Convention

the wage cut that Harry Fishwick, Lewis and the coal operators are attempting to force upon them. In Springfield, Tony Minerich and John Watt exposed John W. Hindmarsh's dealings in a debate which has inflamed all Southern Illinois. Even the children shout "labor faker!" when the Lewis henchmen mount a platform. Illinois, always in the forefront of miners struggles, will have a big delegation from every part of the state at the national miners convention in Pittsburgh.

Anthracite Active.

The Silverbrook local in the hard coal region was the first to receive a charter for the new miners union. The anthracite miners know that it would be fatal to allow themselves to be split away from the soft coal miners as some company-hired traitors in the ranks are suggesting. They know that one united front of bituminous and anthracite miners under honest and militant leadership is the goal of the progressive movement. The tri-district will send a strong delegation to help build the new union.

The proof of Lewis' union-wrecking program is arriving at the National Miners Convention Arrangements Committee headquarters, in the form of credentials from the former union fields of Maryland, Tennessee, Alabama, Oklahoma, Kentucky, the southwest and far west. This proves that the miners want a union and that Lewis has deliberately broken district after district. Now these miners are mobilizing their forces for to affiliate them with the new miners union.

NEED AID TO GO ON WITH STRIKE

Textile Union Appeals to Workers

With a grim determination to win, the 30,000 textile strikers of New Bedford enter the fifth month of struggle against the mill barons with as much enthusiasm and courage as they had on April 16, when the strike started.

Altho the forces aligned against them are strong and powerful the strikers, the biggest part accepting the leadership of the Textile Mills Committee, are putting up a fight that is winning the admiration of the entire American working class.

With several hundred workers arrested, many sentenced to terms in prison ranging from a year and a half to one month, the fight is now reaching the point where all can see that it will be a long drawn out struggle. Both the mill owners and the strikers realize this and are acting accordingly.

The workers of America must immediately rally to the support of the strikers. They are willing to man the picket lines, but the entire American working class must do its share. Food is needed for the strikers and their families. Needed in larger quantities as the strike continues, more workers applying for relief every day.

The striking textile workers of New Bedford need help! Workers come to their aid! Send contributions at once to the Workers' International Relief, 49 William St., New Bedford, Mass.

WORKERS IN BIG CENTERS RALLY TO BACK PARTY

Organizers are Busy in Campaign

Trachtenberg reported, leaving the hegemony of the class struggle in the hands of the Workers (Communist) Party.

Alexander Bail, district organizer for all the New England states outside of Connecticut, and Sidney Bloomfield, campaign manager assured Comrade Trachtenberg that Maine would be on the ballot, leaving Vermont to the ex-bill collector and strike-breaker Coolidge and the renegade John Spargo, who is now engaged in writing a treatise on the fauna and flora of the Granite state.

Comrade Trachtenberg reported that on the eve of the textile strike in New Bedford, there was no Communist organization there worth speaking of, but now, due to the participation of the Party in the struggle, there is a strong Workers (Communist) Party organization and a healthy nucleus of the Young Workers (Communist) League.

Negroes Sign Petitions.

Trachtenberg learned that the Negro workers in Connecticut, where there are large Negro settlements are most willing to sign the Communist petitions, which shows that those workers, who suffer from race discriminations as well as industrial exploitation are beginning to see a way out, and are turning to the Workers (Communist) Party as the only Party that has a program to meet their problems as a persecuted race and also as industrial wage slaves.

Rhode Island Strong.

The New Bedford strike not only raised the revolutionary spirit of the workers in that great mill city but the struggle has electrified the workers in all the New England states, particularly Rhode Island, another great textile state. Though small in area New England is an industrial stronghold where the textile workers in particular, in view of the chaos in the industry and the wage-cutting drives of the textile barons are in a state of ferment unequalled since the great struggles in Lawrence and other cities seventeen years ago.

In Maine and New Hampshire Party conventions have already been held, state tickets nominated and presidential electors secured. In addition to the Party members, many non-Party sympathizers are helping in the campaign and several have agreed to act as Communist electors. Despite the tremendous difficulties confronting the comrades in getting the Party on the ballot in Maine, they are determined to put up a real battle against the Republican Party and establish the Workers (Communist) Party as a militant political factor in that state.

Connecticut Coming.

Comrade Trachtenberg reported that District 15, under the direction of Comrade Charles Mitchell, district organizer and campaign manager, is sure to be on the ballot. Tho a small state, Connecticut is the home of several large industries, and the population of many cities in the state is more than 80 per cent industrial. The obstacles placed in the way of getting the Party on the ballot in Connecticut can be seen from the fact that tho small, it requires 6,000 signatures to get a new Party, or a party not "legal" in the sense of election regulations, on the ballot. Over half the necessary number of signatures have been already collected.

Urge Worker Correspondence.

Those who are collecting signatures are invited by the National Election Campaign Committee to write their experiences in the form of workers correspondence for the benefit of the readers of the Communist Press. Those stories in addition to having intense human interest are excellent propaganda and will serve to encourage the Party membership as a whole to participate in this most important campaign work.

The prospects for waging a splendid campaign in New England are bright, Trachtenberg says, and the probability that all the New England states with the exception of Vermont, with their tremendous working class population will be on the ballot, will establish the Workers (Communist) Party in that section of the country, as the political leader and the organizer of the masses in the class struggle against capitalism and the capitalist government.

Smith on Prohibition and Labor

Among the newspapers that support Al Smith, one section which caters to "liberal" readers is busy shouting about the liberalism of Smith's acceptance speech; the other section catering to a wealthier section of the bourgeoisie is equally insistant that the acceptance speech shows that Smith is just as good as Hoover from the Wall Street point of view.

The truth is that Smith's acceptance speech is fully as reactionary as the speech of Hoover. Look into the "liberal" phrases carefully, and every "liberal" statement Smith made contains an "out"; everything has its reservation that nullifies its pretended liberalism, except such as are purely negative statements of pious wish or sentiment.

Smith is not a liberal. If he were a liberal he would come closer to making promises, each of which would be ignored after election. But search Smith's speech through and through, and every pretty flower of speech has a Tammany worm in it.

There is absolutely no difference of class basis between the republican and the democratic party today. The real or pretended division among the directors of the largest trusts and finance-capitalist institutions only goes to prove that both Hoover and Smith are acceptable to the finance-capitalist oligarchy that rules America. It proves equally well that both Smith and Hoover are completely and unquestionably disciplined servants of the same giant oligarchy.

An examination of the various points of controversy (so-called) in this "gentlemen's campaign," upon the "high level" of which each side compliments the other, only goes to confirm the fact that they serve the same masters.

The prohibition question Smith tries to ballyhoo into the first place of controversy. But when all is said and done, each of these capitalist candidates would carry out precisely the same program in regard to prohibition. Is the directorate of General Motors divided on the question of best policy in regard to liquor? Well, the directorates of this and other such corporations will decide among them what is the best system for getting the highest degree of efficiency and the greatest exploitation out of labor in the big American industrial plants, and Smith or Hoover will take orders that will be delivered to either of them from the same desk.

Smith said, "If with one hand on the bible and the other hand reaching up to heaven" he promises to enforce the constitution, he will do so—but he specifically applied this to the prohibition amendment, not to the fourteenth and fifteenth amendments. On the question of the fourteenth and fifteenth amndments his position is expressed in the figure of the dead Negro swinging by a rope at the door of the democratic convention that nominated him.

As for what Smith calls his "labor" plank, it commits Smith to absolutely nothing. His "labor" plank is for capital. His words in favor of "the principle of collective bargaining" do not commit the General Motors or the Du Pont de Nemours Powder Co. to agree to the unionization of their plants. Nor does anyone seriously imagine that Raskob, Woodin and Du Pont will even juggle with company unionism because of anything Smith says, or that the U. S. government will make them.

Smith, though he is said never to have read a book, must have grinned inside when he repeated Sam Gompers' idiotic phrase "labor is not a commodity," and it will not interfere with the Steel Trust's purchase of that commodity at the lowest starvation rate.

Smith declares for injunctions in labor disputes. He is for the use of injunctions; he merely "recognizes" "abuses" in the use of injunctions and is only against what the board of directors of General Motors would be disposed to class as "unwarranted" issuance of injunctions!

Smith's acceptance speech is the speech of John J. Raskob, the open-shop manufacturer, Pierre du Pont and their banker-friends.

Smith is obliged to scratch harder for votes because he is the man outside of office, and this affects his language. If he can persuade millions of discontented workers and farmers to vote for capitalism, he will be serving capitalism as well as any politician can.

Smith is equally as reactionary as Hoover or Coolidge.

A Signature Drive in Arizona

By FRANK R. LOGAN.

(The following story is an interes

(The following story is an interesting account of how three comrades—Saul, O'Brien, and Logan—toured the State of Arizona in a flivver to collect the necessary number of signatures to put the Workers (Communist) Party ticket on the ballot. Thhe job was accomplished, and then Comrade Logan sat down and sent in the following intriguing narrative.—Edtior.)

Phoenix, Arizona.—Comrade Saul arrived in Phoenix 11:30 p. m., August 3rd. He went to Comrade O'Brien's home, where he spent the night. The next morning Comrades O'Brien and Saul came to my room and pulled me from my bed, and in a very few minutes I was dressed and ready to go. After our breakfast, Comrade O'Brien went to work, leaving us with the understanding that he would get permission to join us at 12:30. Comrade Saul and I went to the State Capitol to get the required number of signers that we had to get from each county and to get a copy of the election laws. We then went to Comrade O'Brien's home and had dinner. Comrade O'Brien overhauled his flivver, after which we put some cots in, so we would have beds to sleep on.

At 8 o'clock we left Phoenix for Superior, which is 78 miles from Phoenix, and arrived there about 11:00. We got a small number of signatures Saturday night. After all of the people had left the streets, we decided that we should pitch our tents and lie down. Comrade Saul and I slept somewhat cold, not being used to the climate in the mountains. We left Superior for Miami, 21 miles distant. We reached Miami at 8 p. m. Sunday evening, and started to work. Everything looked very gloomy, as it seemed that it would be impossible to get the required number of signatures from Gila County (we thought 90 was the required number). We worked until 11 o'clock, and obtained only three signers. We all met at a certain place as per agreement, and then drove outside of town, where we had the use of a natural camp-ground.

"No Negroes Here."

After a good night's rest we awoke at 6:30 o'clock. We went for breakfast to a Greek cafe, where I was refused service at the table but was invited to the kitchen, because of my being a Negro. I rejected this offer, and we found a cafe a short distance away where we all had breakfast. We then started out to get the signatures, and although it seemed an impossible task, by about 2 o'clock we had the required number.

After lunch we left for Safford, which is in Graham County, 95 miles southeast. We arrived there at 10:30, got a number of signatures by 11 o'clock, and decided to call it a day. We were able to drive out a few blocks to accommodate ourselves with another natural camp-ground. Safford is a town of Mormons (hicks). We were up at six o'clock, and went for breakfast at a cafe operated by the so-called lily white A. By instruction I was told that I could not get service there because of my color, and I said that I was born here and not colored. Yet this lily white Caucasian refused through his little hick waitress, who doesn't know whether she lives on earth or exists on some unexplored planet. Nevertheless we found a cafe where all were served.

Get Signatures

Comrade O'Brien went to the County Hall to find out the required number of signatures to complete the list from Graham County. Comrade Saul and I went right ahead with getting signers. Everyone seemed to be somewhat indifferent, but we overcame all of the objections, one by one, until we got the required number. It was then about one o'clock, and we made our affidavits and ate lunch. We then (1:30 o'clock) went over and started the flivver for our next long drive of 185 miles to Tucson, which is in Pima County.

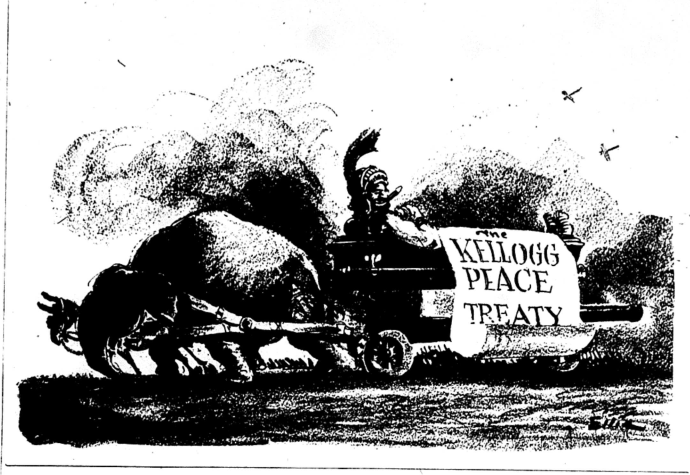
We had a hard job in front of us, but we never thought about the job as we went on. We just wanted to get to Tucson, so we would be able to get started. We arrived in Tucson at 9:00 o'clock, had supper ,and then worked until 11 o'clock. We went out to look for another free camp-ground, which we found. We slept a little longer the next morning, as we were very tired, but got up at seven, had breakfast, and went to Comrade McFadden and Lewe's home. They gave us their support by helping to get signers. Without their support it would have been almost impossible to get the required number of signatures. Also Comrade McFadden gave a donation of $11.50 to the cause. By about 9:30 p. m. we had the required number of signatures. Comrade McFadden got in touch with a notary, and by 11:30 p. m. we had our affidavits made.

After a short rest we left for Superior to get other affidavits made. After driving all night we reached Superior about 8:30 in the morning. We ate breakfast and then got busy and found an ex-I. W. W., who made the affidavits. We left for Phoenix, and arrived there at 3:30 p. m. We decided to file the papers the next day, which was the tenth. I went home, and Com. Saul spent the night with Com. O'Brien.

Friday morning, August 10th, we went to the capitol to file the papers with the secretary of state. When we got there, we found that the assistant secretary took care of these matters. As he was out, we had to wait for him about two hours. When he did come, he told us that we should go down and see the attorney general. The latter was out, and would return at 2:30. After eating our lunch we returned to the attorney general's office. Upon checking up, we found that we needed 38 more signers from Gila county. They were somewhat hostile toward us, but we knew the election laws and went right ahead.

"GOING TO HIS FUNERAL, BUT JUST FOR THE RIDE"

By Fred Ellis



For a New National Mine Union

Coal Diggers of All Districts Rally Forces for September 9 Convention

By JACK OBLAN.

The coal mines of the United States are the private property of some seven thousand companies. Of these about two thousand are affiliated nationally and control 75 per cent of the production. All these companies are like fish in a pond—the big ones eating up the smaller ones.

The production capacity is approximately double the market capacity. With the present low and ever falling wages, long hours and even worsening conditions of labor, the coal companies can produce over one thousand million tons a year. The market cannot consume more than 550 million tons.

The coal barons thus are always provided with a "reserve army," an army of unemployed miners, which they skillfully use to exert a terrific pressure on the miners at work and keep them at starvation wages. The miners exist under a condition of exploitation both degrading and humiliating.

Crazy Speed-Up.

The crazy speed-up is on the gallop. From 1916 to 1924 production of bituminous coal per man-hour increased 29 per cent.

Accidents and fatalities are increasing. The increase in the accident rate is even more rapid than the production rate. While the production increased 29 per cent the accident rate increased in the same period 38 per cent; 53 per cent of the accidents were due to collapse of roofs and in most cases were avoidable even according to capitalist engineers; 18.6 per cent due to mine car and locomotive accidents and 12.2 per cent due to electricity—nearly all these are avoidable. Almost all accidents occurred due to dastardly, criminal negligence and disregard of human life by the coal companies.

In the brief period between May 19 and 25, of this year, in only four coal mine disasters 230 men were killed, namely:

Mather Mine, Mather, Pa., May 19th, 195 killed.

No. 1 Mine, Yukon, W. Va., May 22, 17 killed.

No. 30 Mine, Kenvir, Ky., 8 killed.

No. 50 Mine, N. Wilkes-Barre, Pa., 10 killed.

Other Causes of Death.

The introduction of machinery further increases the hazards of human life in the mines. So, for instance, in the states of Alabama, Colorado, Indiana and Pennsylvania, with a low percentage of machine mined coal (62 per cent) fatalities were 4 in 1,000—bad enough! However, in the states of Virginia, West Virginia, Ohio and Kentucky where machine cut coal is high (84 per cent), fatalities rose to 7.2 to 1,000 men.

For the country as a whole, while fataliities due to haulage increased one-third, those caused by mining machines more than doubled.

"It is surely unnecessary to argue the point that the introduction of mechanical haulage increased the risk of injury to underground employees thru incident speed of movement and consequent less prompt control," is the admission of Harry L. Gandy, secretary of the National Bituminous Coal Mine Operators, in the May issue of the "Coal Mine Management."

Speed-up blessings! Dear child of the Greens and Lewises! Gandy further admits that "it is safe to say that it (the total effect of various forms of mechanization upon the risk of life.—J. C. O.) is very substantial" (boldface mine. J. C. O.).

Dastardly Record.

In the matter of killing off its producers the parasitic coal barons of the U. S. A. are the best racers on a world-scale.

During the five year period of 1921-1925 inclusive, average number of men killed per 1,000 on the basis of a 300 day year (record from capitalist sources), the following is a comparative table:

United States	4.87 men
Great Britain	1.13
Prussia	1.86
Belgium	1.00
France (to 1924)	0.97

The German socialists combined with their capitalists could not kill half as many workers as could the American coal barons combined with John L. Lewis' treacherous machine.

It must be remembered that the American mines are at the same time the most "advanced" from the point of view of machine production. So, for instance, in 1924, the following percentages of mines had cutting machines installed:

United States	69.5%
Germany, about	30%
Britain	19%

The U. S. mine barons hold the record in:

1. Mechanization of mines; alongside with it speed-up; intensification of production, and exploitation.

2. An ever increasing percentage of hazards—accidents and fatalities.

3. Seting free ever greater numbers of miners (installation of cutting and other machines "liberates" five miners out of every 6).

What makes the power of the coal barons so supreme? Untamed? What is their strategy in the present situation?

Source of Power.

They are so all-powerful because they have succeeded in paralyzing temporarily the great giant—the organized strength of the coal miners, the producers of coal. This they achieved thru planting their agents, tools within the ranks of the U. M. W. A.—the Lewis machine.

The coal barons have set up a bureaucratic machine of their own within the miners' ranks. This is the chief source of their strength. This Lewis clique has done the bosses an invaluable service by crippling the union and sapping it of its strength and vitality. The next step in the bosses' strategy is to use this Lewis clique as a lever with which to further break up the union into many more fragments, to further weaken, devitalize and demoralize every one of its parts, and, therefore, the union as a whole—and to thus lay the basis for a final smashing of the union.

That such is the mission of the present Lewis misleaders of the U. M. W. A. is testified by the capitalists themselves.

Proof of Treachery.

George J. Anderson, president of the "Consolidation Coal Co." at a banquet of coal operators at Pittsburgh in February sought to inspire them with fighting capacity against 200,000 striking miners. There must have been some "lame ducks" among the coal interests. So, upon request of John D., Rockefeller, Jr., he made a speech.

He stated that in his mines (thanks to Lewis' efforts—remember the 1922 strike in which Lewis against the protest of the union locals involved signed a separate agreement with the "Consolidation Coal Co." in W. Va., while the men employed by the same company in W. Pa. were still out), the union was smashed in 1924.

Comparing the last union year (1924) with 1927, the "Consolidated Coal Co." with practically the same number of men (7 per cent increase), increased production 66 per cent. The men were worked more than twice as many days a year (265 days, as against 131). They naturally worked longer hours, having no organized backing. Productivity was more intense. In Summerset County, Pennsylvania and in W. Virginia his company recently eliminated 2,500 workers, which constitutes 20 per cent of his force, thru machine installation. The workers were getting on the average $23 in 1924 and $29 in 1927, only 21 per cent increase in wages for probably treble the exploitation.

The "Consolidation Coal Co." owns the mine towns and so the cost of living rise surely took away the 21 per cent and more.

Mr. Anderson thus proved to his coal baron colleagues that it pays to break up the miners' union.

Praises Lewis.

Since these are his figures the actual condition is undoubtedly much worse. Drunk by his successes he proceeded to singing odes to Lewis.

Referring to the strike he said:

"On the operators' side they know that the present conflict is an 'industrial war which has lasted twice as long as the world war.' On the other side the miners have a great general. When the history of labor will be written, he will be recognized as one of the great labor leaders of our country.

"In the old days things were bad when the companies were compelled to sign with the men nationally. Lewis has taken a great step forward by permitting individual companies to sign."

Lewis stands branded as a most despicable, miserable, prostituted tool of the coal interests and with him his clique of flunkeys.

His present strategy of draining the U. M. W. A. of all its progressive, potent, militant, virile and honest elements is directly in line with the needs and wishes of the coal barons to further devitalize and demoralize, the disunited and shrinking union.

"Open Shop" is the program of the Mellon-Rockefeller-Schwab-Morgan and other big capitalist interests. "To smash the U. M. W. A." is their next step. John L. Lewis is the servile messenger boy to do this dirty job. Lewis, of course, does not think it time yet to go the way of his once bosom friend, Mr. Farrington. He still can be more useful to the coal operators.

However, the "Lewises must go" storm clouds are, the symbols and the left wing and progressive forces are the guarantee that Lewis and his whole pack of wolves will go.

Leadership of Left Wing.

In this whole messy and confused situation the national organized left wing forces are the healthy kernel giving the miners leadership and understanding in their struggles, and laying a base for re-building the union and not permitting its being smashed.

The September national convention of the miners is the only bright star on which are centered the hopes, not only of the entire miners, rank and file, but of the entire labor movement of the United States.

Down with the misleaders of labor!

All power to the progressive miners' forces!

On to the September 9 convention!

Since the beginning of 1927 mass arrests and executions have been taking place in Manchuria. The Japanese authorities have taken the finger prints of the Chinese railway workers along the whole of the South Manchurian railway line. In July, 1927, 48 Chinese Communists were arrested in Dairen because they had organized strikes in Japanese undertakings. In consequence of this Tong Ho-kao and many others were recently sentenced to death. In August a strike of 1,300 coolies took place in the mines of Pentchibu. The strike was drowned in blood by the Japanese troops.

Fight Reaction.

The movement against the reaction took on a mass character. In Mukden prices aro rising steadily and the Mukden paper assignats are steadily failing. At the beginning of this year the value of these assignats had fallen to one-fortieth of their nominal value. The lower officials are sabotaging, soldiers are deserting, police and teachers are striking, many factories have joined the strike wave.

In North China in the years 1927 and 1928 Chili and Shangtung were the first two provinces where the strike movement welled up.

Since the events in Tsinan the masses themselves have, despite the reprisals of the Kuomintang and the bloodhound Chiang Kai-shek, organized an anti-Japanese movement. This anti-Japanese movement is spreading in Tsinan, Tsingtau, Tientsin, Peking and also in Mukden.

Order is being maintained by Japanese troops alone.

At the same time the jealousy and competition between the powers is becoming more intense. Chang Tso-lin's former adviser, the Englishman, Simpson, had long been agitating for a resuscitation of the activity of British capital in North China where the revolutionary wave does as yet but little harm. In point of fact one can observe the beginnings of new activity on the part of the British in this direction. The United States is looking for new markets and Germany also is commencing to send its wares to North China and to Manchuria.

The Japanese imperialists are striving to conclude the work of building the railway lines, Shangtung-Girin-Kainei and Sypingai-Taunan-Tsitsikar. They would then like to lay their hands on the East China Railway and are preparing an attack upon the U. S. S. R. and its Primorskaya district.

V.

The military division of China is commencing. The Chinese national bourgeoisie has completely betrayed the national revolution. Whilst the Japanese troops were attacking the Southern army and bombarding Tsinan and the advance guard of the Southerners were putting up a desperate resistance to the Japanese, the commanders of the Japanese and the Chinese troops were shaking hands as a sign of "peace."

Only an immediate resuscitation of the international solidarity of the proletarian with the oppressed peoples can ward off the threatening catastrophe and prevent a bloody campaign against the Chinese people and the Chinese revolution.

The Chinese and Japanese proletarist already see the necessity of a common and joint struggle against Japanese imperialism and intervention in China and against the occupation of China by the Japanese militarists.

Told You So

NICHOLAS MURRAY BUTLER has burst into the limelight again with a bang. Nick is one of those fellows who needs no introduction, for where is the man with ears so deaf who has not heard of Columbia University? Because of his opposition to the prohibition of booze—not the prohibition of free speech on the campus—Butler is known among the irreverent as Nick the Bartender. He is a republican of considerable standing and his name has been frequently mentioned for the presidency. Nick is against the substitution of fusel oil for whiskey and a mixture of T. N. T. and ditchwater for beer. He is also against war with England and perhaps France, but not so that you notice it against war on Nicaragua.

NICK'S latest bid for public attention is a letter to the New York Times, in which he berates Hoover and the republican party for their evasive attitude on the Volstead act and Hoover's sponsoring of a navy that will command "respect." As a member of the Carnegie peace foundation, Nick objects to this. Now that Gene Tunney has disarmed and made an alliance with the Carnegie peace millions, there is no good reason why the United States should not turn its gun cotton into bathing suits.

REPUBLICANS say that Nick's blast against Hoover doesn't mean anything; the democrats say that it means much. Nick's next move will be to walk down Broadway arm in arm with John J. Raskob, who is busily engaged making the democratic party respectable. John will have nobody around him who is not worth at least a million. Democrats are going to be as scarce in the democratic party pretty soon as Negroes in the Ku Klux Klan.

JUST the same Nick pulled off a dirty trick on the Rev. Dr. John Roach Straton. Roach was having the time of his life, breaking into the front page daily, until Nick shoved him over into the want ad section. Now, it will take the discovery of a brewery in Calvary Baptist Church to win him back his rightful position in the news. Of course, our readers know something of the fit-throwing fundamentalist, but perhaps not all of them have heard of the recent purchase of a hotel by Roach for $50,000. And, shucks! What did a blackguardly reporter do but purchase a quart of whiskey in the place and invite Roach to have a snifter. Roach did not blame the devil, but he blamed Al. It was a dirty trick, anyhow.

BECAUSE the war department plundered a Washington dog pound for subjects on which to test a new brand of poison gas there is considerable indignation among the members of the Animal Rescue League and other humanitarian organizations. A deaconess of the House of Mercy had a friend who wanted a dog, her husband presumably being a congressman. The lady of mercy went to the dog-pound and picked a sadfaced little terrier. Her kindly nature took pity on him and she thot he would be just the kind of a little animal to counteract the atmosphere created by the other member of her friend's household.

BUT the deaconess was informed that before she could have the dog she must present the pound-keeper with papers signed by a notary public giving assurance that the animal would not be used for vivisection or otherwise subjected to cruel and unusual punishment. When the lady returned with the papers, fancy her embarrassment when she was informed that the war department ordered the terrier and the other dogs in the pound sent to Maryland, to be used in experiments with poisonous war gases. Perhaps the members of the Animal Rescue League are of the opinion that with so many unemployed around there is no necessity for the war department to pick on the dogs.

RIGHT on the heels of the Kellogg pact for the outlawry of war, comes news of the renewal of the entente cordials between England and France. Of course the Kellogg treaty is about as effective an instrument for the prevention of a war as the incantations of medicine man against the ravages of an epidemic of cholera morbus.

Interborough to Use Accident to Get 7-Cent Fare

Company Whitewashed

The sixteenth Times Square subway wreck victim died in Bellevue Hospital today and five of the other 110 injured were in a critical condition as three official investigations into Manhattan's worst underground traffic accident continued to make reports to the district attorney's office.

With the total of deaths as a result of the I. R. T. disaster on Friday mounting to 15, elaborate maneuvers have been begun by the Tammany city officials seeking to whitewash the Interborough of criminal responsibility for the accident and to shift the blame on the undermanned, miserably underpaid and overworked staff of the company.

The victim selected is William S. Baldwin, I. R. T. maintenance foreman. The chief tactician of Tammany Hall in its role of shielding the Interborough and its officials is District Attorney Banton, who has placed the blame on Baldwin. Actively co-operating with the District Attorney is the Tammany-controlled Transit Commission which is conducting an "investigation" into the accident. Saturday afternoon it issued its first report in which, without directly blaming Baldwin, it attributes the accident to "man failure." No word is said of the Interborough's responsibility.

The Transit Commission's "investigation," as well as the district attorney's quick action in whitewashing the company and blaming the worker are also seen as maneuvers intended to permit the Interborough to evade financial liability for the accident, thus defrauding victims and their relatives of any damages they might succeed in wringing from the I. R. T.

Howls in Horror Over New Fur Union

In a final despairing gesture, Matthew Woll, chairman of the American Federation of Labor committee in charge of the fight against the left wing and Communists in the needle trades unions, issued an appeal to all unions of the A. F. of L. to assist him in his fight against the left wing, which is fast regaining control of that industry.

YOUNG WORKER JAILED 9 TIMES

(Special to the Daily Worker)

KENOSHA, Wis., Aug. 26.—For the ninth time in the last two months, Samuel A. Herman, a member of the Young Workers (Communist) League, has been arrested by a boss-controlled police force of Kenosha.

Herman was speaking at an open-air meeting arranged by the Young Workers (Communist) League in front of the Nash Motor Company here during the noon hour. A crowd of over 400 workers were listening attentively as the league speaker exposed the republican, democratic and socialist parties as organizations opposed to the interests of the working class.

The speaker was in the midst of an appeal to the workers present, urging them to support the candidates of the Workers (Communist)

Taxi Drivers' Union Formed; Assail Abuses

The organization of a Taxi Chauffeurs Union with probable tie-up of all taxi traffic in New York city in the near future if the demands of the new organization are not complied with by the bosses, has been announced by the Union Organization Committee of the new union.

Speaking for the Taxi Chauffeurs Union Charles Kroll, secretary of the organization, declared that the drivers were determined that the time had come to put an end to the abuses by fleet owners and corporations.

A similar statement has been issued by the Organization Committee.

Abuses on the part of bosses and foremen in the taxicab garages, being compelled to drive cars in bad condition, often with faulty brakes, and police control of the Hack License Bureau are among the abuses cited by the committee in its statement.

In reference to the latter abuse, the announcement points to the discrimination to which it leads in the streets and courts.

Hackmen are frequently compelled to stand two trials once in court and again before the Hack Bureau, tho this is contrary to the American Constitution.

Members of the Organization Committee of the union declare that enthusiasm for the new union is in direct proportion to the resentment of the chauffeurs for the abuses which they have been forced to suffer in the past.

Widespread sympathy is reported and the committee believes that the growth of the union will be swift.

Kussinen Speaks at Red Congress

MOSCOW, U. S. S. R., Aug. 24.—At the fortieth session of the Sixth World Congress of the Communist International, which was devoted to the closing of the debate on the colonial question, Kussinen took up the criticism of the theses presented by Bukharin, point by point, concentrating his remarks especially on the criticisms made by the British delegation.

"I will deal first with the criticism of the theses," he declared. "I myself pointed to the insufficient treatment in the theses of the role of the colonial peasantry, but Heller's statement that this question is not treated at all is incorrect. The main idea of the theses is the independent role of the proletariat in the colonial revolution. The theses gave us the chief task of the Communist Parties in the colonies, independent political trade union organization of the proletariat.

"Losovsky's reproach that the dictatorship of the proletariat and peasantry is not sufficiently treated is unjustified," Kussinen continued.

To the theory of decolonization and industrialization, the speaker devoted most of his remaining remarks. The theses assumes a certain fostering of industrial development by imperialism in the colonies, for the capitalist exploitation of the colonies is not only robbery, but also a capitalist exploitation which is impossible without a certain development of production. Native capital is partly a by-product of imperialism, partly a by-product of the development of production. However, imperialism prevents greater development of colonial productive forces.

Sign Kellogg Imperialist War Pact Against USSR at Paris Today

SEE TREATY AS NEW MOVE FOR ANTI-USSR BLOC

Leading Imperialists Will Attend Confab

War Maneuver Is Seen

PARIS, Aug. 26.—Last minute arrangements for the pageant which the French government will attempt to make of the signing of the multilateral "peace" treaty here tomorrow were being hurried thru tonight.

The American secretary of state, Kellogg, spent the day in a round of ceremonial visits and has expressed himself as gratified. It is understood that he at first suffered from grave fears that the French workers would harry him with demonstrations.

No further progress is reported on the question of a discussion of the "peace" treaty by a representative of the Soviet Union.

Receipt of a communication from the Spanish government has also been announced. The Spanish communication states that the government regrets its omission from the signers of the multilateral pact tomorrow.

MEETS TO HIT KELLOGG PACT

3 Demonstrations in New York Today

The signing of the Kellogg peace pact in Paris today against the background of extensive military maneuvers and "sham" warfare now carried on by the imperialist powers of Europe will be the occasion for three demonstrations to be staged today by the New York branch of All-American Anti-Imperialist League, according to a statement issued by this organization at its headquarters, Room 536, 799 Broadway.

These demonstrations will take place at Wall St. and Nassau St. at noon; at Union Square, 5 p.m., and Columbus Circle at 8 p.m.

"As an instrument for outlawing war the Kellogg pact is both in intent and content but an empty gesture," the statement continued. "It is, however, an act of the most far-reaching significance since it is a maneuver on the part of the powers of the United States for preferred position in the realignment of the imperialist powers of the world in preparation for the next war."

The tremendous increase in appropriations for military operations as well as the exclusion of the Soviet Union from the ranks of signatories of this treaty, belied the intention of its offer from making it an instrument for a warless world.

The Anti-Imperialist League, under whose auspices the Wall street Independence Day demonstration in front of the offices of J. P. Morgan & Co. was staged, is planning an intensive campaign to expose the efforts of the imperialist powers to create a smoke screen for the preparations of the next war.

CANCER KILLS WORKERS

Highest Death Rate Among Workers

Continued investigation of the role which smoke and gas fumes play in connection with cancer, has brought to light the fact that workers living in the slums and workers employed in factories where light and heating facilities are deficient, make up, by far, the greatest number of deaths as a result of the fatal disease. Workers employed in mines, in smelting factories, at dockyards, railroad yards, and in open-air work in the midst of great industrial centers like Pittsburgh, are affected by the disease much more rapidly and seriously than those employed in other and lighter activities.

Although the statistics for many years back had shown that the death rate from cancer was highest among the workers and poor people living in the slums, no ac-

Bringing Up the Dead From New York's Latest Interborough Crash

The number of dead in the tragic subway disaster at Times Square, New York City, last Friday night has not yet been exactly ascertained. The number of victims mangled beyond recognition is huge and much time must be spent putting into some semblance of once living persons the parts of bodies which were found dozens of feet from the pillar which the crowded train leaped the rails. Above, one of the earliest removals at 41st St. and 7th Avenue.

THE U. S. S. R. AND THE KELLOGG PACT

Declaration of Foreign Commissar Tchicherin to the Press

George Chicherin, People's Commissar for Foreign Affairs of the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics, recently made the following statement to the press:

The so-called Kellogg Pact, or more correctly said the reciprocal agreement on the outlawing of war as a weapon of national policy has occupied the centre of general attention since December last. During this period there has taken place a lively exchange of opinion between the Powers regarding the drawing up of this pact; nevertheless they did not think of inviting the Soviet Union to take part in these discussions. Obviously the governments conducting and taking part in these negotiations must have in mind the question of inviting the Soviet Union to participate, and from their standpoint they have adequate reasons for refraining from doing so.

This circumstance can only serve to emphasize the real object of the conclusion of the so-called Kellogg Pact.

Weapon Against U. S. S. R.

The exclusion of the Soviet government from these negotiations leads us in the first place to the assumption that, among the real objects of the initiators of this pact there obviously was and is the endeavor to make of this pact a weapon for isloating and fighting against the Soviet Union. The negotiations regarding the conclusion of the Kellogg pact are obviously an integral part of the policy of encircling the Soviet Union which at this moment occupies the central point of the international relations of the whole world. I would remind you that our delegate Comrade Litvinov, on his return from the December meeting of the Preparatory Commission on Disarmament, gave in his report a short analysis of the Kellogg proposals regarding the conclusions of a pact and ably showed that the "outlawing of war as a weapon of national policy" is synonymous with preparing war as a weapon of international counter-revolution.

The real purpose of the Kellogg Pact is shown yet more plainly by the French reservations submitted to the American government in the Note of June 23, when sending the second editing of the Pact to the initiatory Powers. The American government had pointed out that the second editing had the object of giving expression to the French demands. In its reply to this Note the French government emphasized in a still more undisguised manner that the Kellogg Pact aimed at protecting the international relations which are laid down in treaties, which idea was also expressed, although in a less outspoken form, by the American government when sending the second editing of the Pact.

The French government sets up war aimed at the carrying out of national policy, against war which is to perpetuate the existing relations, laid down in treaties, of the interested nations. According to the view of the French government, in the first case the government in question acts of itself, independently of the existing relations to other states. The second case would mean that states would conduct a war to secure the existing relations laid down in treaties. For this very reason the treaties France has with Poland and Rumania belong to the totality of the general system of present day treaty relations, so that a war arising out of these treaties would not be a war as a weapon of national policy but a war to perpetuate the existing peaceful and friendly relations between the signatories of the Pact.

War Against Soviet Union.

When the American government, when sending the second editing of the Kellogg pact to the initiatory powers on June 23, pointed out that this second editing realized the French demands, it was not attempting to deceive. The Pact actually states that the states participating in the agreement renounce war as a national policy, in order to perpetuate the existing peaceful and friendly relations between their peoples. In its accompanying Note of June 23, the American government declares in detail that the Statute of the League of Nations, as also the Locarno agreement and the agreements between France and a number of powers are included in the relations mentioned in the Kellogg Pact. This clearly shows that the Kellogg pact is an integral part of the war preparations against the Soviet Union.

The same also applies to the English reservations, according to which the defense of a number of areas in various parts of the earth is necessary in order to secure the British empire, and for which reason Great Britain joins in the Kellogg Pact only on condition that this fact is expressly stated and that it retains freedom of action regarding the defense of these areas.

In its Note of June 23, the American government refers to the answers of the English and the French governments, and points out that none of the reservations made by the one or the other government contradicts the second editing of the Pact. The American government, moreover, asserts that the Pact fully secures the lawful interests of all parties participating in it. The American government goes still farther and declares that any nation, at any moment regardless of the provisions of the treaties, has the right to decide whether circumstances call for it to resort to war as a means of lawful defense, and that the whole world will applaud when the nation in question fights for a good cause.

None of the initiatory powers of the Pact has raised any objection to this clear formulation of the sense of this Pact. None of these Powers has opposed it. In my opinion it must be clear to everybody that the point of this whole diplomatic action of the leading world Powers is directed against the Soviet Union.

Soviet Union Excluded.

Recently some new facts in international relations have come to be added to the Kellogg Pact. A considerable portion of the German press is conducting a campaign for the inclusion of the Soviet Union in the Pact. Some English Liberal newspapers, as the "Daily News" and some French Left papers, as well as a part of the American press, have begun to speak in the same tone. That part of public opinion finding expression in these newspapers has raised the question whether it is not possible for the Soviet Union to participate in the Kellogg Pact and whether the Soviet Union has been invited to participate.

I must reply to this question by declaring that it is not yet too late for this. The Pact has not yet been signed. Negotiations regarding its content can still take place with the Soviet Union. Although the so-called original signatories of the Pact have already come to an agreement among themselves, they would have full possibility, if they wished to make the Pact something else than a weapon in the preparation of war against the Soviet Union, to enter into negotiations with the Soviet government. Their inclination or disinclination to conduct negotiations with the Soviet government on this question will serve to prove what their actual aim is—peace or the preparation for war. I can declare that our government is prepared to take part in these negotiations. The issue will depend upon the content of these negotiations. But the Soviet government is of the opinion that the possibility of it, too, signing the Kellogg Pact is not excluded.

Up to the present our government has not received an invitation to take part in these negotiations nor the text of the agreement itself, nor even the proposals and reservations to the project made by the other Powers. Only if we are served with the official Notes can we take part in these negotiations and in the event of favorable conditions, also sign the Pact.

Soviet Union's Anti-War Policy.

It is one of the fundamental aims of the Soviet Union to put an end to war. Our government directs its whole policy towards abolishing the possibility of any war. Whatever the objective results

REAL WAGES FAR ABOVE PRE-WAR LEVEL; BIG GAIN IS MADE IN AGRICULTURE

World Congress of Communist International Hears Varga's Report

Rapidly Improving Conditions of Peasantry Is Also Pointed Out

MOSCOW, Aug. 26.—"With real wages in the Soviet Union 134 per cent of the pre-war level, with all industries except the iron and steel long past the pre-war level, and agriculture developing more quickly than in all capitalist countries, the economic condition in the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics has clearly proved the socialist system far superior to that of capitalism."

This, and the fact that industry in the Soviet Union is 81 per cent socialized, was revealed in a statement by E. Varga in a report to the forty-first session of the World Congress of the Communist International, now in progress in Moscow.

Other highlights of the report show the Soviet state and cooperatives now control 81 per cent of industry in the U. S. S. R.; that the kulaks, or rich peasantry, control only 12 per cent of the harvest and represent no real danger to the poor peasants, and that the five-year plan provides for a 14 per cent increase in production; an increase in agriculture of from 30 to 40 per cent, and an increase of fifty per cent in real wages. The text of Varga's report follows:

The economic situation in the Soviet Union and the existence of the U. S. S. R. has proven the existence of capitalism unnecessary. Industry, with the exception of iron and steel is long past the pre-war level. Since 1921 agriculture has been developing faster than elsewhere, as also industry.

Better Standards.

The capitalist states took great loans in order to carry out reconstruction, but the Soviet Union managed practically from its own forces. The U. S. S. R. accumulated, not including the peasantry, thirteen milliards of gold roubles. The standard of the life of the toilers has considerably increased.

The yearly population increase totals three millions. Mortality is rapidly decreasing. Cholera has been wiped out, typhus and tuberculosis greatly diminished. There is a tremendous cultural development on the part of the former oppressed nationalities.

Soviet Union industry is divided into socialist and private. The former is growing much quicker than the latter.

The socialist share of the industry is eighty-one per cent. The cooperatives are growing rapidly. Production and the means of production are growing more rapidly than is normal in industry. Real wages are 134 per cent of the pre-war level.

The situation of the peasantry is considerably improved. The capitalist contention that the workers are living at the expense of the peasants is a lie. The Kulaks control only twelve per cent of the harvest and represent no serious danger. The poor peasant is the ally of the proletariat, the middle peasant hesitant. The Kulak is hostile, but without the middle peasant not a powerful factor. Despite the plan of economy difficulties exist. There is an essential difference between the U. S. S. R. crises and capitalist crises. The richer capitalism is, the more crises, the richer the U. S. S. R., the fewer crises.

Capitalist unemployment is caused by a superfluity of means of pro-

COLLECTIONS TO BE CONTINUED ANOTHER WEEK

Police Threats Fail to Halt the Plans of Communist Drive

Because she demanded the return of the Workers Party campaign fund collection box full of coins which the police had confiscated, Jennie Kliedman had her suspended sentence recalled and was ordered held for trial today by Magistrate Flood in West Side Court.

Continuing the threats of the Department of Public Welfare against workers collecting for the Red Election Campaign Fund, James W. Kelly, deputy commissioner of the department, has issued a statement "explaining" the action of Commissioner Bird S. Coler, who previously had denounced the drive and incited the police to take a hand.

Simultaneously the Workers (Communist) Party has announced that despite police persecution the drive would be continued throughout the week of August 27. It was originally scheduled to be held only from Aug. 20 to 25. In a statement issued last night explaining this move, John J. Ballam, acting district organizer, declares:

"The returns thus far from collectors who have gone out among the workers in behalf of the Red Election Campaign Fund indicates that there is a tremendously favorable sentiment for our party at this time. This favorable sentiment must be tapped and utilized to the fullest extent.

Difficulties.

"Certain objective difficulties have arisen, which have prevented us from capitalizing sufficiently in the Red Week arranged for August 20 to 25. The postponement of the Sacco-Vanzetti demonstration has

Negro Workers Cheer Moore, Padmore at Big Labor Congress Meeting in Brooklyn

SPEAKERS URGE ALL TO SUPPORT WORKERS PARTY

"Only Freedom Lies in Class Organization"

Warning against the spread north of Southern institutions prejudicial to the Negro masses and pointing out that the only hope of the Negro is to organize as workers and strengthen their power by alliance with those sections of the exploited white workers who are class-conscious and ready for such an alliance, leaders of the American Negro Labor Congress received tremendous ovations from a large crowd of Negro workers who turned out Friday night for the organization's mass meeting at Boyles Mem. M. E. Zion Church, Gates Ave. and Irving Pl., Brooklyn.

"You can talk until doomsday about freedom," Richard B. Moore, National Organizer of the A. N. L. C. told the meeting, "you can talk until doomsday about emancipation, but unless you organize the only class which has the power and the will to struggle for emancipation, your talk is useless.

Organize Labor Power.

"Not until the Negro masses organize their labor power and unite with other oppressed groups and classes will we win our freedom. The only hope of the Negro is to organize as workers and strengthen their power with an alliance with the class-conscious white workers of America and the white, brown and yellow workers of the world."

Describing the American Negro Labor Congress as the basic Negro organization, fighting for better wages, better conditions of labor, equal pay for equal work, and against all inequalities, political, social or economic, the A. N. L. C. National Organizer warned the audience that there were two groups of white workers: those who still had the ideology of the bosses and aided the bosses in practising discrimination against colored workers, and those who had learned in the school of revolutionary activity that the interests of all workers, black, white and brown, were identical and were ready to make common cause with all sections of the working-class. "The American Negro Labor Congress is organized to smash the barriers raised in the trade unions by the first group and to force equal pay for equal work, equal opportunity for employment and equal representation in the unions," Moore said.

Henry Rosemond, secretary of the Haitian Patriotic Union and a member of long standing in the American Negro Labor Congress, urged upon the meeting the necessity of a militant organization such as this and called upon those present to show their sympathy with its aims and program not merely by applause but by becoming active members and helping to build up the Brooklyn Council of the American Negro Labor Congress.

Grace Campbell, chairman of the Harlem Educational Forum, gave a brief and interesting outline of working conditions among Negro women in the needle trades and other industries. She emphasized the necessity of these workers joining the unions in their industries.

Raps Old Political Parties.

Ripping the mask of false friendship from the Republican Party and showing it up in its true colors as a party dominated by financiers and employers whose exploiting interests were necessarily opposed to the interests of the exploited black and white workers, and further reminding his hearers of the traditional enmity of the Democratic Party, George Padmore called upon the Negro workers to vote for the party which by its working-class program and its outspoken, fearless advocacy of the interests of the Negro workers had shown itself the true friend of the Negro, the Workers (Communist) Party. He severely castigated Judge Atwell for his prejudiced remarks in a recent case before him, and warned that "Atwell is not individual. There are scores of Atwells come up from the South and trying to introduce Southern prejudice and Southern institutions in the North. We must meet this growing menace by eternal vigilance and effective working-class organization." Referring to the agitation for Africa for the Africans, Padmore told the meeting that "unless we are sufficiently organized, economically and politically, we will not be able to help our African brothers when they, taking courage from the heroic revolution of the Chinese masses, launch the inevitable revolution against capitalist-imperialist domination and exploitation."

LENINGRAD, Aug. 26.—Anna Bistrova, an Esthonian woman, has confessed to the Soviet authorities that she was engaged in organized espionage in Soviet territory since 1924.

She revealed a wide organization of which she was a part, according to an official announcement, and eleven other arrests were made on the basis of her confession. Most of those held were Russians.

At the same time 30 other persons were jailed on various charges in connection with alleged Esthonian-Latvian military and espionage in the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics.

DOCTORS LEFT MINE STRIKER'S BABY TO DIE; HE COULD NOT PAY CASH

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Aug. 26.—Anthony Yelich tells a story of years of intense struggle, in the fight for a living wage and safer working conditions in the mines. Yelich is living in the Lilly Patch now, on the bank of a rising swamp, dark with filth. The stench caused by lack of sewage arrangements is so strong that the families of the patch find it difficult to sleep at night. Operations at the Lilly mine have not been resumed since the beginning of the strike some sixteen months ago, and there is practically no other work available for the men in a radius of many miles.

Both Tony and his wife are young. They have two children, four-year-old Tony and the baby, Rose. A third child died at birth. Little Tony was a "strike" baby, born out-of-doors, because his parents were evicted back in the 1924 strike.

Ten-months-old Rose is a "strike" baby, too. She is a tiny, yellow, shrunken infant, and looks much younger than she really is. When she developed convulsions one evening last week Yelich went first to one doctor, then to another and another, appealing for help. But Yelich had no money to pay in advance, and the doctors would not come. The fifth doctor finally agreed to come.

"We thought the baby would die sure, she was so bad," Yelich said, when he came to the National Miners Relief Committee headquarters for relief for the Lilly Patch. "But the doctors wouldn't come, because I didn't have any money. I was near crazy by the time I got to Dr. Houston over at Vesta Six he came. It's a hard life."

The Yelich family, like their many neighbors, have received no relief from the union during the past six months. Only the supplies sent by the National Miners Relief Committee kept the patch from being wiped out by famine. The baby has had no fresh milk in many months. The precious canned milk sent by the relief committee is mixed with water and sustains life in her shrunken little body, as it does for hundreds of other babies.

Young Mrs. Yelich is very ill, too. Stomach trouble, she says, brought on when she was feeding the baby. She had little or nothing to eat, herself. This acute form of stomach trouble is very common among recent mothers in the mining camps.

Because it is almost impossible for the relief committee to fill adequately the most fundamental needs, such as flour to bake bread with, it has been unable to take care of more than a fraction of the urgent appeals for medical help. Confinement cases, especially, are a great problem. Special appeals to workers everywhere are being broadcasted from the Pittsburgh office, 611 Penn Ave., Pittsburgh, Pa., asking for financial assistance to meet this vital need.

Rifts Widen Between Nanking War-lords as Pai and Yen Contend

PEKING, Aug. 26.—Rifts between the Nanking generals are slowly but surely widening, the open opposition between General Yen Hsi-shan and General Pai Chun-hsi being particularly prominent now.

Pai Chung-hsi enjoys the patronage of Chiang Kai-shek and it is alleged feels safe in flouting the orders of Yen Hsi-shen, who is his immediate superior.

Backed by an army of 120,000 men, Pai is doing his utmost to establish his position as a contending war-lord until such a time as it is supposed he will feel sufficiently strong to declare himself independent.

De Rivera Program to Provide for Harsher Laws Against Labor

MADRID, Spain, Aug. 26.—General Primo de Rivera, has announced to the Union Patriotica, the only political party legalized under his dictatorship, that the anniversary of his accession to office will be the occasion for the proclamation of a new administrative program.

The program will launch an attack upon leaders and organizations who have opposed the government and have urged the workers to protest against their oppression by the present regime.

POLICE ATTACK SACCO MEETING

Arrest 13 at Rockford Memorial

ROCKFORD, Ill., (By Mail).—Continuing their drive against the Young Workers (Communist) League, police broke up a Sacco-Vanzetti memorial meeting held here Wednesday evening under the auspices of the League.

A large crowd of workers had gathered at the meeting, which was held at Broadway and Eighth Sts.

As the first speaker, Max Appleman, launched into an explanation of the class justice which brought about the execution of Sacco and Vanzetti, a squad of policemen and plain clothes men surrounded the meeting. The speaker was immediately pulled down and many other League members, who were identified by plain clothes men, were also lined up. Thirteen in all were arrested.

They were then marched in a body down the main street of Rockford to the police sub-station. Marching down the street, the sang the International and the Red Flag.

Upon arrival at the city jail they were questioned, and Max Appleman was charged with speaking without a permit, while Zip Khoehis was charged with distributing leaflets. The other 11 workers, after a warning from the chief of police, were released.

WAITERS' UNION ENDS STRIKES

Settlement Permits Discrimination

Strikes involving five restaurants, with over forty waiters and waitresses, have been announced today as "settled" by Louis Rifkin, president of Local 1, Waiters and Waitresses, American Federation of Labor. The restaurants included the three Trufood chain places, on 39th, 40th and 44th Sts.; the Elkwood, 149th St. and Third Ave., and Stempler's Exchange Bakery and Restaurant on 21st St., on strike for the past three years.

The latter place is notorious because of the long court fight of the bosses to secure an injunction against picketing. When the judge refused to grant an injunction, it was hailed by the American Federation of Labor as a great victory.

At Thursday's meeting of Local 1, however, a proposal to hold a "legal celebration," at which some New York judges and lawyers were to be guests of honor, along with members of the New York Restaurant Owners' Association, union officials, and, incidentally, a few strikers and union members, was voted down by the membership. No celebration of any kind will be held until a committee of five from the union membership has reported back to the union after a conference with the official strike committee. And, if a "celebration" is then decided on, a big fight is expected over the question as to whether judges, lawyers and bosses are allowed to join, according to statements of the rank and file.

In the meantime, much dissatisfaction is expressed by the strikers because two of the leaders were discriminated against in the Trufood settlement; one being taken back to work only after all the others refused to return without him. The question of the second being taken back is still undecided. Union officials refused to put up a fight for better conditions for a cook, who walked out in sympathy with the waiters; nor was any fight made for the reinstatement, with better conditions, of two "bus" boys who also joined the strikers. The new "union" contract is unsatisfactory in other respects; it allows for fewer men on the job and their replacement by women at longer hours and lower wages; also, some of those who scabbed despite the picket line still retain their jobs, though provision is made that they be laid off gradually.

BOSSES DEMAND TAILORS' SCALPS

Get Opportunity Thru Yellow Officials

Another conference between the employers and the right wing officials of the Ladies Tailors' Local 38 will be held today. The approaching expiration of the present agreement was used by the bosses as an opportunity to present a series of drastic demands for lowering the conditions of the union members, due to the fact that the union was weakened by the right wing clique now in power here and in the International. A statement was issued to the press by the left wing workers in that organization that states in part:

"The demoralization of the ladies' tailoring trade and also in Local 38, due to the policy of the right wing clique now in power, was brought to such a point that when the agreement is about to expire the employers have the audacity to put up demands to the union which, if accepted, would destroy the conditions that the workers have won after twenty years' struggle.

"It is clear that if the clique in the International had not created this situation in the union, the employers would not have dared to put up such demands to the local.

"At the membership meeting held Thursday night, August 23, at the Central Opera House, 67th St. and Third Ave., the agreement that the Couturier Association presented to Local 38 was read. This agreement was unanimously rejected.

"The reading of the impossible demands of the employers caused many members of Local 38 to stand up and demand that the general membership meeting elect two additional members to the Conference Committee that was appointed by the Executive Board of Local 38, in view of the struggle that the local will have to wage. This justifiable demand was rejected by the right wing chairman."

Workers Urged to Aid Communist Campaign

interfered with the meetings of many party units, and a number of comrades have therefore not received their boxes or shop collection lists. An added difficulty was the rainy weather which persisted throughout the week and also retarded collections.

"We have, therefore, decided to extend the collection period throughout the week of August 27, to give every comrade an opportunity to secure his quota of contributions to the party's campaign fund. We have assigned a quota of not less than five dollars, which must be raised by each comrade either through a collection list or a box, toward the party's campaign fund.

Coler's Attack.

"The extreme political importance of this drive is indicated by the fact that Bird S. Coler, Tammany Commissioner of Public Welfare, has seen fit to come out in the capitalist press openly denouncing the drive, in an attempt to demoralize the workers and frighten them from contributing to the Communist Campaign Fund. The results thus far have shown that this dastardly move on the part of Tammany Hall has had the opposite effect, and contributions have been prompt and generous.

"All comrades are therefore instructed to secure a box or a list, to utilize this week to complete their quota and to roll up a fitting answer to Bird S. Coler and his Wall Street masters in Tammany Hall."

of wars may be in the future it is the chief aim of the policy of our government to prevent any war. Among other wars we likewise strive to exclude also those which serve as a weapon of national policy. Our government, therefore, fully agrees that everything must be done in order to exclude the possibility of wars which serve national and imperialist policy as a weapon, but it regards the intended prohibition of these wars as insufficient. Our press has contributed a great deal towards making clear the real meaning of the Kellogg Pact. The criticism of the Kellogg Pact in our newspapers is necessary; in the event of our participation in these negotiations we would also propose alterations in this Pact which are necessary from our point of view.

No Disarmament in Pact.

Our government declares that the Pact, which is in itself already inadequate, is rendered of still less value by the reservations made by England and France, which give every party to the Pact the right to interpret it in the spirit of its own national or imperialist policy. Our government particularly points out that the Kellogg Pact loses value above all owing to the fact that it is not accompanied by any undertaking in regard to the question of disarmament.

The chief aim of the international policy of the Soviet Union is to preserve peace. The proposal of our government regarding disarmament is a plain authentication of this policy. Our government cannot neglect to make use of the American Pact proposal in order to proceed farther on the way of struggle for the preservation of general peace. But we fully realize that the attitude that the most influential portion of the press of Great Britain, France and of the United States is adopting in this question leaves us but little hope of the possibility of participating in the negotiations.

YOUNG TEXTILE STRIKERS MEET

Fall River Cops Stop Relief Meeting

(Special to the Daily Worker)

FALL RIVER, Mass., Aug. 26.—Anton Sousa, eighteen-year-old picket leader of the Fall River textile strikers, who was sentenced to six months in jail for his strike activities, was released when the International Labor Defense provided $2,200 in bail bonds. He promptly went to act as one of the speakers at a mass meeting of young mill workers called by the youth section of the Textile Mill Committees on Liberty Lot.

Joe Tarvis, another youthful strike leader, Jack Rubinstein, Bill Sroka, James Ried and Sousa spoke at the meeting.

After Ried had delivered a speech in which he urged the young workers to stand behind the union in its fight for improvement of the conditions of all workers, he received the pledges of the young strike leaders that the youth will not only support the struggle but continue to play a leading role in conducting and spreading the anti-wage-cut fight.

Police here stopped a mass meeting of the Workers' International Relief by lining up a large squad of patrolmen outside the hall rented by the strike aid organization, and thereby intimidating the hall owners who then refused to abide by their contract.

MORE CLERICALS IN OBREGON CASE

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 26.—Further statements of the police indicate that many more clericals are involved in the plot that succeeded in killing General Obregon and in an additional plot to kill President Calles.

Other details besides those contained in the previous statement have not been revealed, but as the investigation continues, the police state that others have been implicated, among them those who were the authors of the Celaya plot to poison Obregon and Calles.

In the meantime Toral, Mother Concepcion and the other clericals held have been transferred to Mexico City, where the investigation will continue.

Ask McMillan to Aid Hassel Search

CHICAGO, Aug. 26. (UP).—Capt. Donald B. McMillan has been asked by the Field Museum here to give all possible assistance to agencies searching for Bert Hassell and Parker Cramer, missing Rockford, Ill., fliers.

Captain McMillan, who is leader of the museum's Rawson-McMillan Arctic Expedition, was messaged by museum officials after receipt of a telegram from Clarence M. Young, Director of Aeronautics of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, suggesting that the expedition's ships might be invaluable in the search.

It is believed the expedition has sailed from Nain, Labrador, on its return voyage.

NEEDLE WORKERS HOLD RED RALLY

To Endorse Communist Election Candidates

Workers in all crafts of the needle trades industry will gather Wednesday evening at a mass meeting in Irving Plaza Hall, 15th St. and Irving Pl. to endorse the candidates of the Workers (Communist) Party in the coming presidential elections. The meeting will be held immediately after work. Ben Gitlow, Communist candidate for the vice-presidency, will be the chief speaker.

The mass meeting is the result of the enthusiastic response from many thousands of needle trades workers to the recently published "Statement to Needle Trades Workers," issued by the National Committee of the Needle Trades Section of the Trade Union Educational League. This statement had called upon these workers to support the Communist candidates after pointing out that the "socialist" officialdom of the right wing unions had made an alliance with Tammany Hall Al Smith and the bosses to disrupt their organizations and destroy their union working standards.

All leaders of the left wing garment unions will speak at the meetings. They include Ben Gold, furrier leader; Charles S. Zimmerman, of the Cloakmaker's Union; H. Sazer, capmakers; Gladys Schechter, of the Millinery Union; S. Lipin, tailor; M. Yusim of the Young Workers League, and M. Ziebel, milliner. Rose Wortis, leader of the dressmakers will act as chairman.

According to the Needle Trades National Committee, which is the official sponsor of the meeting, a committee of 50 needle trades workers will be elected at the meeting to organize a campaign for mass support to the Party candidates among the masses of workers in the clothing industry.

MORE WORKERS ARE OUT OF JOBS

Official Report Shows Jobless Increase

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26 (UP).—Favorable reports on the general industrial and business situation came from the Federal Reserve Board tonight while the American Federation of Labor noted a slight increase in the number of unemployed during July.

The Reserve Board survey showed industrial and trade activity on a larger volume in July than is usual in midsummer with the general level of commodity prices advanced slightly.

A survey of 24 cities made by the American Federationist revealed a one per cent increase in the number of organized wage earners out of work. Preliminary figures for August show but a slight change over the July situation.

"Production of manufactures and minerals showed a smaller decrease than is usual in July," the Federal Board reported, "and the index of industrial production, which made allowance for seasonal variations, advanced."

NICE, France, Aug. 26.—The Italian consul at Nice, Marquis di Muro, was wounded today by a gunshot fired from behind the iron grill of the consulate garden.

Atlhough the man who attempted the assassination was not seen, police here claim that they have evidence that will involve a number of anti-fascists.

U. S. S. R.-BRITISH WOODWORKERS IN UNITY PROGRAM

Promise Mutu . Aid; to Fight War

MOSCOW, U. S. S. R. (By Mail).—A further step towards the solidarity of the international working class and towards mutual assistance in time of conflict was taken by the woodworkers' unions of the Soviet Union and of Britain when both organizations ratified their agreement for the formation of an Anglo-Russian Woodworkers Committee.

The chief task of this committee is to render mutual, moral and material support in strikes and lockouts. The participants in the committee also undertake to fight energetically against international strikebreaking and against the reformist slogan of class peace in industry.

The political significance of the unity committee is further evidenced by its agreement to work for the prevention of the disruptive tactics of the imperialists and for the prevention of imperialist war.

The initiatory conference of the new Anglo-Russian Committee will take place in autumn when a program of action will be worked out and the practical tasks of the committee set.

ers Union, which is "international" in name only, since every important local of that organization has already affiliated to the new furriers' union recently established, Matthew outdid himself in the drawing up of ridiculous appeals.

"A direct challenge," says Woll in the declaration, "has just been issued by the Communist Party of Moscow to the A. F. of L." He then cries loudly about the new unions recently launched in the needle trades, textile and mining industry.

Although the statement is primarily supposed to be a broadside against the fur workers and the union they are building, Woll says very little that is specific about that organization. This is explainable when it is remembered that the new union was launched at the recent mass meeting with nearly every fur manufacturing and fur dressing local already affiliated and split off from the reactionary A. F. of L. skeleton organization.

However, he warns all furriers to keep away from the meetings called by the "reds."

With $18,000,000 in Munitions for Albania, Italy Prepares Balkan War

FASCISTS TURN MOUNTAIN STATE TO ARMED CAMP

Huge Force of Slaves Toils for Rome

VIENNA, Aug. 26.—Behind the move to proclaim Achmed Zogu king of Albania lies a whole network of Italian intrigue backed by a constant flow of rifles, machine guns and other materials of war from the peninsula to the smaller Balkan State, reports from Tirana reveal.

Accounts which would tend to show that the Italian ramification of all activities in Albania is greater by far than even the wariest of her foreign neighbors dreams have been leaking from that country within the last few days.

Eighteen million dollars worth of ammunition, rifles and artillery is said to be a conservative estimate of the war material which Italy has shipped to Albania in the past 18 months. War equipment to maintain an army of 300,000 men in the field is also reported as part of a plan by which it is believed the Italians hope to consolidate their interests in the Balkan peninsula.

Plans for building the Albanian army to a force of 100,000, in a nation of 800,000, are also contemplated by Rome and Achmed Zogu. Recruits are constantly being called into service and reservists called back for training.

Formerly it is alleged that Italian ships from such Adriatic ports as Brindisi and Bari, loaded to capacity with arms and ammunition, used to discharge their explosive cargo under cover of night in Albanian ports. Such materials are now being openly brought into the countr[illegible] they are carried off by fle[illegible]talian motor trucks waiting for them at the wharves. The materials are apparently stored with a view to present use against the Jugo-Slavs.

It is said that if the Albanian treasury were called upon to pay for a fraction of the war materials which have been imported in the last year and a half that the country would be bankrupt.

Scores of Italian army officers are meanwhile training the Albanian army and have been officially placed in command of Albanian regiments. All of the more important strategic positions are commanded by Italians, it is said.

Under the direction of the Italians, armies of Mohammetan laborers carry out the plans which are made in Rome and accepted in Tirana. These labor forces, living like animals on the slim proceeds of what is virtually forced labor, are said to be housed around the powder magazines, of whose contents they are kept in ignorance. The Italians are taking no chances with labor troubles.

Meanwhile fresh corps of officers and new shiploads of ammunition are constantly arriving from Italy.

she was deliberately ignored by the officials of the organization, it is reported, and left the hall after a few minutes' talk with some former friends. One of the local I. W. W. officials, one Clarke, made it clear to her that her presence was not desired.

It is known that the hostility of the local officials of the I. W. W. was due to the fact that Eugene Barnett and others of the Centralia prisoners have insisted that the movement for their release be not based on the narrow, sectarian conception of some of the I. W. W. spokesmen, but be placed on the broad and effective basis of the inclusion of such organizations as International Labor Defense and other labor bodies.

Such an attitude on the part of some of the I. W. W. officials, it is declared here, is not aiding but hampering the campaign for the release of the eight men which is gathering momentum and weight throughout the northwest.

WORKERS CANCER DEATH RATE HIGH

tion at all had been taken by the health departments in any city of the United States to publish these statistics or to attempt to remedy the situation. It was only recently, when private investigation forced the news of the cancer danger on the front pages of several newspapers, that the health department finally decided to "investigate" and "study" the problem.

This study, which has just been published by the department of health, timidly suggests that "cancer may be caused by constant exposure to smoke and fumes."

Mangled Bodies, Shapeless Steel, Price of the I. R. T. Greed

It is estimated that 2,000 men and women returning from work were aboard the I.R.T. train which jumped an open switch at Times Square last Friday night. Wedged tightly into the cars they had no chance to escape when the final disaster came. The picture shows workers rescuing bodies harpooned among the ribbons and blades of twisted steel wreckage.

INDUSTRIAL OCTOPUS

The Organization of the Auto Workers

(This is the final article in the series on "Automobile—Symbol of the Modern Slavery." What methods and strategy shall be used in the work or organizing this important branch of industry? What is the part which the Communists and the Workers (Communist) Party will play in this task?)

By BEN LIFSCHITZ

Generally speaking those workers who are exploited to a greater degree, the unskilled and lower grade of semi-skilled, are the easiest to reach, and are the first to respond in times of crisis.

However, this general correct principle must be applied in a real Leninist way. We must know the specific situation in the automobile industry. We must utilize the sharp dissatisfaction prevalent among the skilled crafts in the industry. The skilled crafts, the tool and die makers, at the present time earn between 85 cents and $1.10 an hour, which means that on the average makes little more than some workers in the production department. It is true they do not work so hard but the skilled worker in the metal industry always feels that he is not being paid sufficiently especially when he compares the wages he is getting to the wages of the skilled workers in the organized building trades.

Need to Study Conditions.

It is a known fact in the metal industry that in times of great strikes, such as 1917 and 1919 it was the tool makers who were the backbone of the movement. We must also pay special attention to those crafts where the work is particularly hard on the workers. The oil tenders and some of the workers of other crafts are worked so hard that it is not always easy for the company to get men to work on these jobs. We must, therefore, concentrate on these crafts using them as starting points, as a wedge to reach the other crafts. We must also bear in mind that some of the unskilled and semi-skilled are very much afraid to lose their jobs because it is much harder for them to find another job than it is for workers of the skilled crafts engaged in the key production positions.

Language Groups and Their Importance.

In Detroit and other automobile centers, there are scores of auxiliary organizations, such as fraternal societies, cooperatives, athletic clubs, dramatic societies and the like which offer splendid opportunities for doing organization work. These organizations are composed almost entirely of automobile workers, principally foreign born, and chiefly of Slavic origin. The workers in these organizations suffering from all the grievances that automobile workers suffer generally, are responsive to our organization and propaganda program. Their fraternal and other organizations offer us good opportunities for mass contact. They provide the means for extensive organization work which can be carried on under some measure of protection from the employers attacks. We must utilize this field to the utmost.

We must carry on an aggressive campaign in these proletarian organizations. Active propaganda must be carried on for the popularization of the workers demands and the exposure of the hard conditions in the industry. These organizations must be utilized for contacts to build the shop committees and for recruiting union members.

Build Shop Committees.

We must understand that to organize a union under the present conditions in the automobile industry is a most complicated problem. The industrial plutocrats will not allow any form of workers organization in their shops. They realize that no matter what form the workers' organizations may take in their shops, they can, especially when led by Communists, become effective organs of class struggle.

The spy system in the automobile industry is as thoro as it is in the steel industry. Not only do they have an industrial spy system in the plants but they use a system whereby they get "suckers" to spy for them in the company towns.

In Flint, Pontiac and all the other company controlled towns, the companies own the whole city government from the Justice of the Peace, to the mayor. In addition to this, all the real estate companies in these company towns are owned and controlled by the General Motors.

The companies have thus worked out a system whereby they kill the organization in its embryo. As soon as they are informed, through their spy system, of any organization work or even the mood of resistance on the part of some individual worker, they fire this worker and thereby kill the possibility of organization.

Work Carefully.

We must therefore realize that in order to build a real union, we must protect the more advanced workers who are willing to join the organization in the first stages of its development. We must therefore lay the basis for skeleton shop committees in as many departments as possible long before the union comes out in open challenge to the powers in the industry. This skeleton shop committee must be built up very carefully, using as the first medium of contact the most advanced and class conscious workers in the departments.

These workers are to make contact with those elements in their departments who show some indication of class consciousness, and who are dependable. As soon as sufficient contact is made in a given department, a meeting should be held of these workers and a department representative elected. It is not advisable, in the first stage of organization development, to call general meetings of all the workers who have joined the department groups. It would be dangerous because of the possibility of the spy coming in and breaking up the organization.

The representatives of these department groups should meet regularly to discuss the conditions and the grievances in the shops, thereby establishing a real medium of contact which will later enable the workers, when they are ready for action, to establish a functioning organization in the shop. Simultaneous with building up of these skeleton shop committees, it is necessary to carry on open agitation and propaganda at the factory gates. Shop papers must also become the real living expression of the grievances of the workers in the various departments and shops.

We must utilize every resistance on the part of the workers to broaden the class struggle, we must always point out to the workers that there is a fight all along the line. If they are to resist the wage cuts, stop the increasing speed-up and improve their conditions they must realize the general character of the struggle, must tie themselves up with the automobile workers in the United States.

The Role of the Party.

In the organiation campaign, the burden of leadership and general work will fall upon our Party comrades. The Party must be the driving force in the whole movement. This must be realized clearly and the proper conclusions drawn. There is no other organized group that can go through with an aggressive organizing campaign. The local progressive trade unionists are demoralized by the misleadership of such men as Batt and Martel. The socialists are practically nonexistant. It is no accident that the socialist party was conspicuous by its absence in the recent Flint strike. The socialist party is generally defunct in Michigan. The I. W. W. are few and demoralized with syndicalist illusions. Our Party represents the only firm and decisive body capable of carrying out such a task. The Communist Party is the leading force that must take the initiative and form the backbone of building up the resistance of the workers. It must crystalize the feelings of the workers and help them build a mass organization in order to fight successfully these gigantic combinations of American capitalism.

CUBA IMPORTANT ELEMENT IN U. S. MILITARY PLANS

Air Route Awards Make Island Focal Point

HAVANA, Cuba, Aug. 26.—A Cuba, bound hand and foot to American air predominance, has been envisaged and welcomed here following the awards of important mail carrying contracts to the Pan-American Airways Incorporated.

The Pan-American is owned by American investors and is contemplating the purchase of equipment valued at millions of dollars and comprising six new planes.

Each of these planes will be equipped with three 400-horsepower motors and can carry 1,000 pounds of freight and twelve passengers. The corporation has already called for bids for twenty and more passenger planes.

The contracts at present awarded call for service between the United States, Cuba, Porto Rico and Panama. This places the Island of Cuba in an enviable position as a commercial air focus and makes it an important unit in the American defenses in event of war. As the air key to the widely separated dependencies of the United States in the Caribbean Sea, Cuba now contemplates a future which will place her in the front rank as strategic element in American military plans.

Party and to become members of the Party.

Suddenly, an automobile packed full of khaki-uniformed police, drew up to the spot where the meeting was being held. Without any preliminary warning, the police forcibly plowed their way through the crowd of workers, roughly seized Herman and placed him under arrest, just as several motorcycle police arrived and brutally ran their machines through the crowd of listeners.

As Herman was being driven off to the police station in the big police car, the workers, who knew him well, booed the police. Catcalls, cries of "dirty scabs in unform" and "let Herman go," were hurled at the defenders of big-business.

The young militant was held in the county jail incommunicado for several hours, until the local branch of the International Labor Defense came to his aid and bailed him out.

Mayor Had Kind-Word for Interborough

Surrounded by baskets of limbs and heads, the bodies of the dead and screaming men and women, burned, lacerated and crushed by one of the I.R.T.'s most tragic subway disasters, Mayor Walker last Friday night expressed himself as gratified by the solid subway construction on which the train hurtled killing a still uncertain number. "Terrible and deplorable as this is," the Mayor said, "we find some comfort in the splendid subway construction where a train would split in half [illegible] of column was destroyed. The rest of the structure is safe."

REPORT SHOWS USSR INDUSTRIALP ROGRESS

duction. Soviet unemployment is caused by lack of means of production. There is no over production. In the U. S. S. R., but a rise in production coupled with a rise in consumption. No crisis exists in the Soviet economic system, only partial difficulties. With intensification of agriculture a fivefold harvest is possible.

Agriculture has difficulties but no crisis. Grain purchasing difficulties have been overcome. Industrial production is more expensive in the Soviet Union than in the highly developed capitalist countries because many machine are old, many trained workers were lost in the civil wars and the degree exploitation is no so high. Export is smaller than before the war because the workers and peasants now consume more.

The grain export will grow in the future. With the export also import will grow.

Unemployment was largely caused by temporary causes. Only ten per cent of the unemployed are trained workers. The Donetz process showed technical deficiencies, but the first generation of revolutionary technicians is now entering industry. Despite difficulties in the Soviet Union, production is increasing at an unexampled speed.

The five-year plan provides for an 120 per cent increase in industrial production. This means production will be increased 144 per cent, agriculture 30 to 40 per cent. Real wages will be increased. The only danger for the proletarian dictatorship is the possibility, even the probability of a capitalist attack. The problem before this congress is how to prevent this attack, or if unpreventable how to turn it into a victorious proletarian revolution in the capitalist countries.

At the 42 session yesterday afternoon the situation and problems of the Communist Party in the Soviet Union was discussed; the roots of the Trotzkist ideology in class relations in the Soviet Union and the objective situation internationally were taken up.

Manuilski then polemised against Trotzky's ideas. He said that "the opposition in the whole world is defeated. The Leninist party is sufficiently strong to carry out successfully all the tasks of socialist construction until assistance from international proletariat arrives. The Communist Party knows that there is not a path more to the left than Leninism." Manuilski was applauded.

Miner's Wife Urges Building of Strong Union; Pull Out the Rank Weeds, She Says

HANdOuTS

Twenty-four representatives from capitalist colleges in thirteen states decided to go to Chicago, spend six weeks "on their own" and prove that the reason the unemployed are so is because they don't want to work. One of these who taught highlights of economics in one of the bosses' hokum factories landed herself a nice job after four days making lamp shades at $3.50 a week. She managed to hold the job six weeks. Now she is back in her college again and will have to continue to teach her students that everybody has an equal opportunity under capitalism including the offspring of J. P. Morgan and Chicago workers. If she doesn't she will find herself in Chicago making lamp shades in dead earnest. The only difference will be she will have to live a whole week on that $3.50.

Comic Fellows

William Gibbs McAdoo, the strange bird who used to flourish around political conventions, if you can think far enough back, and whom most people thought was extinct, recently flew into the papers in the above bright feathers. McAdoo used to tell everybody he was a progressive and became famous due to his eagerness to become president. He is about as progressive as Ben Gold is reactionary. Beside him is Will Rogers who is also a comedian. Both boys get their biggest laughs when they never suspect they are funny. Rogers writes for the New York Times where he has as much freedom as he would have with his lariat rope in a china shop. McAdoo impelled by his boyish spirits, dolled himself up in the above costume to ride in the California fiesta. The fiesta is held to help boost the prices of Southern California real estate, of which, incidentally, McAdoo owns a large share.

"No, no. That's Mrs. Louis Beaumont."

"What does she work at?"

"She doesn't. While our folks get silicosis and radium poison she rests up from doing nothing at Lido Beach, Venice."

"Well, Ma, just why does she wear a dress like that?"

"That's a bathing suit."

"Why does she carry and umbrella?"

"She doesn't want to get it all wet."

Gems of Learning

Morris Hillquit, high priest of the socialist party:

"The Kellogg peace pact is receiving infinitely more attention abroad than home. To war-scarred Europe it promises outlawry of war by a solemn international pact on the initiation of the powerful American Republic. It is regarded as more than a mere diplomatic gesture."

Nowhere except in the socialist party.

LEWIS CUT OFF RELIEF DURING BITTER WINTER

National Miners' Aid Sent Help

By a Woman Worker Correspondent

RENTON, Pa. (By Mail).—After reading several other papers I find that the Daily Worker and the Coal Digger are the only friends a working man has got. They are the only papers that tell the truth about the workers and what they are doing and what they have to say.

I read in one paper several things about the Save-the-Union Committee and so on. This paper also said that the money that has been raised for relief is being used to pay "fakers" such as the leaders of the Save-the-Union Committee who are trying to wreck the union. But I should like to ask who it was that wrecked the union if not the Lewis machine.

Cut Off Relief

The Lewis machine cut all the strikers of Renton off its relief list last March and ever since then we have been getting our beans from the National Miners Relief. All the locals that were cut off by the Lewis machine have been getting their relief from the same source.

This paper I am speaking of says that the Save-the-Union Committee is planning a conference in Pittsburgh on September 9 to organize a new union and to work it and put it in worse shape then it now is. The paper states that if the miners wanted to oust Lewis they would oust him at election time, but that the miners know that Lewis can't be put out till his time is up. I would like to know how Lewis can be put out by elections when he counts his own votes? I have heard the miners who went back to work on the non-union mine at Delmont, Pa., complain that the speakers were not here often enough, that is why they went back to work. Some say it is Anthony Minerich's fault, but some day these men will realize what Anthony Minerich did for them and is still trying to do for them to get better working conditions and better wages.

Scabs.

Some of you, maybe, can remember when Minerich led the picket line at White Valley and some of the men and women who never had been near a meeting except when they tried to call one for the purpose of going back to work, these people stood on top of hills and laughed and clapped when the state police beat up Anthony Minerich. These people remarked that they cannot strike for us union people, they thought that if they went on strike April 16, the strike would be won on April 17. But if they had been out for sixteen months as we have been they would know more about it. If they had put up a winter in the barracks without shoes and clothes and lacking food they would not say, "We can't strike."

And furthermore, some of the non-union miners I have heard have said, that if John L. Lewis were left alone he would have done better. But my opinion is that John L. Lewis was let alone too long, that is why he has got so proud that he thinks he is a better sport for helping the Mellon along. I think that if we women had organized in 1922 and got in line with the men, John L. Lewis would have gotten the seat worms and would have moved around a little faster and we would not be lost sheep as we are today. We would have a leader who would take care of us and not lose us. But the men at that time thought different.

Weed Out the Fakers.

I think that by this time Lewis has proved himself so wrong that all the miners who were on his side can see it. He does not care what a miner earns just as long as Lewis has his big salary. Mr. Clark and Mr. Feely used to come to our meetings, both men and women's, and they used to express themselves. We must weed the garden till it is clean; we must not have any weeds and then the garden will grow faster! But I think they knew that they were among the biggest weeds in the garden and needed to be cleaned out first.

Brothers and Sisters, these weeds have become very large and tall in the garden but they do not have much root to them, so I think it is getting easier to weed right along. Only we must organize strongly, both men and women, from coast to coast.

Honduras Spurns U. S. "Arbitration" Proposal

TEGUCIGALPA, Honduras, Aug. 26.—The government of this republic has for the second time virtually rejected the arbitration proposals of the American state department.

The reply of the Honduran government to secretary Kellogg's request for re-consideration has not been published but it is understood that it re-states the government's previous stand on this issue.

To Succeed Hoover; Paper Mill Baron

William F. Whiting, at right above, has just been chosen by President Coolidge, with whom he is here posed, to succeed Herbert Hoover, Wall Street's republican candidate in the coming elections, as secretary of commerce. Whiting is head of a large paper manufacturing and distributing corporation.

STEAMER ON FIRE

TUTUILA, Pago Pago, Aug. 26 (UP).—Fire was sweeping the starboard side of the British steamer Port Napier, a 12,000-ton vessel, as it was reported racing to this port.

With its cargo, consisting mainly of oil and matches, there was danger of fire spreadily rapidly.

PHILADELPHIA COPS ARE PALS OF RUM GANGS

Fat Judge "Amazed"; Wants Probe

(By a Worker Correspondent)

PHILADELPHIA, Pa. (By Mail).—Judge Edwin O. Lewis in Quarter Sessions Court called upon the August grand jury to make a searching "investigation" of the recent gang murders in this city.

The judge's charge to the grand jury makes an interesting sociological document and unwittingly reveals the real flowering of democracy in what is regarded as the typical American city, the birthplace of American "liberty."

In the address to the grand jury, Judge Lewis wants it to find out who are the persons comprising the gangs, why do these gangs exist, who are the leaders in the Philadelphia bootleg ring, who are the men said to be making millions of dollars profit, who are their accomplices who war upon the rival gangs.

Lewis was surprised and indignant to know that detectives fraternized with professional gangsters. The judge naively says, "I was amazed to think that police officers would be on friendly terms with known gangsters."

The writer ventures to suggest that the honorable is probably the only known person in Philadelphia to be amazed at the fact. But the judge asks the grand jury to find out what is back of it. "Why are the police in friendly terms with these men?"

One of the slain "racketeers," Hughey McLoon, was a daily companion of Magistrate Carney. Carney is one of the minor judges. So Judge Lewis instructs the grand jury to subpoena Magistrate Carney.

"What is supreme in Philadelphia law or lawlessness? Who is going to govern Philadelphia, the mayor, the courts and the police or these cowardly gangsters? You want to know about these gangs so that you can present indictments against crimes the evidence might indicate them to be guilty of. A good, healthy, courageous inquiry will do a lot of good and no harm. Now you go and make it. If you want any help come to me. I will give you all the help you want, no matter what it may cost the country."

All the police officials as well as the director of public safety, Davis, and District Attorney Monaghan, said they were "heart and soul" in support of the inquiry. To all probabilities the entire inquiry will amount to "small potatoes." The criminal and vicious elements of Philadelphia are too deeply and intimately connected with the republican organization for the ruling class of this city to permit any real expose. And elections are but two months away.

During the past two weeks, when the various gang murders and the shooting affairs of which the judge speaks took place, the police of Philadelphia were very busy. No, not against the gentlemen of the "rackets" with whom they fraternize, but against the workers of Philadelphia.

At every factory, shop or mill where there was a strike or possibility of a strike, were police, not singly or in pairs, but in squads. At every workers' gathering, at every workers' meeting, police and detectives were presnt.

During all this time many arrests were made. No, not of gangsters but of honest workers peaceably and legally trying to better their conditions. Does Judge Lewis demand an investigation of why police were at places where people were legally assembled? No. Judge Lewis does not care. And the grand jury would do well to ponder the fact that were the police and detectives assigned to work against the gangsters, instead of against workers the whole investigation might be unnecessary.

And are the gangsters now "afraid" and do they fear the investigation to be made? Evidently not. For less than twenty-four hours after the judge's dramatic charge to the grand jury there was an additional gang murder and another gang shooting at which a gangster was severely wounded.

BELGRADE PLANS TO JAIL CROAT PARTY LEADERS

Fear of Peasant Masses Causes Orders

VIENNA, Aug. 26.—Sheltering its action with a plea that leaders of the Croatian Peasant Party are attempting to split the kingdom of the Serbs, Croats and Slovenes, the Belgrade government is reported to be preparing to arrest those leaders, particularly Dr. Vlado Matchek, who is charged with having led agitation against the state.

In defense of its orders the government cites Matchek's newspaper interviews and the telegram which he is alleged to have sent to the Interparliamentary Congress in Berlin. In this he stated that the Jugo-Slav representatives in the Skuptchina were not the representatives of Croatia.

The other leader against whom the government is reported to be proceeding immediately is Deputy Kremjebich, leader of the separatist delegation at the Interparliamentary Congress.

While it is acting against the leaders of the Croatian Peasant Party the government is frank in admitting that it is the revolt of the masses of peasants which it fears. The demand for separation from Serbia has spread among the peasants and it is believed here that the action of the government in jailing the leaders of the party will have little effect in suspending the action of the peasants in Croatia.

"THE FEARLESS COSSACK," AT THE PLAYHOUSE, CHICAGO

"The Fearless Cossack," or "Taras Bulba," one of the most famous character creations in all of Russia's literature, has been brought to the screen in a photoplay, which the Playhouse, 410 South Michigan Boulevard, Chicago, will present for the week beginning this Sunday.

"Taras Bulba," the novel on which "The Fearless Cossack" is based, was written by N. V. Gogol, the great Russian novelist. In this searching novel, Gogol pictured with minute accuracy the lusty, ribald and often murderous marauders, dispatched by Czar Ivan, "The Terrible," to defend his furthermost borders against the incursions of the Crimean Tartars.

On the same program, the Playhouse will present a number of unusual novelties.

Police Brutally Break Up Minneapolis Anti-War Meet and Arrest Young Speaker

HOLD YOUTH IN JAIL WITHOUT GIVING REASON

700 Workers Protest Brutal Action

(Special to the Daily Worker)

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Aug. 26.—Police yesterday attacked and broke up an anti-war meeting held under the auspices of the Workers (Communist) Party and Young Workers (Communist) League on Bridge Square here, and arrested Carl Cowl, ex-National Guardsman, and now a member of the Young Workers (Communist) League. Cowl was roughly handled, taken to the police station, and detained there without any charge having been made against him.

Seven hundred workers, gathered on the square to protest against the capitalist war preparations, stood their ground in spite of the police attack and listened to Pat Devine, who mounted the platform immediately after the arrest of Cowl, denounce the brutal action of the police. He called upon the workers to demand the unconditional release of Cowl and to fight for their rights of free speech.

Scores Police Terror.

"The action of the police," he said, "is obviously a continuation of the entire government policy of the suppression of anti-militarist work in the Citizens Military Training Camps throughout the country."

As Devine concluded his appeal to the workers, after all the Workers (Communist) Party platforms had been sold to those gathered on the square, the city bomb squad arrived at the meeting. "They had evidently been rushed to the meeting for the purpose of creating a disturbance in order to be able to attack the Workers (Communist) Party anti-militarist activities on a new charge," a report from Minneapolis stated.

The meeting, however, was almost over, and the bomb squad was unable to create any disorder on the square.

Devine announced another meeting to be held Wednesday, with Carl Cowl as the principal speaker. The 700 workers at the Bridge Square meeting determined by a unanimous vote to carry on the fight against the capitalist militarist activities.

CARPENTERS EXPOSE ROLE OF MISLEADERS

When the great building boom was over it became necessary for the average union carpenter to draw his savings (if he had any) from the bank. In looking for a job he found a line of unemployed carpenters and saw non-union men in place of union men. He witnessed the results of the speed-up, the hire and fire systems and then he began to realize how far the trade was from union control and how much the union officials had neglected to utilize the "good times" in the interest of the membership.

Even in some conservative locals, the membership began to demand from the officials what they were going to do with these burning questions, but the best they could get from the so-called leaders was "We are conferring."

Progressives Active.

But if our reactionary leaders proved how far they were from solving the evils in our trade, the progressive elements proved more efficient. The progressive carpenters of Greater New York issued a leaflet with a constructive local program and a clear analysis of the conditions in our trade.

We were confronted with elections for local union officials, carpenters, state federation and also elections of delegates to our carpenters' general convention, which takes place once in four years. The national committee of the progressive carpenters issued a national program in which was a clear analysis of our problems and the solutions of them.

This national program of the progressive carpenters' committee made a strong impression among the carpenters of New York. Every union carpenter who had some thinking ability could easily realize that we progressives came with a clear understanding and with a constructive program which, if adopted, would improve our conditions and strengthen our union. This national program brought so much enthusiasm to the rank and file that it was translated into several languages to give those whose understanding of the English is limited an opportunity to study it. In certain local unions of Greater New York the question was raised at the meetings that the local as a whole should buy these national programs and distribute them among the members. A few of the large locals adopted a motion to that effect.

Unity Necessary.

The local elections and the elections of delegates to the general convention clearly proved the necessity of unity among the progressive element and the importance of all progressive carpenters of Greater New York to consolidate their forces. There, where the progressives were unified, a decisive victory was won. In other places they were defeated. In general, the progressives of New York strengthened their forces. In some large local the old reactionary officials were defeated and replaced by those who were not only more honest, but are also more capable to lead the local unions and the Brotherhood of Carpenters as a whole in a better way than the corrupt officialdom of the Hutchinson, Halkitt, Wilson & Co. machine.

Yes, there is a spark of political awakening among the carpenters. They have lately been too much and too shamelessly fooled by the city administration and by the New York State government. A law was passed for the prevailing rates and wages for city employees in the building trades under union conditions were supposed to be employed in the construction work. The fact of the matter is that the city administration had been converted into a scab agency.

Workers Aroused.

The Irish, Scotch and American carpenters, citizens of the United States are grumbling to their utmost. Our officials are confused in this tangle, and at a meeting of a conservative local union where the belief prevailed that no politics should come upon the floor, it is curious to see this meeting converted into a hot political tribune. One labor bureaucrat tries to prove that the democratic administration machine is corrupt, is swindling us and will continue to swindle us. Another labor bureaucrat (democrat) tries to convince the membership that the republican machine is fooling us to the highest degree. A Schotchman, an old trade unionist gets up to admit that both political machines are good for nothing and the workers have to go into independent politics. "A labor party," howls one from the floor.

Need of Union.

Well what is to be done with such kind of disturbers? To suspend them, expel them? This was practically the last thing on the business of our meeting, because those quiet obedient members are not coming at all to the meetings. They need a union card as a means for getting a job; they need a saw as a necessity for the job. So it is simple, if the wife can go to file his saw why can't she go and pay his dues and take his card? Why the hell does he need to go to the meeting? This is the reason why the progressives are becoming the main factors in the local, altho numerically not so large. They are exercizing a strong influence and they may become the predominant power if they consolidate their forces.

INDIA TACTICS ARE DISCUSSED

sinen, "it is a question not of decolonization but of industrialization under the control of imperialism. That is the same thing in a different form. The acceptance or the rejection of the theses depends on the answer to the question. Does imperialism retard or foster industrial development in the colonies? According to the Marxist analysis of the development of capitalism, exploitation of the colonies has divided the world into two parts—agricultural and industrial. Naturally, capital export conducted by finance capitalism has caused certain alterations. Capital export, however, does not foster industrialization, but is the weapon of imperialist expansion for the consolidation of economic dominance and exploitation of the rawstuff sources.

"Capital export is accompanied by certain industrial development, for instance, the building of railways and exploiting of mines, but not by industrialization. British imperialism wants India as a market for industrial products and as an agrarian dependent.

Lenin's Colonial Theses.

"Lominadse also falls a victim to the decolonization theory," continued the speaker. "Lenin's colonial theses at the Second World Congress correctly represented the essence of the imperialist colonial policy as the retardation of the industrial development. He did not say that British imperialism will succeed in holding back industrial development, but on the contrary development will proceed and provide grounds for conflict between British imperialism and the native bourgeoisie. India has no native industry and without this there is no possibility of industrialization. The measures of British imperialism are directed towards hindering industrial development. The decolonization theory is an imperialist lie. Our task is the exposure of this lie.

"Heller, Bennet, Rothstein and other British comrades make a serious right-wing error in putting forward a false decolonization theory. Bennet said that if imperialism hindered industrial development there would be no basis for the formation of the proletariat. This very hindering of the development leads, however, to something different—it causes the native bourgeoisie to play a certain progressive role, whereas imperialism plays a reactionary role. Communists must condemn the native bourgeoisie, not because it fights for independence but because it does not fight enough. The colonial bourgeoisie is not able logically to represent its own class interests, on the contrary, it will ally itself even more with imperialism against the proletariat and the agrarian revolution.

Role of Native Bourgeoisie.

"Bennet only sees the revolutionary and the counter-revolutionary camps, but what is in between he cannot see. Antagonism exists between imperialism and the native bourgeoisie. The theses do not say that the workers should support the Swarajists. The fact is, however, that the Swarajists are not common counter-revolutionaries, but hesitant bourgeois opportunists. We must fight them and tell the workers what they will do, but we must not simply describe them as counter-revolutionaries and fail to utilize the antagonism between them and imperialism.

"Lenin proposed fanning such antagonism and connecting our agitation with it, but Bennet proposes the opposite. It is improbable that the bourgeoisie will even temporarily join the revolutionary camp, but we must not exclude such a possibility for all colonies beforehand. Conditions under which a temporary alliance is possible are contained clearly in the theses."

Two Stages in Bourgeois Revolution.

Kussinen then went on to deal with the second opposition group to the theses, consisting of Losovsky, Schueller, Lominadse and Neumann. He said.

"This group rejected the decolonization theory, but declared it was wrong to speak of two stages in the bourgeois democratic revolution. However, we see the first stage in India and the second stage in China. Clarity must be created concerning the character of the native bourgeoisie because it has influence over the masses. Our task is to win these masses for the revolution."

Kussinen then criticized Neumann and Lominadse, who, he declared, tried to represent themselves as the saviors of the Communist International from the opportunist morass. Kussinen declared that the theses treated insufficiently of the Negro question. Ireland and South Africa must also receive more detailed treatment, he said.

He continued: "The chief tasks set by the theses were to strengthen the Communist Parties, plus the conquest of the masses away from the national reformists' leadership and the struggle against imperialism and its helpers, particularly the social democracy. The proletariat, together with the colonial allies and the exploited peasant masses, will triumph over imperialism." (Applause.)

The Canton Insurrection.

At the thirty-ninth session, which preceded Kussinen's speech in the session reported above, Strachov made the closing speech on the colonial question and Jlon spoke for the Chinese delegation. Jlon's remarks were as follows: "Pepper's statement that formerly Sun-Yat-Senism was dominant in the Communist Party of China and now Trotzkyism, is slanderous. At the time of the Canton insurrection Pepper proposed the slogan of self-administration for the villages, whereas, in reality, the peasants were insurrecting. Thus Pepper went further than Trotzky, who declared that the Chinese revolution was ebbing. In the program commission Pepper suggested that instead of 'feudalism' 'Asiation production methods' should be set. This means working against the slogan for nationalizing the land. This explains why Pepper opposed the agrarian revolution with the anti-imperialist movement, whereas, in reality, without the agrarian revolution no overthrow of imperialism is possible.

"As long as the imperialists maintain backward agrarian relationships no industrialization of the colonies is possible," Jlon continued. "The national bourgeoisie is closely connected with the semi-feudal gentry and the landowners. It is prepared to make anti-imperialist gestures only as long as native exploitation is not endangered. At the decisive moment there will be either a bourgeois dictatorship or a proletarian-peasant dictatorship. The Communists must support the movement for national freedom. National fascism and national reformism must, however, be fought. The petty bourgeoisie must be won, but the Party must not fall under petty bourgeois influence."

A delegation from the Moscow Post and Telegraph Workers then greeted the Congress. Remmele answered the speeches of greeting for the Congress.

Pepper then made the following declaration: Lominadse commenced the polemic here concerning the Canton insurrection, not I. Lominadse aimed at weakening the effect of the resolution of the Ninth Plenum, which recognized the heroism of the Canton insurrection, but criticized the errors in leadership and the errors in the preparation for the insurrection in ten points. It is not permissible for Strachov and Lominadse to identify the heroic struggle of the Chinese proletariat with the errors of the leadership. Errors must be exposed in order that in the future we may lead not only insurrections but victorious insurrections.

BROACH ATTACKS ELECTRIC UNION LOCAL 3 WORKERS

Calls Them "Cattle" and "Bums"

(By Electrical Worker)

At our last meeting of Local No. 3 electrical workers held at Central Opera House, H. H. Broach, international vice-president, took over the whole meeting much to the disgust of the members who are getting tired of seeing his sneering face always before them.

Broach made a vile attack on the general membership which two weeks ago refused to vote his $24 dues increase. Broach referred to the union members as "cattle" and said that they were not union men.

More Money Yet!

The dues question would come up again for consideration, he warned us. At the same time he tried the old game of picturing the "progress" which he said has taken place in the union, but avoided all mention of unemployment, increasing non-union conditions on the job, and violations of union rules.

A new business agent was appointed by Preiss, the business manager, at the swollen salary of $115 per week. Broach tried to prove that this is not more than the average member earns throughout the year. Some of us unemployed men did not know whether to laugh or get mad.

Broach drew his usual picture of needing money by stating that two injunctions facing the organization required funds to fight them. He said nothing about giving a report for the thousands of dollars already spent for which no full accounting has been given. In a most polite manner he reminded the members that at all times there must be $40,000 in the general fund. Should the fund fall below that sum, every member would receive a post card to come to the local and keep on paying until that amount is secured.

Little Dictator Struts.

Our "Little Caesar" then showed his real character again when he reported that he had received a letter from a member suggesting cutting down expense by eliminating some of the unnecessary expense in running the local. He probable referred to the money spent for gangsters, strong-arm men, the oversupply of business agents, and that dizzy financial manipulation which Broach calls "legal expenses." For this suggestion Broach referred to the member as "that Bum." He challenged any member to stand up on the floor with that question. This shows how Broach is ruling out all forms of freedom and expression at the meetings.

Your game is up, Mr. Broach. Until recently you could pose before the members as the defender of their interests even though some of us understood what you really are. Now everyone is wise to you. From now on it is: Broach against the membership. Goodbye, Mr. Broach.

ST. LOUIS INCREASES LEAD AS GIANTS LOSE

(By United Press)

Del Bissonette's home run over the fence at Ebbetts Field in the last half of the tenth inning beat the New York Giants, 4 to 3, and set McGraw's club another full game behind the St. Louis Cardinals, who defeated the Phillies, 6 to 1.

The Chicago Cubs drew up to the heels of the second place Giants by defeating the Boston Braves, 6 to 3. It was the fifth consecutive victory for Chicago. The Cincinnati Reds strengthened their hold on fourth place, turning back the Pirates, 4 to 3.

The defeat at the hands of the lowly Dodgers disheartened the Giants, especially as they made 13 hits to 7 for the victors. Hubbell pitched well for New York, while his team-mates were hitting Jess pretty hard, but Bissonette's homer settled matters in the extra session.

In beating Pittsburgh, the Reds clicked off three double plays, bringing their total to 159 for the season. Ford accepted 13 chances at short.

GERMANS OBTAIN PERUVIAN TRACT AS CONCESSION

To Be Used as Source for Raw Material

BERLIN Aug. 26.—In order to develop western Brazil as a source for raw material and ores, the German Peruvian Company has been organized here with the aid of New York capitalists.

In order to provide easy communication with the homeland a railroad will be constructed from Tambo del Sol to Pucalpa, connecting the terminal of the North German Lloyd line on the Amazon with the west coast of South America.

Large tracts of land, rich in mineral deposits and thinly populated, along the railroad route have also been obtained. Besides using the acquired land as a source for raw material it will also be used to accommodate settlers from Germany.

GREEK DICTATOR SPREADS TERROR

Gendarmes Wound Many in Xanti

ATHENS, Greece, Aug. 26.—Terror against radical workers in Greece continues as Venizelos is assured of retaining his dictatorship after he had suppressed workers' demonstrations and protest meetings.

In Xanti the efforts of the police to suppress a workers' demonstration came to a conflict between gendarmes and workers, at which many workers were wounded. The workers, Laranidis and Faratti, were arrested.

Following a protest meeting by tobacco workers of the American-owned firm the workers, Douvas and Drungas, were deported for six months to the Island of Ithaca, Gallias to Argostolion and Panayotakis to Zakynthos.

Hoover and Smith, Siamese Twins of Finance-Capital.

On the basic question of imperialism Smith and Hoover are perfect twins—we might say Siamese twins. It is important to accentuate this point, because Smith takes a little latitude here in the hope of catching some of the discontented votes. Al Smith says he wants to abolish "the practice of the president of entering into agreements for the settlement of internal disputes in Latin-American countries unless—." "Unless the agreements have been consented to by the senate as provided for in the constitution of the United States" are the qualifying words of Smith. But "the consent of the senate" means nothing more than an inconvenience to the senators who may be obliged to drop the pose of the Borah sort of "anti-imperialism," which proves always to be its opposite when tested. Smith is against "interference in the purely internal affairs of Latin-American countries"—which means, of course, that anything will be construed as not being "purely internal" that may be required as an excuse for invasion and conquest of Latin-Amercan countries. It should be noted carefully that Smith speaks critically of the present military invasion and war against Nicaragua—but he abstains with equal care from any demand that the marines be withdrawn from Nicaragua. It is curiously interesting that Smith for his "anti-imperialist" inspiration goes to "a great republican secretary of state, Elihu Root!" Is this not a sly hint that the democratic party will carry out the republican imperialist policy in Latin America?

But there can be no serious contention that the conquest of Latin America by the United States will not be undertaken as quickly by Smith as by Hoover when Smith declares his readiness to act upon "such responsibilities to civilization as may be placed upon us by the Monroe Doctrine." The Monroe Doctrine today is nothing less than the doctrine of United States imperialist domination and ultimate military rule over all of Latin America.

Nor need anyone be fooled by Smith's attack upon Coolidge's doctrine "that the person and property of a citizen are a part of the national domain even when abroad." It is only an attack upon Coolidge's stupidly frank wording of the doctrine which both of them would put into effect—the sort of "razzing" which is considered legitimate among rival servants of the same boss.

Nowhere does Smith say that he would withdraw the marines from Nicaragua. Nowhere does he say anything more than, in effect, that he would be more skilful than his rival in the enforcing of the imperialist program on Latin America. He constantly refers to Wilson as the highest model, and under Wilson the one greatest giant stride of American imperialism took place—both the militarization of the nation and entry into the world war, and the ruthless conquest of Latin-American countries.

On foreign policy in general there is not even a shadow of pretense of difference.

On the questions of war and armaments, all of Smith's fine words of pacifism are only uttered in rhetorical competition with Kellogg's pacifist drive, and the same imperialist war program is endorsed by Smith when Smith implies his support of the Kellogg pact.

On the farming situation Smith shows a bankruptcy of even the empty words he finds for other questions. He admits he is for precisely the same thing Hoover is for, and that he does not care to say what this is. He cannot say publicly that the program of the masters of both Hoover and himself includes the progressive ruin and expropriation of the farmers. Therefore in the several hundreds of words he used, he suggested not one single concrete measure. Concrete measures, he says, will be found "after election." See?

On the questions pertaining to water power there appears superficially to be a difference, but the program which Smith indicates that he would carry out is not in the least out of accord with the interests of the Raskob and du Pont type of industrial-financial kings, and in practice would be the same program that Hoover would carry out.

In regard to immigration it is amusing to find Smith using almost the same words as some that are used in the socialist party platform, Smith being against "the harsh provision which separates families," and the socialist party being for changes to "permit the reuniting of families," and both upholding the American imperialist immigration bar upon the working class' right to move from one country to another.

It is true that Smith appealed to republican voters holding illusions concerning "liberals like Roosevelt and LaFollette and their party insurgents,"—but the Old Guard republican machine also has restored "Young Bob" to the fold and equally appeals to such elements to remain with the republican party.

On the tariff question no one takes seriously any mild contentions that there is a difference; there is none; the democratic party has admitted that it accepts the republican tariff program, which is, after all, no more a fixed program than it is an obligation to take orders from the same masters.

Wall Street can lose nothing in the election of Smith, and can lose nothing in the election of Hoover. If Hoover is its choice for the head of the traditional party of the trusts and biggest banks, Smith has has been the choice of the same trusts and banks as governor of New York, in which position Wall Street has tested him in four terms and found him a good servant of such open-shop trust-magnates as DuPont, Raskob and Woodin.

The only possible manner in which a worker or a farmer can cause the slightest ripple in the temper of an international banker and trust magnate by the mere casting of a ballot is by voting for that nightmare of all bankers and trust magnates—Bolshevism.

A big vote piled up for Foster and Gitlow, for the Communist ticket both national and state, is the workers' only means of registering the slightest effect in this election. That is—the only means except that of utilizing the election campaign to bring thousands of members into the Workers (Communist) Party, and to strengthen the working class in all of its struggles, in the mine fields, in the textile strike, in the organization of the unorganized.

Make the election campaign a campaign to rally the masses to conscious class struggle. Vote Communist. Join the Communist Party. Make the workers see the connection of Communist politics and the struggle on the picket line! Work for Bolshevism against the Siamese twins of Wall Street!

Hold Red Rally at Cudahy Co.'s Plant

(By a Worker Correspondent)

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (By Mail).—For the fist time since the 1921 strike the Packing House workers came out en masse to attend a meeting and a Communist meeting at that. Over 200 workers of the Cudahy Packing House took every spare minute of their lunch time, which lasts 30 minutes, to listen to Hugo Oehler, district organizer of District 10 of the Workers (Communist) Party.

This is the third meeting being held by the Party in front of the Cudahy plant but this meeting unlike the previous two meetings was attended by such a number of workers in response to a leaflet issued by the Communist Party. Following the distribution of the "Packing House Workers" a special leaflet addressed to the Cudahy workers was distributed calling upon them to walk out during their lunch time and attend the meeting at an empty lot on Kansas Avenue in front of the Cudahy plant.

Stool Pigeons and Bosses Tried to Disrupt the Meeting.

When Hugo Oehler mounted the chair which he used as his platform there was no worker in front of him. The reason for it was that a few bosses stood right near him thinking that in this way the workers will be scared away from coming to the meeting. But no sooner had Oehler begun to speak than workers began to come from all directions. Before two minutes were over the sidewalk was jammed to capacity.

The meeting held has greater significance than an ordinary meeting. The Communist Party is not only active in the election campaign but is also active in carrying on an organization campaign among the packing house workers. It is because of the desire on the part of the packing house workers to do away with the terrible exploitation in the houses that they turned out to the meeting.

The drive to organize the packing house workers is not limited to Kansas City alone but to all South Western and Western packing centers.

The packing huose paper which is issued by the Communist Party is being spread in every packing house.

The committee in charge of publishing the "Packing House Worker" states that funds are needed in order to print many copies in order to reach every worker in the packind industry. All contributions should be sent to 207 E. 14th St., Room 1, Kansas City, Mo.

Ten Days of Textile Struggle

By AMY SCHECHTER.

Police Murder Pregnant Woman; Clubbing Fails to Break Picket Line

At the first signs of revolt among their slaves in the grey stone mill prisons of Fall River, the millowners stripped the millworkers of all the defences won by labor in generations of struggle, and systematically set about throttling them into submission.

Police, press, courts, reactionary craft union bureaucracy were immediately mobilized against the strikers. Police violence was used to smash picket lines, the courts to outlaw the strike and forge legal shackle to the activities of the strike leaders; the press to pour slime over the Textile Mill Committees and discourage the strikers by fake back-to-work stories; the labor bureaucrats to order the men under their control to scab in the strike.

The Fall River cotton manufacturers learned to fear the strength and staying power of militantly led millworkers in the course of the New Bedford textile strike still going strong in New Bedford after four months under T. M. C. leadership. Long before the Fall River strike vote was taken all their forces were lined up in readiness to block the first strike move.

Monday, August the sixth, at dawn, when the Fall River strike opened with the walkout of 3,000 workers from the American Printing Company, the city was practically declared under martial law for textile workers. No breathing space. No quarter. Police swarming over the streets "below the hill" where the millworkers of the American Printing Company live. Solid police cordons thrown across the viaducts leading to great fortress of the American Printing Company. Patrol wagons and vans drawn up at the curb ready for mass arrests or use as barricades.

Men and women clubbed and strangled as line after line, five times shattered and five times reforming tried to break through the police wall to picket their mill. The wave of terror rising higher every day. A pregnant woman striker crushed against the iron railing of the viaduct by the police, beaten and thrown aside for the strikers to take to the hospital after the police had gone. Johnny Medeiros, six year old striker's child, ridden down by a trooper herding strikers into their houses after the daily break up of the picket line, running for refuge through a gap in the fence near the river, found soon after drowned—"while swimming"—the police say.

A hundred and fifty police massed on the church steps and the streets outside barricaded to hold back the mill workers attempting to march after the coffin of the boy.

From the break-up of the first TMC mass meeting in Fall River weeks before the strike, the Fall River police have carried out the role of company gangsters as openly as the Coal and Iron in any Rockefeller coal town. Police Chief Feeney, boasting of his personal supervision of police operations in the strike area, openly stated in the press the third day of the strike that he believed he was having success in "breaking the back of the strike." Over a hundred arrests were made during the first days.

The organizers, Jim Reid, Sam Weisman, Peter Hagelias and young Bill Sroka were arrested and rearrested, sometimes three times in a day. A week after the strike began the first case came up for trial. Picketing, singing strike songs, addressing mass meetings, or attending them were all branded as criminal activities. Not content with imposing vicious prison sentences on organizers and the leading rank and file strikers, and demanding heavy bail to keep them jailed, the mill owners' Judge Hannify, created a new legal strikebreaking precedent by placing these men under forfeitable $1000 bonds to "keep the peace" interpreted as refraining from all strike activities.

Of course the strike is meat for the American Legion, which has passed a resolution pledging its members to back Chief Feeney to the limit in his operations to put down "the labor agitation." The last few days a number of prosperous-looking men with the solemnly stupid look of the true legionnaire have been seen sleuthing around "Liberty Lot" during the TMC mass meetings.

Strike Spreads.

And still the strike and preparations for spreading the strike to all the mills of Fall River go on. Thursday the leaders got out on bail. Friday they addressed mass meetings and resumed their other strike activities.

The heavy police barrage may force new tactics on the part of the leaders, but no retreat. The workers, previously unorganized and striking for the first time in their lives, in ten days have learned more about the nature of the capitalist state and its role in bludgeoning the workers back into slavery at the employers command than in all the previous years of their life. They have had their baptism of fire in the class war, and come out of it not intimidated but hardened to the struggle. Committees are stiffened up. Organizational work is carried on with new understanding.

Conditions in Fall River were known as the worst in northern mill towns before the 10 per cent cut last January. $15 was given as the official average wage for Fall River mills at the State Arbitration Board hearing in New Bedford last week. Pay envelopes for July taken at random from a collection of those handed to men working in the Print Works of the American Printing Company show $10.89, $13.41, $12.11, $15.85, $8.18, $12.86, $13.16, $12.05. Most of them married men. In this division men work 11, 12, 13, sometimes up to 16 hours, at the heaviest jobs in the mills, in steaming, fume-laden rooms at high temperatures.

Speed-Up.

Steadily increasing speed-up in mill after mill is paring down the little left to the mill workers after the 10 per cent slash, and driving them beyond endurance. If their stand fails, the workers know that another cut will come in the early Fall.

The fight will be increasingly bitter, but it must go on. Abandonment of the fight for the right to organize, the right to hold meetings, the right to strike, the right to picket, means condemning the mill workers to blacker slavery.

Challenge to Labor.

The denial of these rights by the mill owners and their courts, their violent suppression of every attempt of the mill workers to reach out and take these rights is a challenge to labor and all who believe in guarding the elementary rights.

Outside aid is urgently needed for the Fall River strikers, relief, defense, help in establishing the few legal rights that capitalist legality allows, in order to break through the wall of violence, the cotton manufacturers have built around the mill workers, and give them a fighting chance for their lives.

3 Athletic Meets---Moscow, Amsterdam, New York

By PETER CLARK

II.

The Moscow Spartakiade.

Just as the Amsterdam Olympic Meet represented the high-water mark in the capitalists' use of sports to serve their class interests, so the Moscow Spartakiade was the highest expression of the proletariat sports movement, and of its role as a support of the workers' revolutionary movement.

The Spartakiade was sponsored by the Russian Workers Sports Organization, the Society for the Promotion of Physical Culture, and was supported by the Red Sports International. It lasted from August 12 to 22, and was held at the Michael Tomsky Stadium, which has a seating capacity close to 50,000.

About 5,000 athletes in all took part in the Spartakiade and of this number 1,500 were from foreign countries. In spite of the ban which the Luzerne (socialist) Sports International placed on the participation of any of its members in the Spartakiade, large delegations of social-democratic sportsmen accompanied the Red sportsmen to Moscow. Three hundred participants came from Germany, two hundred from Czecho-Slovakia, 80 from Finland and 90 from France. Smaller delegations came from over a score of smaller countries.

The Spartakiade was made the occasion for a widespread educational campaign carried on in the Soviet Union in favor of physical culture. August 12 was officially pronounced Physical Culture Day, and throughout the Soviet Union there were held sports meets. In all the public squares of Moscow sports exhibitions were staged, with 50,000 worker-athletes taking part, and hundreds of thousands of people watching.

In order to make possible the participation of foreign athletes the Soviet government provided free transportation within the borders of the Soviet Union. The visitors were also maintained at the expense of the government and were quartered at the Third House of the Central Committee of the U. S. S. R.

There was a marked contrast in the manner in which the Spartakiade and the Olympics were run off. First, the attitude of the spectators was fundamentally different. Whereas at the Olympics the crowd was divided into nationalistic sections, at the Spartakiade the spectators were completely international and applauded athletes only on their skill. If anything, the foreign athletes were accorded the most enthusiasm.

Among the athletes themselves there was no semblance of that bitter rivalry, of that hard individualism which distinguished the conduct of the Olympic stars. The bugaboo of professionalism, which was such a big controversial issue at the Olympics, did not even remotely enter into the Spartakiade.

Nearly every athlete taking part was a worker, and those who had come from foreign countries had done so at great personal sacrifices and after overcoming many difficulties.

At the Olympics it had been necessary to lay in a stock of flags of all competing nations—and a terrible uproar had been made because a Canadian flag had been overlooked. But at the magnificent Tomsky Stadium, only one kind of flag was on display—and that was the Red flag of the international proletariat.

Whereas the real political purposes behind Olympics had been hypocritically covered up by the bourgeoisie, the organizers of the Spartakiade openly proclaimed that its primary slogan would be: Defense of the Soviet Union. In line with this slogan, of course was emphasized the solidarity of the proletarian sportsmen the world over against the Olympics, and the capitalist sports movement as a whole. The Spartakiade was a demonstration of the need for proletarian sports, a demonstration of the growing strength of the proletarian sports movement, a demonstration against the bourgeois Olympics.

But, most of all, it was a demonstration of the fact that the class-conscious worker-athletes the world over are prepared to defend their Socialist Fatherland, the Soviet Union, against imperialist aggression.

PRINTERS WIN RAISE

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Aug. 26.—Typographical Union No. 8, of St. Louis, recently accepted a proposal whereby an increase to time workers aggregating $64,000 a year was agreed to, the contract to run for five years.

Told You So

THIS department suggests that the Animal Rescue League communicates with Mr. Frank B. Kellogg, who is now in Paris limbering up for the signing of a treaty to outlaw war, and urge the secretary of state to insert a clause in his anti-war treaty prohibiting the use of dogs for tests of poison gases, intended for the slaughter of human beings. Since, what may be poison for a dog may be meat for a man, there is no sense in wasting good [illegible] on a helpless little animal, a gas that may smell to a hero like the odor of a choice Havana cigar.

THE latest evidence of the spread of Americanism in Nicaragua is the organization of "Vigilance Committees" to aid the United States marines in the war against Sandino and his revolutionary army. The dispatch which carried this news states that those assassins were organized by indignant Nicaraguans, but it is clear that this alleged indignation was superinduced by the cold treatment of General McCoy, American fixer of the coming elections. The Nicaraguan vigilantes no doubt will copy the methods of the murderers of strike leaders in the United States, the thugs who hanged Frank Little in Butte and established a reign of terror in several western states during and after the war. With a gang of good American election tellers, under the direction of General McCoy, in addition to the vigilantes, Nicaragua would be as thoroly Americanized as Chicago, Illinois.

THE French and British scout the idea that the pact is directed against the United States, yet both powers considered the question of how the navies of both countries could be pooled in the event of war. The U. S. is the only country in the world that has a navy equal to Great Britain. France is increasing her navy rapidly and only recently held the biggest military maneuvers since the war on the Italian border. The recent pact between England and France is not good news for Mussolini; neither is the success of Venizelos in the Greek elections. Venizelos is a tool of Great Britain and is said to have friendly intentions towards Jugo Slavia, with which Italy has been at loggerheads.

ALL this shows how ridiculous it is to expect anything from the Kellogg treaty except another war. The great powers are simply sparring for position. Clashes of economic interests between them are certain to bring war. Despite the existence of the league of nations, the system of offensive and defensive alliances that prevailed before the war is more in evidence today than ever. The United States is Great Britain's chief rival and a war between the two imperialist giants is only a question of years. How long can this inevitable war be staved off by the ruling classes who probably are convinced from their experience in the last one that the next will spell their doom? Even tho they know this they are driven irresistibly, thru the competitive nature of the capitalist system, to a course which signs their death warrants.

THE platonic gestures towards peace of the imperialists may lull some workers into a feeling of false security. But there is nothing under the sun more certain than another world war, hundreds of times more terrible than the last. The poison gases that the war department of the United States is testing on dogs to make sure that they are deadly enough for use against men, the sham airplane battle over London recently, the French war maneuvers on the Italian frontier, the appropriation of $20,000,000 by the German government for the building of battleships, the intensive war preparations of Italy—all are signs pointing to mass murder in the name of the defense of country.

THE government of the Soviet Union alone declares before the world that all gestures towards peace are empty unless accompanied by disarmament. And all the efforts of the Soviet Union to induce the imperialist powers to adopt a disarmament plan have been blocked. There can be no peace under capitalism. If angels were suddenly elected to head all the capitalist governments in the world, they would be immediately transformed into militarists. War is as indigenous to the capitalist system as claws to a tiger. Only the abolition of capitalism will bring about the abolition of war.

Argentinian Objects to Invasion Provided in Monroe Doctrine

BUENOS AYRES, Argentina, Aug. 26.—The Monroe Doctrine does not imply invasion into Latin-American countries said Dr. Jose Leon Saurez, Argentine member of the League of Nations Codification of International Law Commission here.

Speaking on the refusal of Argentina to enter the League of Nations, Saurez declared that it would eventually return, providing the interpretation of the Monroe Doctrine was not left entirely to the United States and that invasion on the rights of the South American republics be not considered the Monroe Doctrine.

EXPOSE NEW CAMPAIGN OF KANSAS AUTHORITIES TO DESTROY WORKERS PARTY

Communist Leaders Face Long Jail Terms on Criminal Syndicalist Charges

New Attack Seen as Party Gets on Ballot in the State

(Special to the Daily Worker)

KANSAS CITY, Aug. 27.—The cases of Oehler Yocum and Kassis, Workers (Communist) Party members arrested here in connection with a Sacco and Vanzetti demonstration, have been set over for September 10. They are charged with violating the Kansas criminal syndicalist law. The charges against them will be amended to include their membership in the Workers (Communist) Party as one of their "crimes."

The Kansas authorities will base their case against the seven others arrested at the same time on the alleged "illegality" of the Party. The prosecution will seek to obtain convictions on the basis of the Party platform and on Oehler's speech, it is reported.

A rousing call for a fight against the "criminal syndicalism" law of Kansas, and the recent attempts of the Kansas authorities to crush and drive out of existence the Workers (Communist) Party with the arrest of a number of its members, was today issued by the national office of International Labor Defense, 80 E. 11th Street.

The call follows upon the arrest in Kansas City, Kansas, of Hugo Oehler, district organizer of the Workers Party, and Matthew Cushing, a young packing house worker, at an open air noon-day meeting held in front of the Armour Packing plant. They were held on charges of vagrancy, which were too thin, and were later changed to charges of violating the Kansas Criminal Syndicalism Law.

At a meeting which followed the arrest, in Shawnee Park in Armourdale, held under the auspices of the International Labor Defense for the joint purpose of commemorating the first anniversary of the Sacco-Vanzetti murder and the arrests before the Armour gate, the police swooped down and arrested ten of the speakers and workers in the audience. Those arrested included Hugo Oehler, Matthew Cushing, E. B. Eastwood, Samuel Kassis Nelson, Dr. N. S. Yocum, I. Bogdonovich, Jack Kolka, W. Miklash, and two by-standers, Mr. and Mrs. Edward D. Warren.

Held Under Bail.

According to reports just received from Kansas City, all but the last two named have been charged with violation of the Criminal Syndicalism Law and are being held under $500 bail each. The "violation" consists in the fact that all of the men indicted are charged with being members of the Workers (Communist) Party.

Coming simultaneously with the breaking up by police of a Sacco-Vanzetti meeting called by International Labor Defense in Arma, Kansas, it indicates the determination of the Kansas authorities to drive out of existence every radical labor organization in the state.

Persecute Radicals.

The Kansas law is an extremely vicious piece of anti-labor legislation and is cunningly framed to make it an easy matter for the prosecution to railroad to prison any "undesirable person." The charges against Oehler read that he "by word of mouth and by means and use of public distribution, display, circulation, gifts and sale of certain printed and written circulars, leaflets, books and other printed matter did unlawfully, wilfully, knowingly, openly, publicly and feloniously suggest, advocate, advise and affirmatively teach to various and numerous other persons there assembled, the doctrine of criminal syndicalism, with the intent then and there to spread the same, or the

13 Progressive Miners Camps Facing Famine

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Aug. 27.—A crisis in relief work among the striking soft coal miners which imperils their courageous struggle of sixteen long and bitter months is announced in a telegram from Albert Wagenknecht, chairman of the Miners National Relief to the New York Relief Committee today.

Wagenknecht's telegram follows in full:

"Monday begins the most critical week we have experienced. Henceforward every cent in your treasury. Thirteen progressive camps have called for food before Wednesday and there is no money on hand. They must be fed. Our most needy and our best fighters are among them. Shipments of two carloads to Ohio has depleted our treasury. Rush funds. Signed: Albert Wagenknecht."

RED CANDIDATE HITS IRT HEADS

Greed for Profit Costs Blood, Says Dunne

Charging that Al Smith, Jimmie Walker, the republican legislature, together with the I. R. T. are responsible for the terrible subway catastrophe which took place Friday afternoon at 5 p. m. near Times Square Station, resulting in 16 killed and over 100 injured, William F. Dunne, candidate for Governor of New York on the Workers (Communist) Party ticket issued the following statement:

Service Undermanned.

"For years the traction companies have followed a practice of undermanning their trains without any action by the administration. They have consistently refused to install and maintain mechanical safety equipment, have not carried out the order to purchase more cars. The insufficient number of cars has resulted in the inhuman crowding in trains to unheard of limits. Experienced workers have been fired as punishment for organization activities. In general, the I. R. T. with the connivance of Tammany Hall has been carrying out a policy that was bound to endanger the life and

WATKINS OUSTED AT A. F. L. MEET

Switchmen's Delegate Led Group to USSR

DULUTH, Minn. (By Mail).—Undisguised glee on the part of the capitalist press here followed the expulsion from the Minnesota State Federation of Labor Convention of William Watkins of St. Paul, delegate from the Switchmen's Union, on the ground that he is a Communist.

Watkins was chairman of the first rank and file delegation to the Soviet Union. The group, composed of workers in many American industries, brought back an enthusiastic report about the gains which the Russian workers have achieved since the Bolshevik Revolution.

An editorial which appeared in the Duluth Herald typifies the capitalist press reaction to Watkins' ouster from the A. F. of L. convention.

"Organized labor would be admitting a Trojan horse if it let Communists into its deliberations, and it shows no disposition to be foolish," said the editorial. "If capital was as intelligent as that, it would support unionism instead of fighting it, as it sometimes does."

"Goat" for the I. R. T.

Selected by the Interborough Rapid Transit Company as a scapegoat in order to shield itself from criminal responsibility for the subway smash-up which killed 16 and injured over 100, William Baldwin, above, is now out on $10,000 on a charge of homicide. In return for many years of service to the traction barons, Baldwin may be imprisoned for the rest of his life. Faulty equipment of which the company was aware was responsible for the disaster last Friday evening.

Workers Urged to Aid Communist Campaign

Because she demanded the return of the Workers Party campaign fund collection box full of coins which the police had confiscated, Jennie Kliedman had her suspended sentence recalled and was ordered held for trial today by Magistrate Flood in West Side Court.

Continuing the threats of the Department of Public Welfare against workers collecting for the Red Election Campaign Fund, James W. Kelly, deputy commissioner of the department, has issued a statement "explaining" the action of Commissioner Bird S. Coler, who previously had denounced the drive and incited the police to take a hand.

Simultaneously the Workers (Communist) Party has announced that despite police persecution the drive would be continued throughout the week of August 27. It was originally scheduled to be held only from Aug. 20 to 25. In a statement issued last night explaining this move, John J. Ballam, acting district organizer, declares:

"The returns thus far from collectors who have gone out among the workers in behalf of the Red Election Campaign Fund indicates that there is a tremendously favorable sentiment for our party at this time. This favorable sentiment must be tapped and utilized to the fullest extent.

Difficulties.

"Certain objective difficulties have arisen, which have prevented us from capitalizing sufficiently in the Red Week arranged for August 20 to 25. The postponement of the Sacco-Vanzetti demonstration has

Anthracite Miners Get Taste of Democracy

WILKES-BARRE, Pa., Aug. 27. —Using the ridiculous excuse that a mass meeting was being held on Sunday without a permit, Chief of Police Taylor yesterday broke up the Endorsement Conference called by the Workers (Communist) Party at 206 South Main St. The conference was called to endorse the Communist candidates, William Z. Foster and Benjamin Gitlow and to mobilize for the September 1 picnic and rally at Sans Souci Park, where Benjamin Gitlow will be the main speaker.

About sixty delegates were present, representing labor organizations in Luzerne and Lackawanna Counties, when Emil Gardos, subdistrict organizer, opened the conference. Pointing to the presence of the police, he said: "This conference is being stopped in spite of the fact that we are in election

SCABS KNIFE 3 IN ASSAULT ON STEEL STRIKERS

Men Turn Down Boss Terms; Demand Flat Rate

Massillon Strike Looms

CANTON, Ohio, Aug. 27.—The Central Alloy Steel Corporation's attempt to break by force the big steel strike which their counterfeit peace proposals have failed to smash after two weeks of struggle, resulted yesterday in a fight between strikers and scabs, in which three of the former were arrested.

Scabs Stab.

The fight, which followed the arming of strikebreakers in the Central Alloy plant, began when mine scabs attacked six strikers. The pickets defended themselves and in the course of the affray a strikebreaker stabbed three men not strikers, seriously wounding them. Bleeding profusely the victims were carried by the police not to a hospital but to the jail. It is thought that the police believed the men were strikers.

The strikers were then fined $10 and given ten days in the workhouse.

The government's interest in the strike has been dramatically disclosed in the terms which Commis-

WORLD CONGRESS HITS OPPOSITION

Score Trotskyists at Communist Meet

MOSCOW, U. S. S. R., Aug. 26.—The forty-third session of the fifth World Congress of the Communist International opened here yesterday with Bela Kun acting as chairman. The discussion opened on the subject of the speeches of Varga on the situation in the Soviet Union and a speech by Manuilski on the problems of the Communist Party of the Soviet Union.

Approve All-Union Party.

Thaelmann, of Germany, then proposed that both speeches be published in a brochure as an answer to the social democratic slanders, and followed the proposal with a reading of a declaration in the name of the Communist Parties of Germany, Chechoslovakia, Poland, Austria, Sweden, Finland, Norway, Denmark, Lithuania, Latvia, Esthonia and the Young Communist International, completely approving the political and organizational line of the Communist Party of the Soviet Union.

The declaration pointed out the great successes achieved by the Communist Party despite the difficult conditions created by foreign imperialists. These difficulties he proceeded to sum up.

The complete bankruptcy of the Trotskyist and Menshevist opposition was pointed out in the declaration. The propagation of Trotskyist ideas was declared incompatible with membership in the Communist International.

War Danger.

The war danger is acute, the declaration further declared. When war comes the Communist International will lead the masses in a struggle to turn the imperialist war into a civil war for the overthrow of the bourgeoisie and the establishment of the dictatorship of the proletariat.

The chief task of the Communist is the exertion of all forces in order

Bringing Up the Dead From New York's Latest Interborough Crash

The number of dead in the tragic subway disaster at Times Square, New York City, last Friday night has not yet been exactly ascertained. THE U. S. S. R. AND THE KELLOGG PACT

Declaration of Foreign Commissar Tchicherin to the Press

George Chicherin, People's Commissar for Foreign Affairs of the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics, made the following statement to the press some weeks before the signing of the Pact:

The so-called Kellogg Pact, or more correctly said the reciprocal agreement on the outlawing of war as a weapon of national policy has occupied the centre of general attention since December last. During this period there has taken place a lively exchange of opinion between the Powers regarding the drawing up of this pact; nevertheless they did not think of inviting the Soviet Union to take part in these discussions. Obviously the governments conducting and taking part in these negotiations must have in mind the question of inviting the Soviet Union to participate, and from their standpoint they have adequate reasons for refraining from doing so.

This circumstance can only serve to emphasize the real object of the conclusion of the so-called Kellogg Pact.

Weapon Against U. S. S. R.

The exclusion of the Soviet government from these negotiations leads us in the first place to the assumption that, among the real objects of the initiators of this pact there obviously was and is the endeavor to make of this pact a weapon for isloating and fighting against the Soviet Union. The negotiations regarding the conclusion of the Kellogg pact are obviously an integral part of the policy of encircling the Soviet Union which at this moment occupies the central point of the international relations of the whole world. I would remind you that our delegate Comrade Litvinov, on his return from the December meeting of the Preparatory Commission on Disarmament, gave in his report a short analysis of the Kellogg proposals regarding the conclusions of a pact and ably showed that the "outlawing of war as a weapon of national policy" is synonymous with preparing war as a weapon of international counter-revolution.

The real purpose of the Kellogg Pact is shown yet more plainly by the French reservations submitted to the American government in the Note of June 23, when sending the second editing of the Pact to the initiatory Powers. The American government had pointed out that the second editing had the object of giving expression to the French demands. In its reply to this Note the French government emphasized in a still more undisguised manner that the Kellogg Pact aimed at protecting the international relations which are laid down in treaties, which idea was also expressed, although in a less outspoken form, by the American government when sending the second editing of the Pact.

The French government sets up war aimed at the carrying out of national policy, against war which is to perpetuate the existing relations, laid down in treaties, of the interested nations. According to the view of the French government, in the first case the government in question acts of itself, independently of the existing relations to other states. The second case would mean that states would conduct a war to secure the existing relations laid down in treaties. For this very reason the treaties France has with Poland and Rumania belong to the totality of the general system of present day treaty relations, so that a war arising out of these treaties would not be a war as a weapon of national policy but a war to perpetuate the existing peaceful and friendly relations between the signatories of the Pact.

War Against Soviet Union.

When the American government, when sending the second editing of the Kellogg pact to the initiatory powers on June 23, pointed out that this second editing realized the French demands, it was not attempting to deceive. The Pact actually states that the states participating in the agreement renounce war as a national policy, in order to perpetuate the existing peaceful and friendly relations between their peoples. In its accompanying Note of June 23, the American government declares in detail that the Statute of the League of Nations, as also the Locarno agreement and the agreements between France and a number of powers are included in the relations mentioned in the Kellogg Pact. This clearly shows that the Kellogg pact is an integral part of the war preparations against the Soviet Union.

The same also applies to the English reservations, according to which the defense of a number of areas in various parts of the earth is necessary in order to secure the British empire, and for which reason Great Britain joins in the Kellogg Pact only on condition that this fact is expressly stated and that it retains freedom of action regarding the defense of these areas.

In its Note of June 23, the American government refers to the answers of the English and the French governments, and points out that none of the reservations made by the one or the other government contradicts the second editing of the Pact. The American government, moreover, asserts that the Pact fully secures the lawful interests of all parties participating in it. The American government goes still farther and declares that any nation, at any moment regardless of the provisions of the treaties, has the right to decide whether circumstances call for it to resort to war as a means of lawful defense, and that the whole world will applaud when the nation in question fights for a good cause.

None of the initiatory powers of the Pact has raised any objection to this clear formulation of the sense of this Pact. None of these Powers has opposed it. In my opinion it must be clear to everybody that the point of this whole diplomatic action of the leading world Powers is directed against the Soviet Union.

Soviet Union Excluded.

Recently some new facts in international relations have come to be added to the Kellogg Pact. A considerable portion of the German press is conducting a campaign for the inclusion of the Soviet Union in the Pact. Some English Liberal newspapers, as the "Daily News" and some French Left papers, as well as a part of the American press, have begun to speak in the same tone. That part of public opinion finding expression in these newspapers has raised the question whether it is not possible for the Soviet Union to participate in the Kellogg Pact and whether the Soviet Union has been invited to participate.

I must reply to this question by declaring that it is not yet too late for this. The Pact has not yet been signed. Negotiations regarding its content can still take place with the Soviet Union. Although the so-called original signatories of the Pact have already come to an agreement among themselves, they would have full possibility, if they wished to make the Pact something else than a weapon in the preparation of war against the Soviet Union, to enter into negotiations with the Soviet government. Their inclination or disinclination to conduct negotiations with the Soviet government on this question will serve to prove what their actual aim is—peace or the preparation for war. I can declare that our government is prepared to take part in these negotiations. The issue will depend upon the content of these negotiations. But the Soviet government is of the opinion that the possibility of it, too, signing the Kellogg Pact is not excluded.

Up to the present our government has not received an invitation to take part in these negotiations nor the text of the agreement itself, nor even the proposals and reservations to the project made by the other Powers. Only if we are served with the official Notes can we take part in these negotiations and in the event of favorable conditions, also sign the Pact.

Soviet Union's Anti-War Policy.

It is one of the fundamental aims of the Soviet Union to put an end to war. Our government directs its whole policy towards abolishing the possibility of any war. Whatever the objective results

Nijni-Novgorod Fair Dominated by State Firms; Orient Present

MOSCOW Aug. 27.—A new factor has been introduced into the last few fairs at Nijni-Novgorod, famous for centuries on account of its picturesque fairs that have drawn merchants from all parts of the Orient.

The majority of booths on the fair grounds are now either government firm owned or cooperative booths from all parts of the Soviet Union. Mixed with the fineries of China and Mongolia, with the products of government industries, products of the villages, can now be seen, taking a prominent part on the market, modern farm machinery. Of the 900 firms represented at the colorful spectacle about 400 are state or co-operative, eight concessionaires, 100 foreign—mostly from the Orient, and 109 private, mostly independent peasant exhibits.

The greatest feature of the fair is an exposition of handicraft from 42 producing sections of the Soviet Union.

SOVIET UNION IS "INVITED" AFTER TERMS ARE FIXED

43 Communists are Jailed by Paris Police

Humanité Scores Pact

(By United Press)

MOSCOW, Aug. 27 (UP).—The Soviet Union has been invited to participate in the Briand-Kellogg treaty to outlaw war, which was signed in Paris today by representatives of 15 powers.

French Ambassador Herbette late today transmitted an invitation from France to the Soviet Union to join the pact. Ambassador Herbette said Russia would participate under the same conditions and privileges of the original signatories.

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Despatches to the effect that the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics is invited to "participate" in the Briand-Kellogg treaty to outlaw war "under the same conditions and privileges of the original signatories" are entirely deceptive. The pact had been subject to negotiations since December last, and the Note of the United States department of state of June 23 was taken as validating reservations made by both France and Great Britain, the reservations having the effect of strengthening the imperialist character of the pact. The statement to the press of Commissar of Foreign Affairs of the Soviet Union Chicherin prior to the signing of the pact, was not that the Soviet Union would sign the pact in its condition as signed yesterday, but that: "I can declare that our government is prepared to take part in these negotiations. The issue will depend upon the content of these negotiations. But the Soviet government is of the opinion that the possibility of it, too, signing the Kellogg pact is not excluded. . . . Only if we are served with the official Notes can we take part in these negotiations, and in the event of favorable conditions," also sign the pact. . . . Our Government . . . regards the intended prohibition of these wars as insufficient . . . . in the event of our participation in these negotiations we would also propose alterations in this pact which are necessary from our point of view. . . . . The imperialist powers delayed the invitation to the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics until after negotiations of their own had moulded the character of the pact, excluding the Soviet government from any chance to propose changes. Only after the imperialist powers had signed the pact in a form to their own liking, the invitation is sent to the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics.)

PARIS, Aug. 27—Not six months after they had retreated in confusion before the proposals for complete disarmament made by the Soviet government thru its assistant commissar for foreign affairs, Maxim Litvinov, at Geneva, the representatives of fifteen powers in all parts of the world today affixed their signatures to the Kellogg peace pact in Paris in an atmo-

TO LAUNCH NEW MILL COMMITTEE

PATERSON, N. J., Aug. 27.—At a mass meeting of textile silk workers held here yesterday in Carpenters' Hall by the Workers International Relief, Paterson silk workers heard Albert Weisbord and Selig Pitkowitz, former organizer of the Associated Silk Workers Union, announce the imminent launching of a new national union of textile workers at a convention in New York in Sept. 22.

After pointing out to the workers that the new wage cut drive now being inaugurated by the silk manufacturers here and in neighboring cities was not being combated by the Associated Silk Workers officials of that union were concerning themselves with carrying thru an amalgamation with the defunct United Textile Workers Union of the A. F. of L. which is no better

SPEAKERS URGE ALL TO SUPPORT WORKERS PARTY

"Only Freedom Lies in Class Organization"

Warning against the spread north of Southern institutions prejudicial to the Negro masses and pointing out that the only hope of the Negro is to organize as workers and strengthen their power by alliance with those sections of the exploited white workers who are class-conscious and ready for such an alliance, leaders of the American Negro Labor Congress received tremendous ovations from a large crowd of Negro workers who turned out Friday night for the organization's mass meeting at Boyles Mem. M. E. Zion Church, Gates Ave. and Irving Pl., Brooklyn.

"You can talk until doomsday about freedom," Richard B. Moore, National Organizer of the A. N. L. C. told the meeting. "You can talk until doomsday about emancipation, but unless you organize the only class which has the power and the will to struggle for emancipation, your talk is useless.

Organize Labor Power.

"Not until the Negro masses organize their labor power and unite with other oppressed groups and classes will we win our freedom. The only hope of the Negro is to organize as workers and strengthen their power with an alliance with the class-conscious white workers of America and the white, brown and yellow workers of the world."

Describing the American Negro Labor Congress as the basic Negro organization, fighting for better wages, better conditions of labor, equal pay for equal work, and against all inequalities, political, social or economic, the A. N. L. C. National Organizer warned the audience that there were two groups of white workers: those who still had the ideology of the bosses and aided the bosses in practising discrimination against colored workers, and those who had learned in the school of revolutionary activity that the interests of all workers, black, white and brown, were identical and were ready to make common cause with all sections of the working-class. "The American Negro Labor Congress is organized to smash the barriers raised in the trade unions by the first group and to force equal pay for equal work, equal opportunity for employment and equal representation in the unions," Moore said.

Henry Rosemond, secretary of the Haitian Patriotic Union and a member of long standing in the American Negro Labor Congress, urged upon the meeting the necessity of a militant organization such as this and called upon those present to show their sympathy with its aims and program not merely by applause but by becoming active members and helping to build up the Brooklyn Council of the American Negro Labor Congress.

Grace Campbell, chairman of the Harlem Educational Forum, gave a brief and interesting outline of working conditions among Negro women in the needle trades and other industries. She emphasized the necessity of these workers joining the unions in their industries.

Raps Old Political Parties.

Ripping the mask of false friendship from the Republican Party and showing it up in its true colors as a party dominated by financiers and employers whose exploiting interests were necessarily opposed to the interests of the exploited black and white workers, and further reminding his hearers of the traditional enmity of the Democratic Party, George Padmore called upon the Negro workers to vote for the party which by its working-class program and its outspoken, fearless advocacy of the interests of the Negro workers had shown itself the true friend of the Negro, the Workers (Communist) Party. He severely castigated Judge Atwell for his prejudiced remarks in a recent case before him, and warned that "Atwell is not individual. There are scores of Atwells come up from the South and trying to introduce Southern prejudice and Southern institutions in the North. We must meet this growing menace by eternal vigilance and effective working-class organization." Referring to the agitation for Africa for the Africans, Padmore told the meeting that "unless we are sufficiently organized, economically and politically, we will not be able to help our African brothers when they, taking courage from the heroic revolution of the Chinese masses, launch the inevitable revolution against capitalist-imperialist domination and exploitation."

LENINGRAD, Aug. 27.—Anna Bistrova, an Esthonian woman, has confessed to the Soviet authorities that she was engaged in organized espionage in Soviet territory since 1924.

She revealed a wide organization of which she was a part, according to an official announcement, and eleven other arrests were made on the basis of her confession. Most of those held wer Russians.

At the same time 30 other persons were jailed on various charges in connection with alleged Esthonian-Latvian military and espionage in the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics.

DOCTORS LEFT MINE STRIKER'S BABY TO DIE; HE COULD NOT PAY CASH

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Aug. 27.—Anthony Yelich tells a story of years of intense struggle, in the fight for a living wage and safer working conditions in the mines. Yelich is living in the Lilly Patch now, on the bank of a rising swamp, dark with filth. The stench caused by lack of sewage arrangements is so strong that the families of the patch find it difficult to sleep at night. Operations at the Lilly mine have not been resumed since the beginning of the strike some sixteen months ago, and there is practically no other work available for the men in a radius of many miles.

Both Tony and his wife are young. They have two children, four-year-old Tony and the baby, Rose. A third child died at birth. Little Tony was a "strike" baby, born out-of-doors, because his parents were evicted back in the 1924 strike.

Ten-months-old Rose is a "strike" baby, too. She is a tiny, yellow, shrunken infant, and looks much younger than she really is. When she developed convulsions one evening last week Yelich went first to one doctor, then to another and another, appealing for help. But Yelich had no money to pay in advance, and the doctors would not come. The fifth doctor finally agreed to come.

"We thought the baby would die sure, she was so bad," Yelich said, when he came to the National Miners Relief Committee headquarters for relief for the Lilly Patch. "But the doctors wouldn't come, because I didn't have any money. I was near crazy by the time I got to Dr. Houston over at Vesta Six—he came. It's a hard life."

The Yelich family, like their many neighbors, have received no relief from the union during the past six months. Only the supplies sent by the National Miners Relief Committee kept the patch from being wiped out by famine. The baby has had no fresh milk in many months. The precious canned milk sent by the relief committee is mixed with water and sustains life in her shrunken little body, as it does for hundreds of other babies.

Young Mrs. Yelich is very ill, too. Stomach trouble, she says, brought on when she was feeding the baby. She had little or nothing to eat, herself. This acute form of stomach trouble is very common among recent mothers in the mining camps.

Because it is almost impossible for the relief committee to fill adequately the most fundamental needs, such as flour to bake bread with, it has been unable to take care of more than a fraction of the urgent appeals for medical help. Confinement cases, especially, are a great problem. Special appeals to workers everywhere are being broadcasted from the Pittsburgh office, 611 Penn Ave., Pittsburgh, Pa., asking for financial assistance to meet this vital need.

U. S. S. R.-BRITISH WOODWORKERS IN UNITY PROGRAM

Promise Mutual Aid; to Fight War

MOSCOW, U. S. S. R. (By Mail).—A further step towards the solidarity of the international working class and towards mutual assistance in time of conflict was taken by the woodworkers' unions of the Soviet Union and of Britain when both organizations ratified their agreement for the formation of an Anglo-Russian Woodworkers Committee.

The chief task of this committee is to render mutual, moral and material support in strikes and lockouts. The participants in the committee also undertake to fight energetically against international strikebreaking and against the reformist slogan of class peace in industry.

The political significance of the unity committee is further evidenced by its agreement to work for the prevention of the disruptive tactics of the imperialists and for the prevention of imperialist war.

The initiatory conference of the new Anglo-Russian Committee will take place in autumn when a program of action will be worked out and the practical tasks of the committee set.

Rifts Widen Between Nanking War-lords as Pai and Yen Contend

PEKING, Aug. 27.—Rifts between the Nanking generals are slowly but surely widening, the open opposition between General Yen Hsi-shan and General Pai Chun-hsi being particularly prominent now.

Pai Chung-hsi enjoys the patronage of Chiang Kai-shek and it is alleged feels safe in flouting the orders of Yen Hsi-shen, who is his immediate superior.

Backed by an army of 120,000 men, Pai is doing his utmost to establish his position as a contending war-lord until such a time as it is supposed he will feel sufficiently strong to declare himself independent.

De Rivera Program to Provide for Harsher Laws Against Labor

MADRID, Spain, Aug. 26.—General Primo de Rivera, has announced to the Union Patriotica, the only political party legalized under his dictatorship, that the anniversary of his accession to office will be the occasion for the proclamation of a new administrative program.

The program will launch an attack upon leaders and organizations who have opposed the government and have urged the workers to protest against their oppression by the present regime.

POLICE ATTACK SACCO MEETING

Arrest 13 at Rockford Memorial

MADRID, Spain, Aug. 27.—Gen-Continuing their drive against the Young Workers (Communist) League, police broke up a Sacco-Vanzetti memorial meeting held here Wednesday evening under the auspices of the League.

A large crowd of workers had gathered at the meeting, which was held at Broadway and Eighth Sts.

As the first speaker, Max Appleman, launched into an explanation of the class justice which brought about the execution of Sacco and Vanzetti, a squad of policemen and plain clothes men surrounded the meeting. The speaker was immediately pulled down and many other League members, who were identified by plain clothes men, were also lined up. Thirteen in all were arrested.

They were then marched in a body down the main street of Rockford to the police sub-station. Marching down the street, the sang the International and the Red Flag.

Upon arrival at the city jail they were questioned, and Max Appleman was charged with speaking without a permit, while Zip Khochis was charged with distributing leaflets. The other 11 workers, after a warning from the chief of police, were released.

WAITERS' UNION ENDS STRIKES

Settlement Permits Discrimination

Strikes involving five restaurants, with over forty waiters and waitresses, have been announced today as "settled" by Louis Rifkin, president of Local 1, Waiters and Waitresses, American Federation of Labor. The restaurants included the three Trufood chain places, on 39th, 40th and 44th Sts.; the Elkwood, 149th St. and Third Ave., and Stempler's Exchange Bakery and Restaurant on 21st St., on strike for the past three years.

The latter place is notorious because of the long court fight of the bosses to secure an injunction against picketing. When the judge refused to grant an injunction, it was hailed by the American Federation of Labor as a great victory.

At Thursday's meeting of Local 1, however, a proposal to hold a "legal celebration," at which some New York judges and lawyers were to be guests of honor, along with members of the New York Restaurant Owners' Association, union officials, and, incidentally, a few strikers and union members, was voted down by the membership. No celebration of any kind will be held until a committee of five from the union membership has reported back to the union after a conference with the official strike committee. And, if a "celebration" is then decided on, a big fight is expected over the question as to whether judges, lawyers and bosses are allowed to join, according to statements of the rank and file.

In the meantime, much dissatisfaction is expressed by the strikers because two of the leaders were discriminated against in the Trufood settlement; one being taken back to work only after all the others refused to return without him. The question of the second being taken back is still undecided. Union officials refused to put up a fight for better conditions for a cook, who walked out in sympathy with the waiters; nor was any fight made for the reinstatement, with better conditions, of two "bus" boys who also joined the strikers. The new "union" contract is unsatisfactory in other respects; it allows for fewer men on the job and their replacement by women at longer hours and lower wages; also, some of those who scabbed despite the picket line still retain their jobs, though provision is made that they be laid off gradually.

BOSSES DEMAND TAILORS' SCALPS

Get Opportunity Thru Yellow Officials

Another conference between the employers and the right wing officials of the Ladies Tailors' Local 38 will be held today. The approaching expiration of the present agreement was used by the bosses as an opportunity to present a series of drastic demands for lowering the conditions of the union members, due to the fact that the union was weakened by the right wing clique now in power here and in the International. A statement was issued to the press by the left wing workers in that organization that states in part:

"The demoralization of the ladies' tailoring trade and also in Local 38, due to the policy of the right wing clique now in power, was brought to such a point that when the agreement is about to expire the employers have the audacity to put up demands to the union which, if accepted, would destroy the conditions that the workers have won after twenty years' struggle.

"It is clear that if the clique in the International had not created this situation in the union, the employers would not have dared to put up such demands to the local.

"At the membership meeting held Thursday night, August 23, at the Central Opera House, 67th St. and Third Ave., the agreement that the Couturier Association presented to Local 38 was read. This agreement was unanimously rejected.

"The reading of the impossible demands of the employers caused many members of Local 38 to stand up and demand that the general membership meeting elect two additional members to the Conference Committee that was Appointed by the Executive Board of Local 38, in view of the struggle that the local will have to wage. This justifiable demand was rejected by the right wing chairman."

interfered with the meetings of many party units, and a number of comrades have therefore not received their boxes or shop collection lists. An added difficulty was the rainy weather which persisted throughout the week and also retarded collections.

"We have, therefore, decided to extend the collection period throughout the week of August 27, to give every comrade an opportunity to secure his quota of contributions to the party's campaign fund. We have assigned a quota of not less than five dollars, which must be raised by each comrade either through a collection list or a box, toward the party's campaign fund.

Coler's Attack.

"The extreme political importance of this drive is indicated by the fact that Bird S. Coler, Tammany Commissioner of Public Welfare, has seen fit to come out in the capitalist press openly denouncing the drive, in an attempt to demoralize the workers and frighten them from contributing to the Communist Campaign Fund. The results thus far have shown that this dastardly move on the part of Tammany Hall has had the opposite effect, and contributions have been prompt and generous.

"All comrades are therefore instructed to secure a box or a list, to utilize this week to complete their quota and to roll up a fitting answer to Bird S. Coler and his Wall Street masters in Tammany Hall."

of wars may be in the future. it is the chief aim of the policy of our government to prevent any war. Among other wars we likewise strive to exclude also those which serve as a weapon of national policy. Our government, therefore, fully agrees that everything must be done in order to exclude the possibility of wars which serve national and imperialist policy as a weapon, but it regards the intended prohibition of these wars as insufficient. Our press has contributed a great deal towards making clear the real meaning of the Kellogg Pact. The criticism of the Kellogg Pact in our newspapers is necessary; in the event of our participation in these negotiations we would also propose alterations in this Pact which are necessary from our point of view.

No Disarmament in Pact.

Our government declares that the Pact, which is in itself already inadequate, is rendered of still less value by the reservations made by England and France, which give every party to the Pact the right to interpret it in the spirit of its own national or imperialist policy. Our government particularly points out that the Kellogg Pact loses value above all owing to the fact that it is not accompanied by any undertaking in regard to the question of disarmament.

The chief aim of the international policy of the Soviet Union is to preserve peace. The proposal of our government regarding disarmament is a plain authentication of this policy. Our government cannot neglect to make use of the American Pact proposal in order to proceed farther on the way of struggle for the preservation of general peace. But we fully realize that the attitude that the most influential portion of the press of Great Britain, France and of the United States is adopting in this question leaves us but little hope of the possibility of participating in the negotiations.

YOUNG TEXTILE STRIKERS MEET

Fall River Cops Stop Relief Meeting

(Special to the Daily Worker)

FALL RIVER, Mass., Aug. 27.—Anton Sousa, eighteen-year-old picket leader of the Fall River textile strikers, who was sentenced to six months in jail for his strike activities, was released when the International Labor Defense provided $2,200 in bail bonds. He promptly went to act as one of the speakers at a mass meeting of young mill workers called by the youth section of the Textile Mill Committees on Liberty Lot.

Joe Tarvis, another youthful strike leader, Jack Rubinstein, Bill Sroka, James Ried and Sousa spoke at the meeting.

After Ried had delivered a speech in which he urged the young workers to stand behind the union in its fight for improvement of the conditions of all workers, he received the pledges of the young strike leaders that the youth will not only support the struggle but continue to play a leading role in conducting and spreading the anti-wage-cut fight.

Police here stopped a mass meeting of the Workers' International Relief by lining up a large squad of patrolmen outside the hall rented by the strike aid organization, and thereby intimidating the hall owners who then refused to abide by their contract.

MORE CLERICALS IN OBREGON CASE

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 27.—Further statements of the police indicate that many more clericals are involved in the plot that succeeded in killing General Obregon and in an additional plot to kill President Calles.

Other details besides those contained in the previous statement have not been revealed, but as the investigation continues, the police state that others have been implicated, among them those who were the authors of the Celaya plot to poison Obregon and Calles.

In the meantime Toral, Mother Concepcion and the other clericals held have been transferred to Mexico City, where the investigation will continue.

Ask McMillan to Aid Hassel Search

CHICAGO, Aug. 27 (UP).—Capt. Donald B. McMillan has been asked by the Field Museum here to give all possible assistance to agencies searching for Bert Hassell and Parker Cramer, missing Rockford, Ill., fliers.

Captain McMillan, who is leader of the museum's Rawson-McMillan Arctic Expedition, was messaged by museum officials after receipt of a telegram from Clarence M. Young, Director of Aeronautics of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, suggesting that the expedition's ships might be invaluable in the search.

It is believed the expedition has sailed from Nain, Labrador, on its return voyage.

NEEDLE WORKERS HOLD RED RALLY

To Endorse Communist Election Candidates

Workers in all crafts of the needle trades industry will gather Wednesday evening at a mass meeting in Irving Plaza Hall, 15th St. and Irving Pl. to endorse the candidates of the Workers (Communist) Party in the coming presidential elections. The meeting will be held immediately after work. Ben Gitlow, Communist candidate for the vice-presidency, will be the chief speaker.

The mass meeting is the result of the enthusiastic response from many thousands of needle trades workers to the recently published "Statement to Needle Trades Workers," issued by the National Committee of the Needle Trades Section of the Trade Union Educational League. This statement had called upon these workers to support the Communist candidates after pointing out that the "socialist" officialdom of the right wing unions had made an alliance with Tammany Hall Al Smith and the bosses to disrupt their organizations and destroy their union working standards.

All leaders of the left wing garment unions will speak at the meetings. They include Ben Gold, furrier leader; Charles S. Zimmerman, of the Cloakmaker's Union; H. Sazer, capmakers; Gladys Schechter, of the Millinery Union; S. Lipin, tailor; M. Yusim of the Young Workers League, and M. Ziebel, milliner. Rose Wortis, leader of the dressmakers will act as chairman.

According to the Needle Trades National Committee, which is the official sponsor of the meeting, a committee of 50 needle trades workers will be elected at the meeting to organize a campaign for mass support to the Party candidates among the masses of workers in the clothing industry.

MORE WORKERS ARE OUT OF JOBS

Official Report Shows Jobless Increase

WASHINGTON, Aug. 27 (UP).—Favorable reports on the general industrial and business situation came from the Federal Reserve Board tonight while the American Federation of Labor noted a slight increase in the number of unemployed during July.

The Reserve Board survey showed industrial and trade activity on a larger volume in July than is usual in midsummer with the general level of commodity prices advanced slightly.

A survey of 24 cities made by the American Federationist revealed a one per cent increase in the number of organized wage earners out of work. Preliminary figures for August show but a slight change over the July situation.

"Production of manufactures and minerals showed a smaller decrease than is usual in July," the Federal Board reported, "and the index of industrial production, which made allowance for seasonal variations, advanced."

NICE, France, Aug. 27.—The Italian consul at Nice, Marquis di Muro, was wounded today by a gunshot fired from behind the iron grill of the consulate garden.

Atlhough the man who attempted the assassination was not seen, police here claim that they have evidence that will involve a number of anti-fascists.

Howls in Horror Over New Fur Union

ers Union, which is "international" in name only, since every important local of that organization has already affiliated to the new furriers' union recently established, Matthew outdid himself in the drawing up of ridiculous appeals.

"A direct challenge," says Woll in the declaration, "has just been issued by the Communist Party of Moscow to the A. F. of L." He then cries loudly about the new unions recently launched in the needle trades, textile and mining industry.

Although the statement is primarily supposed to be a broadside against the fur workers and the union they are building, Woll says very little that is specific about that organization. This is explainable when it is remembered that the new union was launched at the recent mass meeting with nearly every fur manufacturing and fur dressing local already affiliated and split off from the reactionary A. F. of L. skeleton organization.

However, he warns all furriers to keep away from the meetings called by the "reds."

French Imperialists Are Worried Over Reports of American Control Over Liberia

FEAR U. S. WILL DOMINATE VAST RUBBER SOURCE

Loan Is Negotiated by Firestone Interests

PARIS, Aug. 27.—Statements by French West African officials today disclosed their attitude towards the control given the United States government in the internal affairs of Liberia by an alleged loan for $5,000,000.

The statement of opinion on the part of the French officials was precipitated by reports that the state department at Washington has been accused before the League of Nations of attempting to gain control of the Liberian government through a virtual subsidy.

While pretending to ridicule the influence which the American government is able through its financial position to exert upon Liberian policies, the French officials betray their nervousness over the control thus obtained by the American interests.

While the French have huge rubber reserves in their equatorial African possessions they are also interested in the potentialities of rubber cultivation in Liberia. They, morever, fear the independence of foreign markets which the opening of this new rubber source will mean to the American rubber manufacturers.

The loan is understood to have been negotiated secretly by the American Firestone rubber interests under liberal patronage of the leading republican party.

POWERS SIGN KELLOGG PACT

Seen as Move Against Soviet Union

phere supercharged with war, while the iron heel of international militarism clanked thru the clock hall of the Quai D'Orsay. The solemn play of signing was ushered in by the arrest of 43 Communists. The building in which it was enacted was surrounded with police. Sergeants de Ville infested every embrasure and entrance for blocks around and at their head was Chiappe, the Paris police chief, notorious for his brutal suppression of workers following the demonstrations for Sacco and Vanzetti.

No representative of the Soviet government was at this "peace" conference. The representatives of the governments there assembled were consciously performing the first maneuver in the circuitous preparations for war against the Soviet Union.

"Peace is proclaimed," Premier Briand, the French foreign minister, told the 14 delegates gathered in the Salon Des Ambassadeurs at the Quai D'Orsay, "but it still remains necessary to organize it. That is work for tomorrow."

When he had finished, Briand turned to Stresemann, the German foreign minister, and bowed. The German official, in an impressive silence, proceeded to the central table almost falteringly, took up the huge gold pen and signed his name to both copies of the treaty. One copy, in French, will be preserved in the archives here and the other, in English, at Washington.

After the delegates adjourned to the gardens for tea, the crowd poured into the room, trying to touch the treaty. Guards pushed them back and surrounded the treaty while photographers took close-ups of it.

The arrest of the Communists followed their denunciation of the Kellogg "peace" pact as an effort to cloak the military preparations of the signatories against the Soviet Union under cover of the so-called multilateral peace treaty.

TO JAIL OBREGON PLOTTERS IN U. S.

Issues Warrant Against Accomplices

Acting on advices from Manuel C. Telles, Mexican ambassador to the United States at Washington, U. S. Commissioner Francis A. O'Neill today issued warrants for the arrest of six Mexicans in New York allegedly implicated in the assassination of General Alvero Obregon.

Among the warrants issued was one for the arrest of Manuel Trejo [illegible], 21, who has been mentioned prominently in dispatches from Mexico City as implicated in the murder of Obregon. The others, [illegible] Navarro Becerra, 34, [illegible] Rabolez Ochoa, 24, Jose A. [illegible], 35, Enrique M. Zepeda, 35, [illegible] Ortega are specifically charged with the murder of Obregon and also implicated in recent bomb outrages in the Mexican capital.

At Funeral of Boy Victim of I. R. T.

One case which the I. R. T. subway crash at Times Square last Friday night brought to light is typical of the great American boss slogan, "work hard and you'll get ahead." As usual it was frustrated, this time by N. Y. Traction Company greed. The parents of Irving Rabinowitz had a little grocery store and had starved along all their lives to "make something" of their son. He was finishing his medical studies when the I. R. T. made something of him that his parents had never intended. Fate? Not at all, but another American tragedy of boss propaganda. Above, the boy's parents at his funeral.

EXPOSE KANSAS DRIVE AGAINST COMMUNISTS

duty, necessity, propriety, expediency or justification of a means of accomplishing, effecting or bringing about industrial or political ends, change or revolution, and one Nelson, S. "Evidence."

The "evidence" to prove this, seized by the police at the two meetings they broke up, consists of 20 copies of the national election program of the Workers (Communist Party, application cards for membership in the Party, a book on Sacco and Vanzetti by Max Shachtman, copies of the Labor Defender, the official organ of the International Labor Defense, a number of leaflets issued by the nucleus of the Workers Party in the Armour plant and similar material.

I. L. D. Statement.

The statement of the national office of International Labor Defense on the case issued by Martin Ahern, assistant national secretary, says, in part, as follows:

"The reactionary authorities of Kansas, alarmed at the growth of the radical labor movement in the state and urged on by the Packing Trust which is also dissatisfied with the activities of the Workers (Communist) Party whose members have been agitating for a union in the plants of Kansas City, have taken the first steps towards driving a working class party out of existence in the state and railroading its most active members to long years of imprisonment in the state penitentiaries.

"The arrest of the dozen workers in Kansas City, and the breaking up of meetings in front of Armour's, and the International Labor Defense meetings in Kansas City and Arma is indicative of the determination with which the authorities are going about with their dirty anti-labor work. The attack, directed primarily against the Workers Party, is an attack against a legal political organization, whose candidates for the presidency and vice-presidency, William Z. Foster and Benjamin Gitlow respectively, are officially on the ballot in the state of Kansas. The holding of political meetings are supposed to be guaranteed by the U. S. constitution.

Attack on Communists.

"The Kansas Criminal Syndicalism Law is one of the many adopted throughout the country in a vicious attempt to crush the labor and revolutionary movement. In Kansas it has already been used on numerous occasions to imprison some of the best militants in the state for no other reason than their membership in a labor organization and their devotion to the cause of the working class.

"The charges against the workers arrested in Kansas City simmers down to the 'crime' of belonging to the Workers (Communist) Party and advocating its program, the program of a legally recognized political organization."

The International Labor Defense then calls upon all workers to rally to the support of the defense immediately so that the authorities may be prevented from sending innocent workers to serve long terms of imprisonment.

All unions, and other labor organizations are urged to adopt resolutions immediately calling for the release of the prisoners and for the immediate repeal of the Criminal Syndicalism law as a flagrant and vicious piece of anti-labor legislation.

To Call Conference.

Meetings are to be organized throughout the state of Kansas so that the workers of that state will be able to express their opposition to the frame-up and to the "C. S." law. The International Labor Defense will also call a state-wide conference of all labor organizations in Kansas as soon as possible to mobilize all available forces to fight for the release of the men and the end of the Criminal Syndicalism law. Special efforts are to be made to build and strengthen the I. L. D. so as to better enable it to carry on the work in this and other cases.

Needs Funds.

The legal aspects of the case are being organized rapidly by the national office of the I. L. D. Nationally-known attorneys will be secured to represent the defense in the case as part of the campaign to use every means to smash the attempts of the Kansas authorities to make the Workers Party illegal in that state. It is understood that efforts are now being made to retain the services of such well-known attorneys as Jerome Walsh, of Missouri, the son of Frank P. Walsh and himself a member of the Missouri State Legislature, and Congressman Coombs, who represents the state of Missouri in the national house of representatives. Attorney Meeks of Kansas City has already been engaged.

In order to help meet the tremendous costs that fighting the case will involve, the I. L. D. today also appealed to workers and progressive-minded people throughout the country to send funds immediately to aid in defraying the expenses.

WANT OWN LABOR COUNCIL: JAILED BY JUGOSLAVS

50 Dalmatian Workers Arrested

ZAGREB, Yugoslavia, (By Mail).—An attempt of the members of labor unions in Split, Dalmatia to wrest the labor council in that city from the hands of a group of corrupt officials has resulted in the arrest of more than fifty workers at the date of this writing with prospects for more arrests in the near future.

Although the council is known as a workers council, contrary to what one may expect from the name, it has nothing to do with the interests of the workers. For many years this council was ruled by a board put together by the government party, which board used money obtained from workers for personal enterprises and even for reactionary police actions. For a long time working class organizations demanded that a new board be appointed but to no effect. Not only the unions, brutally persecuted by the police, but also the nationalist organizations and other organization condemned in the sharpest terms the directors of the labor council.

Due to the growing force of these protests the government finally had to order a re-organization of the council. Hoover, working class and national organizations were not included in the list and only a list of the old corrupt elements was drawn up.

As the reorganization meeting was being held a large number of angry workers crowded the meeting room, exposed the members of the old board and broke up the meeting. Immediately police and gendarmes entered the picture and arrested over fifty workers. The arrests are still going on. Among the arrested there are many functionaries and leaders of unions and other working class organizations. They were brutally beaten in the police prisons and then handed over to the courts.

Naturally, at a new meeting the new board of directors was elected in accordance with the wish of the government. The board consists of thirteen members, of which only two are workers and the rest of officials—among them a bank director and a lawyer.

SCABS ATTACK STEEL STRIKERS

Ohio Men Turn Down Bosses' Terms

sioner Faukner of the labor department made to the strike committee, declaring that if the men would accept a bonus as part of the agreement the government would back it up.

The strike committee solidly refused to deal with the commissioner on any other than a flat rate, no bonus basis.

The plant has been badly crippled by the walkout of the men and the strikebreakers are working only three days a week, although the company is known to have big orders on hand, notably for material for airplane motors.

See Massillon Strike.

The spirit among the pickets is excellent and the line is at the mill daily.

Fear of the Massillon Steel officials that the strike will spread to their plant from Canton is leading them to take savage repressive measures and seven men were discharged yesterday for having strike leaflets in their possession or for distributing them. An army of stools and detectives has permeated the plant and every move of the workers is the subject of a report to the corporation officials from one or another of these agents.

Espionage and the trial of the three Canton strike leaders arrested at Massillon, which the corporation designed as an object lesson to the other workers, has served merely to arouse the strikers' strike sentiment in the mill.

USSR to Turn Czarist Prison Hell-Hole Into Revolutionary Museum

LENINGRAD, U. S. S. R., Aug. 27.—The Old Shlusselburg Fortress on the banks of the Neva, where many noted revolutionists were imprisoned by the czarist government, will be opened as a Revolutionary Museum by the Soviet Government on August 29.

The cells will be left as they are, many of them bearing the inscriptions of former revolutionary prisoners. Visitors will be able to see the damp and dark cells under the level of the Neva, with their single iron cots, wet and sparse floors.

At the execution place tablets with the names of the prisoners executed will be placed.

a permit for a parade of textile strikers on Labor Day. Two parades hitherto arranged by the T. M. C. Union were broken up by the police force.

The reactionary officialdom of the A. F. of L. Textile Council announced its acceptance of the permit to parade on Labor Day tendered them by the mill owners' mayor. The permit granted carries specifications which are directly aimed at the T. M. C. Union Children under fourteen, the singing of strike songs, the displaying of badges and signs, parade halts, and speaking are all forbidden by the mayor.

The parade day, however, is regarded by the workers and strikers of the city as a test of strenght between the A. F. of L. Union and the militant organization.

(Special to the Daily Worker)

FALL RIVER, Mass., Aug. 27.—Following a huge mass meeting of over 4,000 textile workers here, held to honor the memory of the working class martyrs, Sacco and Vanzetti, the police, quiter for a few days, again began to intensify their persecution of the Textile Mill Committees and their members.

An additional registration office, rented yesterday to facilitate the signing up of the flood of new members coming into the Textile Mill Committees, was padlocked by police yesterday. They also placed a special guard at the doors to keep them closed.

DOCTOR REVEALS TORTURING IN VENIZELOS JAILS

Found Worker Suffering From Wounds

BERLIN (By Mail).—In behalf of the Greek Workers' Aid, Dr. Zouraris visited the proletarian prisoners in the Greek prisons. In spite of the difficulties put forth by the police, he succeeded in visiting a few jails. Concerning such a visit he makes the following statement:

"The undersigned doctor visited Leonidas Stingos, 28 years old, in jail and testifies to the following: 1. Bleeding and swelling of the right eye, caused by a blunt instrument; 2. Bleeding of the gluteal parts and skin; 3. Wounds on the ankles of both feet caused by a sharp instrument; 4. Swelling on the soles of both feet, undoubtedly caused by a whip; 5. Bloody discharges at coughing.—G. Zouradis."

The same doctor, on the ground of his investigations, sent appeals to all newspapers, in which he pointed out the mistreatment and proved the responsibility of the prefect of police of Saloniki. The prefect threatened him with deportation.

times, when, according to the so-called democracy, every party has the right to express itself before the people. It is stopped by the police, who are proving themselves to be tools of the coal operators, because they will not allow a working-class party to step forward to expose the corruptness of this system and to mobilize the workers to fight against it. . . ."

At this point Chief Taylor stopped the speaker and, using the half a dozen plain clothes men, chased out all the delegates from the hall, which is used by the Party as its office and meeting place.

In a statement issued to the press, the Sub-district Committee makes it clear that they are going to fight back to test out the Mussolini-like action of the police chief. The conference will be held again this Friday evening, August 31, on the same place, and the September 1 picnic with Benjamin Gitlow in Sans Souci Park is expected to be a huge success.

As far as Secretary Kellogg goes one-sixth of the earth doesn't exist. This is the U. S. S. R. But nonexistent countries as well as those recognized by the heavy-headed secretary of state may be allowed to sign his phoney peace pact. This is indicated by the humorous declaration of Acting Secretary of State Castle who says that adherence by the U. S. S. R. to the pact would not in any sense constitute recognition of the Moscow regime by the United States. Kellogg expects the combined capitalist states will wipe out the U. S. S. R. before he will be forced to admit there is such a thing. Kellogg forgets only one thing—the revolutionary proletariat.

Al Smith, who stays awake nights thinking of ways to get his picture in the paper, did so above by standing beside the first bale of cotton of the season, which was auctioned off at "Show Boat." Al claims he is far more liable to lead the farmers out of their misery than Herbert Hoover because Herbert never did auction off a bale of cotton in his life. Due to the strength of the working class in New York Al has posed as a friend of labor to boost his votes. He is the father of the housing bill which never built any houses and now he is trying to put over a powerful bill which will be a powerful aid to the power distributing corporations. Al Smith's platform for the presidency is personality. Workers should remember that no matter how strong the personality of an engineer he can't make a locomotive fly.

CAMPAIGN TALK BRINGS FIERCE BOSS REPRISAL

Grim Silence Reveals Workers' Anger

KANSAS CITY, Kan. (By Mail).—The Armour and other packing house bosses, in order to stem the tide of the rising spirit of revolt on the part of the packing house workers, have begun a reign of police terror. On Tuesday noon, August 21, Hugo Oehler, organizer of the Workers (Communist) Party in District 10, and Matthew Cushing, packing house worker, were arrested by the police when they addressed a meeting of Armour's workers at the gates of the plant.

Early in the morning, before the workers entered the plant, leaflets were handed out to them, asking the workers to walk out at noon and attend the meeting.

While this distribution of literature was performed, 100 workers stopped at the entrance enthusiastically discussing the development of the organization drive. The response of the workers of the biggest company in the industry sent alarm down the line of the packing offices. The meeting at the Cudahy plant a few days previously added fire to the uneasiness of the bosses.

"We have got to clean 'em out of town," was the expression of one of the three bosses sitting in a rich car, and it became clear that at the noon meeting the bosses would call the police into action to intimidate and drive fear into the hearts of the workers, in this way hoping to stop the movement for organization.

At noon workers began to stream out of the gates, and, noticing the police on foot and motorcycles, they stopped, awaiting developments.

A policeman approached Oehler and told him to clear out. "There will be no meeting," he said. Whereupon Oehler protested on the grounds that he represented a political party which is on the ballot in the state of Kansas. The workers intently listened to the conversation. The policeman retreated to consult the Armour official. Oehler mounted the platform and began to speak. Workers, encouraged by the fact that the organizer did not permit himself to be bulldozed, flocked to the speaker's stand. The company's official became nervous. He ran over to the cops on the motorcycles, shouting "Look, he is speaking. Do something."

The cop stood for a while listening to Oehler, who explained that the party's nominees are William Z. Foster and Ben Gitlow. Then Oehler began to speak on the issues confronting the workers. "Our purpose in entering this election campaign is not only to seek your vote as a protest against capitalism, but also to organize the workers against the bosses." "That's enough," shouted the cop and with a clenched fist ran up to Oehler and pulled him down from the platform. The crowd began to follow Oehler, but then stopped when a Cudahy young packing house worker, Matthew Cushing, took Oehler's place and began to speak. A policeman violently rushed back and shouted: "You here, too?" and pulled him off. However, while he was being escorted by the policeman he continued shouting at the top of his voice. Workers applauded when he declared that the packing workers will not stand for a three-dollar-a-day wage. Stool-pigeons and bosses were also organized and a few tried to shout hurrah, but were soon silenced by the grim looks of the crowd.

When the police forced Oehler and Cushing into the automobile, Oehler shouted: "Fellow-workers, we'll see you later." Then one cop, instigated by the company official, rushed to him and slugged him until blood appeared. Meanwhile the streets were lined by the masses of the Armour workers. There was no excitement, which is the usual thing when an arrest happens, but there was a grim silence which definitely expressed the disapproval, nay, even bitterness, of the workers against the police brutality. They were brought into the police station, locked up and held incommunicado.

Company officials were on the spot trying to get some names, while representatives of the American Legion and K. K. K. were anxious to find out what was the strength of the Communists in the Armour plant. Wednesday morning the two workers were bailed out, the police setting a $500 bond for each on a vagrancy charge. Meanwhile the stool-pigeons and foreman circulated wild rumors in the packing house plant re the persecution of the Communists, such stories as deportation, life sentences and the like. At the same time the company is preparing lay-offs of workers under the alleged Communist leanings of the workers for the purpose of further intimidating the workers.

The Workers (Communist) Party is, however, consolidating its forces to fight the assault of the Armour and other packing interests. The I. L. D. is calling a protest meeting in Kansas. The Armor Nucleus also issued a special statement to the Armour workers offsetting the assault of the bosses.

SLUG PROGRESSIVE MACHINIST MEN

(By a Worker Correspondent)

CHICAGO, Ill., (By Mail).—On Monday night, August 13th at the meeting of the District 8 lodge of the International Association of Machinists, two progressive members of the I. A. of M., William Mauseth of Lodge 113 and William Simons, of Lodge 199, both of Chicago were set upon by Charles Fry, business agent of Lodge 126 and the sluggers from his lodge. Mauseth is a trustee of his lodge, and a delegate to the Chicago Federation of Labor. Simons is a trustee of Lodge 199 and recently elected by Lodge 199 as the delegate to the Atlanta convention of the I. A. of M. on September 17th.

Simons got blows on the forehead and jaw, which became swollen, before he succeeded in getting out of their hands. Mauseth, unable to get away, was beaten almost to a pulp, drenched in blood. In the meeting hall, he was battered, thrown to the ground, and kicked all over his body. His nose and eyes are swollen, his body bruised all over. As Mauseth was being pushed downstairs, he was punched from all sides. Fry himself, a big bully, directed the beating.

Desperate Over Defeat.

Fry, the boss of District 8, has become desperate because of the growth of the progressive forces in this district. In the Chicago district election in December, 1927, the progressive forces increased their vote for business agents and other district offices, running on a program which was printed and distributed among the membership, making great headway. Threats of expulsion and beating up progressives were made by Fry in the district lodge meetings, but later denied by him. Last Monday night's exhibition of unbridled ferocity shows that his program is one of slugging, of gangsterism.

Czar Fry introduced amendments to the I. A. of M. Constitution, proposing the abolition of the present referendum for election of grand lodge officers (substituting election by the convention every four years); and also proposing compulsory insurance which means much higher dues. Fry's propositions were defeated in a large number of locals, largely due to the efforts of the progressive forces. Lodge 113, tool and die makers, voted down Fry's propositions. In Lodge 199, Brother Simons was elected a delegate to the Atlanta convention on a full progressive program, in opposition to Fry's amendments.

A week ago at the Lodge 199 meeting, Fry made an attack on Simons, laying down an anti-Communist barrage, branding every progressive a Communist, making the usual stupid charges of Soviet control, trotting out the usual faker's line. Simons made an effective reply, despite threats of physical beating from some of Fry's henchmen.

Fry, a Thug Himself.

Under the heading "Good and Welfare" Fry read the recently issued program for the I. A. of M. convention by the International Machinist Progressive Group, branding the Amalgamated plank an I. W. W. program, of the One Big Union. The argument for organizing women he dismissed lightly with the old fashioned idea that "Woman's place is in the home." He opposed taking Negroes into the organization because "these niggers scabbed during the packing house strike." After declaring that the program was contrary to the principles of the I. A. of M., he said that the time had come for a show down; the progressives were gaining too much ground among the membership; the time had come to act. Mauseth and Simons should be given a chance to speak, and then be kicked out of the hall; if the district lodge couldn't do it, then he, Fry, would do so.

Progressives Stand Firm.

Mauseth and Simons hurled back at Fry his own accusations, charging him with disrupting the organization, with terrorizing members, with denial of the right of members to run their own organization. They showed the need of organizing women, youth and Negroes if machinists standards were to be maintained and improved. They declared that Fry and the grand lodge officials were peas from the same pod, reactionary, following a policy that had undermined the organization. Mauseth and Simons defended the planks in the progressive program.

They stated that if they had to take a licking, they would, Mauseth saying that he had taken beatings from scabs, and if necessary, he could take a beating from Fry and his sluggers.

Their speeches received applause for their militant stand. Their speeches were in marked contrast to that of Fry. These progressives spoke militantly for a policy of struggle, without bringing in personalities, showing an understanding of the problems facing the I. A. of M. and the required solution, while Fry's speech showed his bankruptcy, his intolerance, his determination to rule or ruin, despite the will of the membership.

Throws Out the Progressives.

Fry then made an harangue, after which he shouted: "Let's throw them out." He walked over to Mauseth, pushed him from his seat and toward the sluggers stationed on the opposite side toward the door, Fry then went for Simons, pushed him out of his seat, then started punching him. The slugging continued as explained above.

The brutal methods of Fry caused indignation among the progressive delegates from many lodges, who feel that they cannot any longer come to district meetings, when any member opposing the propositions of Fry is in danger of being beaten up by Fry's slugging crew. Even some delegates who have supported Fry against the progressives on former occasions had their stomachs turned by Monday's night's exhibition.

Fry's action is the result of desperation. The progressives will rally their forces under the slogan of "Gangsterism Must Go. Elect Progressive Officials on a Progressive Program."

Vare Hearing Again; Vare Is Absent

PITTSBURGH, Pa. Aug. 27.—Forces of the U. S. senate and representatives of two individuals involved gathered here today for the opening of the senate sub-committee hearing in the Wilson-Vare senatorial election of 1926.

William B. Wilson, democratic candidate for senator from Pennsylvania in 1926, who has waged a bitter fight against Vare, his opponent, arrived in Pittsburgh yesterday.

Vare's convenient illness at Atlantic City will prevent him from attending the hearings. Forty-three witnesses, many of them leading politicians of Allegheny County, have been summoned to appear at the opening of the investigation.

LAUNDRY SLAVES ARE EXPLOITED ON WAGONS IN SHOP

Girls Faint in Heat of 100 Degrees

(By a Worker Correspondent)

Having read the Worker Correspondence of Comrade Suskin in the Daily Worker of Aug. 9 about the laundry industry and the working conditions, I would like to add some important data which he forgot to mention.

During the last ten years the laundry industry has grown to be one of the biggest and richest industries of this city. The following fact illustrates how quick the bosses get rich.

$20,000 a Week.

Eight years ago, when I started to work for one of the present very big laundries, it was a poor place, washing about 900 bundles. At the present time its size has increased to a two-story building covering four blocks. It washes as many as 7,000 bundles of clothes, amounting to some $20,000 worth of business per week. And it is estimated to be worth $1,500,000 in value.

The laundry employs 300 inside help and 52 outside drivers. This is only one example of the many big laundries of greater New York.

What is the reason that the bosses become so rich and enlarge their plants to such an extent in so short a time? Because of the inhuman exploitation of the laundry workers and the drivers.

Comrade Suskin has already indicated that the average wage of the girls in the mangle room ranges from nine to ten dollars per week for a ten hour day. The average wage of the kitchen help is between $20 and $23 per week, the hours being unlimited with no extra pay for overtime. But if a worker is out a half day on account of sickness, this is taken out of his pay envelope.

Temperature, 100.

Comrade Suskin is also right about the miserable sanitary conditions in the laundries. In the afternoon of a very hot day, I drove up in front of the laundry where I work. To my great astonishment five of the girls were lying on the trucks outside in a fainting condition. I inquired of an elderly Irish working woman what had happened. And she told me that they had fainted because of the heat. "What is the wonder with the humidity inside the mangle room at 90 or above and the heat above 100?" There is no ice water for the girls to drink. The board of health ordered the bosses to make windows, but for known reasons the inspectors seem to be lenient with the bosses and no windows have been made yet. The same is true for most of the industry.

250 Organized.

How about labor organizations in this industry? Practically none. Out of the 7,000 laundry drivers of this city, only between 250 and 300 are organized. In a laundry drivers local union of the American Federation of Labor. Just think of it, out of 7,000 drivers only 300 are organized! And their conditions are just as bad as those of the other workers. The driver is the backbone of every laundry, he uses his skill and ability to get the trade and to hold it. He works about 70 hours a week and makes from $30 to $35. The driver is often forced to pay for lost articles out of his wages because the bosses, regardless of their big profits, refuse to make good in such cases.

Organize.

Workers of the laundries, the time has come for us to think about our conditions. Our bosses become millionaires out of our sweat, but we still slave under the worst sanitary conditions for starvation wages and with no labor organization to protect our interests. Think about a union in our industry.

—R. Q.

EDITOR'S NOTE:—For obvious reasons the name of this Worker Correspondent and his laundry are not published. Many workers are afraid to write the Daily Worker because they believe that their paper will print their names and addresses, or the name of their shop. The Daily Worker takes every precaution to guard the names of its Worker Correspondents, of whom there are now hundreds in mills, shops and mines thruout the United States. There are many also on shipboard. Join this group of Worker Writers. Send your paper a story of your conditions today and then show it to your fellow workers when it is printed. Your pen can fight, too, if you will let it. Give it a chance.

Much Fancy Shooting and Ornate Swearing at Morosco

It may be as superfluous as carrying coals to Wilkes-Barre to import a Chicago gang war to New York City, but this is what Willard Mack has done, with his "Gang War" at the Morosco Theatre

It is a realistic story of the effects of prohibition on the peace of a mid-west American city, which plugged along prior to the enactment of the Volstead Act with an average homicide record of one a day. The competition for the privilege of quenching the public thirst with needled beer compelled the competitors to organize standing armies on the theory that eternal vigilance was the measure of their beer profits. Their profits enabled the gangs to purchase the government, state and city administrations, though, as one gangster correctly said, the bootleggers did not do the right thing by the Anti-Saloon League, which was responsible for their prosperity.

"Gang War" keeps the audience from going to sleep, what with shooting and bombs and a couple of seductions. The play starts off with a bang and ends with a bombing. The leader of one beer mob is killed leaving a church. Not satisfied with one corpse, the gang responsible for the murder shot up the cafe in which the dead leader was wont to hold counsel with his men, while the dead chief's successor was busily engaged seducing a little flapper, who liked his money, his champagne and his mustache. The little girl got killed, which compelled the police to ask a few questions. The mess was cleared up to the satisfaction of the police and the audience when the new leader was killed by his discarded sweetheart, his rival had his throat slit by an expert Italian and the gang headquarters bombed by an airplane.

The police department is given credit with being on the level, interested only in the mutual slaughter of the rival mobs. But the sheriff does not get such a square deal. He holds up the gang for dough and pre-war booze, which the gang leader finally refuses to cough up because he believes he is sufficiently powerful to ignore such a political nonentity as a sheriff.

CLAIBORNE FOSTER

Featured in the new comedy, "Eva the Fifth," which is scheduled to open at the Little Theatre tonight.

There is a good deal of hokum in the play, which fails short of being husky melodrama and yet is too serious for good burlesque. In so far as it falls, it drops between these two stools. Nevertheless those citizens who are forced to live under comparatively peaceful and bloodless conditions and wish to satisfy their hidden homicidal cravings will not regret paying the tariff on "Gang War."

It must be admitted that Robert Middlemass, as the police lieutenant, and Charles T. Lewis, as the sheriff, acted their parts realistically. The former was so dumb that he did no know enough to be crooked and the latter was so crooked that he could afford to look dumb. Anne Forrest, as Mazie Dowley, looked agreeable and shot her faithless gang leader like a regular little wife, and though Wilma Lanyon, as Olive Moore, she who was seduced, did not have much time to do her stuff in view of the audience, but she showed enough in the short time at her disposal to convince the most captious that she feared nothing in this world less deadly than a bomb.

Fifty-five per cent interesting.

NEW BALL GAME OF JUSTICE IN JUGOSLAV COURT

Torture Exile by Many Shipments

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia, Aug. 27.—The case of the hotel-keeper Adam Mueller of Osijek, which has been in the public eye for some weeks, is growing into one of the greatest extradition scandals of the last few years. Mueller, who was born in Hungary, has been living with his family for the last thirty years in Osijek. He became a citizen of the Jugoslav state and denied allegiance to all other states.

Suddenly it occurred to the police chief of Osijek, the well-known working class persecutor Cvijetko Hervat, to lodge a charge against Mueller that he was using his hotel as a meeting place for the illegal Communist Youth organization. Mueller was escorted to the Hungarian border by gendarmes, but the Hungarian officials did not want to have anything to do with him and brought him back to Jugoslavia.

Mueller now lived for fourteen days in Osijek under the strict surveillance of the police only to be sent back again to Hungary. Again the Hungarian officials denied him refuge in Hungary and for the second time was he sent back to the Jugoslav border.

Police Chief Hervat now was struck by a bright idea; he had Mueller brought to the Austrian border.

Since this drawn out persecution had nothing to do with Austria and since Mr. Schober, Austrian police chief, refused to give him asylum, it seems as though Adam Mueller will not be able to withstand very much longer this ball-game between the different border states and the Jugoslav state official.

Police Brutally Break Up Minneapolis Anti-War Meet and Arrest Young Speaker

HOLD YOUTH IN JAIL WITHOUT GIVING REASON

700 Workers Protest Brutal Action

(Special to the Daily Worker)

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Aug. 26.—Police yesterday attacked and broke up an anti-war meeting held under the auspices of the Workers (Communist) Party and Young Workers (Communist) League on Bridge Square here, and arrested Carl Cowl, ex-National Guardsman, and now a member of the Young Workers (Communist) League. Cowl was roughly handled, taken to the police station, and detained there without any charge having been made against him.

Seven hundred workers, gathered on the square to protest against the capitalist war preparations, stood their ground in spite of the police attack and listened to Pat Devine, who mounted the platform immediately after the arrest of Cowl, denounce the brutal action of the police. He called upon the workers to demand the unconditional release of Cowl and to fight for their rights of free speech.

Scores Police Terror.

"The action of the police," he said, "is obviously a continuation of the entire government policy of the suppression of anti-militarist work in the Citizens Military Training Camps throughout the country."

As Devine concluded his appeal to the workers, after all the Workers (Communist) Party platforms had been sold to those gathered on the square, the city bomb squad arrived at the meeting. "They had evidently been rushed to the meeting for the purpose of creating a disturbance in order to be able to attack the Workers (Communist) Party anti-militarist activities on a new charge," a report from Minneapolis stated.

The meeting, however, was almost over, and the bomb squad was unable to create any disorder on the square.

Devine announced another meeting to be held Wednesday, with Carl Cowl as the principal speaker. The 700 workers at the Bridge Square meeting determined by a unanimous vote to carry on the fight against the capitalist militarist activities.

NEW MILL UNION MOVEMENT

Weisbord Textile Tour Gets Big Response

The work in preparation for the national convention to be held in New York City Sept. 22-23 to build a new textile union is proceeding rapidly apace. The left wing movement centered in Boston, New Haven, Philadelphia, New York, Scranton, Buffalo, and other places, is mobilizing its forces to see that in all cities in these territories delegates are sent to the national convention.

Already several preliminary conferences have been held. A national leaflet is being broadcasted and distributed in the important textile cities, towns and villages. Albert Weisbord, Secretary of the National Textile Mills Committees, is now conducting a tour to intensify the propaganda for the new union, to get delegates for the coming convention, and to build mill committees everywhere. Already he has covered Manchester, N. H., Nashua, N. H., and in Massachusetts the towns of Lawrence, Lowell, Taunton, New Bedford, Fall River, Salem, Peabody, East Hampton, and Holyoke. In all of these places the leaflets distributed are very well received by the textile workers. Meetings with groups of workers have been held and delegates secured for the national convention.

In many places where Albert Weisbord has gone, meetings had not been held for many years. These meetings have acted as bombshells eliminating the darkness and breaking the terror of the mill owners. Secretary Weisbord will continue the tour covering the following places: Shelton, Bridgeport and Willimantic, Conn., Woonsocket, Olneyville and Pawtucket, R. I., Corona and Astoria, L. I., West New York, N. J., New York City, Paterson and Passaic, N. J., Chester, Kensington, Easton, Allentown, Scranton, Nanticoke, Luzerne and other points in Pennsylvania, Utica, Amsterdam, Little Falls, Herkimer and other cities in New York State.

Textile workers everywhere wishing to attend the convention should communicate with Albert Weisbord, Secretary, National Textile Mill Committees, 96 Fifth Ave., room 311.

RED CANDIDATE HITS IRT HEADS

health of the millions of workers of New York City who are compelled to use the subways, elevateds, etc. This criminal policy inevitably led to the tragedy of last Friday when, with 2,000 crowded into the ten trains, scores of lives were sacrificed to the greed and profits of the traction barons. Nor has this been the first of such accidents. As far back as 1918 the transit commission was informed that the Malbone Street disaster, where hundreds of people were killed and injured was also due to a conscious undermanning of safety devices and equipment.

Not Safety, But Profit First.

"For the past ten years the transit history of New York has consisted of a series of wrecks and collisions, attended by terrific loss of life. What concern is it of the rich stockholders and directors of the subway company that the lives of those who work underground, of those who must travel in the subways are jeopardized and imperilled? The Hedleys, the Quackenbushes, Dahls and Chadbournes are but interested in increasing their profits; if expenses can be lowered by not making necessary repairs and improvements by worsening the conditions of those who work for the company the matter of lives of workers and passengers counts for nothing in their estimation. A few thousand dollars spent in campaign contributions goes a long way toward closing the eyes of city officials to the criminal negligence of the I. R. T.

Slaughter in Fight for 7c. Fare.

"There is no question but that the Traction Company hoped to put across the 7-cent fare by pursuing such policies. They hoped that the workers, becoming impatient with poor, crowded, insufficient and dangerous service would be willing to pay increased fare. They did not point out, of course, that the profits the Traction Company made last year were more than enough to take care of all necessary repairs and improvements, could have provided for additional cars and service and could have made possible wage increases and better conditions for the subway workers.

"In this criminal policy, the I. R. T. has had the support of the city and state government. Al Smith, the Democratic Governor of New York State and candidate for President on the democratic ticket and the republican legislature are equally responsible. They did not compel the traction company to make the necessary improvement in service though the order was given several months ago. Tammany judges and Tammany police have time and time again aided the transit company with injunctions and police clubs in their attack upon traction workers when these workers went out on strike for improved conditions and for the right to organize.

Tammany's Masters.

"Tammany Hall with Mayor Walker in the lead not only have not put up a fight against the seven cent fare steal, but have laid the basis for it immediately after the elections are over. And now Mayor Walker caps the climax by excusing the I. R. T. by saying: 'Terrible and deplorable as it is, we find some comfort in splendid subway construction where a train would split in half, yet only one supporting column was destroyed. The rest of the structure is safe.' Already the traction Company and government officials are attempting to lay the blame for the disaster upon some innocent worker.

"The traction robbers as Chadbourne, Kenny and others are known supporters of Smith's candidacy. Kenny who is a big stockholder in Traction Company has already given $50,00 for Smith's Campaign and has stated that he is ready to give more. Nor does Hoover the republican candidate lack such support.

"The millions of workers of New York City will not be deceived by the attempts of the I. R. T. and of the two parties, the democratic and the republican parties to whitewash their responsibility for the tragedy.

Prosecute Real Criminals

"The Workers (Communist) Party demands that the executive heads of the Traction Company who are responsible for Friday's catastrophe should be criminally prosecuted for what is tantamount to mass murder. Neither the Traction Company nor Tammany Hall, its agent, gives one snap of the fingers for the lives or the welfare of the workers of the city.

"The workers themselves must carry on the fight for the maintenance of the 5 cent fare, to demand better service and more safety provisions.

"The Workers (Communist) Party demands the right to organize for the traction workers.

"It calls upon the workers of New York City and New York State to oppose the parties of Wall Street and of the traction Company, the republican and democratic parties.

"It calls upon the workers to support the Workers (Communist) Party and vote for its candidates, William Z. Foster for president and Benjamin Gitlow for vice-president as the only Party which safeguards the interests of the workers."

Taxi Drivers' Union Formed; Assail Abuses

The organization of a Taxi Chauffeurs Union with probable tie-up of all taxi traffic in New York City in the near future if the demands of the new organization are not complied with by the bosses, has been announced by the Union Organization Committee of the new union.

Speaking for the Taxi Chauffeurs Union Charles Kroll, secretary of the organization, declared that the drivers were determined that the time had come to put an end to the abuses by fleet owners and corporations.

A similar statement has been issued by the Organization Committee.

Abuses on the part of bosses and foremen in the taxicab garages, being compelled to drive cars in bad condition, often with faulty brakes, and police control of the Hack License Bureau are among the abuses cited by the committee in its statement.

In reference to the latter abuse the announcement points to the discrimination to which it leads in the streets and courts.

Hackmen are frequently compelled to stand two trials once in court and again before the Hack Bureau, tho this is contrary to the American Constitution.

Members of the Organization Committee of the union declare that enthusiasm for the new union is in direct proportion to the resentment of the chauffeurs for the abuses which they have been forced to suffer in the past.

Widespread sympathy is reported and the committee believes that the growth of the union will be swift.

USSR TO BUILD ARCTIC BASES

MOSCOW, USSR., Aug. 27.—The Council of People's Commissars has organized under the chairmanship of Sergius Kamenev, acting chairman of the Revolutionary Military Council, a special government committee to prepare a five-years plan for scientific investigatory work in arctic regions of the USSR.

The committee will prepare and submit for the consideration of the government projects to construct geophysical observations on the Franz-Joseph Land, New Zemblia and the North Land and special moving masts as resting bases for scientific arctic expeditions on dirigibles within the territory of the USSR.

The question of construction of such moving masts on Soviet territory was raised at first on the Aeroarctic Congress in Leningrad, in June of this year, being proposed by Fritjopf Nansen and Captain Walter Brunsek and supported by the Soviet section of Aeroarctic.

The committee consists of representatives of the All-Union Academy of Science, Soviet section of Aeroarctic, Association for Studying the Northern Seas, Society of Chemistry and Aviation, etc.

ARABS AWAITING BRITISH INROAD

Lawrence Returns to Aid Imperialists

CAIRO, Egypt, Aug. 26.—Rumors continue to arrive from Tansjordania and Irak that the British forces are being concentrated on the Arabian frontier for invasion of that country as soon as the great heat is past.

The return of Lawrence to Arabia is regarded as significant of the gravity of the situation and the importance which the British government attaches to its present undertaking.

The immediate pretext for the concentration of troops, together with which are armored cars and plane squadrons, is the break-down of the diplomatic conversations with Ibn Saud, king of the Hedjaz and sultan of Nejd, at Jeddah.

Strong resentment against both the British and French, who are suspected here of acting in concert against the Arabs and Syrians, is reported from all parts of the Near East.

FAIL TO HALT SACCO MEETING

Baltimore Workers Unintimidated

BALTIMORE, Md. (By Mail).—A squad of police failed to intimidate the hundreds of workers who attended a Sacco-Vanzetti memorial meeting held here last Wednesday.

Herbert Benjamin, district 3 organizer of the Workers (Communist) Party, was the principal speaker at the meeting. He discussed the seven years' torture of Sacco and Vanzetti and described the role played by the capitalist class in the frame-up. Benjamin also spoke on the political campaign and declared that Governor Smith had given silent assent to the murder of the two workers. He urged all Baltimore workers to vote Communist in the coming elections.

Other speakers were Elmer Smith of the Young Workers League and Hilda Wolfe of the Young Pioneers. Henry Neuman acted as chairman of the meeting.

Report U. S. Invested In Colombia Close to Seventy Million Dollars

WASHINGTON, Aug. 27.—After a report of the minister of finance on the national debt of Colombia, read in the senate, the Minister of Labor and Industry, Sr. Montalvo, declared that he opposes contracting all loans in New York, and that in this he is in accord with President Abadia Mendez who is opposed to Colombia's placing all its loans in the United States.

It appears from the report that the total foreign debt of Colombia is $190,400,000, of which $73,000,000 is government loans, $77,000,000 loans of provinces and $40,000,000 borrowed by municipalities. The internal loans amount only to $8,513,000.

The report did not say how much of the foreign debt has been contracted in Great Britain and how much in the United States, but in 1925 the U. S. department of commerce estimated investments in Colombia at about $70,000,000.

The establishment of two new units of the General Motors Corporation abroad was announced yesterday by J. D. Mooney, vice-president of the huge automobile company.

WORLD CONGRESS DENOUNCES ACTS OF OPPOSITION

Elect Commission to Frame Resolution

to mobilize the world proletariat and all enslaved peoples for the defense of the Soviet Union, the Socialist Fatherland of all the exploited as the beginning of the world revolution.

Semard, of France, then made a declaration in the same spirit on behalf of the French, Italian, Belgian, Spanish, Swiss and Dutch delegations. Bell did likewise on behalf of the British, American, Canadian, Latin American and New Zealand delegations. Rogitch spoke for the Jugo-Slav, Bulgarian, Rumanian and Greek delegates; Strachov for China, Japan, Indonesia, etc.; Fachri for Turkey, Persia, Syria, Palestine, Egypt and Arabia.

Opposition Treason.

Semard then declared that the Trotzkyists had become among the greatest enemies of Communism by denying the possibility of building Socialism in one country alone, by declaring the existence of a thermidor in the Russian Revolution, by international fractional work and especially by their activities in the All-Union Communist Parties.

The undersigned delegations therefore approve unreservedly all measures taken against the opposition as questions vital to the existence of the dictatorship of the proletariat.

Abroad the oppositionists are allying themselves with the social democrats against the Communist International, as for example in Belgium where they have split the Party, in Holland where they have contributed to causing the Dutch trade unions to leave the Red International of Trade Unions, and in Italy where anti-Communist work among the emigrants is being carried on.

In France the leaders of the opposition were expelled and the opposition fell to pieces. The Congress must condemn the Trotskyist opposition because its activities only aid counter-revolution.

Bell Speaks.

Bell, of Great Britain, then declared that the opposition's statement that the condition of the workers in the Soviet Union is growing worse is a slander. The standard of living of the workers in the U. S. S. R. is steadily improving, while the building up of Socialsm in the Soviet Union is uninterruptedly proceeding.

The Trotskyist charge of the "national limitation" of Russia is disproved by the splendid help given by Russian workers to the British miners and all other oppressed and fighting sections of the workers and colonial peoples.

All the weapons of the social democrats against the Soviet Union in recent years have been taken from the Trotskyist arsenal. The undersigned delegations approve completely all measures against the opposition and demand no readmission of oppositionists until they have abandoned all false ideas and subordinated themselves completely to Communist discipline.

Rogitch's Address.

Rogitch then approved completely the measures against the opposition. Only a united disciplined Bolshevist Party can overcome the dangers and difficulties of the transformation period, he said. The international proletariat is no longer without a fatherland. It has its fatherland to defend.

Strachov declared that the success of Socialist constructive work in the Soviet Union is the best argument against the Trotskyist opposition. The application of repressive measures against the opposition are not only right but are the duty of the proletarian state. The Trotskyist opposition declared the Canton insurrection a putsch. Objectively it assists the counter-revolution.

Elect Commission.

Fachri then stated that, "our delegations approve completely all measures adopted against the opposition by the All-Union Communist Party. Long years of experience show that the Soviet Union is the only support of the international proletarian movement and national revolutionary movement in the colonial countries."

The Commission for elaborating the resolution was then elected. The Commission consists of Varga, Mauilski, Thaelmann, Semard, Rogitch, Bell, Fachri, and Strachov.

POLICE PREVENT SACCO MEETING IN ST. LOUIS

Use Tear Gas Bombs on St. Louis Workers

(Special to the Daily Worker)

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Aug. 26.—Workers who yesterday had gathered to hold a Sacco and Vanzetti memorial meeting here were prevnted from holding the meet when more than twenty policemen arrived before the time when the program was scheduled to begin, and lockd the doors of the hall.

As the workers began to arrive, mounted police reached the scene and brutally rode their horses through the gathering crowd, aided by the original squad who immediately opened a tear-gas bomb attack on the defenseless workers.

Hugo Oehler, now charged with criminal syndicalism for his activities in organizing workers in Kansas City and other parts of Missouri, and Sevio, had been scheduled to speak at the meeting.

As a result of the police action, the International Labor Defense of St. Louis has issued a call to all its members to mobilize for a free-speech fight in the city.

You're in the fight when you write for The DAILY WORKER.

Hoover and Smith, Siamese Twins of Finance-Capital.

On the basic question of imperialism Smith and Hoover are perfect twins—we might say Siamese twins. It is important to accentuate this point, because Smith takes a little latitude here in the hope of catching some of the discontented votes. Al Smith says he wants to abolish "the practice of the president of entering into agreements for the settlement of internal disputes in Latin-American countries unless—." "Unless the agreements have been consented to by the senate as provided for in the constitution of the United States" are the qualifying words of Smith. But "the consent of the senate" means nothing more than an inconvenience to the senators who may be obliged to drop the pose of the Borah sort of "anti-imperialism," which proves always to be its opposite when tested. Smith is against "interference in the purely internal affairs of Latin-American countries"—which means, of course, that anything will be construed as not being "purely internal" that may be required as an excuse for invasion and conquest of Latin-Amercan countries. It should be noted carefully that Smith speaks critically of the present military invasion and war against Nicaragua—but he abstains with equal care from any demand that the marines be withdrawn from Nicaragua. It is curiously interesting that Smith for his "anti-imperialist" inspiration goes to "a great republican secretary of state, Elihu Root!" Is this not a sly hint that the democratic party will carry out the republican imperialist policy in Latin America?

But there can be no serious contention that the conquest of Latin America by the United States will not be undertaken as quickly by Smith as by Hoover when Smith declares his readiness to act upon "such responsibilities to civilization as may be placed upon us by the Monroe Doctrine." The Monroe Doctrine today is nothing less than the doctrine of United States imperialist domination and ultimate military rule over all of Latin America.

Nor need anyone be fooled by Smith's attack upon Coolidge's doctrine "that the person and property of a citizen are a part of the national domain even when abroad." It is only an attack upon Coolidge's stupidly frank wording of the doctrine which both of them would put into effect—the sort of "razzing" which is considered legitimate among rival servants of the same boss.

Nowhere does Smith say that he would withdraw the marines from Nicaragua. Nowhere does he say anything more than, in effect, that he would be more skilful than his rival in the enforcing of the imperialist program on Latin America. He constantly refers to Wilson as the highest model, and under Wilson the one greatest giant stride of American imperialism took place—both the militarization of the nation and entry into the world war, and the ruthless conquest of Latin-American countries.

On foreign policy in general there is not even a shadow of pretense of difference.

On the questions of war and armaments, all of Smith's fine words of pacifism are only uttered in rhetorical competition with Kellogg's pacifist drive, and the same imperialist wa[illegible] program is endorsed by Smith when S[illegible] implies his support of the Kellogg p[illegible]

On the farming situation Smith shows a bankruptcy of even the empty words he finds for other questions. He admits he is for precisely the same thing Hoover is for, and that he does not care to say what this is. He cannot say publicly that the program of the masters of both Hoover and himself includes the progressive ruin and expropriation of the farmers. Therefore in the several hundreds of words he used, he suggested not one single concrete measure. Concrete measures, he says, will be found "after election." See?

On the questions pertaining to water power there appears superficially to be a difference, but the program which Smith indicates that he would carry out is not in the least out of accord with the interests of the Raskob and du Pont type of industrial-financial kings, and in practice would be the same program that Hoover would carry out.

In regard to immigration it is amusing to find Smith using almost the same words as some that are used in the socialist party platform, Smith being against "the harsh provision which separates families," and the socialist party being for changes to "permit the reuniting of families," and both upholding the American imperialist immigration bar upon the working class' right to move from one country to another.

It is true that Smith appealed to republican voters holding illusions concerning "liberals like Roosevelt and LaFollette and their party insurgents,"—but the Old Guard republican machine also has restored "Young Bob" to the fold and equally appeals to such elements to remain with the republican party.

On the tariff question no one takes seriously any mild contentions that there is a difference; there is none; the democratic party has admitted that it accepts the republican tariff program, which is, after all, no more a fixed program than it is an obligation to take orders from the same masters.

Wall Street can lose nothing in the election of Smith, and can lose nothing in the election of Hoover. If Hoover is its choice for the head of the traditional party of the trusts and biggest banks, Smith has has been the choice of the same trusts and banks as governor of New York, in which position Wall Street has tested him in four terms and found him a good servant of such open-shop trust-magnates as DuPont, Raskob and Woodin.

The only possible manner in which a worker or a farmer can cause the slightest ripple in the temper of an international banker and trust magnate by the mere casting of a ballot is by voting for that nightmare of all bankers and trust magnates—Bolshevism.

A big vote piled up for Foster and Gitlow, for the Communist ticket both national and state, is the workers' only means of registering the slightest effect in this election. That is—the only means except that of utilizing the election campaign to bring thousands of members into the Workers (Communist) Party, and to strengthen the working class in all of its struggles, in the mine fields, in the textile strike, in the organization of the unorganized.

Make the election campaign a campaign to rally the masses to conscious class struggle. Vote Communist. Join the Communist Party. Make the workers see the connection of Communist politics and the struggle on the picket line! Work for Bolshevism against the Siamese twins of Wall Street!

Hold Red Rally at Cudahy Co.'s Plant

(By a Worker Correspondent)

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (By Mail).—For the first time since the 1921 strike the Packing House workers came out en masse to attend a meeting and a Communist meeting at that. Over 200 workers of the Cudahy Packing House took every spare minute of their lunch time, which lasts 30 minutes, to listen to Hugo Oehler, district organizer of District 10 of the Workers (Communist) Party.

This is the third meeting being held by the Party in front of the Cudahy plant but this meeting unlike the previous two meetings was attended by such a number of workers in response to a leaflet issued by the Communist Party. Following the distribution of the "Packing House Workers" a special leaflet addressed to the Cudahy workers was distributed calling upon them to walk out during their lunch time and attend the meeting at an empty lot on Kansas Avenue in front of the Cudahy plant.

Stool Pigeons and Bosses Tried to Disrupt the Meeting.

When Hugo Oehler mounted the chair which he used as his platform there was no worker in front of him. The reason for it was that a few bosses stood right near him thinking that in this way the workers will be scared away from coming to the meeting. But no sooner had Oehler begun to speak than workers began to come from all directions. Before two minutes were over the sidewalk was jammed to capacity.

The meeting held has greater significance than an ordinary meeting. The Communist Party is not only active in the election campaign but is also active in carrying on an organization campaign among the packing house workers. It is because of the desire on the part of the packing house workers to do away with the terrible exploitation in the houses that they turned out to the meeting.

The drive to organize the packing house workers is not limited to Kansas City alone but to all South Western and Western packing centers.

The packing huose paper which is issued by the Communist Party is being spread in every packing house.

The committee in charge of publishing the "Packing House Worker" states that funds are needed in order to print many copies in order to reach every worker in the packind industry. All contributions should be sent to 207 E. 14th St., Room 1, Kansas City, Mo.

Ten Days of Textile Struggle

By AMY SCHECHTER.

Police Murder Pregnant Woman; Clubbing Fails to Break Picket Line

At the first signs of revolt among their slaves in the grey stone mill prisons of Fall River, the millowners stripped the millworkers of all the defences won by labor in generations of struggle, and systematically set about throttling them into submission.

Police, press, courts, reactionary craft union bureaucracy were immediately mobilized against the strikers. Police violence was used to smash picket lines, the courts to outlaw the strike and forge legal shackle to the activities of the strike leaders; the press to pour slime over the Textile Mill Committees and discourage the strikers by fake back-to-work stories; the labor bureaucrats to order the men under their control to scab in the strike.

The Fall River cotton manufacturers learned to fear the strength and staying power of militantly led millworkers in the course of the New Bedford textile strike still going strong in New Bedford after four months under T. M. C. leadership. Long before the Fall River strike vote was taken all their forces were lined up in readiness to block the first strike move.

Monday, August the sixth, at dawn, when the Fall River strike opened with the walkout of 3,000 workers from the American Printing Company, the city was practically declared under martial law for textile workers. No breathing space. No quarter. Police swarming over the streets "below the hill" where the millworkers of the American Printing Company live. Solid police cordons thrown across the viaducts leading to great fortress of the American Printing Company. Patrol wagons and vans drawn up at the curb ready for mass arrests or use as barricades.

Men and women clubbed and strangled as line after line, five times shattered and five times reforming tried to break through the police wall to picket their mill. The wave of terror rising higher every day. A pregnant woman striker crushed against the iron railing of the viaduct by the police, beaten and thrown aside for the strikers to take to the hospital after the police had gone. Johnny Medeiros, six year old striker's child, ridden down by a trooper herding strikers into their houses after the daily break up of the picket line, running for refuge through a gap in the fence near the river, found soon after drowned—"while swimming"—the police say.

A hundred and fifty police massed on the church steps and the streets outside barricaded to hold back the mill workers attempting to march after the coffin of the boy.

From the break-up of the first TMC mass meeting in Fall River weeks before the strike, the Fall River police have carried out the role of company gangsters as openly as the Coal and Iron in any Rockefeller coal town. Police Chief Feeney, boasting of his personal supervision of police operations in the strike area, openly stated in the press the third day of the strike that he believed he was having success in "breaking the back of the strike." Over a hundred arrests were made during the first days.

The organizers, Jim Reid, Sam Weisman, Peter Hagelias and young Bill Sroka were arrested and rearrested, sometimes three times in a day. A week after the strike began the first case came up for trial. Picketing, singing strike songs, addressing mass meetings, or attending them were all branded as criminal activities. Not content with imposing vicious prison sentences on organizers and the leading rank and file strikers, and demanding heavy bail to keep them jailed, the mill owners' Judge Hannify, created a new legal strikebreaking precedent by placing these men under forfeitable $1000 bonds to "keep the peace" interpreted as refraining from all strike activities.

Of course the strike is meat for the American Legion, which has passed a resolution pledging its members to back Chief Feeney to the limit in his operations to put down "the labor agitation." The last few days a number of prosperous-looking men with the solemnly stupid look of the true legionnaire have been seen sleuthing around "Liberty Lot" during the TMC mass meetings.

Strike Spreads.

And still the strike and preparations for spreading the strike to all the mills of Fall River go on. Thursday the leaders got out on bail. Friday they addressed mass meetings and resumed their other strike activities.

The heavy police barrage may force new tactics on the part of the leaders, but no retreat. The workers, previously unorganized and striking for the first time in their lives, in ten days have learned more about the nature of the capitalist state and its role in bludgeoning the workers back into slavery at the employers command than in all the previous years of their life. They have had their baptism of fire in the class war, and come out of it not intimidated but hardened to the struggle. Committees are stiffened up. Organizational work is carried on with new understanding.

Conditions in Fall River were known as the worst in northern mill towns before the 10 per cent cut last January. $15 was given as the official average wage for Fall River mills at the State Arbitration Board hearing in New Bedford last week. Pay envelopes for July taken at random from a collection of those handed to men working in the Print Works of the American Printing Company show $10.89, $13.41, $12.11, $15.85, $8.18, $12.86, $13.16, $12.05. Most of them married men. In this division men work 11, 12, 13, sometimes up to 16 hours, at the heaviest jobs in the mills, in steaming, fume-laden rooms at high temperatures.

Speed-Up.

Steadily increasing speed-up in mill after mill is paring down the little left to the mill workers after the 10 per cent slash, and driving them beyond endurance. If their stand fails, the workers know that another cut will come in the early Fall.

The fight will be increasingly bitter, but it must go on. Abandonment of the fight for the right to organize, the right to hold meetings, the right to strike, the right to picket, means condemning the mill workers to blacker slavery.

Challenge to Labor.

The denial of these rights by the mill owners and their courts, their violent suppression of every attempt of the mill workers to reach out and take these rights is a challenge to labor and all who believe in guarding the elementary rights.

Outside aid is urgently needed for the Fall River strikers, relief, defense, help in establishing the few legal rights that capitalist legality allows, in order to break through the wall of violence, the cotton manufacturers have built around the mill workers, and give them a fighting chance for their lives.

3 Athletic Meets---Moscow, Amsterdam, New York

By PETER CLARK

II.

The Moscow Spartakiade.

Just as the Amsterdam Olympic Meet represented the high-water mark in the capitalists' use of sports to serve their class interests, so the Moscow Spartakiade was the highest expression of the proletariat sports movement, and of its role as a support of the workers' revolutionary movement.

The Spartakiade was sponsored by the Russian Workers Sports Organization, the Society for the Promotion of Physical Culture, and was supported by the Red Sports International. It lasted from August 12 to 22, and was held at the Michael Tomsky Stadium, which has a seating capacity close to 50,000.

About 5,000 athletes in all took part in the Spartakiade and of this number 1,500 were from foreign countries. In spite of the ban which the Luzerne (socialist) Sports International placed on the participation of any of its members in the Spartakiade, large delegations of social-democratic sportsmen accompanied the Red sportsmen to Moscow. Three hundred participants came from Germany, two hundred from Czecho-Slovakia, 80 from Finland and 90 from France. Smaller delegations came from over a score of smaller countries.

The Spartakiade was made the occasion for a widespread educational campaign carried on in the Soviet Union in favor of physical culture. August 12 was officially pronounced Physical Culture Day, and throughout the Soviet Union there were held sports meets. In all the public squares of Moscow sports exhibitions were staged, with 50,000 worker-athletes taking part, and hundreds of thousands of people watching.

In order to make possible the participation of foreign athletes the Soviet government provided free transportation within the borders of the Soviet Union. The visitors were also maintained at the expense of the government and were quartered at the Third House of the Central Committee of the U. S. S. R.

There was a marked contrast in the manner in which the Spartakiade and the Olympics were run off. First, the attitude of the spectators was fundamentally different. Whereas at the Olympics the crowd was divided into nationalistic sections, at the Spartakiade the spectators were completely international and applauded athletes only on their skill. If anything, the foreign athletes were accorded the most enthusiasm.

Among the athletes themselves there was no semblance of that bitter rivalry, of that hard individualism which distinguished the conduct of the Olympic stars. The bugaboo of professionalism, which was such a big controversial issue at the Olympics, did not even remotely enter into the Spartakiade.

Nearly every athlete taking part was a worker, and those who had come from foreign countries had done so at great personal sacrifices and after overcoming many difficulties.

At the Olympics it had been necessary to lay in a stock of flags of all competing nations—and a terrible uproar had been made because a Canadian flag had been overlooked. But at the magnificent Tomsky Stadium, only one kind of flag was on display—and that was the Red flag of the international proletariat.

Whereas the real political purposes behind Olympics had been hypocritically covered up by the bourgeoisie, the organizers of the Spartakiade openly proclaimed that its primary slogan would be: Defense of the Soviet Union. In line with this slogan, of course was emphasized the solidarity of the proletarian sportsmen the world over against the Olympics, and the capitalist sports movement as a whole. The Spartakiade was a demonstration of the need for proletarian sports, a demonstration of the growing strength of the proletarian sports movement, a demonstration against the bourgeois Olympics.

But, most of all, it was a demonstration of the fact that the class-conscious worker-athletes the world over are prepared to defend their Socialist Fatherland, the Soviet Union, against imperialist aggression.

PRINTERS WIN RAISE

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Aug. 26.—Typographical Union No. 8, of St. Louis, recently accepted a proposal whereby an increase to time workers aggregating $64,000 a year was agreed to, the contract to run for five years.

Told You So

THIS department suggests that the Animal Rescue League communicate with Mr. Frank B. Kellogg, who is now in Paris limbering up for the signing of a treaty to outlaw war, and urge the secretary of state to insert a clause in his anti-war treaty prohibiting the use of dogs for tests of poison gases, intended for the slaughter of human beings. Since, what may be poison for a dog may be meat for a man, there is no sense in wasting good gas on a helpless little animal, a gas that may smell to a hero like the odor of a choice Havana cigar.

THE latest evidence of the spread of Americanism in Nicaragua is the organization of "Vigilance Committees" to aid the United States marines in the war against Sandino and his revolutionary army. The dispatch which carried this news states that those assassins were organized by indignant Nicaraguans, but it is clear that this alleged indignation was superinduced by the cold treatment of General McCoy, American fixer of the coming elections. The Nicaraguan vigilantes no doubt will copy the methods of the murderers of strike leaders in the United States, the thugs who hanged Frank Little in Butte and established a reign of terror in several western states during and after the war. With a gang of good American election tellers, under the direction of General McCoy, in addition to the vigilantes; Nicaragua would be as thoroly Americanized as Chicago, Illinois.

THE French and British scout the idea that the pact is directed against the United States, yet both powers considered the question of how the navies of both countries could be pooled in the event of war. The U. S. is the only country in the world that has a navy equal to Great Britain. France is increasing her navy rapidly and only recently held the biggest military maneuvers since the war on the Italian border. The recent pact between England and France is not good news for Mussolini; neither is the success of Venizelos in the Greek elections. Venizelos is a tool of Great Britain and is said to have friendly intentions towards Jugo Slavia, with which Italy has been at loggerheads.

ALL this shows how ridiculous it is to expect anything from the Kellogg treaty except another war. The great powers are simply sparring for position. Clashes of economic interests between them are certain to bring war. Despite the existence of the league of nations, the system of offensive and defensive alliances that prevailed before the war is more in evidence today than ever. The United States is Great Britain's chief rival and a war between the two imperialist giants is only a question of years. How long can this inevitable war be staved off by the ruling classes who probably are convinced from their experience in the last one that the next will spell their doom? Even tho they know this they are driven irresistibly, thru the competitive nature of the capitalist system, to a course which signs their death warrants.

THE platonic gestures towards peace of the imperialists may lull some workers into a feeling of false security. But there is nothing under the sun more certain than another world war, hundreds of times more terrible than the last. The poison gases that the war department of the United States is testing on dogs to make sure that they are deadly enough for use against men, the sham airplane battle over London recently, the French war maneuvers on the Italian frontier, the appropriation of $20,000,000 by the German government for the building of battleships, the intensive war preparations of Italy—all are signs pointing to mass murder in the name of the defense of country.

THE government of the Soviet Union alone declares before the world that all gestures towards peace are empty unless accompanied by disarmament. And all the efforts of the Soviet Union to induce the imperialist powers to adopt a disarmament plan have been blocked. There can be no peace under capitalism. If angels were suddenly elected to head all the capitalist governments in the world, they would be immediately transformed into militarists. War is as indigenous to the capitalist system as claws to a tiger. Only the abolition of capitalism will bring about the abolition of war.

Argentinian Objects to Invasion Provided in Monroe Doctrine

BUENOS AYRES, Argentina, Aug. 26.—The Monroe Doctrine does not imply invasion into Latin-American countries said Dr. Jose Leon Saurez, Argentine member of the League of Nations Codification of International Law Commission here.

Speaking on the refusal of Argentina to enter the League of Nations, Saurez declared that it would eventually return, providing the interpretation of the Monroe Doctrine was not left entirely to the United States and that invasion on the rights of the South American republics be not considered the Monroe Doctrine.

KELLOGG FIGHTS CORDIAL LETTER TO SOVIET UNION

Signers of War Pact Send Evasive Note

Feminists are Jailed

PARIS, Aug. 28.—After abandoning in terror a half year ago the conference in which the representatives of the Soviet Union issued their proposals for complete world disarmament, the powers today decided to invite the Soviet government to sign the Kellogg multilateral "peace" treaty, although the Commissariat for Foreign Affairs of the U. S. S. R. had made it sufficiently clear that it was participation in the "peace" negotiations that it desired.

The invitation to sign was given not by an American representative but by the French ambassador.

The suggestion had been made that the 14 delegates signing the treaty affix their names to an official letter cordially urging Russia to adhere, but Secretary Kellogg and M. Briand preferred that the U. S. S. R. should get the same invitation extended to 44 other nations.

The French ambassador at Moscow transmitted to M. M. Litvinoff, Assistant Soviet Commissar of For-

HOLD MEET IN SPITE OF POLICE

Miners Hold Workers Party Rally

WILKES-BARRE, Pa., Aug. 28.—The breaking up by the police of the Workers (Communist) Party Endorsement Conference here last Sunday has not deterred members of the Workers (Communist) Party from continuing their intensive drive in the hard-coal region, according to a communication from Emil Gardos, sub-district organizer in this city.

The local newspapers printed in full the statement of the Workers (Communist) Party on the police attack, denouncing their brutal methods, and clearly stating that the conference will be held again Friday.

As a result of the police terrorism, the Workers (Communist) Party Campaign Picnic to be held Sept. 1 at San Souci Park, received extraordinary publicity. Hundreds of workers not yet class-conscious are expected to be present to hear Benjamin Gitlow, vice-presidential candidate of the Workers (Communist) Party, who will be the main speaker.

CRASH KILLS EIGHT WORKERS

SHELBY, N. C., Aug. 28 (UP).—The debris of brick, plaster and twisted planks—all that remains of the three buildings which collapsed today, killing eight persons—was searched tonight for the bodies of four workmen still missing.

Police, firemen, relatives of the missing, and friends, pulled and tugged at the mass of wreckage, trying to penetrate its depths.

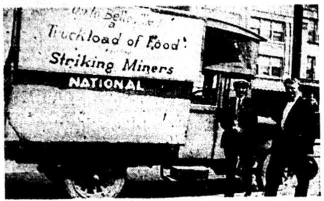
Four Negro laborers remained unaccounted for this afternoon as volunteers dug deeper into the debris. A group of seven had been working in the excavation. Three of them were taken out seriously hurt but the remaining four were believed trapped under the heaps of bricks and plaster.

The four missing men were believed trapped in the basement of one of the buildings, near where a retaining wall they had flung up, gave way, bringing down with it the structures of three buildings in the heart of this town of 4,000 population.

BRITISH UNIONS AGREE TO MERGE

LONDON, Aug. 28 (UP).—Terms have been agreed upon provisionally for an Amalgamation of the Transport and General Workers Union with the Workers Union. Total membership of the merged unions would be 450,000. The move was considered a step in the campaign to form a "super-federation" of more than 1,000,000 membership embracing all railway and transport workers.

Wisconsin Workers Send Miners Relief



A truck loaded with food for the striking miners and their families has been sent by the Milwaukee Local of the National Miners Relief. The signs on the side of the truck spread the story of the miners' struggle and need all along the route taken by the truck. Beside the truck, at left, is H. Grawert, of Machinists Union No. 66, and next to him, O. R. Zimmerman, who drove the truck into the Illinois coal fields. (Photo by Cora Meyer, Worker Photographer.)

SEND $1,200 IN FOOD TO MINERS; MORE NEEDED

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Aug. 28.—A carload of potatoes and another of $1,200 worth of groceries, including flour, sugar and fat-backs, were sent into Ohio this week, Anthony Minerich, secretary of the National Miners Relief Committee, said today. Jack Bell and Jim Vall, chairman and secretary of the Ohio relief committee, will distribute the foodstuffs from Yorkville, through committees which will come from mining camps for miles around.

More than 500 families of Avella will share the week's shipment of 20 barrels of flour, yeast, salt and fats to bake bread, 20 barrels of potatoes, 1,000 cans of condensed milk, 1,000 pounds of sugar, beans, etc. The committee elected by the eight Avella locals many months ago, which includes Fred Siders, Steve Paich, Philip Giambatista and Mike Coleman, carry the relief out to the

Survey Reveals Not a Shop on Strike

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 28.—Complete vindication of the step taken by Domenick Fliani when he demonstratively resigned from an organizership in the Amalgamated Clothing Workers Union "special organization campaign committee," was had today when a thorough survey made in this city revealed today not a single Philadelphia clothing manufacturer with a strike in effect against his shop. Fliani, an active left wing member of the Philadelphia local, had issued an open letter containing his resignation and a denunciation of the Amalgamated officialdom for the fake drive they were carrying on.

ANTI-KELLOGG MEET ATTACKED

After three speakers had addressed a crowd of 2,000 at a meeting held at Wall and William Sts., yesterday noon on the fake Kellogg "peace" pact, police attacked and broke up the gathering which was arranged under the auspices of the New York section of the All-America Anti-Imperialist League.

Before the meeting was scheduled to begin, when the stand was being put up by the anti-imperialist workers, police tried to keep them from proceeding, on the ground that "the police sergeant had heard nothing about it." This was denied by the officials of the New York section of the All-America Anti-Imperialist League, who said that the police commissioner had been duly notified of the

FISHERMEN WIN THEIR STRIKE

Bedford Fleet Owners Withdraw Wage Cut

NEW BEDFORD, Mass., Aug. 28 (FP).—Strike sentiment spread from the ranks of 27,000 cotton mill workers, and nearly 500 fishermen—all there are—struck for a better division of the sea's spoils. Boat owners tried to force fishermen to bear the cost of fuel oil, gasoline, ice and waste in operating fishing crafts. Workers answered by rallying to the Fishermen's Union, and staying ashore.

When bosses capitulated, fishermen went back to sea for 60 per cent of the catch, the owner to pay major expenses except food. Every man joined the Fishermen's Union of the Atlantic, allied with the International Seamen's Union, making New Bedford a 100 per cent union port.

TO ENDORSE RED TICKET TONIGHT

N. Y. Needle Trades Meeting

The candidates and platform of the Workers (Communist) Party will be endorsed at a rally of New York needle trades workers, to be held tomorrow night at Irving Plaza, 15th St. and Irving Place. Benjamin Gitlow, vice-presidential candidate of the Party, will be the principal speaker at the meeting, which is arranged by the National Needle Trades Committee of the Trade Union Educational League.

Besides listening to Gitlow, the progressive needle trades workers will hear their own militant leaders, who have led them successfully in bitter struggles against the right wing of the socialist party and A. F. of L. bureaucracy, and who are most energetically working for the support of the Workers (Commu-

Raise German R. R. Rates to Pay for War

BERLIN, Aug. 28.—An increase in German passenger and freight rates has been forced through the railroad arbitration court, against the will of the Reichstag, by Parker Gilbert, Reparations Agent General and co-author of the Dawes plan.

The increase will bring 250,000,000 marks more per year for the payment of German reparations. Gilbert had decided that additional revenues were needed in order to improve the railroads and at the same time not endanger the reparation payments.

MURDOCH, MILL STRIKE LEADER IS JAILED AGAIN

Picket Gets 6 Months, 3 Women 30 Days, in Court Terror

28,000 Stand Very Firm

BULLETIN

NEW BEDFORD, Mass., Aug. 28.—William T. Murdoch, Textile Workers Union leader, who has just finished serving a three-month jail sentence for his activities in the big textile strike here, was again arrested for leading a picket line at the Potomska Mill gates. Marion Botelho, sentenced this morning to 30 days was also jailed anew, this being her ninth arrest. Maria Valente was arrested for the fifth time in the strike.

Police forced their way into a meeting of Polish women strikers in the Hops St. Hall, which was being addressed by Helen Zakowski, and arrested Natalia Przabu on a warrant charging picketing last week.

WORLD CONGRESS AWAITS PROGRAM

Czech Delegate Buried in Moscow

MOSCOW, U. S. S. R., Aug. 28.—The Sixth World Congress of the Communist International is devoting the interval from Friday to Monday to sessions of the program commission.

The commission has virtually finished its work by now and will present the final form of the program to the next plenary session of the Congress.

The burial of the Czech delegate, Horaz, who died here suddenly, took place this afternoon.

"Forward" Sputters in Horror Over Iniquity of Left Wing Leaders

The "socialist" Jewish Forward, organ of the right wing union wreckers in the needle trades, yesterday devoted almost half of its front page to an "astounding expose."

A reproduction of pictures was printed, showing a group of about 15 men sitting before a conference table in Moscow! Two of them were Charles S. Zimmerman and Aaron Gross, left wing cloakmakers' and furriers' leaders, who had gone to Moscow and were in this instance pictured in the "Red Needle" as participating with representatives of needle trades unions from other parts of the world, in the proceedings of the Red Trade Union International, held there in April.

The captions also declare that both denied having been in the Soviet Union, and then ask mysteriously . . . "What were they doing there?" thus completely ignoring the fact that Zimmerman gave a public report of his and Gross' work at the Red International Congress at a meeting in Manhattan Lyceum which was widely advertised by posters nailed up in many sections of the city.

Denounce Kellogg "Peace" Treaty in Wall Street

Harry Gannes, secretary of the New York branch of the All-America Anti-Imperialist League is shown above addressing the big crowd that gathered to listen to him denounce the Kellogg "peace" pact as an instrument of the imperialist powers to cloak their war preparations against the Soviet Union. The meeting was held at Broad and Williams Streets, in the heart of the American financial district.

BUKHARIN ON U. S. PARTY SITUATION

At Sixth World Congress of the Communist International

MOSCOW, Aug. 27.—From the detailed report of International Press Correspondence we can now give a clearer and more objective picture of the estimation of the American Workers (Communist) Party situation as given by the Sixth World Congress of the Communist International than the short and sometimes unclear and distorted wires containing speeches made at the congress.

The closing remarks of Comrade Bukharin, the official spokesman of the Executive Committee of the Communist International, clarified all issues related to the American Party situation.

Internal and External Contradictions.

Comrades of the American opposition, Foster and Bittelman, and Comrade Lominadze who deviates from the official line of the Russian Party, criticized the theses of Comrade Bukharin from the "left." They made the criticism of the theses and of the American Central Executive Committee, that they underestimate internal contradictions and lay too much emphasis on external contradictions of imperialism. Bukharin said on this point the following:

"The basic thing today is the war danger. If we separate external contradictions from internal contradictions it is equivalent to diminishing the significance of this fact. From an objective point of view such an underestimation of the war danger is not a left position but quite the contrary, it is the reflection of right wing dangers in the Communist International. The principal danger that threatens us today is the underestimation of the War Danger."

Reserve Powers of U. S. Imperialism.

The speakers of the opposition, Comrades Dunne, Bittelman and Foster, charged that the Central Executive Committee overestimates the power and growth of American imperialism and overlooks the fact that "the reserve powers of American imperialism are diminishing."

Bukharin said on this question as follows:

"I absolutely disagree with the argument advanced here by many comrades to the effect that the internal possibilities of American imperialism have been exhausted. They have not been exhausted and in general I am in principle opposed to this point of view. It is wrong both in theory and in principle. It is the Luxemburg theory."

New and Old Unions.

The speakers of the opposition and Comrade Losovsky accused the Central Executive Committee of obstructing the execution of the Profintern resolution because, laying the main emphasis on organizing new unions, the Central Executive Committee stated the necessity of maintaining and increasing our work in old unions, too.

Bukharin took the following position on this question:

"A dangerous tendency was also revealed in the course of the discussion, namely a tendency to deny the necessity for working in the reactionary unions; and attempts were even made to develop a theory for the purpose of fortifying this attitude. Sometimes this tendency is observed among the rank and file and arises from difficulties which the work in reactionary trade unions encounters. The tendency to leave reactionary unions is fostered also by the fact that large numbers of workers in many countries are still unorganized. This is the case in the United States of America and also in France. It is absolutely clear that the task of organizing the unorganized is one of our main tasks at the present time, but this is no reason why we should abandon our work in the reactionary trade unions even in countries where dual unions exist."

No Big Political Differences.

Speakers of the opposition, especially Comrade Bittelman, accused the Central Executive Committee that it is advertising American imperialism and that it does not see the possibilities for Communist mass work in America. Bukharin's speech rejects categorically both charges:

"Take the American Party. Quite lately—at least so it seemed to all of us—the American Party appeared to be overcoming the internal friction, but now we find that the controversy is flaring up again. The internal Party struggle has 'revived' to such an extent that attempts are being made to utilize the present conjuncture for the purpose of continuing the struggle in the acutest form. Are there really any big political differences in the American Party? No. They are petty. Are the differences so important as to warrant the formation of fractions? I believe they are not. For instance, take the question concerning the attitude towards American capitalism. Some say American imperialism has grown stronger. Their opponents declare that they are advertising American imperialism. Such an expression should not be used. No good can come of it and it does not help clear up the question. I must confess that I do not entertain any hopes of a revolutionary situation arising in the United States in the near future. I say this quite frankly. In no country in the world is capitalism so strong as it is in the United States of America, where it has reached its zenith. Is it a terrible thing to say that there is little likelihood of an immediate revolutionary situation? It is if this is used to back up the argument that there is positively no ground for activity among the American masses. As far as I know, however, no one has made such an assertion. Unemployment is a fact. Changes in American industry is also a fact and so also is the growing discontent among the unemployed workers. Is there any ground for the growth of the Communist Party? Yes, there is. Does this furnish any justification for an acute factionary struggle? Of course not. All steps must be taken to avoid such a struggle."

STOP COMMUNIST MEET IN HOLLAND

BERLIN, Aug. 28 (UP).—Intervention of former Kaiser Wilhelm of Germany prevented a meeting of German and Dutch Communists at Arnhem, Holland, on the Rhine, 50 miles southeast of Amsterdam, the radical newspaper Welt Am Abend said today.

The newspaper said that the Dutch and German foreign ministers had consented to the attendance of the Germans at the meeting, but suddenly changed front.

The Dutch, the Welt Am Abend added, reinforced frontier police with regular troops, who halted several thousand Germans seeking to attend the meeting, despite the order against it.

MANY RECORDS FALL AT LABOR SPORTS MEET

Arthur Kirtin, Negro Athletic Star, Scores Double Victory in Sprint Events

In spite of a slow track, soggy with a three-day downpour of rain, 650 athletes, representing labor and fraternal organizations throughout the United States, met in a two-day track and field meet at Wingate Field, Brooklyn, Saturday and Sunday, in the second annual athletic meet of the Labor Sports Union of America.

Although hampered by the slowness of the drenched field and the bad weather that for a time threatened to halt the meet, the worker-athletes succeeded in hanging up several records that will be remembered as marks to shoot at by participants in future meets.

The outstanding record of the day was established when Arthur Kirton, a young Negro worker of New York, running unattached, wing-footed his way to a double victory in the 100 and 200-metre dashes. 11.7 in the shorter sprint and 24.4 in the 200-metre dash.

Although the outstanding sprint performer of the Labor Sports Olympics, Kirton by no means monopolized the double victories of the day. E. Hakkila, running under the colors of the Yritys Club of Norwood, Mass., succeeded in hanging up victories in the 800, 1,500 and 5,000-metre runs, outdistancing fields composed of the choice labor long-distance runners in the country.

P. Ahola won the javelin and discus throws, and H. Ahola led the contestants in the hop-skip-and-jump and the high jump events, establishing marks coming close to the best amateur performances in the country.

Women and junior athletes, turning out in unprecedented numbers, contributed largely to the colorful

WILL COVER 20 STATES ON BIG CAMPAIGN TRIP

Letters From Workers Indicate Growing Interest

To Tour the West

Reports from the cities in the 20 states where Benjamin Gitlow, vice-presidential candidate on the Workers (Communist) Party ticket, will speak on his nation-wide election tour, show that the membership of the Workers (Communist) Party and the class conscious workers are intensely interested in the program and platform of the class struggle, and are ready to give Gitlow an enthusiastic greeting.

The tenor of the letters that are coming in to the National Election Campaign headquarters of the Workers (Communist) Party at 43 East 125th St. indicates, according to the committee, that never before have the masses been so ready to listen to the revolutionary program of the Workers (Communist) Party.

Gitlow will start his two-month's speaking campaign tour, which will

GITLOW TO TALK AT CLEVELAND

Expect Record Crowd at Sept. 9 Meet

CLEVELAND, Ohio., Aug. 27.—Benjamin Gitlow, vice-presidential nominee of the Workers (Communist) Party of America, will be the principal speaker at a mass meeting to be held Sunday, Sept. 9 at the Association Hall, 2105 East 21st St. The meeting will begin at 2 p. m. and a record crowd is expected to hear the Communist leader.

Gitlow's record in the labor movement, as asemblyman in New York, and his imprisonment for participation in the left wing movement of the socialist party, which later became the Workers (Communist) Party, has proven his mettle as a labor fighter to the Cleveland workers, who look forward to the event.

Gitlow will speak on the record of the Workers (Communist) Party for the last few years, and explain its program and aims.

GREAT RESPONSE IN "RED DRIVE"

The answer of thousands of class-conscious workers to the action of Tammany's Department of Welfare in banning the collections for the campaign fund of the Workers (Communist) Party will be an extension of the Red Week drive to take in all this week, and an intensification of the drive, the district office of the Party announced last night.

Young Workers League Girls Distribute Leaflets to Army Recruits at Fort Hancock

JINGO SURROUNDS DANCE HALL WITH ARMED SOLDIERS

But No Trace Is Found of Leaflets

A group of six girls, all members of the Young Workers' (Communist) League in New York, attended a dance given by the Citizen's Military Training Camp at Fort Hancock, Saturday, and managed to distribute bulletins, leaflets, and stickers in many of the buildings of the fort. After they had completed the distribution of the anti-imperialist leaflets, they returned to the dance hall and proceeded with the dancing.

For a time all went well. The jazz band continued to play and the jingo officials in charge of the occasion remained blissfully ignorant of the fact that leaflets reading, "Don't Become a Scab and Strikebreaker," "Demand the Withdrawal of Marines from China and Nicaragua," "Defeat the Imperialist Attack on the Soviet Union," and "Free the Philippine Islands from the Rule of Wall Street," had been placed under the notice of the young recruits.

Lieutenant Finds Leaflet.

But suddenly, a lieutenant, his face flushed and irritated, appeared in the hall and ordered the dance stopped. He had discovered one of the stickers with the Young Workers (Communist) League slogans printed in glaring black on it. Soon soldiers with cocked guns surrounded the dance hall, with orders not to let a single person leave until the "culprits" responsible for the distribution had been found. A search was immediately instituted, with no one of the 330 young people gathered in the hall allowed to leave.

Guns of No Use.

But after a quarter of an hour, not a single trace of a leaflet had been found on any of those in the building. Finally, irritated beyond measure, the jingo lieutenant and his aides were forced to quit their search for the unknown leaflet-distributors, and allow the dance to continue.

One of the leaflets distributed on the night of the dance read, in part as follows:

"To all Fort Hancock Recruits: You are now getting your second 'free trip.' You are going to Coney Island. You will be taken to Luna Park.

"All of this is pure bribery. The camp authorities want to make you believe that they are great fellows. They want you to forget the real purposes of the Capitalist Military Training Camps. They give you these little 'treats' in order to hide the real issues.

Score Lieutenant Walker.

"What has Lieutenant Walker been telling you? He always starts off his lectures by reading last year's letter to the recruits. He tells all kinds of fairy tales about the Communists. He gives the flukiest kinds of 'explanations' about the statements in the leaflet. He tells all kinds of lies about the Communists, who they are, what they stand and fight for.

"What is the real position of the young Communists to the question of capitalist militarism? Why do the Communists fight against the C. M. T. C.'s?

"We young Communists fight the C. M. T. C.'s because the young workers and students are trained to be used to defend the millions of dollars invested by the bankers of Wall Street in China, Nicaragua, and other places. What investments have the young workers in Nicaragua? Why are American marines killing the brave Nicaraguan people? What are American gunboats and marines doing in China? Why is American capitalism preparing to fight against the only workers and farmers government in the world—Soviet Russia? All because of the interests of American bankers in those places. All because Soviet Russia defends the interests of the workers and farmers in Russia itself and throughout the world."

Red Squad Will Invade Harlem as Signature Drive Gains Momentum

The past week marked the most active signature work since the drive started, with a total of 2,800 signatures obtained thruout the city. Sections 2 and 3 Red Squad are to some extent responsible for this unprecedented wave of activity, and the response of the membership of the various sections was much better than heretofore.

Branch 6 of Section 5 of the Bronx, with headquarters at 2700 Bronx Park East, brought into the fold three hundred and fifty signatures yesterday, the result of Sunday's work alone. Stern, campaign manager of the branch, reminded the District Campaign Committee that this number was obtained through the work of the members of the branch only, with no outside assistance.

Sections 2 and 3 Red Squads, despite a pouring rain and the re[illegible] of the Brownsville station from its usual stamping grounds, appeared last Sunday at 154 Watkins St., Brownsville, and went out for signatures to put the candidates of the 22nd and 23rd assembly districts on the ballot. The next mobilization of the Red Squad of Sections 2 and 3 will be on September 9, and the scene will be 143 E. 103rd St., in Harlem. All members of Sections 2 and 3 are urged by their respective campaign directors to participate in the September 9th Red Squad mobilization and still further boost the already enviable record of the squad.

Burial of Dead; Crowds at Funerals of Victims of the I. R. T. Greed

The burial of the victims of the traction barons' lust for profits were crowded by silent masses of men and women, chiefly workers. Anger against the corporation whose inhuman greed caused the death of nearly a score at Times Square last Friday made the silence of the crowds grim. The burial of the seven year old Herman Zips, killed with his mother, is shown above.

YOUNG WORKERS JOIN RED DRIVE

Harlem Unit Leads in Signatures

Competition which has arisen between the various sections of the Workers (Communist) Party on the signature drive to put the candidates of the Workers Party on the ballot has extended to the units of the Young Workers League.

In order to help put the workers' candidates on the ballot, the District Training School of the Young Workers (Communist) League, in session for a two weeks intensive course, has planned to participate in the drive by working with the various units of the League, giving the same time and attention to each unit.

The activity of the students of the training school will begin today, August 27th, when they meet in the lower Bronx to put across the Communist candidate from the 3rd Assembly District of the Bronx. It is expected that through the efforts of the thirty members of the training school enough signatures will be gathered in one evening's applied work.

In the League competition, thus far the Harlem unit is ahead, with a total close to three hundred signatures obtained by Harlem young workers. The next in line for the League Election Campaign Banner is Williamsburg, with 108 signatures to its credit.

During the next two weeks a decided increase of League election activities will be noticed, especially with respect to the signature drive, since not only will Sundays be made special mobilization days, but during the week unit meetings will be dissolved early for participation in the signature drive.

A feature of the Young Workers League signature drive activities is the challenges being hurled back and forth by the units of the city. Each is confident of an unparallelled record at the end of the drive, and although Harlem is far ahead of the other competitors the coming two weeks may find it in second or worse position.

TO HOLD ELECTION RALLY ON COAST

Workers Will Ratify Whitney Nomination

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 28.—A mass ratification rally will be held on Tuesday, September 4, at the Labor Temple, 532 Maple Ave., when Charlotte Anita Whitney, prominent California Communist and "criminal syndicalism" defendant, will speak and be formally endorsed by all members of the Workers (Communist) Party and Young Workers (Communist) League, and other hundreds of interested and sympathetic workers.

This public election mass meeting follows the nomination of Anita Whitney at the Workers Party state convention held in San Francisco recently. The Los Angeles Party campaign committee announces this as the first big Communist election demonstration, to be followed later by meetings at which William Z. Foster and Ben Gitlow, candidates for president and vice-president, will be featured speakers.

This meeting is expected to serve as a rally to mobilize the thousands of Los Angeles workers to vote Communist in the elections.

CLEVELAND, O., Aug. 27.—Congressional investigation of penal institutions with the view of determining whether additional federal institutions are necessary will begin here tomorrow. No results are expected.

Organizations Must Send Delegates to Daily-Freiheit Meet

Unions, trade union leagues, fraternal organizations, workers clubs, women's councils and other women's organizations, Workers (Communist) Party units, sections, youth organizations, musical and cultural organizations, must be represented with three delegates each at the Freiheit and Daily Worker Bazaar Conference at Manhattan Lyceum, 66 East Fourth St., tomorrow, at 8 p. m.

Those organizations which have not elected their delegates should be represented by the secretary and two active members.

The work which will be organized at the conference is very important, and it is necessary that every organization be represented.

league's plans through a communication written to him several days before the meeting was scheduled to take place.

For a short time the police, tho present in great numbers as at the last Wall Street demonstration on July 3, when wholesale arrest of members of the organization had been made, did not try to molest the meeting. Harriet Silverman, secretary of the New York branch of the league addressed the meeting as chairman. Following her in quick succession came Harry Gannes, acting head of the national organization, and Harvey O'Connor, of the Federated Press. As they spoke, the office workers, passing the corner on which the speeches were being made, flocked closely around the stand. In a short time, a crowd of about 2,000 white-collar slaves of Wall Street had gathered.

Then Y. Y. Shu, president of the Chinese Students' Alliance of America, was introduced to the meeting.

Just as he was about to begin his speech, however, the police surged forward through the crowd, and cut short the meeting.

The posters were confiscated, the crowd driven away.

In the anti-imperialist meetings held on Union Square and Columbus Circle later in the day, police continued in their intimidation of the workers who gathered to listen to the speakers. Plowing their ways through the crowds at both places, they tried to break up the meetings without giving the impression of using force. But the workers, in spite of many underhand jabs from the clubs of the police, continued to hold their ground and listen to the speakers expose the fake Kellogg treaty.

The speakers at both of the later meetings included I. Zimmerman, Harriet Silverman, Harry Gannes, Y. Y. Shu, George Padmore and D. Seizo Ogino.

Two Stowaways Found Dead on Munson Boat

BALTIMORE, Aug. 28.—Two stowaways were found dead and four others were found in a semi-conscious condition when the sugar-laden Munson Line freighter "Munisla" docked today.

This is the second stowaway tragedy aboard Baltimore-bound ships in the last three days. On Friday 7 stowaways from Brazil were killed when they were trapped in the hold of a ship when it was fumigated in quarrantine.

CLOAK DRIVE ON IN BOSTON, PHILA.

Mass Meetings Will Be Held Today

BOSTON, Aug. 28.—A mass meeting of all cloak and dressmakers will be held here Tuesday evening in Franklin Union Hall, Berkeley and Appelton Sts., for the purpose of beginning in earnest the drive to build a real union for the workers in the industry by organizing the open shops that swamp the industry. The meeting will be held under the auspices of the executive committee of the shop chairmen's conference held here last Tuesday. Leaders of the National Organization Committee will speak.

The executive committee elected will serve as the local section of the National Organization Committee, and will deliver a full report of the proceedings of last Tuesday's conference. All plans adopted there for the organization of the unorganized cloak and dressmakers will be reported to the mass meeting. The workers will also be asked to endorse and help translate into action the plans formulated by the executive committee since the conference.

Ziebel, of Local 24, Millinery Workers., Rose Wortis will be chairman.

M. Yusem, of the Young Workers (Communist) League, will speak, representing the young neddle trades workers, who have been among the most militant in carrying on the struggle against right wing thuggery.

"The large attendance of needle trades workers at tomorrow's rally," declared H. Sazar, secretary of the needle trades T. U. E. L., "will be ample answer to the mobilization of the Vigilance Committee of the United Hebrew Trades, the threats of the socialist party bureaucracy, and A. To Invite Edison to USSR to Participate in Tolstoi Exercises

MOSCOW, Aug. 28.—Thomas A. Edison and Fridtjof Nansen will be invited by the Tolstoi Jubilee Committee to attend the Tolstoi Week anniversary here from September 10 to 17.

During this week the anniversary of the author's birth will be celebrated by meetings and special performances all over the Soviet Union at which the significance of the author will be discussed, his plays produced and special films of his life be shown. At his home town a large hospital, clinic and elementary school, the most modern in Russia, will be opened as dedications to Tolstoi's memory.

Lammot Du Pont Will Support Republicans

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Aug. 28.—Lammot Du Pont, president of the E. I. Du Pont de Nemours and Co., today announced that he would support Hoover altho he "agrees with Smith's stand on prohibition."

Confident that the family fortunes will be safe regardless which candidate is elected, Pierre Du Pont, his brother, and chairman of the E. I. Du Pont de Nemours, recently announced his support of Al Smith and contributed $50,000 to the democratic campaign fund.

USSR Labor Unions in Increase of 100 Per Cent During 5 Years

MOSCOW, Aug. 28.—Membership in the labor unions of the Soviet Union increased 100 per cent during the last five years according to figures published by the Soviet Labor Bureau.

On October 1, 1922 there were 25 industrial unions with a total membership of 4,546,100. On October 1, 1927 there were more than 10,000,000 union members with more than 2,000,000 in the Ukraine.

The increasing role of women in the labor unions is demonstrated by the fact that while in 1922 there were 1,356,100 women in the unions there are now more than 2,000,000.

erang. Instead of putting a stop to the collection of funds for the Red Campaign, it will result not only in an increase but a doubling of the campaign funds collected during the Red drive.

Score Tammany Move.

The workers of this city who have carried on their left wing struggles in the face of police brutality, injunctions, thuggery and gangsters, and carried them on successfully, will not be stopped in their activities by an edict of the Department of Welfare, the statement said.

"The decisive factor in election campaigns is money, according to Frank R. Kent, in his recently published book "Political Behavior." Money, he says, beats every candidate in the presidential elections who was beaten for the past thirty years.

Capitalists Buy Votes.

"While the capitalist parties use their campaign funds to buy votes, to pay corrupt misleaders of labor for swinging votes their way, and to spread the lying propaganda which is the essential part of the capitalist election campaign, the Workers (Communist) Party needs funds for the printing of hundreds of thousands of leaflets for distribution among the exploited workers and calling to their attention the role played by the capitalist government in breaking their strikes, reducing their wages and instituting the speed-up system.

"The response of workers to the Communist platform in the 1928 elections will be greater than ever before. Among the increasingly exploited masses of skilled and semi-skilled workers whose eyes have been opened to the nature of the capitalist candidates who receive their bosses' support the Workers' Party will poll thousands of votes. The urgent need is campaign funds."

Plan Dinner to Mark Opening of Workers Progressive Center

In celebration of the opening of the Greek Workers' Progressive Center, 101 W. 28th St., a dinner has been arranged for Saturday, Sept. 1, to be followed by a dance which will last until the early hours of Sunday.

The center will be a place in which cultural, dramatic, recreational and musical activities will be carried on as well as the political and labor training. Workers' plays will be presented there regularly.

Besides the enumerated activities, workers will be able to come in at noon hour, or in the evening, and eat meals in the spacious restaurant or go to the study hall and read or play chess, checkers, billiards, and many other games which are now being installed.

CALLES TO QUIT NOV. 30; RUMOR IN MEXICO

But Congress to Extend Term

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 28.—With three months of President Calles' term still ahead and the meeting of congress scheduled for September, two opposing views as to who will fill the vacancy created by the assassination of Obregon are being expressed here. Jose Manuel Puig Casauranc, newly appointed secretary of Industry, Commerce and Labor announced during a luncheon, according to El Universal Graficio, that "President Calles for no reason will continue in power after November 30."

Aaron Saenz, governor of the State of Nuevo Leon, is reported to have said that the Obregonist party will remain unified under all circumstances and "ready to face a solution of the abnormal position."

Others here doubt the words of Casauranc, and believe that Calles will remain in office as is indicated by the composition of the congress which is predominantly Obregonista and Crom, and the fact that the president recently made three new appointments to his cabinet.

Belgian Shipping Completely Paralyzed by Latest Walk-Out in Big Harbor Center

ANTWERP WHARF WORKERS' STRIKE TIES UP PORT

Walk-out Is Second One This Year

ANTWERP, Aug. 28. — Dock workers engaged in coaling ships at this port went on strike today.

The walk-out followed the demands of the workers for an immediate increase in wages.

News of the strike spread over the waterfront like wild-fire and groups of harbor workers quickly surrounded the knots of dock strikers.

As yet the police have taken no provocative action but it is believed that they may do so at any moment, having in mind the repressive measures used by the authorities in Havre recently.

The strike of the dockworkers follows by only a few months the strike with which they tied up this harbor and its shipping completely on the failure of officials of the Red Star line to grant demands of the men.

It was recently reported that an agreement had been reached between the participants in the former walk-out and the officials the terms of which were to be published in February, 1929.

NOT TO DISCUSS MONROE LAW

Powers Afraid It Will Embarass U. S.

GENEVA, Aug. 28.—A few days before the council of the League of Nations meets a movement that has been quietly set on foot will assure no discussion of the Monroe Doctrine at the League meeting. Costa Rica had demanded that the Monroe Doctrine be defined by the League before it indicates whether it will accept the invitation to join the League of Nations.

That this matter will not be discussed has been guaranteed by some League leaders who think that such a discussion would be embarrassing to the United States and would arouse "misunderstanding."

The Council, however, is expected to frame a reply to the Costa Rican note which is expected to be noncommital.

DETROIT TO HEAR FOSTER, BEDACHT

Two-Day Red Election Picnic Sept. 2-3

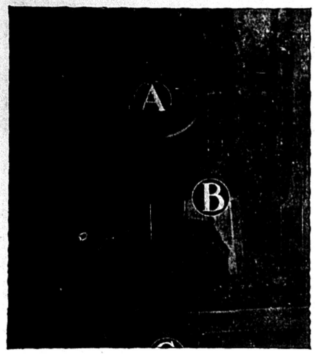
District Organizer of Chicago, will be the campaign speaker.

This picnic has been arranged for the purpose of raising funds for campaign propaganda among the workers in the open shops in the auto industry. All arrangements necessary have ben made to spread the revolutionary message of our Party to these hundreds and thousands of unorganized workers in the auto industry.

The workers in Detroit will have an opportunity to hear the message of the Workers (Communist) Party on the election campaign as given by William Z. Foster, Communist candidate for president. He will speak at the Danceland Auditorium on Sunday evening, September 9, at 8 p. m.

A meeting for Foster has also been arranged in the city of Flint, which is a General Motors town. The workers in the auto industry in the city of Flint are being confronted with one wage cut after another and this meeting in the city of Flint will be utilized for the purpose of exposing the open-shoppers of General Motors and to call upon the workers the need for organization.

Mechanical Explanation of I. R. T. Crash



The above chart shows the mechanical elements which are alleged to have caused the I. R. T. disaster in which nearly a score of persons perished at Times Square recently. A shows the wheel of the car which crashed. B, the apparatus, a defect in which is blamed for the tragedy, and C, a spur, the twin of which engaged the wheel and sent scores to death and injury.

Costa Rica Attack on Monroe Doctrine Up Before League

GENEVA, Aug. 28 (UP)—Agreement of a draft convention to control the private manufacture of arms virtually was assured today when Japan notified the League of Nations Commission, which will take up the proposed pact this week, that her delegate will accept the United States viewpoint.

Juan Sivort, in behalf of the Argentine Association of the League of Nations, memorandumed all league councillors today in regard to Costa Rica's demand for a league interpretation of the Monroe Doctrine. Costa Rica insisted that the doctrine be excluded from the league covenant as constituting merely a unilateral declaration instead of a regional agreement.

eign Affairs, the invitation of France to adhere immediately after the signing. Litvinoff was non-committal but asked for full correspondence concerning the treaty and for a list of nations which have been invited.

Several plenipotentiaries here freely admitted the pact will be greatly affected by the decision from the Soviet Union—where months ago a proposal to eliminate all armaments was originated and placed before a stunned disarmament conference.

The same program which was made famous last year by visiting aviators from America will be followed. The diplomats will sign their names in the gold book and attend a musical program.

American Secretary Kellogg has slightly changed his plans and expects to leave Havre aboard the cruiser Detroit Wednesday noon for Dublin. He will reach Port Kingstown Thursday noon.

POLICE ARREST SACCO SPEAKERS

Blue Laws Revived to Stop Kallen

BOSTON, Aug. 28.—A taste of the prosecution of Sacco-Vanzetti sympathizers last year by the Massachusetts police was experienced here when a warrant was sworn out against Horace Kallen, educator and lecturer, because he mentioned the names of Sacco and Vanzetti together with Jesus Christ. The warrant was later repealed, "pending further investigation."

Kallen spoke at a memorial meeting here on Thursday night at which he said: "If Sacco and Vanzetti were anarchists, so was Jesus Christ an anarchist."

The charge is based on an old blue law which dates back to 1697. Under this same law Anthony Bimba, labor leader, was charged with blasphemy in connection with a speech to shoe strikers at Brockton in 1926.

News that a conservative and well-known lawyer in Boston was ready to defend Kallen was followed by the report that the charge would be withdrawn.

MEXICAN PHONE WORKERS TIE UP SERVICE OF CITY

Prevent Scabs From Entering Building

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 28.—Failure of the Ericsson Telephone Company of this city to accede to the demands of the left wing telephone employes union has resulted in a complete tie-up of telephone service in the Federal District.

One of the chief demands of the men is that the telephone corporation sign an agreement unionizing the entire plant in Mexico City. There are approximately 50,000 telephone instruments in the Federal District of which the Ericsson interests control more than two-thirds.

The strikers are also demanding liberal increases in wages, and there are a number of subsidiary demands.

Officials both of the government and the corporation expressed themselves concerned as to the widespread political effect which the strike may have owing to the uncertain situation in Mexico following the assassination of President-elect Obregon.

Dr. Puig Casaurano, who has succeeded secretary of labor Morones, has conferred with union leaders and the representatives of the telephone corporation. Together with the latter, it is understood that he will attempt to force a settlement of the strike before a national arbitration board.

Meanwhile the spirit of the workers is militant and they are reported to have taken virtual control of the telephone property. Red flags hang from the telephone building and armed guards are said to be preventing the entrance of strikebreakers to the building.

It is rumored that President Calles will personally interfere in the strike if the ministry of labor and the telephone officials are not able to force a settlement before.

to be imprisoned for one month each for picketing and singing while picketing.

After police had made an attack on the Sharp Mill picket line July 24, warrants were sworn out for those picket captains not arrested at the mills. Vieira was one of these. He was taken out of the union hall on the warrant issued. His release, as well as that of the other strikers was later obtained on an appeal immediately filed, $600 being required for Vieira's freedom.

The A. F. of L. and "socialist" officialdom of the Textile Council at their meeting in Brooklawn today all congratulated the Fall River Textile Council bureaucrats for the order they issued their membership instructing them not to strike while workers of the American Printing Company were picketing the plant under the leadership of the Textile Mill Committees. Frank Manning, "socialist," was the most boisterous in his endorsement of this scabbing order. Other speakers were Mary and Powers Donovan.

CHINA WAR LORDS RENEW CONFLICT

Manchurian Troops Hold Railroad

LONDON, Aug. 28 (UP).—Civil warfare has broken out with renewed intensity in the Peking area of China, reports to the Daily Mail from Peking said today.

Remnants of the old Northern Army, decisively defeated several months ago, have engaged the Nationalists in that district and severe fighting is going on. Hundreds of wounded were reported being received in Peking and Tientsin.

General Chang Tsung-Chang, the Northern leader, who has not yet come to terms with the Nationalist government and who is reported to have considerable forces available, is said to be occupying a strategic position along the Mukden-Tientsin railroad.

Chinese Troops in Chefoo Revolt Against Nanking Army Officers

CHEFOO, China, Aug. 28.—One hundred Chinese soldiers were injured here when military authorities tried to disarm a group of 200 soldiers who were suspected of "disloyalty" to the Nanking regime.

The revolting troops refused to disarm and when the officers tried to force them to do so fighting occurred.

1,500,000 Chinese Peasants are Facing Death by Starvation

SHANGHAI, China, Aug. 28.—One million, five hundred thousand Chinese workers and peasants in a district 30 miles wide and 100 miles long near Western Shantung are slowly dying of starvation, according to Earl Baker, who returned today from a visit from the stricken area.

Relief is absolutely necessary, Mr. Baker said, to avert the death of almost the complete population of the section.

The reason for the plague is thought to be the droughts and the insect invasion and destruction of the fields. Over 150,000, Mr. Baker said, are too ill to survive, even if aid can reach them soon. Others are living only on a diet of grasshoppers, the only "food" available in the region.

Krassin and U. S. S. R. Flier Chukhnovsky Off to Seek Amundsen Men

BERGEN, Norway, Aug. 28 (UP).—The Russian icebreaker Krassin has picked up the aviator Chukhnovsky at Kings Bay to carry on the search for Roald Amundsen, missing in the Arctic since he set forth to hunt for survivors from the dirigible Italia.

The Krassin carried provisions sufficient for 40 men for six months. She will sail shortly for Hinlopen Bay and Franz Josef Land, where a wooden hut will be erected as a flying base. The Krassin will return at the end of September if no trace is found of Amundsen.

MINER FATALLY HURT AT WORK

Men Struggle Not to Return to Scab Pits

RUSSELLTON, Pa., Aug. 25 (By Mail).—Nick Kasunich was pinned against the wall of a mine of the Republican Iron and Steel Company near here yesterday afternoon, and fatally injured. The Russellton miner died soon after he arrived at the Allegheny Valley Hospital.

The miners suffered hunger and untold hardship to avoid going back to open shop mines. But after 16 months of struggle, many Russellton miners returned to the pits when John L. Lewis and the policy committee abandoned the Jacksonville scale of wages. In many camps the men are still holding out, demanding the recognition of pit committees. As far as its resources allow, the National Miners Relief Committee is sending groceries into camps where hunger and disease is rampant. Contributions to fight off famine, should be sent to the relief headquarters, 611 Penn Avenue, Pittsburgh, Pa.

FRENCH GENERAL TEXTILE STRIKE LOOMS IN FALL

Sept. 2 Final Date to Answer Demands

LILLE, France, Aug. 28.—Demanding the suppression of the present regulations forbidding strikes, the left wing textile union of northern France is threatening the mill owners with a widespread walk-out calculated to paralyze the industry.

The demands which take the form of an ultimatum, include increased wages for women operatives.

The ultimatum states that if the demands have not been granted in full by September 2, the union threatens to issue a call for a general strike.

Workers in the French textile industry have received reports that similar unrest exists in German textile centers and that a strike is extremely likely in the fall in the lower Rhine district and at Duren.

The French towns immediately affected by the strike are Lille, Valenciennes, and Roubaix.

Every City in America, Every Labor and Fraternal Organization to Have a Booth

Broach Nervous at Meeting, Red and Perspiring, Electrical Correspondent Says

CAMPAIGN CORNER

Our Ohio comrades deserve the Order of the Red Star for their successful efforts in collecting signatures to place the Party ticket on the ballot in a great industrial state where the law calls for the filing of a large number of names. Five hundred of the total number required are already in their hands, and they intend to have the 20,000 necessary to put the Party on the ballot inside of a week. The Cleveland comrades are making arrangements to have Gitlow speak on the radio when he arrives for his September 9th meeting. There will be a picnic on September 3rd which is expected to attract a large crowd.

In New Hampshire a few comrades in one day collected 300 of the 1,000 signatures required to place the Party ticket on the ballot. At this rate New Hampshire should be "over the top" by Labor Day at the latest.

Comrade Charles Mitchell, acting district organizer in Connecticut, reports that the Nutmeg State will be filled in a couple of weeks. It takes 4,500 signatures to do the job in Connecticut, but our comrades are gunning for 6,000. There is more joy in cracking one hard nut than in squeezing one hundred soft ones. This is the attitude our Connecticut comrades are taking.

Comrades who thot we were biting off more than we could digest when the National Election Campaign Committee announced that it would get the Party ticket on the ballot are now beginning to cheer up. With fifteen states already filed and ten more totering on the edge, the only question now is: How many states in addition to the thirty aimed at, will have the Communist ticket on the ballot?

Comrade Harry Ratner writes from Sioux City, Iowa, about the plans of the Party organization here, to wage an intensive campaign. The comrades intend to cover every town in the state with Communist literature. Headquarters have been engaged. Among the speakers who will tour the state are Comrade J. Patton, candidate for Governor, Comrade Roy Stephens, Sub-District Organizer, Comrade D. E. Early and Comrade Stanley Clark. There is a Young Pioneer nucleus of 20 members in Sioux City and they are doing excellent work distributing literature.

Comrade Ratner reports that Senator Brookhart who was formerly the idol of the exploited farmers is no win bad odor with a great many of them because of his support of Hoover who stands for the very policies that made the name of Coolidge anathema to them. The more radical of the farmers now regard Brookhart as a traitor and one leading farmers' organization recently refused to give him a hearing. The Communists are getting out a special leaflet exposing Brookhart as a traitor who camouflaged himself with progressive colors only to flop over into the camp of extreme reaction when an opportunity presented itself.

Comrade Jakira, district organizer in Pittsburgh, reports that the District Committee has sent out instructions to all Party units to secure permits for open air meetings in their respective cities or towns. Efforts to secure the public school's auditorium in Pittsburgh for the Gitlow meeting on September 7th have so far proven fruitless, but when the authorities were advised that a protest would be made against this discrimination against a workingclass political party, they asked our comrades to make out an application. Pittsburgh is a stronghold of the Mellon interests and the open-shop coal and steel barons. The radio broadcasting station is now controlled by the big department stores, and their owners are thoroly reactionary.

Contributions to the $100,000 Communist Campaign Fund are pouring in. This fact is published, not to serve notice on the supporters of the Workers (Communist) Party ticket that they can now rest on their cars, but in order to stimulate them to increased activity. I will just quote from two letters, one from a 76-year old compositor and the other from a hobo. The compositor writes: "Enclosed find one measly dollar. Don't waste postage on me. I am an old man (seventy-six) and work at my trade for a bare living. If I can raise another buck, you'll get it. I have made a note of your address. Good luck to you." And the hobo writes with his contribution: "This is from an old sympathizer for the Socialist Party, but it turned yellow. At present I am forced to degrade myself by bumming my way in this reactionary land of hypocrisy. Yours for a workingclass government."

SOUTH ORANGE, N. J., Aug. 28.—Thomas Feeley, a worker employed by the Public Service Company here, was electrocuted today when he came in contact with a live feed wire that had been left uncovered in the field where he worked.

"LITTLE CAESAR" DID NOT ANSWER 'DAILY' QUESTION

His Henchmen Were Detectives Is Rumor

(By a Worker Correspondent)

Last week a member of Local 3 handed me a copy of the Daily Worker of August 7 to read. Well, I must confess that I have read the paper at least six times and each time my eyes were opened more to the rascality of this man Broach and his pet officers. So on Tuesday night I went to the meeting to hear Broach or Hogan answer some of the questions that your worker correspondents had asked them. But I was very much disappointed.

On my way into the meeting hall I noticed a large number of the membership which was not permitted to enter the meeting. And I inquired as to the reason and the only thing I could find out was that they had all paid up dues cards. And that Broach gave orders not to let them into the meeting. He must have feared some of those members if not all of them. Maybe those members whom Broach is keeping out are in a position to show his rascality up to the membership. You know that he does not like anyone that can debate with him.

Well, I got into the hall after I had to pass along a line of thugs on the stairs, and I settled myself in the front so as to be able to see and hear all that was going on.

The meeting opened and the chairman or whatever he is, turned the meeting over to this man Broach. Broach talked about everything under the sun but he never answered those questions, only threatened the membership with a raise of dues.

But from where I was sitting I could see that he was honestly beaten on the vote. Hogan just sat in and grinned when Broach said that Hogan was an honest man. I was a very surprised man to hear Mr. J. Solomon try and defend his masters and at the same time attack the readers of the Daily Worker. The dirty and filthy language that he used would not have been used by the vilest man, let alone a labor official.

Is not this man Solomon the same gent who was so glad to hear that Hogan had to go to jail? Well, I guess that $100 a week has changed his heart.

While Broach was talking he seemed very nervous and red and the sweat on his forehead was very noticeable. And what a lot of butts he smoked! I guess he was afraid that the masses were ready to give him the air.

Broach sure has some fine collection of animals around him under the guise of officers. Some are jail birds and book-makers and what not.

During his "Caesar" talks he stated that he controlled New York City's electrical license board through his charts. It is possible that Tammany has turned over this board to that carpet-bagger.

Well, after the meeting the members were talking about the questions in the Daily Worker and some said that Broach was surrounded with stoolpigeons. It was said that years ago one of his present officers worked for Burns Detective Agency; also one of his present field force worked for the Kenney Agency right before he came into Local 3.

I wish the membership of Local 3 would read the Daily Worker and keep in touch with what is going on in the electrical trade through this paper. I am a new reader.

ASSAIL CHICAGO CAP EXPULSION

Rally Demands Feingold Reinstatement

CHICAGO, Aug. 28. — Several hundred members of the Chicago cap and millinery workers' unions, Locals 5, 52, 53 and 54, at a mass protest meeting held here recently, unanimously voted for a resolution condemning the reactionary officialdom of the Capmakers Local 5 for expelling from membership in the union I. Feingold, left wing leader, and demanding of the general executive board his immediate reinstatement and the preferment of charges against the reactionary officialdom.

Feingold, whose removal from a general organizership by the International Zaritsky clique had not halted his fight for a militant fight against the encroachments of the employers, but had instead intensified it, was expelled by a decision of Local 5 of the Chicago executive board.

The officals, in bringing this decision to the local meeting brought along a squad of thugs to help them enforce their subsequent order that neither the members present, nor Feingold himself speak in discussion of this arbitrary decision.

The resolution passed by the mass meeting declares: "We wholeheartedly protest against the rule by injunction as instituted by our President Zaritsky against Local No. 7 of Boston, as criminal and contrary to all elementary rules by which the labor movement is supposed to be guided, and that we protest against the suspension and expulsion policy introduced into our union by Zaritsky and the G. E. B.

British Build Record Airplane in Secret

LONDON, Aug. 28.—An airplane, which was built in secret by the British government and which is expected to break all duration and non-stop records, has been transferred in secrecy to the Northholt Airdrome.

The plane is expected to keep in the air for nearly three days and travel 6,000 to 7,000 miles without refueling.

SALVATION ARMY PUTS COMMUNIST OUT ON STREET

Discharged for Aiding Miners' Relief

(By a Worker Correspondent)

LOS ANGELES, Calif. (By Mail)—The salvation army's industrial home for men has once again showed its true colors as an agent for the bourgeoisie. This time they discharged a member of the Workers Party for participating in the recent drive for the National Miners Relief and for attempting to organize a shop nucleus among the employes of the home. These industrial homes here hire unemployed men as truck drivers to pick up old clothes and paper until they obtain employment. It was the hope of this Comrade that if he organized a nucleus whenever the men left the home they would organize similar nuclei in other places.

The reason I am sending this correspondence to our paper is that there are plenty of workers in Los Angeles who read the Daily Worker and who give these papers and magazines to the salvation army. I suggest that the next time a salvation army solicitor calls at your house for papers or magazines turn him down and let him know that it was because his organization discharged a member of the Workers Party. Show them the solidarity of labor.

I might also add that the salvation army is buying fifteen new Ford trucks and two new Ford sedans for the officers of the home with the money that should go to the poor.

The salvation army is also secretly supporting Hoover for the presidency.

Workers of America, get wise to yourselves.

Journeymen Barbers Convention Starts

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Aug. 28.—The New York State Journeymen Barbers opened their twenty-eighth annual state convention here today in the Seneca Hotel. Harry Quinto, president of the New York State Journeymen Barbers' Union, was chairman.

The principal topic of the convention is the proposed state-wide license bill. The speakers at the first session were James Shanessy, president of the International Barbers' Union, Anthony Merlino, New Haven; James Reed of the Williams Soap Company and others.

'The Big Pond' at the Bijou Is a Comedy in a Little Way

GEORGE MIDDLETON and A. E. Thomas are drawing laughs in the Bijou these nights with a comedy called "The Big Pond," tho the tickling of the risibles of the audience is at least as much due to the excellent acting of Harlan Briggs, Kenneth McKenna and Reed Brown, Jr. as to anything in the lines supplied by Messrs. Middleton and Thomas.

It is a story of a wealthy American family (Billings) from Vernon, Ohio, in Europe, with the father cursing at everything foreign in true hundred-per-cent fashion while the daughter waxes romantic over the skies and puddles of Venice and more so over the polite Pierre de Mirande who actually gave her the impression that he loved her.

Thrown in for good measure was a young fellow Ronny Davis (Red Brown, Jr.) who worked in the Billings rubber factory in Vernon. This fellow's job in the comedy was to provide some competition for the affections of Miss Billings.

Pierre de Mirande had wealthy ancestors but unfortunately they were all dead and gone and so was Pierre's money, if he ever had any. But he could twirl a wicked mustache, bend a nasty spine and tell a Reubens from an election campaign poster of Herbert Hoover.

To cut a three-act comedy short, Miss Billings induces her foreigner-hating father to take Pierre back home to Vernon and give him a job in his factory at $100 per week. Billings consented in the hope that the Frenchman would be laughed out of Ohio by the Rotarians. This is not what happened. Within a year Piere was running the factory and he had sold himself to Billings. As a result and due to the business ability of Pierre the Frenchman's salary was raised to $20,000 a year.

Pierre's technique was perfect except in one respect. He did not know how to handle, literally speaking, the girl he loved. Ronny Davis informed him in answer to a question that it was considered improper to hold an American girl's hand prior to engagement and that an attempt at osculation might end in death for the assailant. The Frenchman expressed surprise, having been to dances where he noticed that girls appeared to be bent on pushing their partners off the map, but he took Ronny's advice and almost lost Miss Billings. However, all this was set right.

This play has no other object than to bring customers to the box office. It stands a good chance of attaining that object.

camp and distribute it according to the need of the families there.

A special treat of 20 crates of ripe tomatoes went to Renton with their regular shipment. Ignatz Porme, chairman, says that over 325 families are fed by the relief committee's shipments. Neither the Avella nor the Renton families receive any help from the union.

Vestaburg, Harwick, Pucketty Creek, Parnassus, Creighton, Portage, New Kensington, Charleroi, California and North Bessemer are some of the camps the relief committee keeps alive in Pennsylvania. Triadelphia, Elm Grove and Morgantown, West Virginia, Indiana, Ohio and Southern Illinois receive periodic shipments or checks with which to buy food.

The relief committee is straining its resources, and appeals for donations to make it possible to bring food into many other camps suffering dire hunger. "We don't ask for fancy stuff," one camp pleads, "if you would only give us a little flour or a few potatoes." A twelve-year-old boy from Harwick writes: "We're not forgetting what you did all these months. We only wish we could show you how we'll stick with you when you're striking," the future miner says to the workers who have made it possible to send bread to his town. All contributions should be sent directly to the Pittsburgh headquarters, 611 Penn Ave., Pittsburgh, Pa.

Scott Nearing Will Tour Throughout New Jersey in Workers Party Election Drive

CANDIDATE WILL EXPOSE ROLE OF WALL ST. TWINS

Will Tour Many Cities Thruout State

Scott Nearing, Communist candidate for Governor of New Jersey, began on Sunday a tour of the cities of the state. The first meeting was held at the old Y. M. H. A. Hall, at the corner of Smith and McLellan Sts., Perth Amboy. Other meetings will be held in Jersey City, Newark, Passaic, Bayonne, Elizabeth and Paterson.

Much interest has been awakened among New Jersey workers in Nearing's tour by the leaflet distributed by the Workers (Communist) Party challengingly headed "Who Rules New Jersey?" The campaign speeches of the Communist candidate for governor will expose fully the Wall Street control of both major capitalist candidates, Smith and Hoover, will bring to light the full graft and sordid corruption which is rife in New Jersey, and will conclusively prove the domination of state government in New Jersey by powerful corporations.

The workers of New Jersey are not the only ones to be stirred to interest by the tour of the Communist candidate. The graft and corruption prevalent in that state is so widespread and involves so many high lights in the councils of both capitalist parties that there is much quaking in the boots which tramp capitalist political circles.

An incident which occurred in Perth Amboy is illustrative of the interest awakened in the masses of New Jersey workers by the impending tour of the Communist candidate. A fisherman walked into the headquarters of the Party in Perth Amboy. "Look here," he exclaimed indignantly, "while your candidate is exposing all of the graft of the politicians, let him expose the poor sewage system. It's so bad now that most of the fish we catch here are poisoned by sewage."

The full list of meetings and where held is as follows: Sunday, Aug. 26, Perth Amboy, Smith, corner McLellan Sts., Y. M. H. A. Hall; Wednesday, Aug. 29, Jersey City, Ukrainian Hall, 160 Mercer St.; Thursday, Aug. 30, Newark, Workers Center, 93 Mercer St.; Friday, Aug. 31, Passaic, 212 President St., Ukrainian Hall; Saturday, Sept. 2, Bayonne, Labor Lyceum, 72 West 25th St.; Tuesday, Sept. 4, Elizabeth, Labor Lyceum, 515 Court St.; Wednesday, Sept. 5, Paterson, Carpenters' Hall, 54 Van Houten St.

All the meetings will be held at 8 o'clock in the evening.

Expedition Explores New Found Inca City in Peruvian Jungles

LIMA, Peru, Aug. 28.—At the top of the mountain of Huaynapiccho, on the Amazon ridge of the Andes mountains, an unknown Inca city and fortress has been discovered by the accident of astronomic observations from a nearby mountain. It is believed that it is the first time that white men set foot in this particular part of the vast domain of the old Inca empire.

It is possible and even probable that these ruins were ruins already when the Incas conquered the country from the Aymaras, about 600 years before the arrival of the Spaniards at the beginning of the sixteenth century and that they represent a civilization which preceded that of the Inca empire.

Huaynapiccho was discovered in August by a Peruvian scientific expedition.

Four of the explorers swam the Vilcanota and opened a trail through the dense wilds to the base of the mountain. One of the party was bitten by a snake and could not proceed, but the others pushed on to find a wide stone stairway 400 yards long leading up the steep incline.

At the top of the staircase they found a great old fortress. Outside the fortress lay the ruins of an evidently once thriving city. There were big stone constructions, many platform dwellings and characteristic of the Inca architecture, streets, alleys and other remnants of note. But all was covered by a thick wild growth which in the course of centuries had spread itself rampant over the town.

A [illegible] exploration party is being organized with the purpose of thoroughly examing the ruins.

The present indebtedness of Ecuador is about $10,000,000 to Great Britain and $10,000,000 to the United States.

SEATTLE, Wash., Aug. 26 (UP).—Twenty-four hours after its mysterious disappearance while on a flight from Victoria, B. C., to Seattle, the fate of a ten-passenger Ford monoplane of the British Columbia Airways was still a mystery late today.

Thirty-seven firemen were overcome by carbon monoxide gas which poured with smoke yesterday afternoon from a fire in a sub-cellar of the Bernard Bernstein textile plant at 16 Thomas St.

COMMUNISTS DIE IN JUGO-SLAV JAILS

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia, (By Mail).—"If they die then they are off our hands," answered the royal commissioner of Jugoslavia to the appeal of a representative of the labor unions and a lawyer that proletarian prisoners be treated with more humanity.

The trade unionists and the lawyer Vicol had appealed to the military court at Galatz in behalf of more than 20 proletarian prisoners, condemned by the military court, and subject to brutal mistreatment in the military prison.

The royal commissioner who first received the representative, answered: "Yes, we have arrested 20 Communists, as dangerous elements, dangerous for the safety of the state. What role does the competence of the judge play against the safety of the state?" When the persecution of the prisoners was described to him he answered, "Yes, the maximum power of the prison regime is turned against them. Are they at home there where they can eat whatever they want? They have declared a hunger strike—that is their affair! If they die then they are off our hands!"

The delegation then went to the chief justice. When he was told of the conversation with the state official he cried: "But it is certainly not so! The royal commissioner does not know the situation, Mr. Lawyer! This is a humane regime and we have not had the occasion to sharpen it—we only apply the law, nothing more!" He called the prison commander and the investigation officer, who both naturally assured him of the liberality of the regime.

An Order Is an Order.

When finally the lawyer proved that all the prisoners were civilians and were falsely accused and accordingly that the military court had no jurisdiction over them, the mayor declared, sighing, "What do you want, my dear sirs—everything according to orders. I am also convinced that the people are not guilty and that the military court has no jurisdiction over them. But what shall we do? An order is an order!"

African Exploitation Bared at Conference

WILLIAMSTOWN, Mass., Aug. 28.—The exploitation and misery of millions of Negroes in Africa were described at today's session of the Institute of Politics. Raymond Leslie Buell, research director of the Foreign Policy Association and President M. Johnson of Howard University were the speakers.

Buell charged that disease had been brought into the interior by European soldiers. He described conditions of forced labor fostered by the world capitalists, and said that in the artificial labor centres, the death rate is sometimes as high as 80 to 100 per thousand.

STAMFORD, Conn., Aug. 27 (UP)—Lieutenant Governor J. Edwin Brainard, of Branford, and his son, Spencer, of this city, were named as joint defendants in a $30,000 damage suit in court here today. The plaintiff, George C. Stevens, of New York, alleges that he holds a $20,000 demand note from Brainard, dated July 13, 1922, upon which neither principal nor interest has been paid.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Aug. 26 (UP).—Fires which have destroyed 75,000 acres of timber land in five of California's valuable forests during the past week were virtually under control tonight, according to reports from rangers to S. B. Show, United States District Forester here.

17 Hurt as Missouri Train Leaps Track

VISTA, Mo., Aug. 27 (UP).—Seventeen passengers and two members of the crew of a Frisco, Kansas City, Clinton and Springfield passenger train were injured when two cars of the train struck a spread rail and plunged into a ditch five miles south of here.

Seven of the injured were badly hurt, but all will recover, according to physicians. The most seriously injured were taken to a hospital at Springfield.

The train was a local and consisted of the engine, a baggage car and a single coach. The engine passed over the weakened portion of the track, but the baggage car and a coach overturned. Passengers in the coach were trapped until members of the train crew were able to smash the windows.

After Franco-British Note to Bulgarian Gov.

BELGRADE, Aug. 27 (UP).—Fifteen persons were killed between Obidin and Philippovo, in the Macedonian Mountains, on August 22 in a fight between followers of Ivan Machiloff and General Alexander Protoguereoff.

It was charged the followers of Machiloff attacked a group of seventeen of the opposition faction, headed by Boris Izworski and killed fifteen of them.

Bronx Workers Party Candidates to Speak at Dinner on Sept. 9

All the candidates of the Workers (Communist) Party running in the Bronx—comprising Section 5 of the Workers (Communist) Party—will meet at 2075 Clinton Avenue on Sunday, Sept. 9, at a Bronx election banquet, at which all the participants in the signature drive will also be present.

The candidates of the Bronx will speak, but the main business of the affair will be eating. The banquet will also be in the nature of a celebration for putting across the Fifth Assembly District, which has already been accomplished. By the time the banquet comes around it is probable that the Fourth Assembly District will also be on the ballot.

A special meeting of Branch 6, Section 5, the Co-operative Branch of the Workers (Communist) Party in the Bronx, will be held tomorrow, August 29, at 8:30 p.m.

This meeting has been called by the District Executive Committee to consider problems of especial importance to the branch. Every member must be present. A special check-up of those absent shall be made.

John J. Ballam, Acting District Organizer, will be present a the representative of the District.

BELIEVE 19 DEAD IN N. Y. FLOOD

MIDDLETOWN, N. Y., Aug. 27 (UP).—Two men are known to have lost their lives and seventeen others are believed dead as the result of the cloudburst which swept the narrow Roundout Valley from Grahamsville to Rosendale, a distance of about 25 miles. The flood carried away five main highway bridges and a score of smaller spans, virtually marooning the villages of Eureka, Montela, Lackawack and Napanoch.

The known dead are Abe Blatt, of Lackawack, torn from the arms of rescuers by a torrent after he had carried his invalid wife to safety, and Charles Lavery, 50, of Paterson, who lost his grip on a rope and was swept from sight in the torrent a few hundred yards from the Napanoch Institution for Defective Delinquents.

HILLMAN DRIVE PROVES FIZZLE IN PHILADELPHIA

Board were bombarding the industry with blaring statements to the socialist and employers press, to the effect that a special committee will be appointed "which will once and for all time organize the open shop market of Philadelphia." After a sharp scramble between Beckerman and Blumberg for the position of chief "disburser" of the funds alloted by the general office, Blumberg was finally picked to "handle" the purse strings. This was more than a month ago.

Blumberg, appointee at the helm of the fake drive, still occupies an elaborate suite of rooms which began as the organizer's offices and now is occupied solely by Mr. Blumberg, to be shared occasionally by a Mr. Weinstein his satellite according to information obtained from attendants of the Sylvania Hotel.

Demands Ignored.

Continual demands raised by the left wing in the local organization, that the workers be called to mass meeting to begin a mass movement to organize the shops, and that the Philadelphia local be permitted some control in the conduct of the strike, were met with threats of reprisals from the officialdom of the national office.

Only three shops were called out on strike, the inquiry proves, and even these three strikes were abandoned after a short tussle of a few days with the employers. Instead of presenting to the workers an organization program of struggle against the employers, the reactionary Hillman agents made statements to the employers thru the press and other agencies, inviting them to "come and be unionized," in return for great benefits from Hillman's brand of unionization. Bosses were offered "cooperation" and were tempted with more profits thru "more efficient production." When the offer of even these tempting morsels were met with a stony silence from the employers, the "special committee" repaired itself to the Sylvania Hotel where it will no doubt remain till they deflate the bulging bag.

400 Jewish Families to Colonize Siberia

MOSCOW, Aug. 27.—Four hundred more Jewish families, which head the list of thousands who have applied for colonization, will be sent to the Bureya settlement in Eastern Siberia in October by the Soviet Government, according to a report in the Emes, the official Communist Yiddish Daily.

In spite of the recent flood and the lack of modern tools, the Ozet—Jewish colonization organization, reports that the 28 cooperatives will overcome the inital difficulty in getting settled and will shortly turn into successful farming groups.

Refund $142,393,567 in Taxes to Huge Corporations in U. S.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 27. — American tax payers contributed $2,790,535,537 to the treasury during the fiscal year ended June 30, a decrease of more than $75,000,000 as compared with 1927, Commissioner of Internal Revenue Blair announced today.

Income tax collections amounted to $2,174,573,102, a decrease of $45,379,340 for the year, and miscellaneous taxes totaled $615,962,434, a decrease of $29,768,251.

During the year the treasury made refunds of $142,393,567 to favored corporations, bringing the total refunds for the last 12 years to $937,317,000, Blair said.

Italian Communist Tortured in Jail, Is Reported "Ill"

Special Cable to The Daily Worker

BERLIN, Aug. 27.—Terracini, Italian Communist leader, who was sentenced to twenty-two years imprisonment at the recent trial of the members of the Central Executive Committee of the Italian Party, has been taken suspiciously ill in the Santo Stephano prison. His life is endangered.

According to reports which have come over the border, Terracini was brutally tortured in jail.

Harriman Gets Grant From Polish Fascists

STATE A. F. OF L. IN NEW YORK ENDORSES SMITH

Misleaders to Aid Wall St. Man

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Aug. 27.—Tammany Al Smith, who has received the support of Raskob, Du Pont and other representatives of Wall Street, will in all probability receive the unqualified endorsement of the State Federation of Labor, whose convention opens here tomorrow.

The convention will be addressed by Senator Robert F. Wagner, Tammany politician, and Attorney General Ottinger, who will very likely head the republican state ticket. The action of the convention will probably serve as a precedent for the federations in other states.

"In Time of Peace Pacts Prepare for War."

We cannot know what resources may be left to the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics at the present moment of its struggle against the coming imperialist war in connection with the so-called Kellogg Pact. But this much is certain—the brazenly dishonest device of "inviting" the Soviet Union to sign the Pact after the negotiations as to the nature of the pact had been closed is only further proof of what Comrade Chicherin said in a statement to the press some weeks prior to the signing of the Pact:

> "The exclusion of the Soviet government from these negotiations leads us in the first place to the assumption that, among the real objects of the initiators of this pact there obviously was and is the endeavor to make of this pact a weapon for isolating and fighting against the Soviet Union. The negotiations regarding the conclusion of the Kellogg pact are obviously an integral part of the policy of encircling the Soviet Union which at this moment occupies the central point of the international relations of the whole world. I would remind you that our delegate Comrade Litvinov, on his return from the December meeting of the Preparatory Commission on Disarmament, gave in his report a short analysis of the Kellogg proposals regarding the conclusions of a pact and ably showed that the 'outlawing of war as a weapon of national policy' is synonymous with preparing war as a weapon of international counter-revolution."

After the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics is excluded from all negotiations as to the terms and conditions of the pact, so that, without interference by any nation pursuing a real peace policy, the capitalist diplomats could shape the Kellogg document into "a weapon for isolating and fighting against the Soviet Union"—"a weapon of international counter-revolution,"—the belated so-called invitation to the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics can be nothing more than a further maneuver against the Soviet Union. It is one more proof that the imperialist powers feel the active need of a mobilization-slogan for a coming war against the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics. Whatever recourse may yet be found by the Soviet Union in this situation, it is certain that the imperialists intend their "invitation" itself to give them a political advantage against the Soviet Union. They offer the Soviet Union the chance to sign a pact facilitating the encirclement of the Soviet Union and war against it; and in the event of refusal to sign, the imperialists will cry: "See! The Bolsheviks alone refuse peace!"

Having once turned pale before the Soviet diplomats' proposal for complete and immediate disarmament at their "disarmament" conference, the imperialists dared not give the Soviet diplomats a chance to propose really to outlaw war at a conference for the "outlawry of war." For thus the Soviet diplomats would have demonstrated to the world that the outlawry of war is an impossibility to capitalist imperialist governments.

The workers of the entire world should know that the signing of the Kellogg-Briand pact yesterday brings the imperialist world war closer by a seven-league stride. The hypocritical farce at Paris is a warning to the working class to prepare for the coming war.

The Pact was signed in an atmosphere of war, with reservations intended by both Great Britain and France as steps to their particular vantage-points for the coming war. The Pact was proposed by the biggest imperialist power, the United States, which is preparing feverishly an enormous war machine with which to enforce its position as the dominant imperialism of the whole world. And the whole process developed to a farther stage the grouping of war forces in positions hostile to the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics.

The complex of war maneuvers against the Soviet Union is not the only ghost that haunted the Salle de l'Horloge when the treaty was signed. The imperialist rivalry between the United States, an imperialist power almost without colonies and out to conquer a colonial empire, and Great Britain, struggling to keep its weakening hold upon a worldful of colonies, is a vortex for all imperialists intrigues. The impulsion of a series of imperialist nations toward the extinction of the Chinese revolution and the conquest of China is more powerful than the "new parchment from the skin of milk-fed lamb" that Kellogg took to Paris.

Workers of the world! Get ready to defend the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics—for imperialist "Peace" has been declared! The stern duty of the working class, exploited farmers and oppressed colonials, will be to transform the imperialist war into a revolutionary war against the capitalist class—for liberation from wars and exploitation.

Machado Tool Spread Reformist Talk

(Special to the Daily Worker)

HAVANA, Aug. 27.—Juan Arevalo, Machado's tool in the Cuban labor organizations, who was "elected" to represent Cuban labor at the recent conference of the Geneva Labor Office, gave a long interview on his return to Havana to the "Diario de la Marina," the largest newspaper of this city.

He began by pointing out how he was chosen to represent the Cuban workers because he represents "within the universal labor trade union movement the evolutionist social theories as opposed to the Red Trade Union International Moscow and all its revolutionary extravagances whose results are perfectly disastrous for those workers who follow these theories." He continued by describing how in this respect he was in perfect accord with the leaders of Amsterdam and the Second International whom he met in Europe.

Organize in Argentine.

From these meetings, Arevalo reports, the idea was born to organize a central Latin American Labor Office in Buenos Aires in connection with the "Confederacion Obrera Argentina" which is affiliated with Amsterdam. Arevalo explained that this Latin American organization will by no means try to oppose the Pan-American Federation of Labor. But he hopes that such an organization, with the center in Buenos Aires, will be able to approach many labor organizations which the Pan-American Federation of Labor was unable to reach, "because the anarchists, Communists and syndicalists are spreading false conceptions about the purpose and aims of the P.A.F.L."

Arevalo hopes that the next congress of the Pan-American Federation of Labor, which will take place in Havana in May, 1929, "will clarify many erroneous ideas which were traditional in the labor movement, such as the 'class struggle.' We must find new orientations towards 'class cooperation,' because the aspirations of the working class being just and humane, we need for the betterment of the working class the sincere cooperation of other classes. We are convinced," he continued, "that we could obtain help towards our betterment from many elements who today deny this help to us because they are told to be our enemies, while in fact they sympathize with the idea of betterment of the working class." He explained how he could see clearly in Geneva, that the "Marxist conception, that governments are committees representing the capitalist class, is false because the majority of the governments represented there voted and worked for the conventions favorable to the workers and thus we have an enormous amount of data and proofs to demonstrate the opposite of Marx's theories."

The "Glory" of Reformism.

"We do not deny," he continued, "that the governments defend the rights of private property and the wage system, but labor reformism is not interested in hypothetical aims." On these principles Arevalo announced, he is going to start a campaign "among the workers and intellectuals of Cuba for the organization of the long expected socialist party of Cuba, as there is a great necessity for such a party."

Arevalo is the editor of a weekly paper in Havana called "Accion Socialista-Organo Defensor del Proletariado," in which he pictures the dictator Machado as the friend of the proletariat.

Surprising as it may seem from this exposure of his characteristics, Arevalo met with an unexpected adventure when returning from Europe. Before leaving for Cuba, he went to visit his parents in Coruna, in Northern Spain. There the police of Primo de Rivera promptly arrested him as a dangerous character. Arevalo complained bitterly about this incident, that though "equipped with a diplomatic passport and being an official delegate of the Cuban government," he was kept in jail for twelve days in spite of the intervention of the Cuban consul in Coruna and the Cuban ambassador in Madrid. The fact of being the editor of such a dangerous paper as his "Accion Socialista" was sufficient to make him suspected, notwithstanding the assurances of the Cuban ambassador.

Makes Millions While Premier of Greece

ATHENS, Greece, Aug. 27.—Fifty million dollars represent the wealth amassed by Stephanos Skouloudis, former premier and foreign minister of Greece, in his banking operations in Constantinople which cover the period 1915-16 when he held power in Athens.

He was forced out of his premiership by the allied powers because he prevented Greece from joining them on account of his huge interests in Turkey. The death duties alone on the will of the former premier amount to $6,000,000.

As he marches to the impending imperialist world war, each conscripted worker and farmer will be equipped with the "poison gas" to make his own brain soggy—if Mr. Kellogg's swindling "peace" pact works as intended.

What Party Fights for Negroes?

Communist Candidate Challenges a Negro Minister to Make Good His Promise

Rev. Thomas S. Harten, pastor of a Negro church (one must remember that white Christians compel Negro Christians to accept the Jim Crow system of segregation), recently published a statement to the effect that both the democratic and the republican parties are enemies of the Negro people and offering a donation of $200 to the campaign fund of any Negro candidate nominated for public office—presumably meaning one truly representing the cause of emancipation of the Negro masses.

Richard B. Moore, candidate of the Workers (Communist) Party for congress in the 21st congressional district of New York, answered the challenge of the minister, pointing out that the Workers (Communist) Party is the only party that qualifies as the champion of the Negro masses and that it has numerous Negro candidates for office on its tickets in this election. Moore therefore demands that the preacher make good on his offer by contributing the fund to the Communist campaign and by giving the other forms of aid promised to a genuine campaign for Negro rights.

The full text of the letter of the Communist candidate to the Rev. Harten, recently quoted in part in our news columns, is as follows:

Rev. Dr. Thomas S. Harten,
Pastor, Holy Trinity Baptist Church,
Brooklyn, N. Y.

Dear Dr. Harten:

Your statement published in the New York Amsterdam News of August 8 with respect to the present political campaign and the interests of the Negro, is quite a challenging one. You are quite right when you say:

> "Today it seems that the great principles of human rights are forgotten by the Grand Old Party, while a few of our Negro leaders play to the howling mob without making the proper demand for our citizenship rights. On the other hand the democratic party . . . is just as much opposed today to the Negro receiving his citizenship rights as it was sixty years ago."

Surely any man who is at all interested in the emancipation of his race and whose eyes are open to the actual situation, to the brazen and open rebuffs to the Negro by both these parties, can come to no other conclusion.

We are indeed glad to find that you are taking a definite and militant stand in this present campaign. We bear in mind the militant struggle which you have waged in Brooklyn in many instances for the defense of the oppressed Negro race. And we are hoping that your entry into the political campaign will be characterized by the same uncompromising and militant spirit.

We are at one with you in your opposition to Governor Smith and to the democratic party, because we know that the democratic party is not only the party of the Solid South, but also the party of big business, the party of the wealthy oppressors who profit from the degradation and exploitation of the black and white workers of this country.

"Black Man Without a Party?"

The republican party is also the party of big business and the party of racial oppression. Only a blind man can hope for anything from these parties for the oppressed Negroes.

Will the beneficiaries of a system do anything to abolish that system? Will the parties of the oppressors do anything to abolish oppression? Of course not! You seem to be conscious of this when you say:

> "Today the black man is without a party. During political campaigns, the candidate comes, delivers flattering speeches and makes great promises, which only last until election day. In fact, the present republican administration stood by and held the coats of the southern democrats while they stoned us; in other words, they have held their peace while the democrats violated the Fourteenth and Fifteenth Amendments, while sending up a mighty howl about the Eighteenth.
> "To my mind, it will not pay the Negro to lose friendship over Mr. Smith nor Mr. Hoover, but our only salvation lies in selecting some real men of our race not only in Harlem but throughout the country, and send them to congress, to the state legislature, and elect them judges."

Yes, in respect to the republican and democratic parties, it is absolutely correct and indisputable to affirm that "today the black man is without a party." But fortunately for the oppressed Negro race, there is a growing militant and powerful party of the oppressed Negro and other workers of America, the Workers (Communist) Party of America.

The Workers Party stands forth today as the champion of the oppressed Negro race and of all other oppressed groups in the country. Unlike the republican and democratic parties, which segregated and excluded Negroes at their national conventions, the Workers (Communist) Party welcomed and seated 24 Negro delegates. These delegates participated on all important committees, many serving as chairmen of sessions, and helped to draft a program of action for the complete emancipation of the oppressed masses of America.

Only Party for Negroes.

This platform is a historic document. It is the first time in the political history of America that a party has taken such an unequivocal, uncompromising and militant stand upon the Negro question. I ask that you give it your careful consideration, and that you especially note the section dealing with the oppression of the Negroes. I feel confident, knowing your militant attitude, that when you have read this, and when you have become fully acquainted with the record of the Workers Party, you will conclude that this is the only party in America which today offers any opportunity to the Negro masses and is therefore the only party which deserves their support.

The Workers Party, in accordance with its stand for the complete emancipation of the Negro race, nominated three Negro candidates on its state ticket—Lovett Fort-Whiteman for State Comptroller; Richard B. Moore for Congress from the 21st Congressional District, and Edward Welsh for Assembly from the 21st Assembly District. These candidates, standing as they do upon a platform which demands the abolition of the whole system of racial discrimination, will be compelled to wage a militant struggle in the legislative offices and will have the support of their party.

Not Question of Individuals.

I am sure you will agree that it is not enough to have individuals who are sympathetically disposed toward the Negro race, or even Negro candidates in office, if they lack the clear understanding of the true situation and the spirit of militancy and struggle. It is also necessary—in fact, it is absolutely essential—to have a party back of these candidates which will compel them to toe the mark and will stand back of them with its support.

A Negro who is bound hand and foot by the corrupt and oppressive democratic and republican machines, will be unable to fight militantly for the interests of his race. But even if he had the desire to do so, he would be completely blocked by his party. We know what happens to men who break the discipline of their political machine. We know how Governor Sulzer was impeached by the democratic machine and how Theodore Roosevelt was broken by the republican plunderbund. These instances are conclusive. If Tammany Hall did not hesitate to impeach a governor, what would it not do to a Negro who did not obey its mandates? If the republican party did not hesitate to crush the most influential single figure in American political life, what will it not do to a Negro? Both republican and democratic parties have given evidence in this connection. If the republican party will indict and jail its most faithful Negro henchmen, such as Perry Howard and Warner, what would it not do to a militant Negro who broke its discipline fighting for the interests of his oppressed race? All this convinces us of the necessity of supporting a party which actually supports our cause.

Answers Challenge.

I am, therefore, led to hope confidently for your support. I feel that this Party and its candidates have the only real claim upon the offer of support which you so generously make. I therefore claim your support for the Workers Party and for its candidates.

Your offer is quoted thus:

> "I will pledge $200 from this church for the campaign of any colored man who is nominated, and I believe there are a number of other churches that will give as much or more. Then I will take over from Brooklyn a number of intelligent men and women who will make a house-to-house canvass helping to register the Negro vote without any charges. I will give both my time and money to help."

I invite you and your co-workers to membership in the Negro Campaign Committee for the Workers Party which is now being formed by the militant and far-visioned fighters of the race.

This campaign is not only an opportunity but a challenge and a test to our race.

Should we fail to support the Party which champions our cause, we will write our race down as a group which neither thinks nor cares about its freedom.

This must not be.

Our race for its own self-protection must now realize what its true interests are, who its true allies are, and must take a stand as intelligent and free-spirited militants.

I look forward to receiving your support and active co-operation in the present political struggle for the enfranchisement and emancipation of our people.

Cordially yours,
RICHARD B. MOORE.
Candidate for Congress, 21st Congressional District, on the Workers Party ticket.

THE WORKERS (COMMUNIST) PARTY DEMANDS:

1. Abolition of the whole system of race discrimination. Full racial, political, and social equality for the Negro race.
2. Abolition of all laws which result in segregation of Negroes. Abolition of all Jim Crow laws. The law shall forbid all discrimination against Negroes in selling or renting houses.
3. Abolition of all laws which disfranchise the Negroes.
4. Abolition of laws forbidding intermarriage of persons of different races.
5. Abolition of all laws and public administration measures which prohibit or in practice prevent Negro children or youth from attending general public schools or universities.
6. Full and equal admittance of Negroes to all railway station waiting rooms, restaurants, hotels and theatres.
7. A federal law against lynching and the protection of the Negro masses in their right of self-defense.
8. Abolition of discriminatory practices in courts against Negroes. No discrimination in jury service.
9. Abolition of the convict lease system and of the chain gang.
10. Abolition of all Jim Crow distinctions in the army, navy and civil service.
11. Immediate removal of all restrictions in all trade unions against the membership of Negro workers.
12. Equal opportunity for employment, wages, hours, and working conditions for Negro and white workers. Equal pay for equal work for Negro and white workers.

U. S. S. R. REVENUES INCREASE 16 PER CENT

MOSCOW, Aug. 27.—The revenues of the Soviet government, for the most part from government and co-operative undertakings promises to exceed the expectations of the Planning Commission, which estimated that the year 1927-1928 would net a revenue of 6,100,000,000 roubles for the Soviet government.

Figures for the first nine months of the economic year (which is calculated from October 1, 1927) show that the revenue receipts were 76 per cent of the yearly total. The revenues thus far show an increase of 16 per cent over last year.

The budget funds this year are distributed so as to constitute an increase of 29 per cent for agriculture, 79 per cent for poor peasants' collective farms, 30 per cent for industry and 37 per cent for electrification. The excess of 100,000,000 roubles will be devoted to cultural and educational undertakings.

ANOTHER GANG MURDER

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 27 (UP).—Chicago racketeers, working against Los Angeles bootleggers in a liquor running war, today were blamed for another gangland murder in connection with the death yesterday of Philip Rubino.

Told You So

THE officials of the wreck that was once the powerful United Mine Workers of America are begging the coal operators to sign contracts with them under almost any conditions. Accepting a reduction of wages for the miners is the least of those lads' worries. Of course there is going to be no reduction in the salaries of the union officials. John L. Lewis will still draw his $12,000 a year with an equal amount for expenses.

THE officials of the international union and the district officials are not devoting all their time to chasing hard-boiled coal operators with pleas for a conference and a contract. Comrade B. K. Gebert, who is active in the anthracite region, sent in a program of a "Civic Testimonial" in honor of the Right Reverend Monsignor James S. Fagan, of Hazelton, Pa., of which Thomas Kennedy, secretary-treasurer of the U. M. W. of A. is General Chairman. With Mr. Kennedy on the committee is a coal company lawyer by the name of John H. Bigelow.

IN his opening remarks brother Kennedy quoted from the "holy gospel" the old gag, "He that exalteth himself shall be humbled and he that humbleth himself shall be exalted." Perhaps the striking coal diggers had exalted themselves overmuch in fighting for the preservation of the Jacksonville scale and now being properly humbled according to scripture by a reduction in wages. Mr. John L. Lewis, who according to the catholic catechism should go straight to hell—provided he can go straight even on that straight road—for his failure to see the true faith, joined in his praise of the Reverend Fagan for "promoting harmony between employer and employe." And so on.

WHAT the starving miners of the bituminous coal fields may think of the "stately ceremony and gorgeous pomp" that marked the elevation of the Rev. Fagan to the rank of papal chamberlain we cannot say for certain but we can imagine that are now being properly humbled account of the ceremony they will utter some healthy curses. "The scene at the church was most beautiful. Assembled around the magnificent marble altars were fully fifty priests, attired in black cassock and white surplice. The beautiful purple of the robes of Monsignor Fagan and Monsignor Leach and the bright hue of the purple robes of the three bishops, stood out in brilliant contrast against the black of the priests, while the gold vestments of the officers of the mass blended well with the array of color."

WELL, here is one ex-altar boy who would swap the whole ceremony for a loaf of bread for a hungry miner's child. And those who wish to protest against this mediaeval hocus pocus, can do so in no better way than by sending a contribution to help the National Miners Relief Committee, with headquarters at 611 Penn Avenue, to feed the victims of the coal operators in the great strike. Alfred Wagenknecht, Relief Director, who is neither a priest nor a bishop, will see that the money is used for food and not for incense or gold vestments.

MARCUS GARVEY would have his followers believe that Africa can be redeemed for the black man with the aid of Al Smith. Marcus knows better, but like all leaders who in the past as well as in the present have utilized the sufferings of an oppressed people to rise to power and affluence, he is deliberately deceiving the exploited and persecuted Negroes who have not yet seen through his fraudulent pretensions. No intelligent Negro worker will expect any help from the leader of the lynching Democratic Party any more than from the Republican Party which permits the lynching of Negroes without a protest. "A plague on both Wall Street parties who serve the exploiters of white and black!" will be the answer of the class conscious Negroes who have learned that only through the program of the Workers (Communist) Party will the Negro masses be able to emancipate themselves in a common cause with their white brothers and sisters.

AN Associated Press staff writer says that state department folk look at the "outlaw-war" planks in the Democratic and Republican platforms with wry faces. KELLOGG NOTE REVEALS ANTI-USSR ALLIANCE

Izvestia Declares Pact Move to Hide War Plans

Kellogg Let's Cat Out

WASHINGTON, Aug. 29.—That the Kellogg pact is designed to perpetuate the relations entered into by the powers in the Treaty of Locarno, and designed as a bloc against the Soviet Union, was confirmed here today when the text of the note of invitation sent to 48 nations to adhere to the pact was made public here today. The negotiations preceding the signing of the treaty assured the maintenance of the bloc against the Soviet Union.

The conditions laid down for the adherence of the Soviet Union to the pact are such which would not allow of any change in the original nature of the treaty. They reveal that the powers were determined not to countenance the demand of the Soviet Government that it be allowed to participate in the negotiations.

Reports received here from Moscow state that an article in the Izvestia, official organ of the Soviet Government, points out that as long as the powers continue to arm and assign a major part of their budgets to the army and navy, and as long as they refuse to adopt a plan of complete disarmament, such as was proposed by the Soviet Government at the Geneva disarmament conference, the Kellogg pact will be ineffective and will amount only to a realignment of powers.

The text of the note to each of the forty-eight governments follows:

I have the honor to inform you

RESUME SOVIET-GERMAN TRADE

Relations Broken at Shackta Trial

BERLIN, Aug. 29 (UP).—The foreign office delivered a note to the Soviet embassy today expressing Germany's readiness to resume trade relations with Russia.

Relations were broken off because of the arrest of Germans in the Donetz Basin mine conspiracy cases.

In the trial of the sabotagers against the Soviet Union operating in the great industrial and mining center of the Don Basin, three German engineers, connected with German firms, were accused of taking part in the conspiracy and espionage for their firms and former owners.

FRENCH TEXTILE UNION TO STRIKE

Bosses Reject Wage Raise Demand

PARIS, Aug. 28.—The Northern France textile syndicate, a mill owners association, in an official statement issued yesterday rejected the demands of the left wing textile workers syndicate that the wages of women workers be increased. This action makes almost certain the calling of a general strike by about Sept. 2.

Even though the wages of men textile operatives are miserably low, the exploitation of the women workers is almost unendurable. In add[illegible] to this the workers organi[illegible] [illegible] at strike action also in order to shatter the existing laws and regulations curtailing strike activity.

Workers in other textile centers are also threatening walkouts as are most of the large centers in Germany.

TEACHERS WIN PAY RAISE

ATLANTA, Ga., Aug. 29.—Teachers in Fulton County schools have secured a pay raise through their activity in a long fight against the local reactionary county boards.

Mrs. Knapp Is "Awful Sick"; Will Be Freed

SYRACUSE, Aug. 29.—A malignant illness, conveniently discovered by her enterprising lawyers just after she was convicted of grand larceny and embezzlement of the state census funds of 1915, may save Mrs. Florence E. S. Knapp, former republican secretary of state from a prison term.

This was revealed today with the announcement that a a result of this "illness" George Z. Medalie, special prosecutor, will move for suspension of her sentence.

The lady's ailment took a sudden turn for the worse, it was found today, when it was announced that she would have to come up for sentence in Albany next Tuesday. Her personal physician immediately announced that so serious is Mrs. Knapp's condition that he has refused to risk for her an "operation for goitre."

Solicitous friends, many of whom were on the "dummy" payroll of the census bureau during Mrs. Knapp's efflorescent administration, will begin a campaign to obtain a pardon for her if the prosecutor's motion for suspension of the sentence is overruled.

MILL STRIKERS PREPARE PARADE

Mayor Stalls on Permit for T. M. C.

NEW BEDFORD, Mass., Aug. 29.—Fearful of the consequences outright refusal would bring, since nearly all of the 28,000 textile strikers are adherents of the New Bedford Textile Workers Union of the Textile Mill Committees, Mayor Ashley yesterday announced that the left wing union could parade on Labor Day "if the Chief of Police concurred." Permission to parade was first granted the A. F. of L. Textile Council, the application of the T. M. C. union being held up in order to give them less time for preparations.

The mass pressure of the tens of thousands behind the T. M. C. organization was responsible for the wariness of the mayor who tried to avoid a baldly discriminating decision to grant a permit to one and not to the other. Preparations for the parade on the part of the militant union, however, are going full speed ahead, and they will parade whether permission is granted or not.

The Labor Day parades are expected to show all those watching strike developments who are the real leaders of the masses of strikers. Reliable opinion here states that if the A. F. of L. officialdom could have foreseen the possibility of a rival parade by the T. M. C., they would never have announced one. Substantiation of this is had in the fact that they always tried to avoid calling mass demonstrations on picket lines and to meetings.

The T. M. C., however, has already called two parades, both of which were broken by vicious police assaults.

Elizabeth Donnelley, leader of the children's strike clubs here was dismissed from court when she came up for trial on a disturbing the peace charge. She had been leading 300 children in singing strike songs at the park, when she was arrested. About 100 children followed her and her police captors on the way to jail, and demonstratively shouted for her release for several hours at the police station.

Many Lives Imperilled in Boston Explosion

BOSTON, Aug. 29 (UP).—Scores of lives were imperiled, four persons were severely injured, and several others slightly hurt, here today, when two terrific explosions occurred in a manhole in a Back Bay street.

USSR RESUMES SEARCH

Krassin on Way Back to Arctic Wastes

BERGEN, Norway, Aug. 29 (U. P).—The Russian ice breaker Krassin has started its lonely and humanitaran search back into the frozen arctic area.

The big steel prowed craft, which rescued seventeen men of the Italia and rescue groups, is en route to Kings Bay, Spitsbergen, today, from where it will put back into the northland to search for the six men who floated away with the envelope of the Italian dirigible and for the six men of the Roald Amundsen expedition.

At Kings Bay the Krassin will pick up the Soviet aviator Chukhnovsky, who will make reconnoitering flights in an attempt to find a trace of the twelve men who still are missing after that ill-fated expedition to the pole.

POINT TO WAR DANGER AT RED YOUTH CONGRESS

Young Communists in Fourth World Meet

Urge More Sport Work

MOSCOW, Aug. 29.—Stressing the danger of imperialist war, the second plenary session of the Fifth World Congress of the Young Communist International opened here today under the chairmanship of Blenkle.

Chitarov, in his opening speech, spoke at length on the danger of war, pointing out the chief tasks of the Young Communist International. "The broad masses of the working class youth are still under the influence of the bourgeois," he said. "The Socialist Youth International is following a reactionary course and is steadily losing ground.

"The economic situation of the youth of the world is very bad, particularly that of the peasant youth. The role of the youth in factories is rapidly growing on account of the introduction of rationalization in the factories, the speed-up system, etc. The organization of youth is weak, and even declining.

Fighting Spirit Grows.

"The responsibility for this situation rests with the Amsterdam International which tries to rob the youth of its rights in the unions. In spite of this, the fighing spirit of the young workers has been growing in recent years. Many strikes of young workers have occurred in various countries. The influence of the Communist youth in the trade unions is constantly growing.

"Since the last congress, the Communist young workers have participated in armed struggles in Poland, China, Indonesia, Bulgaria, and Greece. The French Young Communist League fought actively against the Moroccan and Syrian wars. The British Young Communist League has fought against Chinese intervention. The Scandina-

Heat Wave Hits City, To Stay; Many Suffer

Great discomfort, and in many sections of the city, much suffering was caused yesterday by a late summer heat wave and humid condition which struck New York. The city's shops, factories, and subways were more sweltering than they have been for several weeks as a result.

No immediate relief is in sight, according to the Weather Bureau, unless local showers develop. The heat is expected to continue for another day or two.

The temperature at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon was 88 degrees and 61 degrees humidity. This was just two points below the record for the date, which was 90 degrees in 1895.

HOLD WORKERS SPORTS MEET

47 Delegates Present at Convention

The second National Convention of the Labor Sports Union opened Monday, Aug. 27, at the Progressive Hall, 15 W. 126th St., with 54 delegates present, representing 33 clubs. In addition to the regular delegates, two representatives of the striking young textile workers of New Bedford, Jack Rubenstein and Joseph Tarvis, were present.

Paul Cline, National Secretary, reporting for the Executive Board on the past year and a half of work, pointed out that the Labor Sports Union had made great progress since its first convention. A total of 67 clubs have been brought under the organizational control of the Labor Sports Union. These 67 clubs have a membership of 4,500 to 5,000. Of these 67 clubs, the majority are located in three centers, New York, Chicago and Detroit. New York has 15 clubs, Detroit 9 and Chicago 13. Cline stressed the importance of organizing workers' sports clubs in all cities, and making the Labor Sports Union a real national organization.

Five functioning districts of the Labor Sports Union have been set up. They are Chicago, Detroit, New York, Ohio, Pennsylvania and the Massachusetts districts.

In carrying on its athletic activities the Labor Sports Union has held two big indoor meets and two Olympic meets. In the meet just concluded, about 600 athletes took part.

Walter Burke of Detroit was elected chairman of the convention and Al Steele of New York, secretary. Theodore Maki, of Brooklyn, N. Y., was unanimously elected president.

In addition to Burke and Maki, fifteen members of the Executive Board were elected. The fifteen were: I. Sapperstein, Metropolitan Workers Soccer League; E. Austin, M. W. S. L.; Al Steele, Eastern District L. S. U.; Arne Myntinnen, Paaveo Jokinen and Emil Miller, Vesa, N. Y.; Frank Kern, of the German-American Club of the M. W. S. L.; J. Bruney, of the Falcon A. C. of the M. W. S. L.; Milton Weich, of the Co-operative Sports Club; Jack Rubenstein, Eastern District; Joe Shandler, Harlem Progressive Youth; Frank Forslund, Scandinavian Workers A. C.; Murray Singer, Plumbers Helpers; Milda Toivenen, Vesa A. C. and a member of Local 43 of the Millinery Workers Union.

The convention instructed the incoming Executive Board to prepare for the publication of a regular monthly official publication of the Labor Sports Union. This publication is to be issued not later than three months after the date of the convention.

FURRIERS SQUASH A. F. L. SCABBERY

Philadelphia, Boston Build New Union

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 29.—Edward F. McGrady, special agent of the A. F. of L. in charge of destroying unionism in the fur industry, made an attempt at a reprisal for Local 53's action in affiliating with the new union movement, and was again condemned by the fur workers at a crowded mass meeting in Boslower Hall.

After hearing their business agent, Sam Burt, report that he found McGrady in conference with the bosses' association whom he was trying to convince to break off negotiations for a new agreement with Local 53, and after listening to Ben Gold of New York make an appeal to build the new union, the workers here unanimously passed a resolution denouncing the International clique.

BAN COMMUNIST PARTY IN LATVIA; OFFICES RAIDED

Action Follows Strike Demonstration Aug. 22

Suppress Newspapers

RIGA, Latvia, Aug. 29.—The Communist Party of Latvia has been declared illegal by the Ministry of the Interior and police are now suppressing the party and its press throughout the country. Today all the Communist Party offices were raided, literature confiscated, the press suppressed, and the police are looking for the functionaries.

This action came as a counter move on the part of the government to the monster demonstration and general strike called by the Communist Party for August 22, when in spite of the arrest of 400 workers and the continued attack of the police the demonstration proceeded to protest against the arrest of Communists and the banning of the radical unions.

Although anti-Communist legislation had already been enacted in the form of the decree banning the radical unions, which were rich in Communist members, and the government had been persecuting the Communists, having arrested many functionaries, the latest move brings the government out openly in its position against the Communist Party.

It is an assured fact that members both of the Communist Party and the Independent Socialist Party, which co-operated in the demonstration of August 22, will be followed up closely by the police and arrested in masses.

BETHLEN BEGS WALL ST. HELP

Is Alarmed by Visit of Karolyi

In order to counteract the effect of the visit of Count Michael Karolyi, former president of Hungary, who will arrive in New York on Saturday, Premier Bethlen, virtual fascist dictator of Hungary, has issued a statement through the New York Times, calling upon "American citizens" to show the "great American spirit" and aid the Hungarian reaction.

The statement bases its plea for support upon its attack on the working class which seized power in March, 1919 only to be overthrown by the invasion of foreign troops.

The statement points to the visit of the 500 Hungarian delegates of the dictatorship who were present at the unveiling of the Kossuth monument in New York, but fails to mention the demonstration of American workers which took place at that time and which exposed the

40,000 GERMAN TAILORS STRIKE

Industry Is Completely Shut Down

BERLIN, Aug. 29.—Forty-thousand workers in the mens' clothing industry complete the first week of a general strike for improved working conditions today with determination strengthened to stay out "till livable wages are granted." This is due to the success the workers achieved in completely shutting down the entire industry immediately after the strike call was issued.

The effectiveness of the walkout and the fact that the annual fall buyers fair has just been opened in Liepzig are looked upon by many as signs of the strike terminating successfully for the workers.

Wages received by the mens' clothing workers here, union officials show, are below the pay received by unskilled industrial labor.

Discontent and growing sentiment for strike action is spreading in widely separated textile manufacturing centers.

PLAN FOR BIG PRESS BAZAAR

76 Organizations Send Delegates

Seventy-six organizations, represented by 149 delegates, outlined plans for the National Daily Worker and Freiheit Press Bazaar, at a conference held at the Manhattan Lyceum Tuesday night.

Speaking in behalf of the Central Executive Committee of the Workers (Communist) Party, Alexander Trachtenberg urged a nation-wide drive for the bazaar as a means of building up the press of the Party. He pointed out that the need of a militant press was greater than ever in view of the tremendous struggle in which the American workers are now engaged.

The fact that only five weeks remain for the bazaar was stressed by many speakers, who urged the intensification of the organization drive. Delegates to the conference reported that bakers, jewelry workers, white goods workers, workers' clubs and progressive clubs have already elected delegates and are busy preparing booths for the bazaar.

Harry Fox, campaign manager of the Daily Worker, was elected chairman of the meeting and R. Goliger, of Section 1, Workers Party, secretary.

A committee of 25 was elected which will hold its first meeting today at 6.30 at 26-28 Union Sq.

HUNGARY POLICE TORTURE WORKER

BUDAPEST, Hungary (By Mail).—The police here have continued their persecution of revolutionary workers and are raiding working class sections in order to discover Communist literature. On Aug. 8 the police succeeded in finding such literature and followed up the discovery by numerous arrests.

One of the arrested, Ludwig Simon, threw himself from the window of the police station and suffered a broken foot. He was brought back to the inquisition chamber.

Simon did not jump from the window without sufficient cause. Undoubtedly he could no longer stand tortures of the Hungarian police and threw himself out of the window to escape prolonged suffering.

MINOR, WHITEMAN WILL TOUR STATE

Communist Program to Be Presented

Robert Minor, editor of the Daily Worker and Communist candidate for U. S. Senate and Lovett Fort-Whiteman, Communist candidate for Comptroller, together with a representative of the Young Workers (Communist) League, will begin a state-wide election campaign tour of New York on September 14th, in response to demands made by workers of many cities for an opportunity to hear the Communist candidates speak on the issues and significance of the 1928 elections.

The itinerary of the tour will include Poughkeepsie, Albany, Troy, Schenectady, Syracuse, Utica, Rochester, Buffalo, Jamestown and Binghampton. Reports made by up-state Communist campaigners, engaged in obtaining signatures to put the candidates of the Workers (Communist) Party on the ballot, indicate the interest of masses of workers in the Communist platform and principles.

Whiteman will stress the role of the capitalist parties in betraying Negro as well as white labor, and will shatter the last of the illusions harbored by Negroes that the republican party is their friend, by citing instances of segregation and the ousting of Negro delegates at the Kansas City convention.

The second New York State tour to be arranged by the Workers (Communist) Party will be made by William F. Dunne, candidate for Governor, and Juliet Stuart Poyntz, candidate for Attorney-General, sometime in October.

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 29.—Defying the long arm of the Mussolini fascist government, by whose orders the local police stopped a Sacco-Vanzetti meeting last week, the workers of St. Louis will hold a huge Sacco and Vanzetti meeting Friday at Bruids Hall, Market and Ninth Sts.

Police, at the order of the Italian fascist consul here, drove the workers from the hall with riot guns and gas bombs. Italians and English speaking workers will address the meeting.

New Union Holds Vital Meet Tonight

The immediate prospects of a general taxi strike thruout Greater New York will be high up on the agenda of the newly-formed Taxi Chauffeurs Union when it meets at the Labor Temple, 84th St. and Third Ave., tonight.

Organized after active agitational work among the taxi drivers for many years, the union says that a strike is the next step unless the owners of fleets of cabs here in the city agree to a general increase in pay and improvement in working conditions.

Long hours, miserable wages, intimidation by police authorities, a blacklist which keeps hundreds of workers from getting jobs—these are some of the issues which the taxi drivers are just about ready to fight out to a finish.

Workers Party Lauded

Crowding Irving Plaza Hall despite the intense heat, hundreds of needle trades workers last night heard the Communist vice-presidential candidate, Ben Gitlow, assail the alliance of the republican, democratic and "socialist" parties, who are joined in an effort to destroy their unions.

The meeting unanimously endorsed the platform of the Workers (Communist) Party and its candidates in the coming national elections.

Speakers at the meeting, which was held under the auspices of the National Committee of the Needle Trades Section of the Trade Union Educational League, included Committee Secretary H. Sazer, Charles S. Zimmerman, leader of the Cloakmakers Union; A. Jukowsky, a leading left winger in the Millinery Union; H. Ziebel, Rebecca Grecht, and others.

Scoring William Green's endorsement of Smith, Gitlow declared:

"By making a statement tantamount to an endorsement of Alfred E. Smith, Mr. William Green caps the climax of his career of betrayal of the labor movement and identifies himself completely with notorious open-shoppers like Raskob, Woodin and Du Pont who are behind the Smith candidacy.

"His action is fully in line with that of Mr. Woll of the executive

SILK BOSSES IN WAGE CUT DRIVE

Workers There Join Mill Union, T.M.C.

Word reaches the office of the National Textile Mill Committees from Bernard Herman, Secretary of the Philadelphia Textile Mill Committees, of a vicious wage-cutting campaign being launched by the bosses in the silk mills of the tri-cities of Pennsylvania, Easton, Allentown and Bethlehem.

On Aug. 18, the first step was taken by the employers in the Arona, a small mill, where a 10 per cent slash was given. Following this wages were cut in a mill in Allentown. Anticipation is current among the workers of a thoroughgoing campaign which will hit all mills in the vicinity, and will drag down the already low wages to starvation level. Coming as they do on top of a sharp unemployment which has hit the tri-cities in the past year, the wage cuts are driving the workers to desperation.

With the Associated Silk Workers practically out of existence in this important silk center, the workers have been left helpless to defend themselves against the onslaughts of the employers. The entrance of the Textile Mill Committees into the field, therefore, has been met with an enthusiastic reception by the workers. They feel that leadership is being given them for a serious organization drive.

New German Cruiser Is Launched in Tests for Future Use in Warfare

BERLIN, Aug. 29 (UP).—The German navy's wireless-controlled target ship, Zaehringen, left Wilhelmshaven today for an extensive trial in the North Sea.

Details of the ship were kept secret, but the United Press learned when it was tried out during the Baltic Fleet maneuvers on Aug. 8 that it is filled with cork, so that shellfire will not sink it. The Zaehringen carries no crew but is manipulated by wireless control from a cruiser.

It developed that the ship did not function satisfactorily at the maneuvers, so a new device was installed which will be tried out on the present trip.

To Present Communist International Program in Final Form at World Congress

TO DEVOTE NEXT 4 DAYS TO WORK OF COMMISSIONS

Colonial Committee Is Still in Session

Special Cable to The Daily Worker

MOSCOW, Aug. 28.—The World Congress of the Communist International has decided to devote its sessions on Friday, Saturday, Sunday and Monday to the work of various commissions.

The program commission which practically finished its work will present the Communist International program in its final form to the next plenary session of the Congress which will probably be held on Wednesday.

The colonial commission is still in session.

WORKERS PLAN ASTORIA RALLY

To Protect Communist Meeting Tonight

The threats of Astoria Tammany-controlled members of fascist organizations to break up any Workers (Communist) Party meetings held at the corner of Steinway and Jamaica Aves., has resulted in a mobilization of all class-conscious workers to protect the Communist speakers.

A meeting of the Workers (Communist) Party will be held tonight at the corner of Steinway and Jamaica Aves. despite these threats. Speakers will include Max Schachtman, editor of the Labor Defender; Martin Abern, acting secretary of the International Labor Defense; Vera Bush, Donald Burke, H. Blake and J. Heder.

The Veterans of Foreign Wars have taken courage from the conviction of Rebecca Grecht, Communist Campaign Manager, in the First Magistrates Court of Queens last week, and are interpreting it as an official and indirect stamp of approval. That they intend to stop tonight's meeting of the Workers (Communist) Party is evident from threats overheard at the meeting which they tried to disrupt by throwing eggs and water bags.

The Astoria branch of the Workers (Communist) Party calls on all class-conscious workers to be present tonight to resist an attempt to break up the meeting and assault the Communist speakers.

whose eyes have been opened to the class character of the Tammany departments of the city," the district Party office stated yesterday.

Continue Campaign Efforts.

With the two major political parties hurling accusations at each other to the effect that their actual expenditures on the campaign will far exceed the published limits, the Workers (Communist) Party is continuing its efforts to raise as much money as it possibly can to spread working-class propaganda among the masses of workers. The Communist Party has no intention of advertising a certain limit to its campaign budget and spending double the amount, according to a campaign committee statement. It will spend what it gets, and what it gets will be contributed by workers in the interests of their own class platform.

Huge Capitalist Funds.

"It is a generally accepted fact that campaign figures shrink modestly when published, and that actual expenditures are enormous, but the use to which the difference is put might prove embarrassing public information," the statement said.

"Whether the workers will be intimidated by Tammany bans is another matter. The response of workers indicates that not only will they not, but that they will increase their efforts to collect and raise their contributions for the Red Campaign Fund."

WORLD YOUTH CONGRESS OPENS

vian Young Communist Leagues worked well on the occasion of the visit of the British fleet.

"The political activity of the youth of the world has also increased considerably, progress has been made in mass work, good trade union work has been accomplished in Germany, Great Britain, France and Poland.

"The Trotzkyist opposition won no influence in the Young Communist International. The Chinese Young Communist League has developed into a mass organization. The Young Communist League of the Soviet Union has over 2,000,000 members, and works actively in the building up of socialism.

Weaknesses.

"The weaknesses of the Youth movement, on the other hand, are insufficient organization strength, the fluctuation of the membership figures, an over large proportion of youth from middle-sized and small-scale shops, and insufficient work in sports and other mass organizations. The organizational activities of the Communist Party, unlike the League, are of an objective nature. For instance, the capitalist stabilization and persecution. It is also partly of a subjective nature. For instance, the insufficient attention paid to the application of special youth methods.

"The solution to these problems is not the depoliticalization of the youth, but on the contrary, an increase in political activity."

After the reading of telegrams and special greetings, the session was adjourned.

Bureaucrats Fail in Boston.

BOSTON, Aug. 29.—An excellent exhibition of the impotence of the A. F. of L. in the furriers drive to build a new union, was presented here Tuesday when a meeting called by the chiefs of the Boston Central Labor Union for furriers willing to start a dual Fur Union Local 30, resulted in an attendance of exactly four workers, who it later turned out told the A. F. of L. to keep hands off the union.

The meeting was scheduled to be held in the office of Zaritsky's scab capmakers local and was called by mail. When the four workers got to the place, according to M. Butkowitz, one of them, they found Max Hemlin, a socialist party official waiting for them with Griedjes of the A. F. of L. body. The workers protested against Hemlin's presence. He was compelled to withdraw.

To Greidjes' proposal that the four workers form a nucleus for the drive to set up an opposition fur union, Butkowitz replied that the furriers went no such thing. He also told the A. F. of L. agent that if he hadn't gotten the three other workers to come along, not a single worker would have answered his call.

PREPARE FOR SCOTT NEARING TOUR IN WEST

To Stir Up Interest in Local Meets

CLEVELAND, O., Aug. 29.—In order to assure the success of the Scott Nearing meetings in Ohio, the district office of the Workers (Communist) Party here is sending comrades to work up local interest in the meetings and to accompany Nearing on his tour in order to make organization capital out of the tour.

The following is the schedule of Nearing's tour: Martins Ferry, Oct. 14; Zanesville, Oct. 15; Dayton, Oct. 16; Springfield, Oct. 17; Lima, Oct. 18; Mansfield, Oct. 19; East Liverpool, Oct. 20.

There are Party organizations in three of those cities. It is expected that as a result of the Nearing meetings nuclei will be organized at each point.

Sadie Van Veen and Lil Borer, the latter of the Young Workers League, started out on a hitch-hike tour during which they will cover 25 cities. Here is a list of the cities they will cover.

Comrades Van Veen and Borer are together as far as point of Hamilton on Sept. 1: Columbus, Aug. 25; Urbana, Aug. 26; Springfield, Aug. 28; Dayton, Aug. 29; Middletown, Aug. 30; Hamilton, Aug. 31.

30 Present at Jersey Speakers' Conference

The second speakers' conference was held in Newark, at 93 Mercer St., last Sunday, with an attendance of 30 Communist campaigners, representing nine New Jersey towns, including Paterson, Passaic, Cliffside, Bayonne, Elizabeth, Newark, Garfield, Perth Amboy and Jersey City.

The chief topic of the discussion was the War Danger, led by A. Gussakoff, district literature agent. The floor discussion which followed was lively, being participated in by several workers present who were not members of the Workers (Communist) Party.

A speakers' conference will be held every other Sunday regularly, with representatives of many New Jersey towns participating. Arrangements are being made by the members of the speakers' bureau for meetings to be held in centers of working-class population throughout New Jersey.

council of the American Federation of Labor, who remonstrated with the Tammany police authorities of New York City for not being sufficiently harsh and brutal in dealing with the striking workers. Mr. Green in his praise of Smith does not speak for the rank and file of labor, especially in New York state where the iron fist of Tammany Hall is known so well. Particularly the needle trades workers have learned to know the meaning of Smithism through bitter experience. They well remember how the Governor's Commission, working hand in glove with the right wing officials of the International Ladies' Garment Workers, sought to break the strike of the cloakmakers.

"Time and again Tammany Hall has demonstrated its solidarity with the manufacturers and the treacherous right wing leaders by the ruthless police brutality displayed against peaceful pickets, and by the issuance of numerous injunctions against workers on strike. The record of the Smith administration and of Tammany Hall speaks louder than the hypocritical catch-phrases of Al Smith.

"The city administration under Jimmie Walker or the state administration under Al Smith, the so-called "great friend of labor," refused to give the slightest assistance or relief to the thousands of unemployed who tramped the streets last winter suffering hunger and privation. On the contrary, the Tammany Hall police did not hesitate to use their clubs freely whenever the unemployed sought to organize to demand some medium of relief. On the other hand Mr. Smith has cooperated with the traction millionaires in their inhuman exploitation of the traction workers and their attempt to mulct the workers of the city by instituting a seven-cent fare. The workers of New York City may confidently expect that after Election Day they will be blessed with the seven-cent fare and the abolition of the emergency rent laws.

"Time after time the representatives of labor have stormed the gates of the capitol at Albany in behalf of women and children in industry, the sick, the aged and the large toll of injured workers—only to be rebuffed by both Al Smith and the republican legislature.

"In view of these things, which are a matter of record, the masses of the workers of New York state will repudiate the action of those who so basely spoke in their name in behalf of labor's enemy, Al Smith, and will demand an accounting for this treacherous betrayal."

Eloquently setting forth the repeated betrayals of the workers' interests by the "Socialist" Party, and the assistance in union wrecking rendered to that party by the political parties of the bosses, the resolution adopted declares in part:

"We, needle trades workers, cloakmakers, dressmakers, furriers, tailors, cap and millinery workers, assembled in mass meeting at Irving Plaza Hall on Wednesday, August 29, wholeheartedly approve of the action of the National Needle Trades Committee, Trade Union Educational League, which has endorsed the program and the candidates of the Workers (Communist) Party.

"The last few years have been for us a period of intense and continual struggle. Union organization has been destroyed in large sections of the industry. A vicious speed system has been established by the manufacturers, through which thousands of workers are thrown out of employment. Today hundreds, thousands of workers are faced with want and actual starvation.

One Gang.

"These conditions have resulted from the alliance between the manufacturers, the reactionary socialist union officials, who have carried the class collaboration policies of the petty bourgeois socialist party into our union, the A. F. of L. bureaucracy, all of whom have joined their forces against us.

"Fur workers, cloak and dressmakers, cap and millinery workers, have been jailed, framed-up and clubbed, not only by the Tammany Industrial Squad and police and by republican judges, but as well by the socialist union disrupters and gangsters hired and protected by them.

Learned by Experience.

"We needle trades workers have learned through many years' bitter experience that the democratic and republican parties are the parties of the bosses and ready to fight the workers at every step. We remember the Governor's Commission, appointed by Al Smith, so-called "peoples candidate," which tried to force the cloak and dressmakers into submission to the bosses. We know of the injunctions against the needle trades workers handed out by Tammany judges, of their anti-labor activity, not only in our struggles, but in the subway and elevated strikes, etc. We know also that the republican judges have thrown innocent strikers in New York into prison for the crime of fighting for better conditions. We know what the republican machine has done in Pennsylvania, where political officials openly co-operated with the coal operators to break the strike and destroy the union. We know what is happening in Republican New Bedford, where the national guard has used bayonets against striking textile workers.

"Nor can we support the socialist party. This party has betrayed the needle trades workers as it is betraying the interests of the entire working class. The socialist party is in fact the party of the needle trades manufacturers, the party of the petty bourgeoisie. It no longer believes in the class struggle; it fights the progressive movement everywhere, not only in the needle trades, but among the miners and textile workers as well. In our struggles we have seen it working hand in hand with the bosses and with Tammany Hall, using gangsters against our best fighters. The needle trades workers throughout the country must emphatically repudiate the socialist party, betrayers of labor.

Back Workers Party.

"The only party which is true to the program of class struggle, the only anti-capitalist party in America, is the Workers (Communist) Party. It is the only party calling upon the workers to intensify their resistance against the union-smashing, wage-slashing, open-shop drive of the bosses.

"Not only has the Party, itself, through its program and support, inspired us to struggle for better conditions, but we have found the members of the Party in the front ranks of the struggle of the cloakmakers and the furriers against the bosses, the socialist union betrayers, and the reactionary A. F. of L.

Endorse Candidates.

"We therefore fully endorse William Z. Foster for president and Benjamin Gitlow for vice-president, candidates of the Workers (Communist) Party, and all other state and local candidates of the Workers (Communist) Party.

"We endorse the formation of a Needle Trades Campaign Committee for the Workers (Communist) Party, and call upon the incoming Needle Trades Campaign Committee to hold meetings of the shop chairmen, to conduct open-air meetings and mass meetings in all trades and to give every possible support to the Workers (Communist) Party campaign."

CUT AWAY FROM SIGMAN, LAUNCH BOSTON LOCAL

To Build Union of the Workers, Not Bosses

BOSTON, Aug. 29.—A record attendance of over 700 cloak and dressmakers at a mass meeting held here Tuesday evening unanimously voted to fight the International clique and to establish a real Boston cloak and dressmakers local under the leadership of and affiliated to the National Organization Committee. The meeting was held in the Franklin Union Hall.

After listening to a report of the progress made nationally in the drive to establish the new cloakmakers union which was delivered by Louis Hyman, chairman of the N. O. C., J. Portnoy, A. Oswaldo and M. Guterson of New York, E. Yanninsky, Sakowitz and Shapiro of Boston, the assembled workers voted to completely disassociate themselves from the Sigman company union.

Resolution.

The resolution adopted at the meeting calls for the immediate carrying out of the following actions.

First—Severance of all relations with the company union, no dues payments to that organization, and no recognition to any of its agents.

Second—The immediate affiliation of all those attending to the National Organization Committee.

Third—The launching of a campaign to build the Boston section of the N. O. C. by an organization drive of all open shops and shops where no union conditions exist, under the leadership of the temporary Local Executive Committee. This committee was elected at the recent conference of shop delegates.

Fourth—A drive be inaugurated to get every one of the Boston workers to pay the voluntary $10 tax, which is used in the organization drive.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 29.—Hundreds of Philadelphia cloak and dressmakers are meeting here tonight to take up the problem of establishing a new cloak and dressmakers union in this city.

Joseph Borachivich and Rose Wortis, heads of the National Organization Committee have arrived here from New York to address the meeting. The sentiment of the workers shows that the new local section of the N. O. C. will be launched with great enthusiasm. Despite the presence of a Philadelphia local of the Sigman International there exists no such thing as union conditions in the Philadelphia factories.

Textile Barons of Lowell Brag About Cheap Labor Hire

LOWELL, Mass. (FP).—Always darkest before the dawn, chant optimistic business men of deflated Lowell. As cotton mills close down or move, they leave their shells and workers behind them. And now the Lowell Chamber of Commerce broadcasts for manufacturers to come a-tumbling to take advantage of cheap factory locations and cheaper labor.

"There are few cities," the Chamber remarks in dignified tones, "which offer greater opportunities than does Lowell for the establishment of new industries at the minimum of capital expenditure and with the maximum of labor supply."

TOBIN BLESSES TAMMANY "AL"

Also Has Kind Word for Hoover

(Special to the Daily Worker)

ROCHESTER, Aug. 29.—Tammany Al Smith received another boost from American Federation of Labor officialdom congregated at the convention of the State Federation of Labor when Daniel J. Tobin, Secretary of the A. F. of L., addressed the convention.

Referring to Smith, who through his commission and through organized Tammany gangsterism attempted to break the New York needle trades strikes, Tobin declared:

"No man living could have made a clearer exposition of his attitude toward labor than the Democratic candidate."

Referring to Hoover, Tobin declared:

"As far as labor is concerned we know nothing seriously wrong with him. He has always expressed sympathy with labor, but has never held an elective office of any kind. In the offices that he has held he has rendered splendid unselfish service. He was a millionaire at thirty. He made his money honestly. He is above suspicion from a monetary standpoint."

Army of Independence Again Engages Marine Troops in North Nicaragua

AMERICANS ARE LURED FARTHER FROM SUPPLIES

Revival of Fighting in North Seen

MANAGUA, Aug. 29.—Reports emanating from American sources that General Sandino has fled and that his forces are daily dwindling received another set-back yesterday when a considerable detachment of the army of independence engaged a marine patrol.

The Nicaraguans were under the command of Miguel Angel Ortez.

The action was indecisive, General Sandino's men falling back into the jungle before the superior American forces. No casualties are reported to have been suffered by the army of independence.

Observers here point to the revival of fighting in Nueva Segovia as symptomatic of the substantial area under the control of the troops of General Sandino. The region is largely jungle and mountain but embraces a large section of northern Nicaragua about the upper reaches and sources of the Coco River.

The late engagement is the first of any importance in Nueva Segovia since General Sandino made his surprise offensive against the Mosquito Coast country early this spring. Since then the American marine forces have been engaged in attempts to drive back the army of independence from its advance position. At the same time the American forces are leaving their bases farther behind as they are lured into the jungle country.

Giants Lose; Athletics Win

The New York Giants lost more valuable ground in the National League pennant race Wednesday, when they dropped their third straight game to the Boston Braves. Ben Cantwell, a former Giant, held New York to eight hits, the Braves winning, 8 to 3.

The St. Louis Cardinals and Chicago Cubs were rained out, the Cardinals increasing their end over the Giants to six games and the ubs advancing to second place, a fraction of a point ahead of the Giants.

A costly defeat at the hands of the Philadelphia Phillies dropped the Pittsburgh Pirates back into fifth place after dividing fourth place for a day with the Cincinnati Reds. Claude Willoughby held the Pirates to five hits, the Phillies taking a 7-inning game, 4 to 0.

Continuing their drive for the top of the American League, the Philadelphia Athletics won their fourth straight game from the Chicago White Sox, 6 to 2, advancing to within 2½ games of the New York Yankees, the closest they have been to first place since the first week of the season. Haas and Boley starred at bat, getting seven hits between them, and Ed Rommel, who relieved Walberg, held the White Sox hitless the last five innings.

THREE KILLED IN WRECK.

ALTOONA, Pa., Aug. 29 (UP).—Three persons were killed and three injured today when a Pennsylvania Railway passenger train struck an automobile on a grade crossing at Coburn, a few miles west of here. Two of the dead were in the automobile. The third victim was a pedestrian, whose identity has not been established, who was standing at the crossing waiting for the train to pass.

BOOST RAILWAY RATE.

BERLIN, Aug. 29 (UP).—A 10 to 12 per cent increase recently granted to railways was causing anxiety to economists today. The increase amounts to 250,000,000 gold marks annually, and it was feared it might start a "vicious circle" of general price raising after Oct. 1, when the new rates become effective.

The American authorities controlling the Nicaraguan elections have announced a complete list of supervisors, recently. At every polling place American marines will be posted to see that only the "right elements" cast their votes. Above, some of the "supervisors."

KELLOGG NOTE SHOWS BLOC AGAINST U.S.S.R.

that the Governments of Germany, the United States of America, Belgium, France, Great Britain, Canada, Australia, New Zealand, Union of South Africa, Irish Free State, India, Italy, Japan, Poland and Czechoslovakia have this day signed in Paris a treaty binding them to renounce was as an instrument of national policy in their relations with one another and to seek only by pacfic means the settlement or solution of all disputes which may arise among them.

This treaty, as your Excellency is aware, is the outcome of negotiations which commenced on June 20, 1927, when M. Briand, Minister of Foreign Affairs of the French Republic, submitted to my government a draft of a pact of perpetual friendship ebtween France and the United States. In the course of the subsequent negotiations this idea was extended so as to include as original signatories of the anti-war treaty not only France and the United States but also Japan, the British Empire and all the governments which participated with France and Great Britain in the Locarno agreements, namely Belgium, Czechoslovakia, Germany, Italy and Poland.

Met Point Raised by Britain.

This procedure met the point raised by the British government in its note of May 19, 1928, where it stated that the treaty from its very nature was not one which concerned that government alone, but was one in which the government could not undertake to participate otherwise than jointly and simultaneously with the governments in the Dominions and the government of India; it also settled satisfactorily the question whether there was any inconsistency between the new treaty and the Treaty of Locarno, thus meeting the observations of the French government as to the necessity of extending the number of original signatories.

The decision to limit the original signatories to the powers named above, that is, to the United States, Japan, the parties to the Locarno treaties, the British Dominions and India, was based entirely upon practical considerations it was the desire of the United States that the negotiations be successfully concluded at the earliest possible moment and that the treaty become operative without the delay that would invitably result were prior universal acceptance made a condition precedent to its coming into force.

My government felt, moreover, that if these powers could agree uno na simple renunciation of war as an instrument of national policy there could be no doubt that most, if not all, of the other powers of the world would find the formula equally acceptable and would hasten to lend their unqualified support to so impressive a movement for the perpetuation of peace.

The United States has, however, been anxious from the beginning that no state should feel deprived of an opportunity to participate promptly in the new treaty and thus not only align itself formally and solemnly with this new manifestation of the popular demand for world peace, but also avail itself of the identical benefits enjoyed by the original signatories.

Accordingly in the draft treaty proposed by it the United States made specific provision for participation in the treaty by any and every power desiring to identify itself herewith, and this same provision is found in the definite instrument signed today in Paris.

Provision Made for Other Powers.

It will be observed also that the powers signing the treaty have recorded in the preamble their hope that every nation of the world will participate in the treaty, and in that connection I am happy to be able to say that my government has already received from several governments informal indications that they are prepared to do so at the earliest moment. This convincing evidence of the world-wide interest and sympathy which the new treaty has evoked is most gratifying to all the governments concerned.

In these circumstances I have the honor formally to communicate to your excellency for your consideration and for the approval of your government if it concurs therein the text of the above-mentioned treaty as signed today in Paris, omitting only that part of the preamble which names the several plenipotentiaries. The text is as follows:

The provisions regarding ratification and adherence are, as your excellence will observe, found in the third and last article.

That article provides that the treaty shall take effect as soon as the ratification of all the powers named in the preamble shall have been deposited in Washington, and that it shall be open to adherence by all the other powers of the world, instruments evidencing such adherence to be deposited in Washington also.

Any power desiring to participate in the treaty may thus exercise the right to adhere thereto and my government will be happy to receive at any time appropriate notices of adherence from those governments wishing to contribute to the success of this new movement for world peace by bringing their peoples within its beneficent scope.

It will be noted in this connection that the treaty expressly provides that when it has once come into force it shall take effect immediately between an adhering power and the other parties thereto, and it is therefore clear that any government adhering promptly will fully share in the benefits of the treaty at the very moment it comes into effect.

I shall shortly transmit for your excellency's convenient reference a printed pamphlet containing the text in translation of M. Briand's original proposal to my government of June 20, 1927, and the complete record of the subsequent diplomatic correspondence on the subject of a multilateral treaty for the renunciation of war. I shall also transmit, as soon as received from my government, a certified copy of the signed treaty.

U. S. S. R. Terms Parley "Fake."

GENEVA, Switzerland, Aug. 29. —Following the note of Maxim Litvinov, Peoples Commissar for Foreign affairs of the Soviet Union, that his government would not participate in the conference for the control of the private manufacture of arms, Count Von Bernstorff, of Germany, president of the commission, declared that it was inadvisable to hold an international conference on this question now.

Litvinov's telegram declared that since the League of Nations had done nothing towards the solution of the problem of the real disarmament, the Soviet Union could not co-operate. The telegram insisted that urgent steps should be taken to avoid the risk of future wars and said that an attempt to supervise the production of armaments is calculated merely to mislead public opinion by holding forth false hopes of real disarmament.

The United States delegate urged that all facts pertaining to the armaments of the powers be published, but the Japanese representatives urged that the details of warship armaments should not be published.

WORKERS REBEL AGAINST FASCIST RULE IN ITALY

Unemployed in Many Armed Uprisings

(Special to the Daily Worker)

THE ITALIAN FRONTIER, Aug. 6 (By Mail).—Collisions between groups of desperate unemployed workers and police or fascist militia have been on the increase lately Land workers and the poor peasants have also begun to demonstrate against the authorities.

It has just become known (the censorship succeeded in holding the affair secret until now), that armed masses of peasants and land workers marched to the Podesta in the Boara Pisana, in the province of Padua, at the end of April and demanded work. The Podesta gave a negative and provocative answer. Thereupon the demonstrators attacked the building and wounded the Podesta. The militia was alarmed and shot into the masses, killing four peasants and wounding many more. A number of fascists were also wounded.

Unemployed Rebel.

Unemployment has increased greatly recently, and due to the inability of the fascist officials to provide work, there have been numerous rebellions. One instance is that of the rebellion at Caporetto, where workers of Buia had been recently transferred, which led to the uprising of the unemployed. When all the workers united against the authorities, the fascist militia attacked the demonstrators brutally, wounded many, and made many arrests.

In the industrial district around Trieste violent demonstrations of unemployed and destitute workers have taken place. The fascist authorities arrested several hundred workers and exiled them to islands. Amongst the deported workers are the fathers of 3, 4 and more children.

In Biella armed fascists attacked the peasants who were returning from the market, robbing them of 20,000 lira. When a number of workers and peasants protested they were arrested. In Prognere Onoglia the peasants demonstrated against the Podesta, a former colonel, on account of the man's constant chicaneries. The indignation of the population was so great that he had to be replaced.

Anti-Horthy League Meeting.

On the occasion of the arrival of Count Michael Karolyi of Hungary the Anti-Horthy League, with the co-operation of many other Hungarian organizations, will hold a monster demonstration on Saturday, September 1, at noon, at the Wall St. Pier. Sunday evening, September 2, the League will hold a mass meeting at which Count Karolyi will be the main speaker.

On the statement issued by Premier Bethlen of Hungary through the New York Times, the Anti-Horthy League made the following comment:

"Count Bethlen regrets the loss which has been caused by the Rumanian army of occupation, but he remains silent over the fact that it was precisely he and Count Perenyi who had ordered the Rumanian troops against the workers of Hungary.

"Count Bethlen asks for help from America, but he does not say that he wants help for a government which has killed over six thousand workers, Jews and liberals.

"The Anti-Horthy League at the demonstration on Saturday and at its mass meeting on Sunday will expose the actions of the Hungarian government to the American public. At the same time it will also protest against the actions of the state department, which has refused a visa to Count Karoyli while it has made possible the entry to this country of the agents of the Horthy regime."

If you happen to be a worker and a picket you know that you can't look at a cop with an expression that might suggest dissatisfaction or you are liable to be deposited in a calaboose charged with violation of any ordinance the number of which the cop happens to remember, from inciting to riot to committing a nuisance. However, if you happen to have political pull you can causually bump off your enemies and get nothing worse than eulogies in the capitalist press.

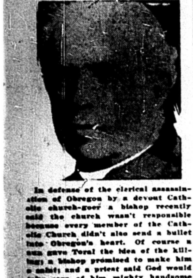
Devout Double-crosser



In defense of the clerical assassination of Obregon by a devout Catholic church-goer a bishop recently said the church wasn't responsible because every member of the Catholic Church didn't also send a bullet into Obregon's heart. Of course a nun gave Toral the idea of the killing; a bishop promised to make him a saint; and a priest said God would take care of him mighty handsome after he died. From this it might be gathered that Toral was at least influenced by the church. Such poppycock! When a priest bludgeons an ignorant church-goer into turning over his all he does it in the name of the church, although the money is spent on an individual belly. Above is Mora y del Rio, Archbishop of Mexico, who has now cheated Toral out of his promised bliss after death by saying he will have to pay a visit to purgatory.

Shameful tactics on the part of God Almighty have just been noted in Winston-Salem, North Carolina. George W. Blakely, a sexton, was ringing the bell to call the workers to his church, where he intended to tell them, as usual, that if they put enough in the collection plate God would cooperate with them in the matter of more wages and shorter hours, when suddenly the bell fell down and killed the sexton.

The equality of opportunity for which America is supposed to be famous actually exists only among those citizens who occupy the cemeteries. And even to attain this equality members of the working and capitalist classes make use of divergent methods. For instance last week Barney Depoka, who had been hunting for a job for 20 days stood in front of a Child's restaurant watching the girl turn flap jacks. He fell down, at last, starved to death. On the other hand any doctor will tell you that the principal cause of death among the rich is over-eating.

Train Worker Killed in Canton Collision

CANTON, Ohio, Aug. 29 (UP).—One trainman was killed and another injured today when a passenger train of the Pennsylvania Railroad, bound for Chicago, crashed into a large casting which was projecting from a freight train on a parallel track.

R. D. Shreeve, 35, of Pittsburgh, fireman on the passenger engine engine, was fatally injured. He died a few minutes later.

Charles Greese, 36, engineer, also of Pittsburgh, was injured. He brought the passenger train to a stop after the engine had struck the casting.

PREPARATION FLIGHT

LAKEHURST, N. J., Aug. 29 (UP).—The U. S. naval dirigible Los Angeles left the naval air station today for a short training flight over New Jersey. There were 48 officers and men aboard, in command of Lieutenant-Commander H. V. Wiley.

STAGE PROTEST ON SYNDICALIST LAW OFFENSIVE

Police Seize Many at Sacco-Vanzetti Meet

(By a Worker Correspondent)

KANSAS CITY (By Mail).—The first attack of the packing house bosses led by Armour Company against the packing house workers has been successfully beaten back.

The Workers (Communist) Party nucleus in the Armour plant the following day issued a statement to the workers of all the packing houses explaining to them the meaning of the attack upon the Communist Party and the arrest of Communist speakers who were addressing a meeting of the Armour workers. The statement of the nucleus was enthusiastically greeted. At the Cudahy plant the bosses called up the police station, asking to arrest the distributors of the leaflets. However, when the two policemen came they failed to arrest and stop the distribution due to the fact that the workers in spite of the rain surrounded the distributor asking for the leaflets.

More Persecution.

When Hugo Oehler got out from prison, on August 22, he was invited to speak at a Sacco-Vanzetti meeting by the International Labor Defense. The meeting was held in Shawnee Park at Armourdale. The police surrounded the meeting and after Oehler was through the police arrested him and thirteen more persons. Among the arrested were the secretary of the I. L. D., E. B. Eastwood, Dr. Nelson, S. Youkum, Sam Kassin, Matthew Cushing and a half dozen of packing house workers. The police also arrested two mothers with their children and only after a vehement protest on the ground that the children were sick did the police release the mothers. The arrested were brought to the city jail and placed under $500 bail on the charge of vagrancy. One of the mothers who was originally arrested made the following statement:

"I have listened to the speeches telling the wrong done to Sacco and Vanzetti. I did not believe all of it could be true. The raid of the police at the meeting convinced me that everything is possible. I never believed that in democratic America the police would hold up a public meeting and rather kidnap than arrest so many people."

The police surrounded the meeting for a two-fold purpose:

Police Are Armour Spies.

First it was in line with the policy of the Armour Company to intimidate and terrorize the workers and thus keep them from organization. Second, the Armour and other companies are anxious to spot the members of the Workers (Communist) Party nucleus of the packing houses. Particularly were the police anxious to discover Armour workers. However, they failed miserably. The workers are as defiant as ever. The terror of the company failed to intimidate the workers.

When the Armour Company discovered that its campaign fell flat it began to further conspire against the workers. Thursday the assistant county attorney issued warrants for Hugo Oehler, Dr. Nelson S. Yokum, E. B. Eastwood and Sam Kassin under the Kansas State Syndicalist Law. They were released on $500 bond each.

The International Labor Defense is calling a conference of all labor, fraternal and liberal organizations for Friday, August 31, at the Musicians Hall, 1017 Washington St.

FUNDS TO SUPPORT RED DRIVE URGENT

No urgent appeals for ten-dollar and fifty-dollar contributions come from the headquarters of the democratic and republican parties. The plutes don't bother with "chicken feed." The contributions come in big wads. A $50,000 donation from a DuPont for Al Smith's campaign or a $20,00 donation from a Lamont for the Hoover treasure chest is worth a front-page story, but even those big sums are lost in the $20,000,000 kitty that the two parties of plunder and pillage are collecting for the greatest vote-buying campaign in the history of the United States.

The Workers (Communist) Party is collecting a $100,000 fund to carry the message of the class struggle to the exploited masses. It is a lot of money in the eyes of the working class. But it is not so much after all. A Tammany grafter could make as much on one juicy sewer contract. And a republican burglar could make ten times as much from the proceeds of an oil deal.

Rousing Campaign.

But to the Workers (Communist) Party it means a rousing campaign that will cover the industrial and agricultural areas of the United States with propaganda, by word of mouth and literature.

There are hundreds of Communist sympathizers who can afford to contribute ten dollars, twenty dollars, fifty dollars, perhaps one hundred dollars, and there may be a few that can write checks for one thousand each and not starve. If there be such, let them come across now and take their dividends in the satisfaction of helping to bring nearer the day when this world will no longer be an exploiting hell, the paradise of the parasite-owning class and an inferno for the exploited producing classes.

Aid Drive.

The National Election Campaign Committee bases its appeal for funds on the comparatively small contributions of the many. If the thousands of members of the Workers (Communist) Party and the scores of thousands of sympathizers would contribute directly or indirectly $5 each, we would not bother our readers with any more election fund appeals, but our campaign activity would show the result of the financial stimulus.

There is in front of the writer as he clicks the typewriter keys a pile of contributions at least one foot high. They all came in the last two days. This shows that the financial tide is rising. But its tempo must be increased several hundred per cent, if we are to make the kind of a campaign we want to make. Lack of money is always a shackle on the limbs of a revolutionary party, and the Workers (Communist) Party is no exception.

Substantial Proof.

Money can be collected for the Communist Campaign Fund without much trouble. Here is some proof: Comrade Kobel of the Estonian Workers' Club walked into the headquarters of the National Election Campaign Committee, at 43 East 125th St., a few days ago and walked away with a subscription list and ten books of Vote Communist stamps. Today he walked in with $19.50—$9.50 on the list and the balance the proceds of the sale of the ten books. When he left he carried with him five subscription lists and 25 books of Vote Communist stamps.

The South Slavic fraction in Youngstown, Ohio, sends in $10 for the Communist Election Campaign with a note saying that this is only a beginning.

Jack Kizer from the National Home for Disabled Soldiers in Leavenworth, Kansas, manages to collect a dollar now and then for leaflets, posters and stamps.

And a worker who has been unemployed for six months sends $2, saying: "This is my contribution to the $100,000 Communist Campaign Fund. Although unemployed for six months, I send this as the 'duty' of a class-conscious worker in the food industry."

A Hungarian worker, who remembers the role played by the Workers (Communist) Party in the textile strike of Passaic, sends $5 for the Election Fund

"Please find enclosed $2. I would send more but I am an old man now. I spent my best years in the I. L. P." (Independent Labor Party of Great Britain), writes a veteran from Cleveland, Ohio.

Auto Worker.

And a speed-up worker from the Studebaker plant in South Bend, Indiana, donates $2 to the campaign and sends $3 for campaign platforms. "Maybe I can sell some of them," he says, "and send a little more money later. I have been collecting and donating some to the Miners Relief, and it is hard in the Studebaker shop for one man to always keep on with some agitation and not get canned."

Contribute Now!

Only a few of the hundreds of letters received each week can be published because of lack of space. Young and old, native and foreign-born workers are realizing the importance of the Communist campaign, and they are contributing to make it as effective as possible by helping to supply the financial sinews of war.

Contribute now to the $100,000 Communist Campaign Fund. Make all checks and money orders payable to Alexander Trachtenberg, Treasurer, National Election Campaign Committee, 43 East 125th St., New York City.

consider the system of compelling them to speed up their cars in order to get more passengers and of signing a waiver to their rights under the state workmen's compensation act in case of injury or death.

A vigorous battle will also be made against the Hack Bureau, which, they charge, is discriminating against them by barring them from "cruising" on Fifth Ave. and the theatrical district.

"No group of workers in Greater New York face greater hardships in making a living than the 50,000 taxicab chauffeurs who operate the 20,000 cabs in twenty-four hour service here," declared Charles Kroll, secretary of the union, yesterday.

LABOR DEFENSE HELPS CANTON STEEL STRIKERS

Six Face Deportation Charges

(By a Worker Correspondent)

CANTON, Ohio (By Mail).—Though but a little more than a week old the strike of 400 chippers and 100 grinders of the Central Alloy Steel Company of Canton is experiencing some of the brutality that is usually meted out to workers who dare to strike against the miserable wages and terrible conditions which the employers try to force upon them.

Fifteen of the strikers already face charges ranging from suspicion to deportation. Thus the mill owners are trying to intimidate the strikers and expect to bring them back to work.

However, when the bosses had brought about twelve arrests and the men were charged and released on bonds the highest of which was set at $500, they began to think that something else must be done. As one of them said, "these damn strikers get out of jail just as fast as we put them in." So they decided to order higher bond. When three men were brought to the police station Friday morning on "suspicion" because a scab said he was afraid they might beat him up, the judge ordered them charged and set bail at $150 each. But no sooner had they been taken down stairs to the lock-up when one of the company cops appeared in court, had a conversation with the judge and immediately the bond was raised to $1500.

This, the bosses thought, would keep them in jail and discourage the others. But the mill owners forgot to take into consideration the fact that there is an I. L. D. and that the I. L. D. functions in smaller cities like Canton just as well as in the larger cities. The I. L. D. got on the job and in a few hours the men were again at liberty and went straight from jail to their strike meeting elated over the fact that an organization of workers which they had never heard of before arranged to sign their bonds, thus allowing them to get back on the picket lines.

100,000 Workers in Haiti Face Starvation

PORT AU PRINCE, Haiti, Aug. 29.—Following wide devastation due to a recent hurricane in Haiti, over 100,000 workers and peasants are faced with starvation. All animals and crops were killed by the terrific storms sweeping the country. The resources of the Haitian government, drained by United States imperialist interests and the Borno administration, are insufficient to help the people.

'Goin Home' Splendidly Acted and Well Presented at Hudson

Barbara Bulgatov

RANSOM RIDEOUT'S "Goin' Home," a play about relationship between the Negro and white races, is now at the Hudson Theatre. It has a fine first act, in which the problem is posed. Israel Du Bois, acted by Richard Hale, is a New Orleans Negro, servant to the white land-owning Powell family, who has been stranded in France in 1914, has joined the French Senegalese battalion, and among those wild fighters, as yet filled with a spirit of savage independence, not realizing that they are pawns of French imperialism, has recovered to some extent from his feeling of humble subservience.

Wounded and retired from the army, Israel has married a French girl, Lise (part taken by the talented Barbara Bulgakov) and runs a cafe in a seaport town, from which, just at the end of the war, American troops are disembarking for the voyage home.

The general atmosphere is not bad at first. The drunken military police, cursing France and all future war, open the first scene. The wildly hilarious American Negro stevedores, dressed in uniform so that they can be forced to work for army wages in France instead of drawing real pay, are caricatured and burlesqued, however. Still, there is a general feeling made apparent that war is done forever, and a general agreement that if there is another war, the thing will have to run without them. They sing "Over There" meaning over there in America. They sing "Mademoiselle from Armentiers," only some verses of course, but it is a song which casts reflections on the personal purity and courage of the general officers of the A. E. F. They gamble, drink and dance.

Israel wants to go home, but has been afraid to tell his white French wife the real reason why he cannot.

This woman, represented as entirely venal, strikes up a flirtation with Major Powell (acted by Russell Hicks), commanding a battalion of Negro troops, who comes to the cafe to get drunk before embarking for America. When he finds she is married to a Negro, he shows her with a gory description of a lynching just what Southerners would do to any "black basterd" that dared to marry a white woman, and what they would do to her. His first reaction is that she has been tricked into a marriage with a "Nigger" and that he must save her. She is willing because she is furious at Du Bois for not telling her of the servant status of Negroes in America.

When the major, coming out of Lise's room to which she has rather crudely enticed him, really finds who has married Lise, he becomes just as determined to rescue Lise from his abominable miscegenation, taking the attitude that this vile and filthy French woman has trapped him, and is ruining him. He is no longer a "Good Nigger" but he is an old servant of the American master class, and the major will stand by him.

Israel makes a gesture of manhood, when he demands an accounting of the major of his relations to "my wife." The major, still drunk, is about to pulverize him, when Simba Sar (Clarence Redd), an old comrade in arms of Israel's, cuts in to defend him. Simba Sar is the complete foil to the American Negro slave, a fine upstanding barbarian, proud and courageous. After a fast fight, he is about to cut the major's throat for him, when Israel goes slave again, and shoots, not the major, but Simba Sar.

The contrast between the crawling slave psychology of Israel and his fellows and the barbaric manliness of the African is well brought out, but with an emphasis of sympathy and approval for Israel.

The last act shows the major "proving" over and over again (in ways that would never happen in real life) that he has a right to be master; that he knows what is best for the "Nigger" and convincing even Jim, an American Negro soldier who has mustered up the spirit to desert, that the best thing to do is to go along back home, and be a "good Nigger," and "stay in his place."

HERBERT CLARK

In "The Money Lender," a new play by Roy Horniman which opened Monday night at the Ambassador Theatre.

The play closes on the note struck by Israel, at about the time his nerve leaves him: "Life is a deep river, nobody knows where it comes from or where it goes, and don't you dare to swim against the current."

The play is almost perfect master class propaganda, ingenious enough to recognize the elements of justice on the side of the oppressed Negroes, and overcoming this evident argument of the suppressed races by a final exaltation of the master class virtues of the Powells and their kind. It is not a pro-war play, it might be called almost a pacifist preachment. It follows closely the line of thought of the average Southerner, who was, on returning to America, quite outspoken in his regret that he had to fight the Germans instead of the "rotten French Niggah lovers."

It is so well presented, and so well acted that one hesitates to quibble over minor inaccuracies, such as the Negroes in the cafe singing a "Carry Me Back" song ("Back to Ole' Virginia" in this case, I think, anyway one of those pseudo-Negro jingles such as no Negro ever indulges in). Some of the finer propaganda points are of course, the tacit assumption that a French woman who would marry a Negro with the Crois de Guerre must be an ignoramus and a prostitute, the sympathetic treatment of the French commandant who helps the major take Israel back to America, though of course he "don't understand Niggers," and the story of the friendship of the major for his boyhood companion, even though a "Nigger."—V. PIONEERS AID STRIKING COAL MINERS RELIEF

Worker Children Show Class Solidarity

LUMBERVILLE, Pa. (By Mail). When the news of the severe crisis that the miners are in at the present time reached the children in the Young Pioneer Camp of Philadelphia, everyone immediately began to think as to what would be the best way of raising money to help the miners and to show solidarity with them. Every suggestion was treated with open arms, but it was not until one worker's child got up and said, "Comrades, why shouldn't we contribute at least two deserts, that is all the campers should miss the deserts from the two meals and the money that would have gone to pay for them should be sent to the miners?"

As soon as this brief declaration was finished gigantic applauce from the assembled hundred campers gathered in the dining room made clear their assent to the suggestion. Besides the money contributed from the desert, the campers also gave money from their private spending accounts. Totalling up to twenty-five dollars in all, the solidarity of the workers' children with the miners was announced. Some money was also contributed by adults from Camp Huliet.

This action is not significant as aid in the strike, especially in this crisis, but as an announcement of the fact that the workers' children are in the class struggle, and in it to stay.

Chicago Musicians Get Wage Increase

Injured Victims of I.R.T. Smash-Up Charge Company Refuses to Pay Hospital Bills

DECEIT, DURESS USED TO COMPEL 'SETTLEMENTS'

Dist. Atty. Opens His "Investigation"

The Interborough Rapid Transit Co. was yesterday charged by victims of the wreck at Times Square for which it was responsible last Friday night with refusing to pay the hospital bills of the workers injured in the crash, many of them incapacitated for life. Victims of the wreck and relatives of some of the 17 workers killed also told of visits from I. R. T. lawyers, and other I. R. T. agents, in which threats were made that if immediate settlements, suitable to the I. R. T. were not made, no money at all might be forthcoming to the victims of the wreck. The agents hinted that the company "might go bankrupt."

"$100 or Nothing."

Daniel Hagerty, a victim of the wreck, who received serious injuries to the back, yesterday said that he had been offered $100 by a claim agent of the Interborough who hinted that he would receive nothing if the I. R. T. should go bankrupt. Hagerty, and other victims charged that the I. R. T. agents had visited them while they were in extreme pain, and sought to trick them into signing agreements while they were not in condition to clearly realize what they were doing. Hagerty and the other victims approached by the company agents refused to sign.

Mrs. William Mitchell, of 30 W. 82nd St., whose husband was so seriously injured in the disaster that he must remain in a hospital for three months or more, yesterday stated that the I. R. T. had refused to pay a week's hospital bill of $28 for her husband. Mitchell was a waiter, and is unable to pay the hospital charges. He will never be able to resume work, doctors stated.

Threats Made.

Alice Palange, 22, a clerk, whose foot was fractured and who received internal injuries, told of being approached by an I. R. T. agent and being warned that she would do better to settle with the company "while you have a chance." Another victim, Max Gomez, said that an I. R. T. agent had threatened to bring a physician employed by the I. R. T. around to examine him.

Banton Opens Quiz.

Questioning of witnesses of the wreck was begun today by District Attorney Banton. He has already received the "reports" of the city police and the transit commission "investigators" as to the cause of the smash-up.

In the report of the transit commission it was said that there was no evidence that the accident had been caused by a defective wheel on the fatal ninth car of the underground train. Instead, the report found that it was more likely that someone had manipulated the switch as the train was passing.

That this is part of the deliberate frame-up which the Interborough is now perfecting against three of its employes in an effort to shake itself from criminal responsibility is now clearly seen. These workers are William E. Baldwin, maintenance foreman and his helper, Joseph Carr, and Harry King, a towerman. Baldwin is now free under $10,000 bail charged with homicide.

state where workers will be able in many instances to hear Comrade Minor, and other Communist speakers, for the first time.

Donald Burke, having surrendered the "Red" Essex to George Pearlman for use in the New Jersey campaign, will cover the state by train. He will speak at street meetings, many of them before factory gates at noon hour, sell literature and solicit funds in support of the Party campaign.

Burke will leave next Tuesday, Sept. 4, making Poughkeepsie his first stop. His itinerary includes Hudson, Troy, Albany, Schenectady, Utica, Rochester, Syracuse, Buffalo, Niagara Falls, Binghamton, and Ithaca.

Members and sympathizers of the Workers (Communist) Party in these cities are urged to render whole-hearted assistance in making this preliminary tour a success—thereby ensuring the success of the much more important tour to follow. Definite dates for each city will be announced soon.

"RESERVATIONS" IN THE "PEACE" TREATY

By GEORG (Berlin)

The answers of the governments to the United States have all been despatched, so that all may arm themselves for the ceremonious signing of the "Treaty to Outlaw War" in Paris.

This treaty to outlaw war has a rather involved and long history. On the alleged suggestions of American pacifists, the French minister for foreign affairs, Briand, in June of last year made the proposal to the Washington government to conclude a reciprocal Franco-American pact of permanent peace. Briand thought by such a gesture to gain the good-will of American creditors and perhaps also a rearguard against England, and to make a cheap pacifist show in order to weaken in Geneva the impression of French sabotage of disarmament.

To this Kellogg replied in the name of the United States government with a counter-proposal that a "Treaty for Perpetual Peace" should be arranged not merely between France and the United State, but between the United States and the five other big capitalist powers. The American proposal was not merely a pacifist gesture as election propaganda for the republican party in office. Dollar imperialism went much farther and undertook an attack on the organization and alliance systems of the other powers. The thrust was directed, on the one hand, against the League of Nations, which Great Britain is manipulating for its policy of power, and, on the other hand, against the network of French alliances. The United States proposed the formation of a new system, the center of gravity of which should lie in the United States. The dollar government was to become the supreme judge in every conflict.

France, caught in its own net of pacifist hypocrisy and out-maneuvered by Washington, responded with a list of conditions and reservations, due regard for which was stated to be an essential preliminary to its signing a treaty. The sense of the French reservations was as follows: France can renounce neither its military alliances nor the support of the League of Nations. France will sign no treaty by means of which the United States can forbid it to enter into a war. For this reason, Briand withdrew behind the formula "Right of Defense"; furthermore, the war obligations arising out of the Convenant of the League of Nations, the Treaty of Locarno and the various French military alliances were not to be influenced by the proposed treaty.

This exposure on the part of France of its own "pacifism" was very opportune for the Washington government. Over the head of the Paris government it now appealed to all the big capitalist powers for their support of the pact. In doing so, the United States counted upon the possibility of playing the powers off against one another.

In view of the paramount conflict between England and America, the English government endeavored from that moment to bring about a united front of all the powers against the United States. In the negotiations now beginning with France the Anglo-French front has actually come into being. In order to gain the support of France against Washington, the London government adopted Briand's reservations and supplemented them with the particular English demand that America should recognize as "special English spheres of influence" certain parts of the world, such as Egypt, Arabia, the Persian Gulf, i.e., should grant England a guarantee equal in value to the American Monroe Doctrine.

In its answer Washington either passed over the French and English reservations in silence or refused to include them in the text of the treaty. The original American draft was retained, although "explanations" were offered, not, however, to be incorporated in the treaty and, consequently, not legally binding.

This trump card played by dollar imperialism caused England and France to retreat. In their latest notes, despatched last week, they still insist formally on their "reservations," but they declare themselves prepared to sign the American text unaltered. They make out as if they are under the impression that America acknowledges their standpoint.

Accordingly there arises the grotesque situation, so stigmatizing for imperialistic hypocrisy, that they will sign a treaty, the text of which will be "interpreted" differently by each signatory. Their differences remain unchanged. It might be asked why this scrap of paper should be signed at all. In the first place, to fool the workers with pacifist phrases. On this point all the signatories are in agreement. In the second place, each of the signatories is thinking of his own special position. Under serious circumstances, the United States is strong enough to snap its fingers at the European "reservations" and to interpret the pact in the American sense, i.e., to compel France and England to accept a dollar judgment, if no other means avail, then by means of ship's guns. But while still referring to the "pact," England and France have in the course of the pact-negotiations cemented their alliance more firmly, a fact which is of great importance for England on account of its war plans against the Soviet Union and its fight for power against the United States, while for France it is of great importance for England on retaining its supremacy in Europe over Germany. Germany has made use of the opportunity to ingratiate itself with America in order to acquire a support in the rear against France. None of them can refuse to sign; such an open demonstration against Washington would be too risky. Therefore, they are signing, but "with reservations."

These reservations, in part tacitly acknowledged by Washington, are such, however, that even bourgeois-liberal newspapers are asking whether war is now really "outlawed and prohibited," as the reservations and exceptions can easily be interpreted to admit of any war.

The pact has still another very serious aspect: The Soviet Union has been completely excluded from the negotiations. This diplomatic boycott alone bears witness to a capitalist world solidarity against the Workers' State, which is regarded as being outside of the "moral world." Nay, more, there exists between American and England a tacit understanding that war against the Soviet Union is "not outlawed." Thus the pact outlaws not war, but the Soviet Union! Or, as the liberal "Manchester Guardian" expresses it, "Chamberlain suggests that all members of the League of Nations be invited to sign the pact. Critics in Paris remark that through this suggestion the universality of the pact is dropped. For this suggestion means that not only Egypt and the Monroe territories but also Russia would be drawn into the zone in which military operations are sanctioned."

Armenian Picnic Will Donate Part of Funds to Communist Fund

East Van Cortlandt Park, next Sunday, will be the scene of the Armenian picnic for the benefit of the Armenian Communist weekly, "Nor Ashkhar," and the Communist campaign fund.

An elaborate and diversified program has been arranged, to include native music and many forms of dancing. The peak of the program will be reached when the Freiheit Singing Society will give a number of its well-known selections.

Refreshments will be served, the chief of which will be real Armenian "shashlik" and an Armenian beverage whose nature is unrevealed.

The picnic is open to all class-conscious workers, whether their antecedents are Armenian or Abyssinian. The program arrangements committee promises an extraordinarily good time to all.

STRICT CENSOR IN YUGOSLAVIA; RUMOR REVOLTS

Troops Held Ready by Belgrade

VIENNA, Austria, Aug. 29.—While a strict censorship enforced by the Belgrade government prohibits news of the Croatian and Dalmatian movement for autonomy from leaking across the border, meager reports received here indicate that the Yugoslav police are moving against the leaders of the Croatian Peasant Party and that all workers' and peasants' demonstrations in Dalmatia and Zagreb are being ruthlessly suppressed.

A few days ago officials of the Belgrade government announced that they would proceed against Dr. Vlado Matchek, president of the Croatian party and Deputy Kremjebich, who headed the Croatian delegation to the inter-parliamentary congress in Berlin, where he appealed to the congress not to seat the Belgrado delegates since they did not represent Yugoslavia. The actual moves that the government have taken in this direction are not known, due to the efficiency of the censor.

Rumors that student and workers' demonstrations against the Belgrade hegemony are continuing to take place in Spalato in spite of police and gendarme obstruction, still persist.

Although it is known that the Croatian and democratic delegates are holding their coalition convention in Laibach and have indicated their support of Matchek, details concerning the convention are lacking.

The troops that were mobilized on the occasion of the death and burial of Stefan Raditch, in order to prevent any peasant uprisings, are still being kept in readiness by the Belgrade government. Liberal use, however, is reported to be made of them in the suppression of mass demonstrations, strikes and revolutionary organizations.

Hundreds of Workers Fired as Ford Opens Plant in Manchester

LONDON, Aug. 29.—Hundreds of workers in Cork, Ireland, will be deprived of their jobs when Henry Ford moves his automobile factory to Manchester, England, as was announced at the meeting of the Cork Rotary Club here last night.

The Ford factory is being moved to escape the British duty of 22 2-9 per cent, which was aimed directly against the Ford car by British automobile interests. Most of the machinery has already been moved from Cork to Manchester.

British manufacturers have been hard hit by Ford competition and had succeeded in having parliament impose a high duty on the cars.

COAST ASSURED FOR U. S. CANAL

Colombian Puppets are Faithful

BOGOTA, Colombia, Aug. 29.—Nicaragua acquires the Mosquitia coast, which has been under dispute for the last twenty-five years by the Colombian and Nicaraguan companies, according to the treaty that was announced today by President Abadia.

Mosquitia is on the eastern coast of Nicaragua and is of primary importance to the United States government in view of the proposed Nicaragua canal which would cut through this territory. By granting the sovereignty of the Nicaraguan government over this territory, United States is assured of control according to the canal agreement entered into with Nicaragua.

As a recompense the Colombian government got the Providencia Archipelagio, which is off the Mosquitia coast about 100 miles from Nicaragua and 400 miles from Colombia. The Archipelagio offers no danger to the United States canal since it is located in shallow water which does not allow the approach of large vessels.

DEMONSTRATION IN SEATTLE FOR CLASS VICTIMS

Centralia Victims' Release Demanded

SEATTLE, Wash., Aug. 29.—A mass demonstration and open-air meeting for the release of the eight Centralia I. W. W.-now in prison was held here on Occidental and Washington Sts. with more than 500 present to hear speeches by Carl Brannin, chairman of the Seattle International Labor Defense; Mrs. Barnett, wife of one of the prisoners; John C. Kennedy, of the Seattle Labor College; George Ritchie and George O'Hanrahan. Bill Worol, well known for his activities in organizing the lumber workers, acted as chairman.

Speakers gave the details of the case, exposed the conspiracy of the lumber trust which still exists to keep these workers in prison, and urged the workers to carry on the fight for their release through their economic and political power by increasing their pressure on the capitalist class.

It was pointed out that Kenneth MacIntosh, notoriously anti-labor, and the state supreme court judge who sealed the fate of the Centralia men by upholding the vicious sentence of 25-40 years parcelled out by the judge of the lower court, has declared himself a candidate for the U. S Senate.

A state-wide conference, planned for the Centralia prisoners, will include trade unions, farmers' organizations, liberal groups and other labor organizations.

Progressive Group of Delicatessen Clerks to Hold Red Drive Banquet

A Red Election Banquet and Concert of the progressive group of Local 302, Delicatessen Clerks' Union, will be held Friday evening, Sept. 7, at the United Workers' Co-operative Restaurant, 2731 White Plains Ave., the Bronx. The proceeds of the affair will be donated by the progressive group to the Election Campaign Fund of the Workers (Communist) Party.

Among the speakers will be Rebecca Grecht, district campaign manager of the Workers (Communist) Party and P. Yuditch, labor editor of the Freiheit, Jewish Communist daily. Rebecca Grecht will speak on the significance of the 1928 elections to workers, and Yuditch will devote a large part of his talk to the struggle of the progressive clerks against the right wing bureaucracy of the United Hebrew Trades, and the role of the socialist party misleaders. He will urge the political as well as the industrial left-wing solidarity of the delicatessen clerks.

Sentence Czech Worker to 4 Months Prison for 'Blasphemous' Speech

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia, Aug. 29.—A Communist, Medina, was convicted in Leitmeritz, of blasphemy and sentenced to four months hard labor in prison, with one day of fasting per month.

Medina had spoken the year before in Teplitz-Schoenau before a meeting of workers called to protest against the arrest and mistreatment of revolutionary workers. He was charged with blasphemy and the undermining of religion.

NEARING GREETED IN PERTH AMBOY

Workers Give $36 for Red Campaign

PERTH AMBOY, N. J., Aug. 29.—The 150 Perth Amboy workers who came in a driving rainstorm to hear Scott Nearing, Communist Candidate for Governor of New Jersey, speak on the issues of the 1928 elections and the working-class program of the Workers (Communist) Party, received the Communist candidate with an enthusiasm which indicates the growing discontent of New Jersey workers with the Hague and Edge political machines, according to a Workers (Communist) Party statement today.

The meeting, which was the initial one of Scott Nearing's New Jersey tour, was held at the old Y. M. H. A. Hall in Perth Amboy.

Nearing unmasked the Wall St. control of Hoover and Smith and presented a clear picture of the workers' problems under capitalism, emphasizing the wage reductions, speed-up, and union-smashing activities of the bosses to further reduce the standards of the workers.

Jensky of the Young Workers (Communist) League outlined the problems of the working youth in New Jersey and throughout the country, urging the working youth of Perth Amboy to join the Young Workers (Communist) League.

Before the main speech, delivered by Nearing, the Lapotnice Russian Balalaika Orchestra rendered several numbers, under the direction of Alexander Belakopytoff.

Irving Frieman, the chairman, made an appeal for membership in the International Branch of the Workers (Communist) Party of Perth Amboy and help carry on the working-class campaign of Communism.

Every worker who entered the hall bought a Vote Communist button, from the sale of which $13 was raised for the Communist Campaign fund. An additional collection brought the total contributions of the meeting to $36.

Mr. Kellogg Explains That "Peace" Means War

There is something genuinely appropriate in the fact that the repository for the official documents of the imperialist Kellogg Pact is in the capital of the country where half the world's gold supply is—the United States. And many bourgeois newspapers in European countries are already interpreting the Kellogg maneuver as one which takes the wind out of the sails of the League of Nations, tending to transfer from Great Britain to the United States the leading role in the imperialist struggle for world domination.

Kellogg's trip to Ireland on a United States warship immediately after signing the Pact is explained by his longing to play on the "beautiful golf grounds" of the American legation at Dublin and his wife's desire to visit a lady friend there, but diplomacy is not such a game as can be explained with such Gopher Prairie motives. The formalities of visits on warships by heads of departments of state to heads of foreign states are invariably taken seriously in capitalist diplomacy. When the U. S. warship Detroit takes Kellogg to Ireland without touching at an English port, we do not suddenly lose our memory for the fact that the antagonism of English and American imperialism is the pivot around which all the contradictions within the capitalist world revolve at the present time.

The lead is forced out of the hands of England and into the hands of the Wall Street clerk in the white house. Not that England is paid nothing in the deal. She is given what will be called, in the coming world war, a legal sanction for military action to carry through her imperialist program as against the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics and in a certain field of colonial depredations. So is France given concessions as represented by the French reservations. But the hegemony is taken into the hands of Wall Street government.

The Kellogg Pact altogether marks a sharp push forward in the development of the world situation of alignment and intrigue for war. (That is the only sense in which it is a "forward step").

Several capitalist correspondents have pointed out that it is absolutely certain that all nations of the world will be involved in the next war. The fact that a larger number of governments have signed the Kellogg Pact than signed the League of Nations covenant is only another expression of such a situation. There is no doubt that the central point of the international relations of the whole world is the policy of the imperialist nations of encircling the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics. A series of treaties establishing alliances for hostile action against the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics, is the central point of what is called the "status quo" in international relations. Bear this in mind when thinking of Kellogg's assurances to France and England that there is no "inconsistency" between the Kellogg Pact and previously existing treaties. Remember that the Pact just signed at Paris is qualified by a preamble declaring its purpose to perpetuate the "existing" relations between nations.

Then take a look at Kellogg's letter to the 48 nations (running from Albania to Venezuela but excluding the Soviet Union) conveying the invitation to sign the already fixed terms of the Pact. Kellogg explains, perhaps more clearly than he intended, the reason why the fifteen governments exclusively were picked as privileged to form the terms of the Pact and to be the original signatories. The choice of the same nations that signed the imperialist treaty of Locarno is explained in part by Kellogg's letter which says:

> ". . . it also settled satisfactorily the question whether there was any inconsistency between the new treaty and the treaty of Locarno, thus meeting the observations of the French government as to the necessity of extending the number of original signatories."

Unless one is so naive as to think the Locarno treaty was not a part of the imperialist war maneuvers of the recent past, Kellogg's own words written just before sailing on the warship to visit his lady friends in Dublin are convincing. The "peace" pact is a step in the preparations for imperialist war.

The necessity of defense of the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics by the working class and exploited farmers of all countries becomes by these events a living reality greater than ever before.

Canton Steel Strike Significant

By I. AMTER.

For some time the local press of Canton completely suppressed information about the Canton strike. Five hundred chippers and grinders—it might seem a strike of no significance. A strike of 500 men in an industry of 400,000—what does it amount to?

But the strike of the 500 chippers and grinders is of great significance, first of all because these workers are chippers and grinders and secondly because they are working for the Central Alloy Steel Corporation.

Significant Strike.

Before, however, analyzing the immediate significance of the strike, let us look into the industry as a whole. The steel industry is operating, at the present time, at between 75-80 per cent capacity. There has not been the usual summer lull, probably due to the fact that the automobile industry is working a little more briskly than usual, and the building industry has kept up pretty well. Rail orders have not been plentiful, and although for several months, with intermission, the unfilled orders of U. S. Steel have dropped, still the production, as a whole, has been at a higher level than last year.

Nevertheless, the fact that there are 4,000,000 unemployed in the country, that miners have been striking and therefore could take the work of laborers in the steel mills, makes a walkout at this time significant.

Union 'Misleaders.'

It is true that the concern for [illegible] the 500 men work is not one [illegible] largest. It is a merger of [illegible] Steel of Canton and Alloy [illegible] of Massillon. The two plants [illegible] about 4,000 men. This is [illegible] nothing compared to the tens of thousands working for the larger steel corporations. But when one considers that steel workers strike, steel workers who have gone through many unsuccessful strikes —1919, 1921, 1924—men working for an industry that is backed by billions of dollars capital—one of the basic industries,—then it is the more remarkable. When one further considers that there practically is no organization in the industry, and that the Communists have done little in the industry in the way of organization, then it is still more remarkable.

Finally when one considers that there is a small union in the industry which is bound to scab on the men —the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers—a company union, which refuses to organize the steel workers and only takes in the highly skilled—and has not all of them—then one realizes that when men walk out, they must be hard pressed.

Wage Slash.

The immediate issues that forced the walk-out were the usual ones. Cut in the wage scale — usual promises, which were not kept, followed by the disgust of the men and finally a nearly 100 per cent walk-out (six men remained on the job).

The men had no leaders, no policy —they only knew one thing and that was that they would not work for the scale they were getting—and they wanted to be organized. They walked out and formed what they later called the Central Alloy Mill Committee.

Why is the strike remarkable? Because the men realized their strategic position. Chippers and grinders occupy a strategic position in the industry. Without their work, no products can be turned out. Work might continue, but it could not be for stock. The metal bars have to be chipped and ground off, before any further work can be done. Therefore the strike threatened to stop the entire mill—and eventually will do so.

The strike occurring at Central Alloy Steel made it all the more important. Why it might be asked, did a representative of the government Conciliation Board at Washington go to Canton. Certainly the strike of 500 men does not interest the government to that extent. 500 men have gone out many a time, and have remained out on strike for months, without the government interfering. The member of the Conciliation Board not only went to Canton, but asked the strike committee to see him—which they refused to do.

The day that the information appeared in one of the Canton papers, it was apparent why the strike is significant—and why the Conciliation representative was in Canton. One has but to quote the article that appeared alongside the report that the "strike was still on."

"The Central Alloy Steel Corp., which manufactures the bulk of crankshaft material for automobiles and airplanes of all types, is operating at capacity. . . . The Alloy furnishes the steel that goes into crankshafts, gears, connecting rods, small forgings of every kind, and the rolled strip steel for automobile frames. Besides this it produces crankshafts and small forged parts for 95 per cent of the airplane motors made in this country."

Government Interested.

The last sentence contains the secret of the importance of the Central Alloy plants: they are turning out material for the airplane industry—a war industry. If Central Alloy Steel is held up by a strike, the production of airplanes will likewise suffer.

(To Be Continued.)

Tammany Hall Pulls Off an Offensive in the "Socialists'" Rear; Captures Nation Editor

By TOM O'FLAHERTY

They will do it every time. When the cat is away the mice dance as they darned well please and sometimes dig into the cheese. There is rhyme as well as reason in this.

While Reverend Doctor Norman Thomas or the Christian General was out in the west, boosting the League of Nations and the Kellogg mutilateral treaties to the open and empty spaces, Tammany Hall pulled off an offensive in his rear and captured the left wing of the liberal movement, among the prisoners being General Oswald Garrison Villard, editor of the Nation and a bit of a millionaire to boot.

The Christian General.

The Christian General (not to be confused with Feng of Peking) thought he had the liberal movement stowed away safely back of his pulpit, so, accompanied by his aide de camp, McAllister Coleman, and Little Corporal Claessens, he made a drive into the fastnesses of the west until his munitions ran out and his rear became exposed. Of course, we are speaking politically.

The Three Musketeers found the natives rather frigid to the liberal doctrine, masking under the cognomen of socialism, so the champions of the meek and lowly returned sadder but wiser men. They complained bitterly of their treatment at the hands of the Pullman Company, which behaved towards them as if they were Communists, but they might have recovered from their pique if they had not invested 45 cents in the Nation.

Dignified Oswald.

It was then they learned that the situation had changed at G. H. Q., and that Brother Villard had gone over to the enemy in their absence. It is a rule of war that swapping horses while crossing a stream is dangerous business, but that is not what actually happened. Villard got off the anemic socialist jennet and mounted the laughing jackass, personified by Al Smith. Again we wish to point out that all this is metaphor. The dignified Oswald would not bestride an electric elephant, not to speak of a hirsute donkey, but in politics when a political leader quits his affiliation and joins another, any kind of language is justified.

Only a few weks ago, Aide de Camp Coleman had a life-size picture of the Christian General in the Nation, which started at the cradle and almost followed him into his political grave. An editorial in the same organ flayed Hoover and Smith adroitly and ended with the consoling thought that upright citizens, fortunately for the good name of the United States, were not obliged to scratch their votes into pulp, because of the programs and affiliations of the Efficiency Engineer and the Happy Warrior; there was Norman Thomas. "Nation Out For Thomas," was the unwritten headline on every copy-reader's tongue. But alas, poor Thomas, who knows Oswald well, never expected this headline:

"AL SMITH SPEAKS OUT."

On August 29, a full-page editorial in Villard's famous weekly comes out boldly and gayly for John J. Raskob's good man Al. There is nothing like a few quotations to convince our readers that this is not a fairy tale. Here goes:

"Al Smith has spoken out. His acceptance speech is worthy of the man and of the office which he seoks. It is one of the finest state documents which has grown out of the American political scene since our entrance into the World War set a blight upon our hopes for political progress. There is an honest, straightforward ring to his words that was lacking in the complacent generalities of his rival for office. Against Hoover's smug assurance that 'No one can rightly deny the fundamental correctness of our economic system' set Al Smith's assertion that he will not 'accept the old order of things as the best unless and until I become convinced that it cannot be made better.' We do not see how any progressive, reading the two speeches, can fail to feel that Smith would make the better president."

This is a dirty crack at Thomas, who is not even hinted at, let alone mentioned. And Thomas, who boasts that he is a progressive and not a revolutionist, must now defend his position against this indirect challenge from Villard. Thomas deserted the class struggle and spurned such ungodly and un-American words as "proletariat" and "bourgeoisie," but he built his house on the quicksands of liberalism and is now like a voice crying in the wilderness. "The birds of the air have nests and the foxes have holes, but the socialist party has not a roof over its political head."

Hook, Derby and Bottle.

Of course, Mr. Villard does not swallow Al, hook, derby and bottle, but Al does not demand that all his supporters have their photos taken with a foaming schooner of beer in one hand and a flask on the hip. All Al wants a supporter to do is to vote for him and get his poor relations to do likewise. Mr. Villard is against booze in any form, but if he has to choose he will choose Canadian Club in preference to Hester St. Scotch.

The Perfect Sucker.

When we read Al's acceptance speech, our common sense told us that it was clever demogoguery and a liberal is constantly going around with his gullet exposed looking for a political confidence man who will be good enough to drop some honey into it. The liberal is the perfect sucker—when he is honest. When he is not he is the perfect rogue. And the perfect liberal sucker is as rare as a gangster who is not good to his mother.

Villard fairly chortles over the tongue-thrashing delivered by Al to the water-power burglars and the "dishonest and unpatriotic propaganda" of the utility corporations, thereby hurting certain of his friends. Ha! Ha! How Al's contractor and sewer-pipe friends must chuckle at the sight of Little Red Riding Hood Villard walking into the Tammany Tiger's den.

"If Al Smith continues to speak out with that frank clarity of utterance," concludes Mr. Villard, "he will win the support of most of the five million voters who supported LaFollette in 1924. He will not demonstrate that his party has reformed since the landslide of 1920 or that the equality of opportunity he preaches is possible under the present profit system, but he will prove that political ambition does not always turn able administrators into [illegible]nian jumping jacks."

This is the unkindest swat of all. The political objective of the socialist party election campaign was the five million votes that were wasted on LaFollette in 1924. The socialist party at that time actually claimed that they were socialist votes. But it appears that those socialist votes having once tasted the sweets of bourgeois booths are reluctant to return to the socialist confessional. It is to cry out loud. As a political opportunist Thomas has proven that he is a first class publicity man. He is too good for this political world. Hard-boiled Al in one fell speech stole the stool from under him.

When the socialist party decided that it would become the party of all the "good" people, regardless of what social groove they moved in, it spelled its own doom. It could not beat the republican party to Wall Street. And it could not nose out the democratic party in making promises, spinning empty phrases to win the muddle-headed liberal and labor-faker-guided vote. The rousing language of Eugene V. Debs, whose mantle looks out of place on Thomas' shoulders, rallied the rebel workers to voice a protest against capitalism in elections, but why should a rebel worker vote for a socialist program that simply competes with the democratic party for votes? The answer can be read in the Nation and will be read in the tabulated record of the socialist vote next November.

The Workers Party.

The policy and tactics of the Workers (Communist) Party, which have been labeled "unpopular" and "un-American" by the socialists, are based on the interests of exploited masses of this country, the workers in industry and the poor farmers on the land. The candidates of the Workers (Communist) Party are not chasing will-o'-the-wisp liberals or little business men. If they accept the program of the class struggle and work for it, they are welcome to join the ranks. But they must cast off their liberalism.

The Communists are waging a campaign in this election in order to rally the workers around their revolutionary program, to strengthen the Party in order that it will be increasingly able to play its historical role as the leader of the masses in the struggle against capitalism, the every-day struggle for better conditions under the robber system and the final struggle to get rid of capitalism and start the task of constructing a socialist society on the ruins of the present social order, under the auspices of a Workers and Farmers government.

Vote Communist!

In this election class-conscious workers will vote for William Z. Foster for president and Benjamin Gitlow for vice-president and for the Communist candidates on the state tickets throughout the country. They will not vote for "good" men, but for the revolutionary program of Communism. They have no other alternative, since the Workers (Communist) Party is the only political party in the field that bases itself on the workers and exploited farmers. It is the only real party of labor.

City Groping Through Fog

By A. B. MAGIL

City groping through fog, your face hangs over
The long slate river swollen and blind.
Your ships are like sleepwalkers.
Black smoke strangles in the throats of your factories.
Day stands still.

Say it again, city groping through fog,
Say it again—what you said yesterday,
The day before:
The same old words falling like whips on our backs,
The same old grinding of wheels, machine-speech,
cords of sound.
Binding our bodies and brains.

And today as yesterday,
As the day before,
Your tired millions grope through fog
To clear bitter toil.

Organization of Workers in Offices

By J. L. PERILLA.

The organization of the office workers becomes a major task when we consider the fact that close to one half million are employed in the city of New York and the majority of them are young workers.

An organization campaign to organize the unorganized young workers in the city of New York must of necessity take into consideration the office workers. This preponderance of office workers is clear when we consider the fact that New York is the largest trading center in the world and the center of Finance Capital. As a class the office workers are the most difficult to deal with due to their petty-bourgeois illusions as to the possibilities of rising out of their class. Rationalization has had even its radicalization effects on office workers. Machine production, simplification of accounting and office methods and the general growth of industry which entails an increase in the size of staffs has convinced large sections of office workers that their problems are not separate and apart from the problems of the general working class. Piece-work is a new practice that has been introduced into office work. In many of the large offices and department stores, employees are paid so much per posting and penalized a greater amount for every error made.

Many Unorganized.

The official labor movement has done nothing to crystalize this growing possibility for organization. The Bookkeepers, Stenographers and Accountants Union has been a stumbling block in the way of organization. They have satisfied themselves with organizing a few union offices where the conditions on the whole are far better than in capitalist offices.

Even on the question of organization of union offices they have failed miserably—the great majority still remain unorganized. No attempt has been made by this decrepit and fossilized organization that labels itself as a trade union to involve the New York Labor Movement in a campaign for organization. They make no pretenses at organization —their purpose is to hinder organization. Every militant that ever attempted to criticize the policies of "Les Majesty" has found himself or herself outside of the organization. In considering steps towards organization of these thousands of office workers—the B. S. & A. U. must be rejected as a negative factor.

The Office Workers' Union, an organization that has the will and determination to organize the office workers, will be the organization on whose shoulders wil rest the task of organizing the unorganized office workers. Although only a few months old it has already surpassed in size the B. S. and A. U.. The attendance at meeting is at least twice as big as the latter organization. The program and the constitution of the Office Workers' Union shows that they are aware of the tasks and problems before them. The office Workers' Union demands and should get the entire support of the left wing and progressive labor movement of the city of New York.

On September 25 and 26 the New York Working Youth Conference will be held at Labor Temple, New York City. The purpose of this conference is to find ways nad means and take actual steps to organize the young workers in the City of New York. The Office Workers Union, one of the original signators of this conference, will do everything possible to make this conference a success. The Office Workers Union calls on all office workers to organize themselves into office committees and send delegates to the Working Youth Conference. The improvement of the conditions of the office workers can only be gotten by struggle. They are no longer a privileged class that have to be bribed.

Williamsburg to Meet Tonight for Signature Mobilization Campaign

The Members of Section [illegible] Williamsburg, will meet tonight [illegible] o'clock at 46 Ten Eyck St., Brooklyn, to form a regiment of signature solicitors.

According to A. Bimba, section organizer, the members of the Williamsburg section will be given territories to cover in the thirteenth and fourteenth assembly districts, in an intensive drive to put the Communist candidates in those assembly districts on the ballot.

All members of the Williamsburg section are urged by Bimba to report at the headquarters, 46 Ten Eyck St., promptly, as the order of business will be short and within a few minutes after registration is taken, the members will be sent out for signatures.

A special check-up will be made of those who fail to report.

BURY MILITARIST.

WORKERS PARTY GOES ON BALLOT IN PENNSYLVANIA

World Congress of Communist International Unanimously Adopts Bukharin Theses

LOVESTONE ASKS THE END OF U. S. FRACTIONALISM

U. S. Minority Makes Reservations Upon Comintern Theses

Credentials Report

(Wireless to the Daily Worker)
International Press Correspondence

MOSCOW, Aug. 30.—Thaelmann reported on the work of the Political Commission at the World Congress of the Communist International. The political theses were then unanimously adopted plus all of the amendments suggested by the Commission.

Takes Exception to Theses.

Johnstone then made the following declaration in the name of the minority of the United States delegation.

"The minority of the Workers Party agrees with the political theses except for the passage concerning the United States which fails to stress the United States imperialist contradictions and the progressive radicalization of the American workers and which also fails to condemn the right wing policy of the majority of the Central Committee of the Workers Party, particularly regarding the non-application of the decisions of the Fourth Congress of the Red International of Labor Unions, and Negro and anti-imperialist work."

Majority Supports Theses.

Lovestone answered for the majority of the Workers (Communist) Party. He said:

"The majority of the Workers (Communist) Party approves unreservedly the political theses presented by the delegation of the Communist Party of the Soviet Union.

"The unanimous adoption of the theses disproves the accusations of the minority against the majority of the Workers (Communist) Party concerning the alleged right wing policy, and means that the Communist International supports the present leadership. The best method to fight against the undoubtedly existing right wing dangers is for the minority completely to accept the theses, abandon fractionalism and subordinate itself to the majority."

The resolution recommending that all Communist parties support the International Red Aid was unanimously adopted.

Honor Horaz.

The forty-fourth session of the Congress was opened with Remmele acting as chairman. The delegates rose silently in memory of Horaz, Czech deputy who died here.

Piatnitzki then delivered the report of the credentials committee. There were 515 delegates present, forty more than at the fifth congress. There were 372 delegates with decisive votes and 143 with advisory votes. Forty-eight sections of the International, representing 4,024,159 members, sent delegates. The delegates at the Congress from countries not previously represented came from Palestine, Colombia, Syria, Uruguay, Ecuador, Paraguay, Venezuela, New Zealand and Chile. Thirty per cent of the delegates were formerly members of Social Democratic Parties. The report was unanimously adopted.

Report on War Danger.

The forty-fifth session was opened yesterday afternoon with Jilek. [illegible] reported for the war commission which unanimously adopted the resolution on the war danger and the tasks of the Communists.

Militarism Plays the Tune They Are Marching to

Uniformed by the bosses, armed by the bosses, trained in the bosses' camps to fight the bosses' wars, hundreds of young workers are yearly made the victims of American militarism. On page three of this edition is a picture of young Red Front Fighters, defenders of the working class, in their camp in Germany. They are workers and will fight for their own interests. The national guardsmen above, the Second Company, Signal Corps of Brooklyn, are being trained as instruments by which capitalism will defend its profits, wrung from the lives of these same workers, or use them in fighting for new sources of profit, new oppression.

STEEL MILL BOSS STONES PICKETS

Strikers Fight Off Attack; 1 Knifed

CANTON, O., Aug. 30.—Aroused by the endurance of the five hundred steel strikers and their enthusiastic picketing of the Central Alloy Mill of the Steel Corporation, E. C. Smith, assistant superintendent of the company yesterday provoked a fight with the workers by ordering scabs to hurl rocks into the massed picket line. Frank Perry, strike leader, and Pete Scoventz were arrested after the fight.

His violence followed unsuccessful attempts to break the peaceful picketing of the men with threats of arrest.

The whole section in the neighborhood of the mill was menaced by the flying rocks while many were hurt by the missiles.

The Central Alloy Mill Committee, together with certain citizens, is attempting to proceed against Smith legally, but the prosecuting attorney has refused to issue a warrant for his arrest.

The sole effect of the attack on the steel strikers has been an intensification of picketing which has brought the already full line to a point where it includes virtually all the men effected by the strike.

Joe Allasanni, an active picket, was stabbed at the home of a scab while attempting to persuade him to join the strikers. He is in the local hospital in a serious condition. The strikers blame Smith for the assault.

A call for a meeting this Sunday to protest the mill superintendent's action has been issued by the Central Alloy Mill Committee.

MILL STRIKERS ASK AID ABROAD

Cable to Red Union International

NEW BEDFORD, Aug. 30.—Cables urging relief and aid for the 30,000 New Bedford textile strikers have been sent to the All Russian Trade Unions and to the Amsterdam International by Fred Biedenkapp of the Workers International Relief and Albert Weisbord, National Secretary of the Textile Committees.

The joint cable declares:

"Thirty thousand textile strikers in New Bedford and Fall River are now in their nineteenth week of struggle against wage cuts and the speed-up system. We appeal to you

PLAN MORE COSSACKS

An increase in funds for the police department of $2,000,000 for 1929 will be asked by police commissioner Warren, it is reported. An addition of over 200 new policemen is also planned by Warren.

Office Boy, 60, Poverty-Tired, Kills Himself

Richard W. Annin, 60, who lives at 457 Third St., Brooklyn, yesterday got tired of struggling along with his wife on the miserable salary of $25 a week that he earned by running errands for the Port of New York, and jumped from the tenth story of tho building at 75 West St.

It was not the humiliation of his job alone that caused him to put an end to his drab life. His wife, after the tragedy, explained that she and her husband had been struggling to "get by" on the $25 which he earned as "office boy" for the Port of New York.

Across the court of the building an office worker saw Annin step out on the window sill, three floors above the Port Authority headquarters. Five times he stepped to the sill, hesitated and stepped back again. The sixth time he leaped.

Every bone in Annin's body was broken, a bland interne from the Broad St. Hospital announced.

From 1915 until last year Annin was a solicitor for a downtown concern. Then the old collection system was abandoned and he was fired. For months he was without work, but recently he succeeded in getting the job as office boy.

SLUG MILLINERS AT LOCAL MEET

Thugs Halt Discussion On Employment

Because of the determined demands of millinery workers, attending a meeting of their Local 24, that the burning problem of unemployment be taken up at the meeting in order to relieve the suffering of the jobless families, a dozen of the most militant workers were beaten up, four seriously, by thugs hired by the officialdom. The meeting ended after most of the workers had left in protest against the sluggings.

The four seriously injured are Milton Weich, Morris Fein, A. Musin and M. Walitsky.

Was Planned.

That the right wing officialdom from the alleged liberal Spector down to the fascist Hershkowitz had come prepared to prevent the taking up of anything they had not determined on beforehand was apparent at the outset by the tense atmosphere in Bryant Hall, where the meeting was held.

The meeting opened with the announcement that the order of business would be (1) report of the executive board; (2) financial report; and (3) the question of the $12 tax on the membership. The

RED TAG DAYS AT CAMPS, BEACHES

Workers Will Take Boxes Along

With hundreds of class-conscious workers leaving the city for an abbreviated vacation over the week-end tomorrow, the slogan "Take a Box Along" will be on everyone's lips, and the Red Tag Days of September 1, 2 and 3 will be continued at many camps and beaches where workers meet.

News of the anti-labor action of Tammany Hall's Department of Welfare in banning collections for the Red Campaign Fund of the Workers (Communist) Party has reached all those camps and beaches where workers spend their week-ends, and is having the effect of instituting a Red Week Campaign in those places which before did not have one. Tomorrow, Sunday and Monday, when the Red Tag Days will be held, will mark the final windup of the extended Red Week drive for funds for the Communist campaign.

Urging all workers to collect for and contribute to the Red Election Campaign Fund, the District Campaign Committee last night issued a statement emphasizing the urgent needs for funds. After stressing the importance of an appropriate answer to the Tammanyites in the form of more intensified collections, the statement continues: "Capitalist politicians order political maneuvers from Europe by phone, as the trans-Atlantic telephoned instructions to the republican boss of Allegheny County by W. L. Mellon, nephew of Andrew W. Mellon, the strikebreaker, but the workers of New York do not have to wait for instructions on how to act when the democratic machine orders their campaign stopped. The reaction of New York workers is swift and effective. The campaign for funds is now greater than ever before, and the Red Tag Days of September 1, 2 and 3 will give every worker the opportunity to strike a blow at the Tammany machine."

On Labor Day the Tag Day Drive is expected to go over the top, with a bang. All workers are urged to obtain a box, if their previous box has already been handed in, at one of the thirty stations throughout the city and collect money during these three days wherever they go.

MERCURY HITS 87; FIVE DEAD

Heat again took its toll of lives yesterday, this time claiming five working men and women throughout the metropolitan area. Rising from a low level of 77 degrees at 4 o'clock in the morning, the mercury gradually rose to a high point of 87 at 2 p.m., where it continued to stay until 5 o'clock.

Rain, coming early in the evening, did not do away with the uncomfortable heat. While the mercury went down a bit after the thunder showers, the humidity increased by leaps and bounds, drawing the perspiration from the thousands of workers employed indoors in New York City.

Seven prostrations were recorded during the day. Most of these occurred to men working in factories and women engaged in work at home.

Relief is expected today, however, in the form of cool breezes travelling quickly across the country from the Canadian northwest.

SCHOOL BUT NO SHOES

Issue Nation-Wide Mill Strike Appeal

NEW BEDFORD, Mass., Aug. 30.—The New Bedford textile strikers are up against a new problem. School opens in New Bedford on Wednesday, Sept. 5, and strikers' children have neither shoes nor clothes to go to school in.

It is alright, the children find, to run around barefoot in ragged blue overalls during vacation days, although it has not been so easy tramping up and down the picket line. But school and cool weather coming soon mean that regular clothes and shoes are needed, and therefore the Workers International Relief is sending out a nationwide appeal for workers and sympathizers to come to the aid of the strikers' children. These children are entitled to workers support not only because of their striking parents, but because they are real fighters

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Aug. 30 (UP)—Governor Alfred E. Smith's presidential candidacy was endorsed almost unanimously today by the 600 delegates to the Sixty-fifth annual convention of the New York State Federation of Labor. Only a half dozen determined anti-Smith men insisted on recording their opposition.

A resolution advocating renomination of Senator Royal S. Copeland was referred to a committee and buried as far as the convention is concerned.

All officers of the State Federation were re-elected by unanimous ballot after a caucus failed to develop opposition, included are president, John Sullivan of New York; vice-presidents, Thomas J. WILL WHITEWASH I. R. T. ON WRECK

Banton Doesn't Call Company Officials

District Attorney Banton yesterday continued to go thru the motions in his "investigation" as to the responsibility for the I. R. T. smash-up which resulted in the death of 17 and the injury of over 100 others.

Refusing persistently to take the Interborough offficals into account in considering responsibility for the disaster, Banton yesterday heard witnesses consisting for the most part of old employes of the road. Hardly had an hour passed after the accident last Friday night when President Hedley of the I. R. T. threw the responsibility for the wreck from himself and the I. R. T. to the shoulders of William Baldwin a switch repair man. Baldwin is now free under $10,000 bail on a charge of homicide.

At the "hearing" yesterday a theoretical "breach" between Banton and the officials of the Transit Commission developed as to their interpretations of the cause of the wreck. The commission's report, delivered to Banton Tuesday, declared that the switch which derailed the last two cars of the train had been turned by some one alongside the switch valves beside the track over which the train was passing.

Banton declared himself to be of the opinion that the switch could not have been turned by anyone touching the lever in the signal tower while the train was passing over the track.

Reports continue that adjusters of the I. R. T. are still active in intimidating injured passengers and relatives of victims of the wreck in an effort to force "settlements."

Charge Evangelist In Huge Swindling Game

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 30 (UP).—Aimee Semple McPherson, internationally known evangelist, was charged in a damage suit today with using her four-square Gospel and members of her Angelus Temple congregation as pawns in a real estate game from which she netted thousands of dollars.

The complaint, entered by S. S. Hahn for Mrs. M. W. Puryear, asserted that Mrs. McPherson entered into a conspiracy with H. L. Henry and C. E. Kenyon whereby she received ten per cent commission for all sales made through her in a Lake Tahoe sub-division.

BREAK UP PHILA. CLOAK MEETING

Police, Sigmanites In United Front

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 30.—Working frankly as the prearranged agents of the reactionary officials of the Sigman cloakmakers' local here, police here halted a mass meeting of more than 600 cloak and dressmakers who had come to Boslower Hall at the call of the National Organization Committee to take up the question of establishing a local branch of the new Cloak and Dress Makers' Union.

The workers, thoroughly disgusted with the continued betrayals of the little local Sigmans, had decided to join in the great movement recently launched in New York for the establishment of a real union in the trade.

Thugs Demand Entry.

After the hall was well filled, about a score of right wing hirelings, led by the officials of the local, came and demanded admission to the meeting. The committeemen at the door denied them this on the grounds that only cloak and dressmakers would be admitted, the officials and any gangsters they may bring were not invited, they were told. But the police "guardians" of the meeting openly ignored the committeemen and helped the thugs force their way in.

No sooner did Chairman S. Levin open the meeting, when the small group of disturbers in one corner of the hall howled boisterously to

Believe Report That Amundsen Plane Was Sighted is Groundless

OSLO, Norway, Aug. 30 (UP).—Apparently groundless reports today that the wreckage of Roald Amundsen's Latham airplane in which the explorer and five companions were lost while seraching for members of the Polar dirigible Italia's crew, had been found caused great excitement here.

The reports, which were not confirmed, apparently originated through a correspondent of the newspaper Aftenposten, who said the wreckage had been found on one of the three northernmost islands of the Lofoten group, known as Vesteraalans.

KENTUCKY MINE MEET

Build Up New Union in Scab South

PITSBURGH, Pa., Aug. 30.—Thirty delegates representing eighteen mines attended the sub-district conference in Hillside, Kentucky. Mine by mine, local by local, the situation was gone over. Most delegates have already been elected. From now until the convention, representatives from each mine will knit their fellow workers more closely into dues paying locals affiliated with the new union, where this has not already been done.

Freeman Thompson spoke before more than 500 at a mass meeting after the adjournment of the conference. Many committees from distant parts of the state came to evening meeting, and told Thompson that they were sent to request him to come to their sub-districts to outline the policies of the new union and organie them. A large number of miners joined the new union at the end of the meeting. Thompson left today for West Virginia and Maryland.

FOSTER, GITLOW PLACED ON TICKET IN COAL AND STEEL KINGDOM OF U. S.

William J. White, Steel Worker, Named Red Candidate for Senate

Communist Ticket Now On Ballot In 16 States; Plan Active Campaign

Another great industrial stronghold, the state of Pennsylvania, the center of the steel and coal industry and the scene of some of the greatest conflicts in American history between the employing classes and the workers, has been placed on the Communist ballot according to a telegraphic report received at the Communist National Campaign headquarters, 43 East 125th Street, yesterday.

With the addition of Pennsylvania, the Communist ticket is now on the ballot in 16 states, the others being, Delaware, West Virginia, Maryland, Michigan, Illinois, Texas, Montana, Arizona, New Jersey, Iowa, Arkansas, Nebraska, Kansas, New Mexico and South Dakota.

Strikers Collect Signatures.

One of the outstanding features of the success in placing the Communist ticket in this reactionary semi-feudal barony of the Mellon family in Pittsburgh and the Vare machine in Philadelphia is that most of the 6,000 signatures required were secured from, and collected by, striking miners, only comparatively few of them being members of the Workers (Communist) Party.

The enthusiasm with which these embattled workers entered into the drive to place the Party ticket on the ballot was due to the active part played by the Communist Party on the side of the striking coal diggers in their long struggle to maintain the Jacksonville scale and the working standards they had won in previous fights with the coal barons. Not only were the Communists active on the picket line, and iin organizing the ranks demoralized by the treachery of the Lewis-Fagan machine of the United Mine Workers of America; not only were they in the front ranks of the struggle, rallying the men and women to sterner resistance against the employers and the state government, but they took a leading part in supplying the miners and their dependents with the necessities of life which enabled then to stand out for fifteen months against starvation and persecution.

Communist Party Wins Workers.

The National Election Campaign Committee calls attention to this fact and points out that only thru participation in the struggle of the workers against the employing classes can a revolutionary party be built up. While the Workers (Communist) Party has won the enthusiastic support of the miners in Pennsylvania, the Socialist Party has fallen into a state of complete demoralization as is evidenced by the surrender of his position as president of the Pennsylvania State Federation of Labor by James Maurer, socialist candidate for vice-president to John Casey, a reactionary labor-faker and congressman from the anthracite region on the G. O. P. ticket.

Though the final date for the filing of petitions is September 5th Max Jenkins, of Pittsburgh, campaign manager was able to file 6,000 signatures at Harrisburg on August 28th, five hundred more than the needed number.

Labor Party for Foster, Gitlow.

Not only is the national ticket of the Workers (Communist) Party on the ballot in Pennsylvania but the ticket is also endorsed by the Pennsylvania Labor Party, and acknowledgement of this action has been received from the secretary of state by the National Election Campaign Committee. The Workers (Communist) Party agreed not to nominate any other candidate either for state office or for congress and to give its support to the Labor

NEW MINE UNION GRANTS CHARTER TO FIRST LOCAL

Prepare For National Convention On Sept. 9

Seeking United Front

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Aug. 30.—With the granting of its first charter to the Silverbrook local in the hard coal region the New Miners Union inaugurated a fresh chapter in American labor history.

The authorization action has definitely bridged the gulf which the Lewis machine sought to create and deepen between the miners of the anthracite and of the bituminous coal fields.

The anthracite miners know that it would be fatal to allow themselves to be split away from the soft coal miners as some company-hired traitors in the ranks are suggesting. They know that one united front of bituminous and anthracite miners under honest and militant leadership is the goal of the progressive movement. The tri-district will send a strong delegation to help build the new union.

The proof of Lewis' union-wrecking program is arriving at the National Miners Convention Arrangements Committee headquarters, in the form of credentials from the former union fields: Maryland, Tennessee, Alabama, Oklahoma, Kentucky, the Southwest and the Far West. This proves that the miners want a union and that Lewis has deliberately broken district after district. Now these miners are mobilizing their forces to affiliate them with the new miners union.

Miners of both districts are preparing enthusiastically for the national Miners Convention which opens on Sept. 9. Delegates have been chosen and preparations for their departure for Pittsburgh have been made.

U.S. Army Authorities Offer Prize for Essay Telling "How to Fight Communism"

JINGOES GETTING NERVOUS DUE TO Y. W. L. ACTIVITY

Prosecution Attempts Fail Again

By PAUL CROUCH

The military authorities are desperate. They have spent millions to lure young workers into the "Citizen's Military Training Camps". The capitalist press has been mobilized in the service of capitalist militarism. The campaign was successful. Thousands of young workers were deceived by the promise of a "vacation", and the attraction of the uniform. They came to the camps like sheep, blissfully ignorant that they were to be trained to murder other workers for the profits of their own masters. Yet the angry outbursts of the military authorities are not the cries of victory. What has happened?

Medal for Jingo Essay.

At Fort Hancock, New York, a medal has been offered for the best essay on how to combat Communist propaganda. Officers there and at many other camps have devoted long lectures in their efforts to deceive the young workers, and to build up a jingo spirit in their desperate attempt to fight the revolutionary message of working-class solidarity being brought to the armed forces by the Young Workers Communist League.

The offer of prizes for ways to combat Communism will be without success. All the medals of the capitalist state cannot produce any essay telling how to stop the spread of Communism in the armed forces.

The very fact that the war department, with its millions of dollars, huge printing presses and thousands of "chaplains" and other propagandists, is frightened by mimeographed camp papers and the activities of a very small but militant group of young workers is of the greatest significance.

Prosecution of Y. W. L.

An investigation is being conducted by the military "intelligence" service of the army, and the department of justice has announced that it will propose special laws against the anti-militarist work of the young Communists. John Porter has been sent to Fort Leavenworth, Kansas, with the purpose of separating him from the Communists in New York and to subject him to the brutal tyranny of Col. William (Wild Bill) Morrow, the present commandant, who was in command of Alcatraz when Walter Trumbull and the writer were imprisoned there.

League Members Defy Army.

The military authorities are well aware of the fact that there is no federal law under which they can interfere with the anti-militarist work of the Young Workers (Communist) League. At Camp Devens, Mass., League members told the officers that "we have a right to distribute papers to the soldiers and we will continue to do so". At the National Guard Camp, near Chicago, 17 League members were arrested and the capitalist press began premature rejoicing at the "prosecution" of the young Communists, but the authorities had to release the League members without trial.

Will Intensify Efforts..

Whether threats or actual terror is used by the army czars, the Young Workers (Communist) League will continue its struggle against capitalist militarism. The desperation of the war department when anti-militarist work in this country is just beginning is another evidence that class consciousness in the armed forces is a fatal blow to imperialism. While the government gives military training to young workers, we will expose the nature of these preparations and call on the youth to use its military knowledge in the interest of the working class against the bosses. The Young Workers (Communist) League will continue to point out the way to unity of civilian and soldier workers in their common struggles.

No amount of medals can produce an essay telling of any method to stop Communism in the armed forces—for it is an impossible task.

NEW YORK WORKERS AID MINERS WITH RELIEF COLLECTION IN SHOPS

The Executive Committee of the Shop Delegate Conference for Miners Relief at its last meeting made extensive plans for activities among the workers in shops and factories on behalf of the striking miners and their families. An educational campaign will be carried on for the organization of shop committees. Mass meetings are being arranged to be held in all parts of the city, to acquaint the workers everywhere with the struggle of the miners, with the Lewis betrayals, with the efforts to build a strong, powerful, new Miners Union that will be a mighty weapon in the hands of the 800,000 miners, and the workers in all other industries.

Many shop collections are being made weekly by the delegates who attended the shop delegate conference in July. In an unorganized shoe factory $10 was collected. About two months ago in the same factory collections of $100 were made by a group of active workers. Among the shops where substantial collections are being made weekly are, the Majesty Dress Shop, The Mitchell Shop, The Carnegie Shop, Greenberg Brothers, Liebman and Horowitz, The Phoenix Pleating Shop. The workers of Nat Levine turned in fro mone collection $22.50. At the Duncan & Bradkin Dress Shop $7.25 was collected; at the Potholz Bros., $9.50. The millinery workers are going over the top. In the Advance Hat Co., and in the Sally Hat Co. shop committees are functioning and a weekly tax is collected. There have also been collections made at the Mindheim Hat Co., $4.20; Frank Katz Hat Co., $32; Marvin Hat Co., $7.

Sonia Margolies, delegate to the conference from the G. & G. Dress Shop, reported that at every shop meeting the question of Miners Relief is placed on the order of business, with reports and discussion on how best to help the miners in their struggle to build a powerful union.

Recruits Tell Army Officers to Stay Out Of the Mess Halls

Through the columns of the "Camp Holiday Rebel," recruits at the Citizen's Military Training Camps protest against the practice of officers coming in during meal times and forcing them to stop eating and come to attention.

The article declares:

"It is not enough that we are getting long daily drills instead of that vacation we were promised when we first joined the C. M. T. C. We are not even allowed to eat in peace the meager lunch given to us. Often officers make a practice of walking into the mess hall while we are having our lunch. Of course according to the strict disciplinary rules of the camp, everyone must immediately come to attention. So at times you nearly choke yourself swallowing the food in your mouth.

"Why don't the officers let us alone when we are not drilling? Can't we even eat our meals, rotten as they are, in peace? If anyone wants to come to the mess hall while we are eating, let him do so, but it must not interfere with our lunch, and not one of us must come to attention. If the officers do not like that, let them keep out of the hall while we are there."

drown out the chairman's voice.

After this continued for several minutes, and just as it was becoming apparent to the hundreds assembled that the disturbers would be silenced by the conductors of the meeting, a detective stalked over to the speakers platform and ordered Chairman Levin to close the meeting. Despite Levin's protests that a permit had been obtained for the meeting and that he is certain of being able to conduct an orderly meeting, the detective, who by this time had been reinforced by a whole squad of police, mounted the platform and ordered the assemblage to disperse.

Call Another Meet.

Announcements made later by the leaders of the National Organization Committee declared that another mass meeting will be arranged early next week, in spite of any of the gangster and police assistance the Sigman machine here may rally.

The speakers of the N. O. C. who came to the Philadelphia meeting were Joseph Borachovich, Rose Wortis, B. Kaplan and S. Levin.

MARINES SCORE USE BY WALL ST.

"Risky" to Fight For Rights, Says Sailor

American marines not only protest against being sent to Nicaragua to fight for Wall Street's interests, but many of them discuss the idea of group desertions to Sandino's army, according to a letter from a sailor whose ship carried the U. S. forces to Nicaragua.

The sailor also declares that the servicemen are dissatisfied with their conditions and treatment and have "short talks" on the matter. However, he says "it is pretty risky and it's not done often. But they have their talks now and then."

The letter, in part, follows:

"They (the marines) didn't seem to like the idea of going down there to fight, and there was talk on the ship about a bunch of them deserting and joining Sandino. . . .

"The sailors are dissatisfied with the regulations, also with the food and the way it is put out. They have short talks, but as yuo know yourself, it's pretty risky and it's not done often. But they have their talks now and then."

35 Students of Pocono College to Leave For Soviet Union Tomorrow

Thirty-five students of the Pocono People's College, Henryville, Pa., have been invited by the Russian Commissariat of Education to visit Russian educational institutions this fall. They will sail on the S. S. Amsterdam tomorrow, according to a statement made yesterday by George Wise of the American-European Travel Bureau, 100 Fifth Ave. The party will be headed by Dr. S. A. Mathiason, president of the college.

In addition to visiting Russia the party will tour France, Germany, Denmark, Sweden and Norway. The party will return to New York December 1.

BLAME OBREGON'S DEATH ON CHURCH

Called Aid to U. S. Imperialism

"The Catholic Church has just committed one of its greatest crimes when they caused a poor, fanatical 23-year-old boy to kill General Alvaro Obregon," writes Salvador De la Plaza, in the current issue of the Labor Defender.

The writer, who is secretary of the Continental Commitee of the All-America Anti-Imperialist League in Mexico City, in the same article, just published, traces the role of the church in Mexico since its loss of power after the fall of Porfirio Diaz in 1910.

"It armed the assassin's hand of Victoriano Huerta against Madero in 1913, and in the very legation of the United States it planned the crime with Mr. Wilson, the then minister of Mexico, De La Plaza charges.

"During the eighteen years of civil war, at times with British imperialism, at others with the American, and always with the help of, and aiding the Spanish capitalists, it used the fanaticism of the peasants and raised the standard of 'Cristo Rey" to incite the basest passions; to steep in blood and crush the struggle of the proletariat for its emancipation."

The author analyzes the new role of the church today, subservient to American financiers and the fight against both by the Mexican workers, led by the growing Communist Party of Mexico.

The article is illustrated by a photograph of the welcome given by armed Mexican workers in the Vera Cruz district to Socrates Sandino, brother of the Nicaraguan rebel leader, who has recently arrived in Mexico. Among the welcoming group of armed peasants is Epigmenio Guzman, Communist mayor of Villa Cardel, and Gustavo Machado, recently returned from Sandino's camp.

Y. W. L. STUDENTS THANK FOR AID

Contributions Made School Possible

A resolution to send letters of thanks to the various organizations which contributed sums of money to make possible the holding of the two-weeks session of the Young Workers League Training School was adopted at a recent meeting of the students.

The school, which began August 20 and which will continue to the end of the present week, was composed of leading League functionaries of District 2.

Among the organizations whose aid is being acknowledged are: the Lithuanian Buro of the Workers (Communist) Party; Proletcos; the Workers School, Camp Nitgedaiget, units of the Workers Party and Young Workers League and a large number of individuals.

Trade Union Festival Postponed to Sept. 22

The Festival of the Local New York, Trade Union Educational League has been postponed to Saturday, September 22, on account of rain.

The tickets for August 25 will be good for September 22. All left wing workers are asked to inform their friends and shop mates of the postponement.

SLUG MILLINERS AT LOCAL MEET

Thugs Halt Discussion On Employment

latter proposal is a ukase from the officialdom which tried to choke off protests of the unemployed by saying that $2 of the $12 will be "donated" to the unemployed, the other $10 going toward the campaign of wrecking the union's progressive locals. The mobilization of underworld forces for the meeting was made in preparation of the protests from the membership against this measure.

Motion Ditched.

A motion made by a member that the unemployment question be taken up immediately after the executive report was counted out by the "special tellers" borrowed from the gangster club of Local 1, who were there under the leadership of Herschkowitz, Zaritsky's adjutant-general. The original agenda was then railroaded through.

When the minutes had been read, a report of finances was made in which it was declared that a loan made to the Sigman cloakmakers' company union by Local 24 officials was not yet paid. The officials then remarked that due to the "sick condition" of the Sigman union the loan be extended. At this workers from the floor protested, terming Sigman's scab union as "dead" and not "sick."

Attack Started.

As if a signal had been given, the gangsters fell upon the worker who made this statement. When other milliners went to his rescue thug reinforcements came from somewhere out of previous sight and many workers were slugged before they had a chance to escape through fire escapes and other exits.

Even the few who remained left in protest when the Zaritsky gang called in police to act as ushers at the meeting.

Greek Workers Center Opening Is Postponed Until Next Saturday

The Greek Progressive Workers Center, which was originally scheduled to be opened to the workers this Saturday, has been postponed a week until Saturday, September 8. With the postponement of the opening, comes the news that the Dinner and Dance will also be held on the later date.

The Greek Progressive Workers Center, being in the heart of the fur and millinery workers section of the city, at 101 West 28th St., will be a haven for rest and educational activity for the exploited workers of the district. All workers have been invited by the management committee to spend their spare hours in the center. Games have been procured, chess, billiards, etc, to keep the workers busy in their moments between work and after lunch.

Besides these games, activities of cultural, dramatic, educational, and recreational pursuits will be installed as permanent features of the center as soon as its completion is announced.

New Figure-Head For Austrian President

VIENNA, August 30.—To fill the figure-head post of President of Austria, Professor Clemens Pirquet, noted physician, has been nominated to succeed Michael Hainisch, whose term expires at the end of November. The other candidate proposed is Professor E. Wettstein, a noted botanist.

No political leader is permitted to hold the presidency under the Austrian law, and his chief duty seems to be not to meddle in state affairs and act as chief receiver of notabilities for the government.

SEES SLAVERY FOR LIBERIA IN FIRESTONE DEAL

Hoover Charged As Accomplice

WILLIAMSTOWN, Mass., Aug. 30.—Sharply disagreeing with Dr. Thomas Jesse Jones, Negro apologist for the Firestone Liberian deal and educational director of the Phelps-Stokes Fund, Dr. Raymond Buell, white research director of the Foreign Policy Association and specialist in African problems, severely criticized Herbert Hoover, former Secretary of Commerce, and the State Department at the Institute of Politics today for their active role in procuring the rubber concession in Liberia for Firestone.

While the colored educational director of the Phelps-Stokes fund in his attempt yesterday to whitewash the State Department and Firestone, lauded the deal as a civilized and humane action which would provide the Liberians with all the "benefits" of modern civilization, Dr. Buell saw in the plan a vicious exploitation of the Negroes of Liberia, who would be forced into virtual slavery, akin to that which existed in this country prior to the Civil War, in order to promote the interests of an American tire manufacturer, who is supported by the American government.

U. S. Domination.

Dr. Buell also pointed out that the whole plan was made contingent upon the acceptance of a $5,000,000 loan by the Liberian government and the subsequent control of all its finances and revenues by a United States commission. Further, Dr. Buell pointed out that this loan was made by a dummy finance company known as the "Finance Corporation of America," which in reality was Mr. Firestone himself.

"Neither the American Congress nor the American people knew anything about these transactions, which sooner or later may make Liberia another Haiti or Nicaragua. It is difficult to find in the history of international relations a better example of secret diplomacy in the worst sense of the word."

Begin Attack on Rubber Imperialism's Alteration in Philippine Land Lease Law

HIT ALTERATION IN 5,000 ACRE LIMIT MEASURE

U. S. Interests Want Mindanao Grants

MANILA, Aug. 30.—The first steps towards defeating the Stimson government's scheme to alter the Philippine land laws in such a way that American investors may lease more than 5,000 acres were begun in the legislature yesterday. The change is supported by Senators Quezon and Osmena.

The attack on the proposed "liberalization" measure, led by several senators of the so-called Nationalist Party, has caused the gravest concern to the American officials and the Osmena-Quezon group.

Leading the legislative attack are Jose Clarin, floor leader of the majority of the Nationalist Party, and a number of senators.

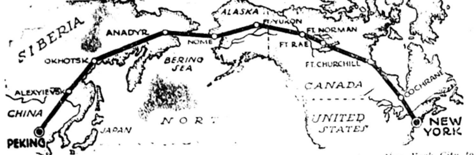
A similar opposition to the measure is reported to be developing in the lower legislative body also.

From the earliest days of his incumbency, Governor-General Henry Stimson has worked to overthrow the present Philippine land law, which does not permit the leasing of more than 5,000 acres by a corporation.

American rubber interests, who are interested in seeing the restrictive law abandoned, have been lobbying to effect its repeal or abrogation. They are desirous of establishing rubber plantations, especially in Mindanao Island which will aid them in their competition with the British interests in the same commodity.

Opposition to the "liberalization" measure is widespread throughout the islands though it has not as yet crystallized into effective organization to deeat the obnoxious legislation.

Practicing for the Imperialist War Against the USSR



Vilhjamir Stefansson, noted arctic explorer, predcts an airplane route from New York City to Peking which, he declares, will be in operation by 1933. The route, which traverses a course from New York City to Cochrane, Canada, and thence to a point in northern Alaska and down the coast of the Far Eastern Soviet Republic, crosses no high mountain ranges. The only large body of water necessary to cross is Behring Strait between Nome, Alaska, and the opposite coast of the Far Eastern Soviet Republic. The step will be eagerly watched by the war department with an eye to the coming imperialist attack on the Soviet Union.

COMMUNIST PARTY ON PENNSYLVANIA BALLOT

Party candidates who favor the program of the class struggle.

Communists Oppose Kutz.

The Communist Party, however, could not support Charles Kutz, the candidate for United States Senator on the Labor Party ticket. Kutz is one of the reactionary labor leaders who plays politics with the two big capitalist parties. While chairman of the state Labor Party he did not hesitate in the last pri-elections to throw his support to Charles Water, a Republican politician, who was runnig on the Labor Party ticket against John Brophy who was the choice of the Labor Party in the state. Kutz was severely criticized by the state Labor Party convention held in Philadelphia and was removed from office as a result.

Bill White for Senator.

Against the reactionary Kutz, the Workers (Communist) Party nominated the veteran revolutionist William J. White, a steel worker and a member of the Central Executive Committee of the Workers (Communist) Party, who has been active for many years in the Lef Wing of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Tin and Steel Workers of which the notorius Michael Tighe is president. White participated in the great steel strike, nder the leadership of William Z. Foster, Communist candidate for president, who pulled out 400,000 steel workers in the heroic effort to bring the slaves of the United States Steel Trust within the fold of union labor, under militant leadership.

Foster and Gitlow, the Communist presidential and vice-presidential candidates and White for United States Senator will receive the support of all class-conscious and progressive workers in Pennsylvania, particularly those who have learned by experience in strikes that both the Republican and Democratic parties are agents of the employing classes and always place the forces of the state at the service of the crushing the worker's resistance.

Struggle to Get on Ballot.

The task of securing the necessary number of signatures to place the Communist ticket on the ballot was divided epually between the Party organization in District 3, with headpuarters in Philadelphia, under the leadership of Comrade Horbert Benjamin, the district organizer, and in western Pennsyvania, under the direction of Comrade A. Jakira, organizer of District 5.

The cemrades of District 3, secured most of their alloment of signatures from the miners in the anthracite region where a bloody war has raged for many months between the progressive forces on one side and the reactionaries on the other supported by the coal operators, the state and mnicipal governments. The Communist Party took the lead in the struggle against the iniquitous contract system, which was supported by the Capellini machine and only fought in a half-hearted way by spurious progressives like Brennan and McGarry, Boylan and Company, who profited the murder of honest fighters like Alex Campbell and others to oust Capellini and get into the gravy themselves.

In Mellon's Kingdom.

In Pittsburgh, the stronghold of the Mellon family and the headquarters of the Pittsburgh Coal Company, leader in the open-shop movement in the coal industry the Communist Campaign Committee found the men and women who went thru the great strike willing to sign the petitions to place the Communist ticket on the ballct.

In Pittsburgh as in Philadelphia, the labor politicians are owned and controlled by the captains of finance and indstry, and the "Labor World" which purports to speak for organized labor devotes most of its space to attacking the Communists and boosting Herbert Hoover for president. The officials of the United Mine Workers in Pittsburgh, have a united political front with the capitalist politicians the very politicians who are the agents of the coal operators who broke the miners strike by starvation, and with the aid of John L. Lewis and his machine.

Another important factor in making the striking miners and their sympathizers see thru the policy of the Capitalist politicians was the work of the National Miners Relief Commitee under the direction of Comrade Alfred Wagenknecht, whose success in raising relief funds for the textile strike in Passaic, New Jersey, brought reluctant praise from the late Sarah Conboy of the United Textile Workers Union and even from Thomas Mac-Mahon, reactionary president of the same organization.

Miners' Fight is Political

Not only did the National Miners elief Committee bring food and clothing to the famished strikers, but it carried on an educational campaign thru news releases, bulletins and posters, pointing out that the state troopers, "yellow dogs" or coal and iron policemen, judges and mayors, all agents of the capitalist parties, were their enemies and that they should organize into a class party thru which the could fight on the political field.

The miners were puick to see that the only political party, that appeared on their side dring the strike, was the Workers (Communist) Party, and thousands of them now feel that this is the Party that is entitled to and will get their support in this election campaign, and afterwards in the fight to rally the masses for other struggles and eventually for the overthrow of the capitalist system.

Big Mine Union Convention.

The miners of Pennsylvania, in addition to helping put the Communist ticket on the ballot, are perfecting arrangements to build a new Miners Union to replace the wreck of what was once the mighty United Mine Workers of America, —wrecked through the perfidy of John L. Lewis and his corrupt machine. A great convention will be held in Pittsburgh, from September 9 to the 16, which will be attended by hundreds of delegates from every mining region in the United States. The Workers (Communist) Party is planning a spirited election campaign in Pennsylvania, which will have the effect of raising the morale of the workers in that state and labor in general as well as encouraging the members of the Party in other states to greater activity.

The National Election Campaign Committee, is making arrangements to send speakers into every industrial hamlet in the state to carry the message of the class struggle to the workers and to point out to them how they must organize themselves for a militant struggle against the exploiters, by joining the Workers (Communist) Party and building up militant industrial unions.

Comrades Foster and Gitlow are scheduled to speak in the principal cities of Pennsylvania during the election campaign.

"COMMUNISTS? HANG THEM ON THE SQUARE"

SOFIA, Bulgaria, (By Mail).—"The accused men were Communists and as such deserved to die," was the decision of an Albanian court, and on the morning of July 12, the peasants coming to market at Tirana saw three white robed figures dangling from three gibbets on the market place.

That is the essence of the story of medieval cruelty that finally broke through both the Italian and Albanian censorship that had succeeded in holding its secret for over a month, and was made public here with all its gruesome details. Three men, one Albanian and two Bulgarians, were hanged in the marketplace of Tirana, Albania, two hours after midnight on July 12, and roused a wave of sullen terror and horror among Albanian peasants and workers. President Zogu found it necessary to withdraw to the seaside near Durazzo under a guard of more than 800 soldiers and gave it out that he was "taking a vacation" —at a place where he could easily flee to his protector Mussolini.

Framed Charge.

The three men who were so cruelly hung were Ibrahim Arapi, Albanian, and Theodor Georgieff and Theodor Vulkanoff, Bulgarians. At a trial lasting less than three hours they were convicted for "planning a bomb attempt" against "'the savior of Albania." Not an iota of evidence was brought against them, only two or three dubious witnesses were called. In fact the government prosecutor declared that there was no need for incriminating proof, in reality the evidence presented was declared to be inconsequential. "But the accused men are Communists and as such deserve to die, anyway."

When the oldest child of Arapi, who was the father of seven children, appeared before President Zogu and asked for clemency the president assured him that his father would not be slain. The same evening a patrol of gendarmes appeared at the prison, escorted the three men to the market place where three gibbets had been constructed. About two hundred people collected at 1:30 in the morning and sullenly witnessed one of the cruelest executions in history. According to Albanian law free speech was granted on the gallows.

"You Are All Traitors."

Arapi stood stalwart and tall on the kerosene box under the gallows with the noose about his neck. "What difference does it make how a man dies?" he cried to the prosecutor. "I am only sorry I got my sentence from a Grecomaniac like you and a traitor who has always plotted against Albanian independence. But that doesn't matter—you will all be brought to trial. You are all traitors. Ahmed Zogu treacherously gave Vermosh and St. Nacum to Jugoslavia. You and all your subordinates are sons of Mussolini."

He was cut short by a gendarme who demanded that he be hung immediately. But the prosecutor granted his last request—he took a handful of coins in the possession of Arapi and put them in his pocket for future distribution among the poor, as Arapi had requested.

All three men died a horrible death. They were allowed to hang with their feet just touching the cobbles on the market place until they died. In one case the tripod was dislodged and the soldiers held it aloft until Georgieff's body remained still. It took 15 minutes for him to die.

The next morning the gendarmes removed the bodies at 10 o'clock instead of at noon which was the custom. The hanging had aroused too much resentment among the inhabitants of Tirana and had spread through the country like wild-fire.

COSTA RICA HITS MONROEDOCTRINE

GENEVA, Aug. 30 (UP)—The Little Nation of Costa Rica has raised the most perplexing question before the 51st session of the League of Nations Council which convened here today.

Costa Rica's demand for an interpretation of the Monroe Doctrine has not been placed on the assembly agenda, but president H. J. Procope, Foreign Minister of Finland, will submit the question to a secret session, probably on Friday. Then, it is hoped, a reply will be framed and later the council members will decide whether they will take up the issue at a public session.

U. S. WORKERS FIGHT FOR CLASS PRISONERS GAINS

Elizabeth Flynn to Address Conference

Elizabeth Gurley Flynn, national chairman of the International Labor Defense, will be among the speakers at the state-wide conference to be held early in September for the purpose of further organizing the movement for the release of the five Centralia class war prisoners. Great impetus is being given the movement. The five Centralia workers have already served 8 years as victims of the Washington state lumber barons.

Among those who have added their voice in the demand that Governor R. H. Hartley release the Centralja prisoners is Kate Crane-Gartz, well known liberal in California. She writes in part as follows:

"To the Governor: I wish to add my appeal to the many thousands of others for unconditional pardon for the eight members of the I. W. W. of Centralia who have been confined for eight years in the Washington penitentiary for a crime that was instigated by certain subversive interests and who acted only in self-defense."

A wide representation from trade unions and fraternal organiations, is expected at this state-wide conference, according to reports received by the national office of International Labor Defense.

Among the Central labor bodies which have demanded unconditional freedom for the Centralia prisoners are Everett Central Labor Union, Seattle Central Labor Union, Tacoma Central Labor Union and many others.

Young Red Front Fighters in Temporary Camp

A group of young Red Front Fighters are shown above resting during a halt in the march to their summer training camp. The German workers do not train in boss-owned, boss-administered citizens' military training camps where they are trained to fight the bosses' wars for them. The German workers have their own training camps where they train themselves to fight for their own class against the bosses.

JAPANESE RAID NANKING BUREAU

SHANGHAI, Aug. 30.—The relations between the Japanese and Nanking governments were again aggravated when foreign police under the instructions of the Municipal Council, where Japanese interests are strongly represented, raided and closed down the Nanking government's intelligence bureau located in the foreign settlement.

The immediate cause for the raid was declared to be the circulation by the bureau of handbills which were confiscated by the police, setting forth the Nanking side of the Tsinanfu incident. Circulars setting forth the side of Japan had previously been distributed.

JAIL 2 WORKERS AT SACCO MEET

ROCKFORD, Ill., Aug. 30.—Heavy fines were imposed upon two members of the Young Workers (Communist) League, Max Appleman and Zip Knochic, by a judge here because they distributed Communist literature and spoke "without a permit." They were arrested at the Sacco-Vanzetti open-air meeting, that was held here on Aug 22.

At the magistrates trial the bonds were set at $100 a piece and the magistrate angrily remarked: "You think you can run this country, don't you?"

Members of the Young Workers League here look upon the trial as the first step in crushing the League, and particularly the League training school.

ARABS DEFEAT BRITISH TROOPS IN BIG BATTLE

Down 2 Planes; Take 150 Prisoners

JERUSALEM, Aug. 30.—Success of Yemen tribesmen against Anglo-Arab troops is reported here by a dispatch from Sheik Imam Jahia of Yemen, who won a victory near Sana, capital of Yemen.

Jahia's troops are reported to have captured the mountain strongholds around the capital, bringing down two British airplanes and taking 150 prisoners. They are preparing for an attack on Sana.

The British have massed troops, tanks and airplanes along the Irak frontier in preparation to resist the attack of the tribesmen, who are said to be revolting against British rule.

Baltimore Workers To Hold Big Picnic

All workers in Baltimore will attend the Labor Day Picnic and Dance at the Co-operative Shore Monday, September 3, (Labor Day). This will give the workers of Baltimore not only an opportunity to have a good time but to help the Daily Worker.

Those attending the Picnic will be able to take part in all sorts of sports, bathing, fishing, boating and dancing. You get to the shore by the following directions. By street car take car No. 23 and stop at Mace Avenue; from there our machines will take you to the shore. By auto: Drive on Eastern Avenue past Josenhaus corner, turn to the right and follow our signs to the shore.

Thompson Talks At Blandford Meet

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Aug. 30.—Freeman Thompson returned today from Indiana and Kentucky where he attended four subdistrict conferences and spoke at a number of mass meetings. The Clinton, Bicknell and Blandford conferences all indicated that the job of organizing Indiana is certainly being taken care of.

Dues are being paid directly to the new union, and many applications for charters have already been received in the Pittsburgh office from this district.

Following the Blandford conference a large mass meeting was held, at which Thompson spoke. The miners of Blandford have already organized.

eroic Miners' Wives, Mothers Fight Side by Side with Men, Correspondent Says

HANduOTS

The American Federation of Labor executive council has denounced Brookwood Labor College as being too radical and ordered its unions to refuse further support. The New Leader, organ of the decrepit Socialist party, characterizes this action as "a tragic blunder." The New Leader is right. The actions of both the A. F. of L. officialdom and the socialist party, whether through corruption or stupidity, are directed toward one result, the maintenance of the present economic system. They work hand in hand. The New Leader is also right in saying there is no radicalism at Brookwood. You have just as much chance of coming upon radicalism at Brookwood as finding Bill Green urging the armed overthrow of the capitalist system at West Point.

No Silicosis Here

The result of capitalism on one prominent face is depicted above. To get such ideal results as these, however, it is necessary to exploit children before they are seven and work pregnant women 60 hours a week. An excellent tip also is to spend the nights in dissipation and the days cursing the servants. The above remarkable head is connected with a pair of feet that can't be walked upon due to gout and other leisure class diseases. As the socialist party is always pointing out the rich do have it tough. For instance the above individual is always losing his peas in the two bags that hang down from his jaws.

The decay of capitalist civilization is indicated by the announcement that a company has been formed to re-condition chewing gum.

Gems of Learning

General Umberto Nobile, ex-Arctic explorer:

"Part of our motion picture film was lost. We had to burn it in an effort to keep warm. But we spared the footage showing me in the act of dropping emblems upon the North Pole."

Part of the film which, unfortunately was lost, showed the U. S. S. R. Ship Krassin fishing the helpless Fascists off the white ice.

Ramsey MacDonald, socialist party chief:

"We find throughout the Dominion (of Canada) that socialism has made considerable progress."

This sounds like the reflections of a canoeist above Niagara Falls. Ramsey hasn't heard there is a war on the way.

James O'Neal, S. P.-ite, speaking of congress of second international:

"The organized working class organized militia companies whose members were prepared to challenge any attempt at Fascism. * * * The Belgian workers have been prepared to hazard their lives to preserve their organizations and to guard the road to power from any ambitious Mussolini."

But to hazard their lives for a workers republic? Nothing doing! That would be unethical.

William Allen White:

"I only did this because I felt that a debate on the subject of harlotry was not worthy of a presidential campaign. But if Gov. Smith tries to wisecrack his way out of his record I shall come back at him with the proven evidence."

Will Al vote for prostitution? Yes. And so does the "pure" William Allen White. Anyone who votes for capitalism votes for prostitution.

Prostitution cannot be eliminated without eliminating poverty and neither Al nor Bill has a program for that.

German Financier Is Arrested For Frauds

BERLIN, Aug. 30 (UP).—Hugo Stinnes, son of the late Hugo Stinnes, multimillionaire industrialist, was arrested today on a charge of fraudulent manipulations in connection with the revalorization of German war bonds.

LOWELL MADE SUCKER

BOSTON, Aug. 30 (UP).—Federal investigators continued today their investigation of the financial operations of Guy Huston, alleged to have victimized several prominent New Englanders, including President A. Lawrence Lowell of Harvard University, in a farm loan scheme which was reported to have failed.

WOMEN IN COAL FIELDS DEFIED BOSSES' TERROR

Hate Lewis; Work for New Organization

PITTSBURGH, Pa. (By Mail).—The women are the burden bearers of the race. The women are the greatest sufferers in industry. It is the wives on whom unemployment, strikes, lockouts and all the hardships of industry fall heaviest.

It is the mothers whose hearts break when children are hungry or in want; when shoes are worn thin and when stockings are past mending. It is the wives and mothers who have to worry most about rent day and the pay envelope.

Women are not only the child-bearers but the greatest sufferers from the terrible system of exploitation under which we live.

Company Barracks.

The women in the coal fields always suffer, even in the best of times. They suffer because they are never sure of employment: because when their men go into the mines they never know whether they will ever see them alive again. They suffer because the company houses in which they live are often little better than the shacks into which they have to move when they are evicted in a strike period.

When the Jacksonville scale was broken the women were the first to realize that it meant that the miners would be forced to accept anything that the coal operators chose to pay them and when the miners went out in protest, it was the women who saw naked want staring them in the face.

But they were game. They encouraged their men and stood by the strike. They went on the picket line. They were given scant courtesy. Our boasted American chivalry fails to manifest itself in industry. What was manifested was a brutal disregard of workers rights and the women and even the children were treated to the clubs and beatings, arrests and frame-ups. The weapons used by the coal operators are used indiscriminately against men and women alike.

The Lansing Women

So the wives and mothers of the miners understand what is going on. They know that the coal operators work in conjunction with the police and the judges and the courts. The 51 women of Lansing who were locked up when they marched to the jail to see their men who had been arrested on the picket line, have lost whatever illusions they might have had about justice and equality before the law. They know that the laws are against them and their class. They know that the jails are made for the workers and not for the coal operators or other millionaires of the country.

The women have also discovered what is wrong with the U. M. W. of A. They know that Lewis is wrong. They clinch their fists when they hear his name. They hate him more than they do the coal operators and with good reason, for he has betrayed them in a hundred ways. And when the miners are betrayed it means the betrayal of women and children; it means hunger and cold and sickness. And the women hate John L. Lewis bitterly and when the new union is formed (without Lewis and his gang) the women will have had a hand in it and deserve to have a place in it for the women fought as stubbornly to win the strike as the men.

The Proletarian Women.

There are women in the coal fields who deserve to be known in song and story. They have braved every peril; have shown revolutionary courage; have defied the sheriffs and the courts.

The women are the burden bearers and they will be the fighters in the great struggle for proletarian victory.

The miners wives in southeastern Ohio have organized into groups with the express purpose of getting together for mutual benefit and also to be able more effectively to win any future struggles that may be in store for them.

And they have also helped themselves at the present time through holding picnics, dances and through collections made in nearby towns.

It is of great value to the miners and to the whole labor movement when women learn to organize and to meet and discuss their needs and to make plans to help themselves in whatever way possible.

The miners will win and the whole working class will win when the women who work in factories and shops learn the same lessons and wives of the miners and other workers will form strong organizations to fight along with the men for decent wages, hours and conditions in industry.

CONTRIBUTIONS IN RED CAMPAIGN DRIVE

We herewith publish the third list of contributions to the Communist Campaign Fund received by the National Election Campaign Committee of the Workers (Communist) Party, at 43 East 125th Street, New York City.

With the Communist ticket on the official ballot in fifteen States and the prospect for getting the Party candidates on the ballot in at least thirty States growing brighter every day, the members of the Party and sympathizers with the Communist program are urged to become increasingly active in helping to raise the $100,000 Communist Campaign Fund, which is the minimum necessary to wage a good campaign throughout the United States.

MOSCOW, U. S. S. R., Aug. 30.—The burial of Horaz, delegate of the Chechoslavakian Communist Party to the Sixth World Congress of the Communist International, who died here suddenly, took place today.

The funeral was attended by the delegates to the World Congress and by many Moscow workers.

Children of Mill Strikers Go Without Shoes; School Opens

for the strike in their own right. They have stood their ground bravely when the police attacked the picket lines, and come out day after day, wet weather as well as fine.

Food becomes a sharper problem too, as school opens. Strikers' children must not be sent half-hungry to wrestle with their lessons. For this reason the W. I. R. is opening special children's relief stations, to make sure that the children are properly fed. As a beginning, Sunday, Sept. 9, is being set aside as a special Children's Milk Day. Up to now the children have been given relief when they came to the stations during the week, with no food distribution on Sunday—but double portions on Saturday. Sunday has now been established as a special children's day.

An appeal has been issued by the Workers International Relief to make the special Children's Relief Drive a success.

Mussolini Denouncer Lured Back to Italy Jailed By Fascists

GENEVA, Switzerland, Aug. 30 (UP).—Cesare Rossi, former fascist leader, was lured across the Swiss frontier by a woman and seized by Italian authorities, newspapers here reported today.

Swiss authorities began an investigation of the arrest, which, it was revealed, occurred near Tessin, Switzerland.

The reports were that Rossi, who has been hiding in France since he denounced Mussolini and fascism for the murder of Deputy Matteoti, visited the Canton of Tessin. When Italian authorities learned he was there, a lure was used to get him in their jurisdiction, it was said.

BLUE LAWS AGAIN

HARRISBURG, Pa., Aug. 30 (UP).—Facing a sentence of sixty days in jail on a bread and water diet or working on Sunday, thirteen barbers brought before an alderman last night are being held in $25 bail each for court, after they waived hearings.

POLICE SMASH MEETING IN OHIO STEEL CENTER

Steubenville Workers Are Defiant

(By a Worker Correspondent)

STEUBENVILE, Ohio, (By Mail).—The first organized attempt of the workers of Steubenville, Ohio, to build a strong defense movement in this city in several months, has found the local police department in a highly nervous condition, verging on delirium tremons.

On Saturday, August 25, the local branch of the I.L.D. was to hold a mass memorial meeting for Sacco and Vanetti on the steps of the Court House. The meeting was scheduled for 7, but the Salvation Army had already taken the stump. Our comrades waited peacefully until eight, when the sky-pilots left. Comrade J. Judson, of Cleveland, mounted the stand. He had said no more than ten words to call the meeting to order, when four husky coppers jerked him off the stump and proceeded to walk him to the police station, a block away.

The crowd followed to the station, where the police told Comrade Judson he might go free if he would cease speaking. He refused, so they kept him there.

There then began a long grilling, in which many questions were asked, such as "Who are your committee? Where are you from? Why do you bother with such things? What can you do? Sacco and Vanzetti are dead already!" Comrade Judson answered these questions properly, being sufficiently wide awake to know just what was wanted, and giving them very little actual information regarding the local movement.

Comrade Judson was held overnight, it was finally decided to release him on charges of inciting to riot, under $2,000 bail. But there was a slight hitch in the plans of the police. Mr. Borkowsky, federal commissioner in the Steubenville district walked in. He pointed out to the police that they really had nothing on Comrade Judson, that he had said nothing seditious, that he had had no time to incite a riot, and they really couldn't do a thing. He also attempted to persuade Comrade Judson to abandon his ideas. "Such a smart fellow might do so much better.....''!

In effect, Mr. Berkowsky saved the police department from a black eye. However, the local Comrades of Steubenville are enthused over the result, glad of the response to the call for the memorial meeting, and promise that he will use this incident to the utmost in the building of a strong I.L.D. local in this city, which will defy the steel bosses and strengthen and defend the workers movement in Steubenville.

Chicago Police Called "Rotten to the Core"

CHICAGO, Aug. 30 (UP).—A special grand jury investigating crime and violence at the poles returned indictments against fourteen persons today, charging conspiring to obstruct personal liberty.

The indictments declared the investigations would indicate the Police Department of Chicago is "rotten to the core."

OHIO MINERS TO HOLD SUB-DIST. MEETS

Follow Lead of Lewis No More

PITTSBURGH, Pa. Aug. 30.—Ohio is conducting a series of sub-district mines conferences. The first one opens in Bellaire. Others will follow in quick succession. Bob Mutusek, Frank Sepich and Andy Plechaty are leading the work there, affiliating locals with the new union, getting dues cards in circulation.

It took a lot to knock some sense into the heads of those who have followed Lewis's lead like so many sheep all those years, while the U.M.W. of A. has gone to ruin. When the newspapers announced Lewis' latest betrayal, the abandonment of the Jacksonville scale and instruction to each district to beg what it could from the operators, Lewis' supporters said that it was a lie, that the progressives had made up the story!

But when they heard the same story from Lewis' office, they understood at last. These boys are now joining the great masses of miners who say that Lewis' betrayals are a thing of the past—a new day.

Nine Workers Killed In Italian Cyclone

MONZA, Aug. 30.—Nine workers were killed in a violent cyclone that struck this city last night, it was announced officially today. In addition, 40 were injured seriously, seven of whom may die. Nearly 100 were injured slightly.

Among the dead were: Alfredo Hagant, 30; Giovanni Lissoni, 27; Pierina Pastor, 20; Pietro Casiraghi, 21, and Federico Maiocchi, all employed in hat factories. The other dead were unidentified, including two women.

BRITISH BANK GAINING

LONDON, Aug. 30.—The Bank of England's reserve yesterday totaled £60,175,962, the first time it has been above the 60,000,000 figure since February 3, 1915. A week before the outbreak of the World War the reserve was £26,875,000.

'Elmer the Great' Ring Lardner Comedy Due at Lyceum Sept. 24

IN MARK TWAIN PLAY

Scene from "A Connecticut Yankee," Mark Twain's famous satire in musical form, now in its tenth month at the Vanderbilt Theatre.

GEORGE M. COHAN'S first production of the season is all set. He has decided to open here with "Elmer The Great," Ring Lardner's baseball comedy and will present it at the Lyceum Theatre on Sept. 24. The play is based on Lardner's "You-Know-Me-Al" stories. The chief role will be played by Walter Huston. Other players include: Nan Sunderland, Harold Healy, Tom Blake, Thomas V. Gillen, Edith Luckett and Katherine. The play is now playing in Chicago.

Two productions of the Sam H. Harris-Albert Lewis forces will open next Monday at Philadelphia: the Jack Dempsey-Estelle Taylor play "The Big Fight" at the Chestnut Street Opera House, and "The War Song," the George Jessel play at the Lyric. The New York openings follow a fortnight later.

DERUSSA FILM GROUP JOIN EUROPEAN PRODUCERS

Derussa, the Soviet government and the German film trust combine, is the latest continental producing firm to enter the Affiliated European producers. Derussa is the fifteenth film company to merge in the creation of the new organization, which is to distribute all the films of these companies in America.

The acquisition of Derussa is considered as one of the most important events in the formation of this distributing combine. Michael J. Gourland is the president of the affiliation. Among the prominent Derussa directors are: Sergius M. Eisenstein, creator of "Potemkin"; W. J. Pudowkin, of "The End of St. Petersburg" fame; Jury Tarisch, who made "Czar Ivan the Terrible"; and F. Ozep, director of "The Yellow Ticket."

POISONS 3 WITH CYANIDE.

NEW BRITAIN, Conn., Aug. 30 (UP).—After all-night questioning by state detectives, Samuel Weiss, one of two persons arrested on suspicial of causing the deaths of three persons with poisoned beer, confessed early today that he had placed cyanide in the beer.

Mrs. Catherine Weiss, his sister-in-law and wife of one of the victims, was still be questioned.

"The New Moon," Schwab and Mandel's new musical play opened in Cleveland last night at the Hanna Theatre. The production is due here in two weeks at the Imperial Theatre.

Aline Bernstein who designed the costumes and sets for the Grand Street players will join the Civic Repertory Theatre as its scenic designer. Eva Le Gallienne started rehearsals at the Fourteenth Street Playhouse yesterday.

Mae West will give a special matinee of "Diamond Lil," Labor Day at the Royale. This will mark the twenty-second week of her play "Diamond Lil."

Three Hundred Carpenters and Joiners Walk Out in Demand for Five Day Week

UNION MEN TIE UP OVER TWENTY MILLS IN STRIKE

Victory For Workers Soon Is Seen

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Aug. 30. —A country-wide strike of union carpenters has tied up over 20 mills. The strike was called on Monday, when 300 carpenters and joiners walked out with the demand for a five-day week with the same wages that they have been getting for a five and a half day week.

The strike affects cabinetmakers, benchmen and machine men.

An early victory for the strikers was indicated when the head of the Building Materials Men's Association, the bosses' league, expressed anxiety for a settlement.

GITLOW TO SPEAK AT PHILA. PICNIC

To Produce O'Neill's "Hairy Ape"

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 30.—The election campaign rally and picnic to be held at Schuetzen Park, 83rd and Tinicum Ave., on September 3, where Benjamin Gitlow, vice-presidential candidate of the Workers (Communist) Party, will speak, is expected to draw a record crowd, the Communist Election Campaign Committee announced here today.

Arrangements are being made for a monster demonstration as a reception to Benjamin Gitlow, who will begin his cross-country tour with an address in the citadel of the corrupt Vare machine. Efforts are being made to provide for the broadcasting of this speech so that thousands in the eastern part of the country will be able to hear the demands of the Communist Party.

Other features will make this a highly enjoyable affair. An open-air performance of Eugene O'Neil's "Hairy Ape," by the Hederow Theatre Players on a specially constructed stage, is the latest feature to be announced. This will be the first time that the play is given under open skies.

Both players and spectators will have an opportunity to satisfy their palates with a variety of international foods. Chinese comrades are preparing "Chop-Suey," "Chow-Mein" and "Fooyundun," Armenian comrades are preparing their famous relish "Shashlik" and the unknown dish shrouded in mystery, "Matzun," and the Italian comrades will have their incomparable spaghetti and macaroni.

The picnic will be held, rain or shine, since there is a huge pavilion at the park. The affair will last the whole day and the admission is only 50 cents.

DAWES PLAN FOR MEXICO CHARGED

Wall Street Ready to Supervise

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 30.—Facts relating to the internal economic condition of Mexico collected by a committee of United States bankers, and published in United States only for the use of certain bankers, have been demanded to be made public for Mexico by economists here. Eduardo Villasenor, writing in El Universal, has demanded that this secrecy by lifted.

The bankers committee came to Mexico to make an investigation of the economic situation due to the fact that the Mexican government had declared that it would not be able to meet its external obligations. When they returned they published their findings and distributed them only to prominent bankers, with certain recommendations, which, it is feared here, provide for United States domination of railroads, revenues and banks. The report was not made public in Mexico at all.

Villasenor writes in part, "We suppose that they have recommended that Mexico release control of her railways, her telegraphs and the Banco de Mexico with, possibly, the [illegible] National Bank of Agricultural Credit, to satisfy international obligations. Excessive measures would not be surprising. They would serve to prove their fidelity to the bankers whose interests they have to serve."

HOOVER'S STAND ON PORTO RICO.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 29 (UP).—Dr. Thomas E. Benner, Chancellor of the University of Porto Rico, has asked for a statement from Herbert Hoover, republican presidential candidate, on his attitude toward Porto Rico, it was learned today.

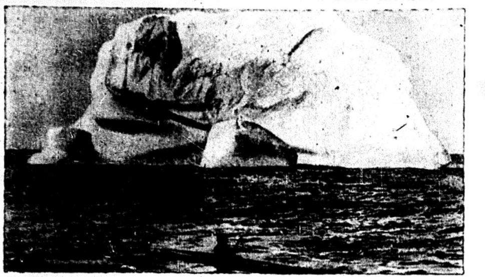
Step Toward Exploitation; "The Cross and Then the Sword"



The Eskimos in the Labrador region were perfectly contented and healthy before they ever saw a missionary, but the Sir Wilfred Grenfell thought they needed Christian religion and the "benefits" of capitalist civilization. So he founded a string of missions along the Labrador coast. As in all colonial regions, "Christian missions pave the way for capitalist exploitation of natives. Grenfell, recently knighted for his services to British imperialism, is shown above in a kayak.

BOTH YANKS AND ATHLETICS LOSE

(By United Press)

Both American League pennant contenders received a setback Thursday, the Washington Senators defeating the New York Yankees, 3 to 1, and the Boston Red Sox beating the Philadelphia Athletics, 3 to 2.

Waite Hoyt, the Yankees' star right hander, failed to stop the Senators who knocked him out of the box with a three-run rally in the sixth inning. Hits by Rice, Goslin, Judge, and Reeves accounted for the Washington runs.

Babe Ruth's forty-seventh home run of the season in the seventh inning gave the Yankees their only run. Ruth, however, hit into a double play in the ninth after Gehrig had fanned.

Sam Jones held his former teammates to seven hits.

Two pitchers shoved into the game in the ninth beat the Athletics. Charlie Ruffing, batting for Russell, doubled and scored two runs and Big Ed Morris, taking the mound in the last inning, fanned Hauser, Tris Speaker and Eddie Collins—the last two pinch hitters.

Rain helped the Chicago Cubs to gain half a game on the league-leading Cardinals in the National League race Thursday. The Cubs beat the Cincinnati Reds, 2 to 0, rain stopping the game at the end of the sixth inning. The Cardinals' lead is 5 games.

With the Cardinals leading the Pittsburgh Pirates, 2 to 0, at the end of the first inning, rain halted the contest. Alexander and Kremer were the rival pitchers.

YESTERDAY'S RESULTS.

The Reverend Thomas Evades All Questions

By SAUL HELD.

ROCKFORD, Ill., Aug. 30.—The "socialist" candidate for the presidency delivered one of his middle class sermons at Rockford, Ill. on Monday night, August 20, in a hall that seats about eight hundred persons. Three hundred persons were present. The composition of the small audience consisted of a few foggy "socialists," middle class storekeepers, and a few workers. Not a militant, fighting, revolutionary note was struck in his entire talk. It was an appeal to sob sisters and the middle class to vote for the "socialist" ticket. The Reverend with artificial, dramatic gestures attempted to arouse the sentiments of the audience. Pacifist and traitorous statements gave his speech the "socialist" coloring.

Support Kellogg Plan.

Said Mr. Thomas: "I support the Kellogg Peace Pact because of the psychological results." What are the psychological results? The Kellogg Peace Pact serves the purpose of hiding the military preparation of capitalism for the next world slaughter. And the "socialists," true to their policy of betrayal of the working class, hand in hand with capitalists attempt to screen the military preparations. Not once did Mr. Thomas mention the fact that the working class must first shatter the capitalist system and then build socialism. Instead he advocated intelligent voting as the best possible means of transforming capitalist society into socialism in a peaceful manner.

Desert Marxism.

Long ago have the "Socialists" forgotten and deserted Marxism. Marx in his Communist Manifesto declares: "In depicting the most general phases of the development of the proletariat, we have traced the more or less veiled civil war raging within existing society up to the point where that war breaks out into open revolution, and where the violent overthrow of the bourgeoisie lays the foundation for the sway of the proletariat."

Mr. Thomas lamented a great deal over the sad spectacle of war and declared that "Socialists" have always fought war. How weak is his memory (a fitting qualification for a "Socialist")! Has Mr. Thomas forgotten the betrayal of "socialists" during the World War? Has he forgotten the betrayal of the socialists in Germany who voted war credits and raised the slogan of "German Imperialism is the Most Civilized of Imperialism." The "socialists" of France, Italy, and America also had such slogans and also betrayed. All this Mr. Thomas has conveniently forgotten.

Mr. Thomas "chastized" the Communists for their "hot-headed" ideas on the question of armed insurrection force against capitalism, and spoke in the artificial quivering voice of a presbyterian preacher.

Socialists Betrayed Workers.

Has Mr. Thomas forgotten that the Social Democracy supported armed insurrections in Georgia and Ukrainia against the first worker's and Peasant's Government on the face of the earth: Or, Karl Kautsky's enticing appeals to the French and British governments for financial aid in the support of the insurrections? What a bluff on the part of the loving reverend whose hands are bloody with the murders of militant workers the world over! The "pacifist" supports armed insurrection! And against whom? Against the working class! When the meeting adjourned the members of the Young Workers League Training-School bombarded him with questions. Under the bombardment, the reverend hemmed, hawed, twisted and turned, with the look of a cornered rat in his eyes.

Gives Evasive Answers.

In replying to the question: "Did not the 'socialists' vote for the war credits in Germany during the war?" he answered: 'Some socialists are good and some are bad." When he was told of the issuing of injunctions against striking workers in Milwaukee, which has a "socialist" administration, Mr. Thomas replied, "we are not in a majority on the administration." This falsehood is self evident. When asked why military training exists in schools of Milwaukee the same hypocritical answer was given. Knowing the League members would annihilate him in a short time he declared he would not answer any more questions from League members, and turning like a beaten rat, he slunk away. In his entire talk not a word about organization. Not a word about the young workers in industry, not a word about militant revolutionary struggle on any field. The betrayers in the sheep's clothing of "pacifism" and and "liberalism" are a menace to the working class. Fight the betrayers of the working class!

The fact that "Tammany Al" Smith, who is being supported in his present presidential campaign by such financial barons and labor haters as John J. Raskob, General Motors head, and Pierre du Pont, big munitions manufacturer, was going to receive the sanction of the American Federation of Labor, was indicated two days ago when William Green, reactionary president of the organization, delivered a speech in which he called the Wall St. candidate a "friend of labor."

for financial assistance to relieve the suffering strikers and their children. The starvation wages and unemployment among American textile workers is unbearable and life-destroying".

NEW BEDFORD, Mass., Aug. 30. —The Chief of Police, it seems, has concurred, and a permit to parade on Labor Day was sent yesterday to the New Bedford Textile Workers Union of the Textile Mills Committee by Mayor Ashley. The mayor according to reports, tried to dodge the issue by referring it to the police head, but mass pressure was too great to be ignored.

Although no permit was granted till last night and after a decision against the application for a permit was likely, the arrangements committees of the Textile Workers Union have engaged in preparatory plans for many days. The American Federation of Labor Textile Council, which is also to hold a parade, having been granted permission some time ago, is working feverishly to make a showing that will save its face.

After protests from the strikers and even outsiders has become unbearably loud, the city authorities finally granted a permit to the T. M. C. union to hold a meeting in Brooklawn Park. Only the Textile Council was hitherto permitted to hold meetings there. A highly successful meeting of hundreds of British workers was held there yesterday. James Ried, from Fall River, Ellen Dawson, William T. Murdoch, Fred E. Beale, Kelley Jeanette Pearl of the W. I. R. spoke. A French Canadian speaker Henri Ruth, was also there and was enthusiastically received by the workers.

Calles Cabinet Meets On Eve of Opening of The Mexican Congress

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 30.—President Calles is holding a cabinet meeting today in preparation for the opening of the Mexican congress on September 1. The chief point on the agenda, both for the cabinet meeting and the congress is the problem of choosing a successor to the president, whose term expires on November 30.

At the first session of the congress resolutions will be presented by the National Peasants League and sections of the Obregonista party demanding that the term of President Calles be extended for two years, so that preparations for a national election in 1931 may be made.

Colorado Launches Fund Drive

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Aug. 30.—A campaign for collecting funds to pay the expenses of delegates to the National Miners Convention, has been launched in Colorado. This is the task of miners in every district.

"Of course it's very hard collecting money when the boys haven't been getting any pay for a long time," writes a miner of Lafayette, Colo. "We find ourselves bunking against a stone wall many, many times while we are trying to get some work done. But hell, what's a thousand stone walls when we got to build a union to protect ourselves and our families? I tell you, brothers, we are working and mean to build a real union!"

The Communist Party On the Ballot In Bloody Pennsylvania

The "Ruhr" coal and iron region of Germany is famous the world over, both in labor history and in the intrigues of diplomats and the strategy of field marshalls. But it might not be too much to say that Pennsylvania is as significant to the economy of the United States of America—and to the labor history of this country—as the "Ruhr" is to all of Europe.

There are vast differences. From the point of view of labor history, we do not forget that the American working class has not had the same experiences as the brave German workers of the "Ruhr." But those who know the long history of the workers of the mine fields of Pennsylvania will look to Pennsylvania for some of the most glorious achievements of the working class in the coming years. Pennsylvania is "the guts" of American industry in at least as real a sense as any other section that could be named. The vast mass of workers in the basic industries of iron, steel and coal can truly be called the flower of the working class of America.

But for the very same reasons the capitalist lords of the United States have always used the greatest precautions, the most ingenious devices and the most ruthless methods to make a vast prison stockade of the steel-mill towns and mining camps. In this they have not been unsuccessful. Pittsburgh is notoriously a city of blood-and-iron police methods directed against the working class. And if the police department of that city can be regarded as a sort of a collective Harry Thaw on a rampage against everything that seemed to lead even in the direction of free expression from the masses, so also the trade union bureaucracy has long been best symbolized as that police department's little Evelyn.

Yet underneath the heartless official surface of the state of the coal and iron cossacks and the crass "culture" of the foulest type of America bourgeoisie exemplified by the Mellon family, there has always been present the fiery heart of the best that the American proletariat can show in men and women.

It is significant that in the Daily Worker today appear two news despatches from the state of Pennsylvania. The Workers (Communist) Party—the American section of the Communist International, the revolutionary party of the American working class—will be on the ballot this year in Pennsylvania. This is one of the news items. It is a big one. It means a better opportunity for the working class of Pennsylvania to mobilize itself, train itself, school itself in political questions so as to raise to a higher stage its class consciousness for the struggle towards the victory which will crown all its many years of struggle. Voting will not displace the cossacks, will not change the state power of the coal and steel barons into an instrument for the benefit of the working class, but the use of the election campaign in a revolutionary manner by the working class party which has no illusions of capitalist democracy, can bring to the workers of Pennsylvania an advantage in all their struggles. Is it an accident that the candidate heading the Communist national ticket as the red nominee for president and the candidate that heads the state ticket for United States senator, are respectively, the leader who organized the huge struggle of the Great Steel Strike, and a veteran steel worker who was associated with him in that struggle? The workers of Pennsylvania know that it is not accidental. They know this because the Workers (Communist) Party has been their one true, tireless leader throughout the terrific coal strike through which they have just gone, only to see their former union wrecked by the enemies of themselves and the Communists. It is no accident that the day's news of success in the campaign to get on the ballot tells us that the coal miners were chiefly those who put through the successful campaign to get the national ticket headed by Foster and Gitlow and the state ticket headed by the steel worker, William J. White, on the Pennsylvania ballot.

The other news item tells of the granting of the first charter for a local of the new Miners' Union. This also is momentous news. The great National Convention of the coal miners for the founding of the new national union to take the place of the now dead United Mine Workers, destroyed by John L. Lewis and his fellow servants of the capitalist class,—this great convention is now but a few days away. It will begin on September 9. It will be one of the most important events in all of the history of the American working class. There is nothing surprising that the new Union that is being born is a result of the struggle between the militant coal miners and the Communists, against the traitor Lewis, member of the same republican party which is bossed by Mellon, the arch-type of the scab coal mine owner.

The whole working class of Pennsylvania has new opportunities to learn that the class struggle is a political struggle, that the picket line meets the state power of the bosses as its greatest and decisive enemy.

Congratulate the workers of Pennsylvania—and put the Communist ticket on the ballot in many more states!

They Studied with Guns in Hands

By SOL AUERBACH.

KIEV is a city of green and gold. Built on seven hills overlooking the Dneipr River, with its poplar lined streets climbing the hills, it is a breezy and vigorous city even in the summer. The people walking on the streets have a carefree and easy temper. In the evening they walk in crowds, singing and yelling to one anohter. In the Proletarian Garden, situated on a cliff high above the river, the workers of Kiev gather in the evening to listen to the orchestra or play on the recreation grounds.

The gilded domes of the churches blend with the rising and waving green of the streets into a harmony of gold and green in sunlight. The city feels like a summer resort to a temporary visitor who does not have to work while he enjoys the Dneipr and the color.

In the evening members of the proletarian student organization, the Prolestud, join us on the way to the river front. We walk along with the crowds, down the hundreds of steps to the river shore. Kiev comes here on a summer evening, in thousands of arm-clasping joyous people. They cross in large motor barges to the other shore of the river where they build small camp fires and splash about in the water.

Twenty-five of us embark on a large one-motored barge and chuck our way against the current up the river. The river is smooth as glass on the surface, hiding a swift and dangerous current. It is pitch dark out there and Kiev throws only small specks of light into the sky. Blotches of light climb up the Kiev hills. Small flickers of light on the bridge, from the camp-fires on the opposite shore, from the stars. The smoke from the power plant casts a shadow across the moon. The Ukrainian students sing revolutionary songs.

Yasha stands at the stern of the boat, an athletic and imposing figure. He is the son of a peasant and a student at the Kiev Polytech. He is a giant. Strength radiates from his open collar from the well-set neck, from the muscular forearm, from the square jaw, from the lively prancing eyes. He is a man cut for leadership, with a spirit and will that sways masses. He becomes our leader immediately, leading the songs, urging us into action.

Our boat is a volume of song. The Ukrainian and Russian students are swept away by the motion of the boat and the call of the night. They sing song after song with the full strength of their being, united by common experiences, common sufferings, common aims and ideals. They are songs that come deep, deep from the masses, full of power, full of vigor and triumph and also full of sadness.

Yasha stands at the stern of the barge, singing into the night. His voige is deep and clear. From one song to another he leads his comrades, his deep rich bass dominating all.

"You must excuse us for singing our heads off like this, comrades. You may not understand these songs in a foreign language. But you surely must understand their spirit, their real meaning. These songs means everything to us."

And he leads off on another.

Suddenly he breaks off the song. We are drawing near to some concrete pillars projecting out of the Dneipr. He points to them defiantly and says,

"Do you see those pillars? It is all that is left of a bridge. The bridge was blown up by the retreating Polish army. I was in the thick of the fight. I have taken part in seventeen battles in and around Kiev. The land of the workers and peasants is invincible! Workers of the world this is your home. Workers, workers of the world, your day of freedom is at hand. We are your mainstay, your rallying point, your hope!"

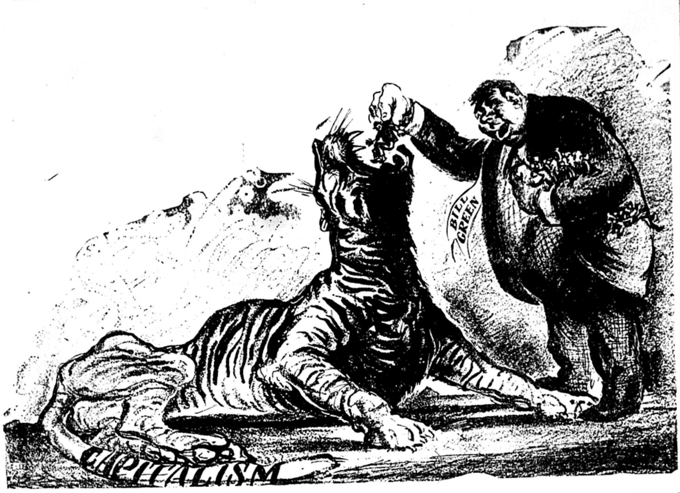
He must have fought with the same abandonment with which he sings. And yet Yasha is only one of the many young workers and peasants in the vanguard of the Red Army. Only one of the many students who studied with guns in their hands, studied so that they could be leaders in the construction of the proletarian fatherland.

PUPPET GOVERNMENTS

WASHINGTON, Aug. 30.—In answer to the invitation sent to 48 states to join Kellogg's pact to "outlaw war," only three petty governments have thus far indicated their unconditional acceptance. The governments are: Peru, Liberia and Luxembourg.

Denmark, Bolivia, Austria, Cuba and San Domingo have communicated that they intend to join in the future.

"REWARD YOUR FRIENDS AND PUNISH YOUR ENEMIES" By Fred Ellis



How "Socialist" Party Has "Developed"

By I. AMTER

At last we know whither the socialist party is going. "Thirty-six educators have issued a call to join the socialists. Appeal for formation of progressive party." This is the goal of the socialist party, section of the socialist labor international. A party of liberals, to put themselves at the "head of the liberal forces of the country."

Who and what are the liberals? They are the intellectuals, who interpret the struggles of the working class in the terms of emotion and petty-bourgeois interests. They are that section of the population which is being crowded economically and hardly finds a place in society.

Is there a place for them in American capitalist society? There is. Among these thirty-six men are men who help capitalism to develop more rapidly in the United States; but the majority of them are men and women who are unable to interpret the struggle that is taking place, who cannot reconcile it with their conception of ethics, and, in that some of them are teachers of religion, decry a number of the baser manifestations of the struggle.

"Industrial Peace."

These liberals are advocates of industrial peace. Why should in this age of reason, when "intellect has taken the place of force," as Matthew Woll would put it, why should in this day, force play any part in human relations? The worker wants peace, the employer wants peace; let them sit down around the table with the motto that industrial peace is the better method, a "give and take" policy, as has been instituted in the settlement of the coal situation in Colorado, and the class struggle will be eliminated.

This method eliminates nothing; it merely beclouds the issue for a short time, but the class struggle goes on none the less. Phrases will not stop the workers from struggling. Economic determinism will not keep the employers from forgetting industrial peace, when the question of profits and control arises. The liberal phantasy will not aid the intellectuals in solving the question. The struggle goes on—and intellectualism will be swept aside.

Prepare for War.

Despite the proposals of industrial peace, the war industry is working at top speed. "America has the most formidable war gas producing industry in the world," so reports a renowned chemist. Surely this industry is not intended for the destruction of the American workers! Surely it is not intended for the destruction of the working class of another nation, which has arrived at the stage of industrial peace between the workers and the capitalist class! Mondism in England is "established." The British workers no longer hate or fear the British capitalists. All is honey and roses—and the war industry will close down.

This is the product of the propaganda of the intellectuals—the socialists who have "abolished" the class struggle! This is the vain position of the petty-bourgeoisie, which is being shoved to the wall. In despair of its position, it clamors for peace, for it dare not take the position of the working class, and it cannot entice more than a shred of recognition from the capitalist class. The intellectual who sees himself predestined to take over the leadership of society!

Will this class arrive at the signal position occupied by the leadership of the Independent Labor Party of Great Britain, all of whom, including MacDonald, are intellectuals? It will not. The MacDonalds became the heirs of the mass movement created by the Kerr Hardies, the movement that led to the formation and development of the Labor Party of Great Britain. The development of capitalism in Great Britain required sagacious leaders of the working class, who could swing the Labor Party from its labor and struggle trend to support of capitalist policies. The movement for struggle was tamed, and the Labor Party became respectable.

The Intellectuals.

In the United States there is no mass movement of the workers as yet in strongly organized form. The form of organization and of struggle is as yet the trade union in the United States, and it is fighting a fight for economic improvements. The intellectuals play little part in these struggles. The brutal rise of American capitalism, in sharp struggle with imperialisms that are declining and are fighting for their very existence, demands of American capitalism the application of rigid measures against the working class, which the intellectuals cannot ease.

There may be one Woll, but there cannot be many Wolls in the labor movement in the United States, for the organization of the workers, which means the organization of the unorganized, has taken the form of a determined struggle against the resolve of the employers to make America an open-shop country. Although the company union idea is growing and more millions of workers are being embraced in it, the experiences of the workers who have been in company unions are tending to explode the entire idea. While growing, the ground-work is decaying. The intellectual who is an exponent of industrial peace, and therefore of the company union, sees the flower bloom—and rot.

Illusions.

The socialist supports industrial peace—and, following in the wake of the League of Nations, spreads the illusion that the League will bring about the area of international peace. Yet in the name of the League of Nations, the world is near to international disaster. In the name of the League of Nations, the colonial peoples are being exploited as never before. It is a more refined method—and yet it is more brutal. Irak, India, Egypt, Nicaragua, the Philippines, Liberia—all of them present the same aspects. There is no industrial and no international peace, for we are living in the era of imperialist wars and the social revolution!

Has then the socialist—that is the intellectual—an enduring place in American capitalist society? His role will soon be spent. It is not unlikely that the socialist party, now transforming itself into an intellectual, liberal, progressive party, eliminating the struggle, and acting as the "peace-bringing" agent of the capitalist class among the workers, will thrive for a while in the United States. But this development will be of short duration.

Unemployment of millions—for the second year—rationalization, which means the pauperization and impoverishment of milions (the number of children working in the factories of the country is not decreasing but increasing), the industrialization of agriculture, the fear of old age, the expansion of industry with the diminishing scope of foreign markets, the intensification of competition with foreign countries, whose imperialist life depends on foreign markets for goods and capital—all of these conditions present no possibility of industrial or international peace.

Mass Struggle.

The American liberal and intellectual—the American socialist—has "developed" into what he essentially is—but too late. The struggle is too far advanced for the capitalist to be able to make much use of him. War and industrial and political strife are the order of the day. True, masses of workers are not consciously in this struggle.

The strike of the miners, textile workers and needle trades workers; the spontaneous strike of the auto workers and the Canton steel workers, indicate that the oppressive and threatening conditions no longer appeal to the workers. Struggle is in the air—and instead of acting as pacifier—the American intellectual, liberal—called "socialist"—falls into the category of third capitalist party, created by the petty-bourgeoisie, for the purpose not of smoothing industrial and political differences between the classes but of aiding the capitalist in exploiting and crushing the workers.

"Socialist" Treachery.

This is demonstrated in all the struggles mentioned. The role of the socialist party has amply proven this contention. The statement of the Reading, Pennsylvania, socialist party that if a strike should occur in that city, the socialist administration will "give the employers better protection than they have ever had before," is brilliant indication of it. This is the analysis of the "development" of the socialists in America.

So be it. This eliminates the socialists from militant participation in the struggle—except as a counter-revolutionary element. It clearly opens the eyes of the workers fighting for elementary demands to the role of the socialist party. Norman Thomas—yes, even that former worker, Jim Maurer—may shake hands with John D. Rockefeller and Andrew Mellon. All of them wish industrial peace—the peace of the graveyard, while the workers will struggle in the streets for bread.

Fighting Communists.

The coming winter will demonstrate the truth of these assertions. Unemployed workers will demand work. Children will be hungry. Workers in the factories and mills will fight for a little more, which will be denied them. Impelled by the growing competition with intense American rationalization, the capitalists of Europe will oppress their workers still more. This will react on America and produce a condition of sharper struggle. The socialist will play his true role—all flamboyant colors will be laid aside. A third capitalist party with the pious face and garb of the Reverend Thomas and professors of religion of the universities will be in the field—while the workers will recognize that, despite all professions, the struggle is here and must be fought out—and their leaders will not be the emasculated, castrated black-robed socialist party, but the fighting, red-garbed Communists.

CANTON STEEL STRIKE

BY I. AMTER.

The government is seemingly highly interested in the strike. Settlement of the strike, however, will not be so easy for the company or the government. Chipping and grinding is very hard and dirty work. Americans refuse to do it. The work is done almost exclusively by foreigners—and in Canton primarily by Spaniards, Greeks and Italians. In Massillon, South Slavs, Bulgarians and Rumanians predominate. The work is of such a character that owing to the tool the worker uses—350 lbs of air pressure in it,—the hands swell up the first few weeks and resting the tool on the knee causes great pain.

Strategic Situation.

Scabs therefore are difficult to procure. Men come and go, for they cannot do the work—and the handling of the tool is dangerous. It is stated that one of the scabs did not hold the tool properly and it flew into the air. The result was almost a panic.

The Canton strike may be the beginning of a big movement throughout the steel industry. Even though the strategic situation of the men made their walk-out easy, the spirit that dominates the men indicates that it is not the consciousness that they can control the further production, but the fact that a spirit of militancy has entered them. They have been fooled three times, they are hard workers, and when they saw that the company through the superintendent did not keep faith, they felt that the only thing to do was to strike.

What was it that impelled the men immediately to organize? They met, elected their strike committee and proceeded to picket the mill. They issued leaflets, putting forth their demands and calling on the men in Massillon in the chipping and grinding departments to come out. They appealed to the men throughout the plant to cooperate. They performed all the maneuvers that trained fighters would go through.

Lessons of Strike.

What lesson must we learn from the strike—which is still on with full force, despite the terrorism of the police? One important lesson and that is that despite unemployment, wage cuts, terrorism, the workers are beginning to fight back. Spontaneous movements are taking place. Some of these movements are occurring in very important plants. Unquestionably, the Central Alloy Steel is turning out material for the War Department. Commercial airplanes are also eventually come under the jurisdiction of the War Department.

In any case, Communists must be alert: spontaneous movements have their advantages and drawbacks. Spontaneous movements may be led by agents provocateurs. They may be inspired by honest men with honest motives. Spontaneous movements, without any organization, are not the best of movements. But out of these movements, if the Communists are on the job, widespread movements may develop. This is the period of restlessness on the part of the workers. Miners, textile workers, needle trades workers, steel workers, railroaders. The next few months may witness extensive strikes.

Bankers, Merchants Receive Kellogg On Arrival In Dublin

DUBLIN, Irish Free State, Aug. 30.—A reception committee composed of Captain Nutting, governor of the Bank of Ireland, and the heads of the chambers of commerce, together with government officials, met Secretary Kellogg when he arrived on the battleship Detroit from Paris, where he had just affixed his signature on the pact to "outlaw war." Seventeen guns fired a salute as the cruiser approached.

An automobile cortege, closely guarded, took the party to Dublin from the port.

KRASSIN LEAVES.

MOSCOW, Aug. 30.—The Krassin, Soviet ice-breaker, which has been completely refueled and carries food sufficient for several months, is hastening its return to Kings Bay where it will resume the search for lost members of the Nobile expedition and the six missing rescuers including Amundsen.

Told You So

WHEN Fred Marvin, the enterprising gentleman who furnished Red scares to the bankers and to Daughters of the American Revolution, at so much per scare, was found guilty of libeling a prominent pacifist woman and soaked to the tune of $17,000 damages, it was feared that a worthy successor to Fred would be hard to find. But Matthew Woll, a vice-president of the American Federation of Labor, learning that Fred got all his "secret" information about the doings of the Communists from the columns of the Daily Worker, stepped into the vacuum and is now peddling the same line of green goods that brought his predecessor much notoriety and some cash for several years.

WOLL is not a chicken-feed peddler of Communist "plots." He is a big merchant. Any newspaper that agrees to run Matt's picture and announce the fact that he is an official of the Civic Federation can have a brand new "plot" as soon as Matt has time to read the Daily Worker. If the Daily Worker publishes a resolution on new tactics in trade union work adopted at a congress of the Red International of Trade Unions, or a speech by Comrade Bukharin on the political situation in the United States, Matt begins to have labor pains and delivers a "Red Plot."

UNFORTUNATELY for Matt, the capitalist editors are beginning to get sick of his stuff. Marvin was more clever. Fred issued his scares through prominent society ladies, who had to be played up anyhow in deference to their status in society and their connections with the powers that be, behind department stores and corporations that carry on extensive advertising campaigns. The newspapers also know that Matt fears the Communist propaganda because his job is at stake. When the workers get wise to Matt and his fellow-labor fakers, they will no longer pay him a fat salary for betraying their interests to the employers and sitting down with the grand moguls of finance who spend most of their time thinking up schemes to break strikes and make the open-shop universal in the United States.

LABOR DAY is nearing, but nowadays it is robbed of whatever working class significance it had previously. Though the labor movement of the United States was the original proponent of May Day as the rallying day for the workers of the world, later on, its reactionary leaders set up the first Monday in September in opposition to the first of May. Until recent years the central labor bodies in the various cities held parades on Labor Day with whatever unions that happened to be on strike at the time, or, most recently, taking the part of honor in the march.

BUT, nowadays, strikes are tabooed by the reactionaries, and in most cities picnics have taken the place of parades. These affairs no longer have much if any labor character. High moguls of the state and city governments are invited guests and in the City of New York prominent militarists have places of honor. In Denver, Colorado, a scabby labor paper by the name of the Colorado Labor Advocate announces that the Denver Post of the American Legion is giving an American flag to the best uniformed union and that the labor-hating newspapers are giving a loving cup for the best float.

THIS is only another straw which shows which way the wind is blowing in the old trade unions. The bureaucracy has plumbed the depths of betrayal. They have gone over, body and soul, to the employing classes. Most of the reactionary labor leaders now have substantial stakes in the capitalist systems. Their loot is invested in industry and they are just as willing that the workers should be exploited and kept tamely at the machine as the bosses of industry.

THIS period marks a definite turning point in the history of the labor movement in this country, and, indeed, in every country. What it taking place here is an international phenomenon. It is true that in Europe the reactionary trade union and political leaders of socialist and labor parties parrot a more radical phraseology, but, in practice, they are all of the same stripe. Social democrats in Europe, leaders of the British labor party and the bureaucrats of the American Federation of Labor are all playing the same role, serving the interests of imperialism in their own countries.

Arrest Of Six Refugees Expected

The arrest of the six Mexican refugees who are sought by United States authorities for complicity in the assassination of General Obregon and for planting bombs in the Mexican chamber of deputies was reported to be imminent by George J. Mintzer, head of the criminal bureau of the United States.

The six are Jose A. Jiminez, a Catholic priest; Manuel Trajo Morales, Oswaldo Rables Ochoa, Antonieta Ortega, Joaquin Navarro Becerra and Enrique M. Zepeda. They are believed to have fled over the border immediately after Jose Toral had killed Obregon.

U.S.S.R. TO SIGN KELLOGG PACT WITH SHARP CRITICISM

World Congress of Communist International Unanimously Adopts Bukharin Theses

LOVESTONE ASKS THE END OF U. S. FRACTIONALISM

U. S. Minority Makes Reservations Upon Comintern Theses

Credentials Report

(Wireless to the Daily Worker)
International Press Correspondence

MOSCOW, Aug. 30.—Thaelmann reported on the work of the Political Commission at the World Congress of the Communist International. The political theses were then unanimously adopted plus all of the amendments suggested by the Commission.

Takes Exception to Theses.

Johnstone then made the following declaration in the name of the minority of the United States delegation.

"The minority of the Workers Party agrees with the political theses except for the passage concerning the United States which fails to stress the United States imperialist contradictions and the progressive radicalization of the American workers and which also fails to condemn the right wing policy of the majority of the Central Committee of the Workers Party, particularly regarding the non-application of the decisions of the Fourth Congress of the Red International of Labor Unions, and Negro and anti-imperialist work."

Majority Supports Theses.

Lovestone answered for the majority of the Workers (Communist) Party. He said:

"The majority of the Workers (Communist) Party approves unreservedly the political theses presented by the delegation of the Communist Party of the Soviet Union.

"The unanimous adoption of the theses disproves the accusations of the minority against the majority of the Workers (Communist) Party concerning the alleged right wing policy, and means that the Communist International supports the present leadership. The best method to fight against the undoubtedly existing right wing dangers is for the minority completely to accept the theses, abandon fractionanilsm and subordinate itself to the majority."

The resolution recommending that all Communist parties support the International Red Aid was unanimously adopted.

REVEAL POLICE GRAFT IN PHILA

$10,000,000 Bootleg Ring Is Charge

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 31 (UP).—Open charges of existence of a graft-ridden police force receiving hundreds of thousands of dollars from a $10,000,000 bootleg ring headed by Max "Boo Hoo" Hoff, millionaire fight manager, were made today when District Attorney Monaghan said that policemen were receiving from $50 to greater sums a month for "keeping quiet."

It is expected criminal action will be taken against many members of the force from the highest to the lowest rank. Evidence against the police was found, it is alleged, when records were seized in a raid Wednesday night of an accounting firm which audited the accounts of the bootleg syndicate.

The record purported to show $50 to $500 was paid detectives and policemen on the beats in return for "failure" to see the flagrant violations of the prohibition laws. One former official was paid $200,000 in one month, it was said.

NEW APPEAL OF WOODLAWN CASE COMES UP SOON

3 Workers Face 5-Year Jail Terms; Charge "Sedition"

I. L. D. Leading Fight

(Special to the Daily Worker)

PITTSBURGH, August. 31.—Although the Workers (Communist) Party has just been placed on the ballot in the state of Pennsylvania, a vicious campaign to drive the Party underground is being pushed in this section of the state.

Three Workers Framed.

Three workers of the little steel town of Woodlawn near here are facing five-year prison sentences. Arrested in a "red raid" on Armistice Day, November 11, 1926, Pete Muselin, Milan Reseter and Tom Zima will go to the state workhouse soon as a result of the energetic efforts of the combined forces of the local, state and private police of the Jones & Laughlin steel corporation, unless the workers of the United States join in the campaign for their release which is being conducted by the International Labor Defense.

Argue Appeal September 24.

On April 16, 1928, the superior court affirmed the judgment in the case of the three workers. An appeal against the decision of the superior court was made to the supreme court of Pennsylvania, and the case will be argued on September 24.

Several workers were arrested, but five were held for court charged with violation of the Anti-Sedition law of Pennsylvania. Of these, the case against Steve Bratich has been dropped, and another has left the state.

The charges against the workers were quashed on two occasions because they were "too indefinite to support conviction," but they were finally indicted in the court of Quarter Session of Beaver County, a court controlled by the Jones and Laughlin Steel corporation.

Prejudiced Judge, Jury.

The case was tried in an atmosphere of the most frenzied and blatant prejudice, and the foreman was a notorious klu-kluxer of Ambridge, Pa.

Muselin, a war veteran, is a barber and was secretary of the barbers local in Woodlown and known as a militant. Reseter, also a veteran of the world war, is a butcher and was secretary of the Croation Benefit society. Zima is a steel worker.

TEXTILE STRIKE LOOMS IN FRANCE

PARIS, August 31.—The rank and file of the other textile unions, headed by labor reactionaries, have joined the strike of textile workers in Northern France, which was called by the Communist textile union which delivered an ultimatum to the Northern France Textile Syndicate demanding more wages and threatening a general strike on September 2 if their demands are not met.

The strike was called on the refusal of the concerns to grant increased salaries for the female operators and as a protest against the suppression of the regulation against strikes.

The French government is trying to avert the general strike and the minister of labor, Loucheur conferred today with a delegation from the employers who informed him that they would not grant the demands of the workers.

New Kansas Drive Against Communists

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Aug. 31.—An attempt to drive the Workers (Communist) Party in Kansas underground is seen in a series of new criminal syndicalism charges that are being started in Kansas.

The charges are being made against workers and members of the Workers (Communist) Party in the state. who were arrested at the Sacco-Vanzetti meeting held in the city on the anniversary of the murder of the two martyrs. Hugo Oehler, district organizer for the Workers (Communist) Party; Matthew Cushing, young packing house worker and a member of the executive committee of the district Young Workers (Communist) League, and nine others were arrested either for speaking or attending the meeting. Of these, eight will be charged under the criminal syndicalism law. All eight are members of the Workers (Communist) Party.

SLUG MILLINERS AT LOCAL MEET

Thugs Halt Discussion On Employment

Because of the determined demands of millinery workers, attending a meeting of their Local 24, that the burning problem of unemployment be taken up at the meeting in order to relieve the suffering of the jobless families, a dozen of the most militant workers were beaten up, four seriously, by thugs hired by the officialdom. The meeting ended after most of the workers had left in protest against the sluggings.

The four seriously injured are Milton Weich, Morris Fein, A. Musin and M. Walitsky.

Was Planned.

That the right wing officialdom from the alleged liberal Spector down to the fascist Hershkowitz had come prepared to prevent the taking up of anything they had not determined on beforehand was apparent at the outset by the tense atmosphere in Bryant Hall, where the meeting was held.

The meeting opened with the announcement that the order of business would be (1) report of the executive board; (2) financial report; and (3) the question of the $12 tax on the membership. The Instructions Issued To All Members Of Wkrs Party in Mass.

A statement issued yesterday by the National Election Campaign Committee, addressed to the members of the Workers (Communist) Party in Massachusetts, follows:

"All petitions in circulation in the state of Massachusetts must be returned to the district office not later than Monday, Sept. 3. All functionaries must carry out the following:

"Collect the petitions from the Party members.

"Have the signatures certified by the election officials at the city hall in your city.

"Return the list immediately by special delivery or bring the lists yourself, if you are close to Boston.

"Boston members of the Workers (Communist) Party return their lists directly to the office."

LEWIS MACHINE BETRAYS MINERS IN DYING MOVE

Agrees to Reduction Of $1.65 In Wages

Men Are Incensed

CHICAGO, Ill., Aug. 31.—With the new miners union looming as the one hope for the men in the coal fields, the Lewis-Fishwick machine, acting in the name of the wreck they have made of the former United Mine Workers of America, yesterday agreed with the coal barons to accept a contract by whose terms a reduction of $1.65 will be effected in the wages of the already impoverished miners.

Six dollars and thirty-seven cents will be the new scale for shift men and $5.85 for top men. The Jacksonville scale called for $7.50 per day.

The agreement has been reached after negotiations drawn out by the participants to six weeks' duration.

Expressions of intense resentment are reported from all sections of the Illinois fields where news of the new settlement has penetrated. Denunciation of the settlement and open scorn for the machine on the part of the miners are about equally mingled.

The settlement is believed to have given a tremendous impetus to the feeling for a new miners union among the miners in Illinois.

BREAK UP PHILA. CLOAK MEETING

Police, Sigmanites In United Front

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 30.—Working frankly as the prearranged agents of the reactionary officials of the Sigman cloakmakers' local here, police here halted a mass meeting of more than 600 cloak and dressmakers who had come to Boslower Hall at the call of the National Organization Committee to take up the question of establishing a local branch of the new Cloak and Dress Makers' Union.

The workers, thoroughly disgusted with the continued betrayals of the little local Sigmans, had decided to join in the great movement recently launched in New York for the establishment of a real union in the trade.

Thugs Demand Entry.

After the hall was well filled, about a score of right wing hirelings, led by the officials of the local, came and demanded admission to the meeting. The committeemen at the door denied them this on the grounds that only cloak and dressmakers would be admitted, the officials and any gangsters they may bring were not invited, they were told. But the police "guardians" of the meeting openly ignored the committeemen and helped the thugs force their way in.

No sooner did Chairman S. Levin open the meeting, when the small group of disturbers in one corner of the hall howled boisterously to

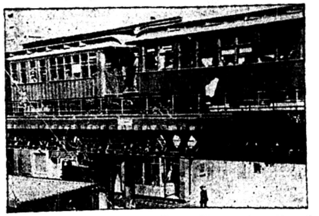
LEVINE PRACTICES HOP.

LONDON, Aug. 31 (UP).—Chas. A. Levine flew his trans-Atlantic plane Queen of the Air from Croydon Field toward Brussels today to arrange for a flight across the ocean from there.

A party of six was in the plane, including Bert Acosta and Miss Mabel Boll.

Swaying "L" Imperils Thousands



A worker declared that according to his own observations the Ninth Avenue L between Tenth and Charles Streets, sways from five to ten inches every time a train passes. He made this statment at the Board of Transportation offices at 49 Lafayette St. The official to whom Willing spoke is quoted as saying, "We can do nothing about it. If you really want you might write a letter to the Transit Commission. Maybe they'll send men to examine the structure."

JAIL 5 MINERS FOR AIDING IN NEW UNION

WASHINGTON, August 31.—Five miners received sentences ranging from four to eight months in prison for participating in the new miners' movement, as was brazenly admitted by Judge Erwin Cummins yesterday when he fumed that the movement "is part of the Communistic scheme to steal union organizations and make them communistic."

The four defendants were the victims of a frame-up in which they were accused of beating up a scab who worked in a non-union coal company that had been struck by the new union forces.

Despite the violent hatred shown by the capitalistic judges in the numerous arrests, in which it was clearly seen that they are doing the bidding of John L. Lewis and the mine operators, the movement for the establishment of the new union is gathering headway. The new mine union convention is scheduled for September 9, in Pittsburgh.

PUSH PLANS FOR TEXTILE PARADE

"Conciliation" Faker to Aid Batty

(Special to the Daily Worker)

NEW BEDFORD, Mass., Aug. 31.—With a final spurt, of activity the strike committee of the Textile Workers Union leading the huge textile strike here put the finishing touches on their preparations for the big parade on Labor Day.

Many local fraternal organization sent in requests for permission to participate in the parade of the strikers. These organizations include; The Cape Verdean Suciadade, Santo Cristo, Suciadade Catolica, Progressive Club, Susiadade Continental and Monte Pio. Textile Mill Committee units of Providence, Taunton, Pawtucket and others intend to send delegations. The Fall River strike committe voted last night to send delegation.

The lines of march have already been announced. The start will be from the Hope St. Lot, and the South Saulniers Lot. The parade will then converge in a march to the Commons where a monster mass meeting will be held. Three bands already been secured, with others optional.

POLICE BREAK UP ELECTION MEETS

Workers Party Scores Terror

Evidently acting on the instructions of the coal operators who control the politicians of the democratic and republican parties in the anthracite region of Pennsylvania, Chief of Police Taylor of Wilkes Barre, broke up a meeting of workers called to endorse the candidacies of William Z. Foster and Benjamin Gitlow, presidential and vice-presidential nominees, respectively, of the Workers (Communist) Party, on the afternoon of Aug. 26.

In a statement issued by Emil Gardos, in behalf of the Anthracite sub-district, the police chief and Mayor Hart of Wilkes Barre are taken to task for their action and charged with resorting to every means to destroy the workers' organizations.

The statement follows:

The Subdistrict Executive Committee of the Workers (Communist) Party of America, protests most vigorously against the breaking up of the Conference called to endorse William Z. Foster and Benjamin Gitlow, the standard bearers of the Party during the November elec-

CLERICALS FLOCK TO REV. THOMAS

Ministers Committee Aids Reformists

The pink and bourgeois tone of the socialist party, and its conservative appeal, becomes glaringly evident by the formation of a Ministers Committee for Thomas and Maurer, socialist candidates for president and vice-president, respectively. The committee was formed under the impetus of Harry W. Laidler, with the aid of some ministerial and bishopric adherents.

The appeal sent out by the Ministers Committee reveals on black and white the weakness of the socialist forces, which cater for clerical help for lack of workers' support and the absolute and unconditional negation of the principles of the class struggle.

The ministers appeal to the "religious people of the country" to support the socialist party candidates who represent the "intellectual and moral forces in politics."

NO BAN AGAINST WAR, INVASIONS BY IMPERIALISTS

Powers to "Use Pact Itself As Imperialist Instrument"

Scores "Reservations"

Editor's Note: The following despatch transmitted from Moscow by the United Press is received at the moment this edition goes to press. As previously made clear by the Daily Worker, the plans of the imperialist powers in respect to the Kellogg Pact are directed against the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics, and to cover up the growing antagonisms between the capitalist powers and their plans for war. The failure to invite the Soviet Union to participate in the negotiations previous to the signing was a demonstration of this fact. The dispatch indicates that the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics in its struggle against the coming imperialist war will utilize the signing of the Pact to demonstrate to the masses of the world the hypocrisy of the imperialist powers. The future will show that the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics is the only power in the world today which in reality struggles against war.

By EUGENE LYONS.
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

MOSCOW, Aug. 31 (U. P.)—The Soviet Union today agreed to sign the Briand-Kellogg Treaty to outlaw war.

The decision of Moscow had been looked forward to with some apprehension, and fears of European statesmen were not groundless. In a note accompanying the andherence of Russia to the pact, Soviet authorities voiced scathing criticism of the antiwar declaration and of reservations which England, France and other powers insisted upon before they would sign.

It had been freely admitted by certain diplomats that the treaty would not be successful unless the Soviet Union adhered. While today's decision may alleviate fear that the peace pact would not be successfully concluded, the citicism virtually is certain to cause wide comment.

Russia, frustrated in her desire to be an original signatory, was invited to adhere a few hours after the signing of the treaty in Paris. France advanced the invitation.

In the note accompanying the acceptance, Litvinoff, assistant commisar of Foreign Affairs, recounted the Soviet efforts in behalf of disarmament at Geneva and also in a series of bilateral treaties outlawing war.

Therefore, the note said, it is strange that the Soviet government was not invited to participate in the preliminary negotiations for the Briand-Kellog treaty. Litvinoff regrets the absence in the pact of any disarmament obligations and protest the indefiniteness and ambiguousness of the first clause of the treaty, which permits participants to make arbitrary interpretations.

Litvinoff remarks that [illegible] clause falls to mention inform [illegible] wars such as "interventio [illegible] blockade, military occupatio [illegible] of foreign territory, or forei [illegible] ports."

The Soviet Foreign Minister sited previous interventions in Russia and the present state of affairs in China in support [illegible] this contentions.

The Soviet note especially attacked the British reservations concerning freedom of action toward certain regions. It said that if such reserva-

LAUNCH NEW "DAILY" SUBSCRIPTION DRIVE

Central Committee Workers (Communist) Party Urges Support of Campaign

Today, September 1, the anniversary of the founding of the Communist party of America, begins the drive for securing thousands of new readers for the fighting revolutionary daily organ of our Party—The Daily Worker. This is an appropriate chice of the day when to begin a new and vigorous effort to make our Party Central Organ the revolutionary mass paper circulation that it ought to have. The Daily Workers is not only revolutionary working class newspaper published daily in the English language, it is the builder of the Workers (Communist) Party of America and the press organ of leadership of the workers in every conflict. The Daily Worker holds always before the eyes of the working class the revolutionary goal of the working cla[illegible] movement, the historical role of [illegible] working class as the revolutionary class and the indispensable leadership of the Workers (Communist) Party, the American section of the Communist International.

In every dispute between the employing classes and the workers the on the side of labor. In the great strike of the bituminous miners the Daily Workers has shown itself the defender of the battling coal diggers, voicing their aims and sounding their slogans. In the textile strike of New Bedford, where 28,000 mill workers have been defending their already low standards of living for several months, the Daily Worker alone of all the dailies printed in the English language stands by the strikers and wages an incessant fight against the textile barons.

In this election campaign, while the capitalist press are glutted with columns of anti-labor, capitalist

JINGOES GETTING NERVOUS DUE TO Y. W. L. ACTIVITY

Prosecution Attempts Fail Again

By PAUL CROUCH

The military authorities are desperate. They have spent millions to lure young workers into the "Citizen's Military Training Camps". The capitalist press has been mobilized in the service of capitalist militarism. The campaign was successful. Thousands of young workers were deceived by the promise of a "vacation", and the attraction of the uniform. They came to the camps like sheep, blissfully ignorant that they were to be trained to murder other workers for the profits of their own masters. Yet the angry outbursts of the military authorities are not the cries of victory. What has happened?

Medal for Jingo Essay.

At Fort Hancock, New York, a medal has been offered for the best essay on how to combat Communist propaganda. Officers there and at many other camps have devoted long lectures in their efforts to deceive the young workers, and to build up a jingo spirit in their desperate attempt to fight the revolutionary message of working-class solidarity being brought to the armed forces by the Young Workers Communist League.

The offer of prizes for ways to combat Communism will be without success. All the medals of the capitalist state cannot produce any essay telling how to stop the spread of Communism in the armed forces.

The very fact that the war department, with its millions of dollars, huge printing presses and thousands of "chaplains" and other propagandists, is frightened by mimeographed camp papers and the activities of a very small but militant group of young workers is of the greatest significance.

Prosecution of Y. W. L.

An investigation is being conducted by the military "intelligence" service of the army, and the department of justice has announced that it will propose special laws against the anti-militarist work of the young Communists. John Porter has been sent to Fort Leavenworth, Kansas, with the purpose of separating him from the Communists in New York and to subject him to the brutal tyranny of Col. William (Wild Bill) Morrow, the present commandant, who was in command of Alcatrez when Walter Trumbull and the writer were imprisoned there.

League Members Defy Army.

The military authorities are well aware of the fact that there is no federal law under which they can interfere with the anti-militarist work of the Young Workers (Communist) League. At Camp Devens, Mass., League members told the officers that "we have a right to distribute papers to the soldiers and we will continue to do so". At the National Guard Camp, near Chicago, 17 league members were arrested and the capitalist press began premature rejoicing at the "prosecution" of the young Communists, but the authorities had to release the League members without trial.

Will Intensify Efforts.

Whether threats or actual terror is used by the army czars, the Young Workers (Communist) League will continue its struggle against capitalist militarism. The desperation of the war department when anti-militarist work in this country is just beginning is another evidence that class consciousness in the armed forces is a fatal blow to imperialism. While the government gives military training to young workers, we will expose the nature of these preparations and call on the youth to use its military knowledge in the interest of the working class against the bosses. The Young Workers (Communist) League will continue to point out the way to unity of civilian and soldier workers in their common struggles.

No amount of medals can produce an essay telling of any method to stop Communism in the armed forces—for it is an impossible task.

NEW YORK WORKERS AID MINERS WITH RELIEF COLLECTION IN SHOPS

The Executive Committee of the Shop Delegate Conference for Miners Relief at its last meeting made extensive plans for activities among the workers in shops and factories on behalf of the striking miners and their families. An educational campaign will be carried on for the organization of shop committees. Mass meetings are being arranged to be held in all parts of the city, to acquaint the workers everywhere with the struggle of the miners, with the Lewis betrayals, with the efforts to build a strong, powerful, new Miners Union that will be a mighty weapon in the hands of the 800,000 miners, and the workers in all other industries.

Many shop collections are being made weekly by the delegates who attended the shop delegate conference in July. In an unorganized shoe factory $10 was collected. About two months ago in the same factory collections of $100 were made by a group of active workers.

Among the shops where substantial collections are being made weekly are, the Majesty Dress Shop, The Mitchell Shop, The Carnegie Shop, Greenberg Brothers, Liebman and Horowitz. The Phoenix Pleating Shop. The workers of Nat Levine turned in fro mone collection $22.50. At the Duncan & Bradkin Dress Shop $7.25 was collected; at the Potholz Bros., $9.50. The millinery workers are going over the top. In the Advance Hat Co., and in the Sally Hat Co. shop committees are functioning and a weekly tax is collected. There have also been collections made at the Mindheim Hat Co., $4.20; Frank Katz Hat Co., $32; Marvin Hat Co., $7.

Sonia Margolies, delegate to the conference from the G. & G. Dress Shop, reported that at every shop meeting the question of Miners Relief is placed on the order of business, with reports and discussion on how best to help the miners in their struggle to build a powerful union.

Recruits Tell Army Officers to Stay Out Of the Mess Halls

Through the columns of the "Camp Holiday Rebel," recruits at the Citizen's Military Training Camps protest against the practice of officers coming in during meal times and forcing them to stop eating and come to attention.

The article declares:

"It is not enough that we are getting long daily drills instead of that vacation we were promised when we first joined the C. M. T. C. We are not even allowed to eat in peace the meager lunch given to us. Often officers make a practice of walking into the mess hall while we are having our lunch. Of course, according to the strict disciplinary rules of the camp, everyone must immediately come to attention. So at times you nearly choke yourself swallowing the food in your mouth.

"Why don't the officers let us alone when we are not drilling? Can't we even eat our meals, rotten as they are, in peace? If anyone wants to come to the mess hall while we are eating, let him do so, but it must not interfere with our lunch, and not one of us must come to attention. If the officers do not like that, let them keep out of the hall while we are there."

drown out the chairman's voice.

After this continued for several minutes, and just as it was becoming apparent to the hundreds assembled that the disturbers would be silenced by the conductors of the meeting, a detective stalked over to the speakers platform and ordered Chairman Levin to close the meeting. Despite Levin's protests that a permit had been obtained for the meeting and that he is certain of being able to conduct an orderly meeting, the detective, who by this time had been reinforced by a whole squad of police, mounted the platform and ordered the assemblage to disperse.

Announcements made later by the leaders of the National Organization Committee declared that another mass meeting will be arranged early next week, in spite of any of the gangster and police assistance the Sigman machine here may rally.

The speakers of the N. O. C. who came to the Philadelphia meeting were Joseph Borachovich, Rose Wortis, B. Kaplan and S. Levin.

MARINES SCORE USE BY WALL ST.

"Risky" to Fight For Rights, Says Sailor

American marines not only protest against being sent to Nicaragua to fight for Wall Street's interests, but many of them discuss the idea of group desertions to Sandino's army, according to a letter from a sailor whose ship carried the U. S forces to Nicaragua.

The sailor also declares that the servicemen are dissatisfied with their conditions and treatment and have "short talks" on the matter. However, he says "it is pretty risky and it's not done often. But they have their talks now and then."

The letter, in part, follows:

"They (the marines) didn't seem to like the idea of going down there to fight, and there was talk on the ship about a bunch of them deserting and joining Sandino. . . .

"The sailors are dissatisfied with the regulations, also with the food and the way it is put out. They have short talks, but as yuo know yourself, it's pretty risky and it's not done often. But they have their talks now and then."

35 Students of Pocono College to Leave For Soviet Union Tomorrow

Thirty-five students of the Pocono People's College, Henryville, Pa., have been invited by the Russian Commissariat of Education to visit Russian educational institutions this fall. They will sail on the S. S. Amsterdam tomorrow, according to a statement made yesterday by George Wise of the American-European Travel Bureau, 100 Fifth Ave. The party will be headed by Dr. S. A. Mathiason, president of the college.

In addition to visiting Russia the party will tour France, Germany, Denmark, Sweden and Norway. The party will return to New York December 1.

BLAME OBREGON'S DEATH ON CHURCH

Called Aid to U. S. Imperialism

"The Catholic Church has just committed one of its greatest crimes when they caused a poor, fanatical 23-year-old boy to kill General Alvaro Obregon," writes Salvador De la Plaza, in the current issue of the Labor Defender.

The writer, who is secretary of the Continental Commitee of the All-America Anti-Imperialist League in Mexico City, in the same article, just published, traces the role of the church in Mexico since its loss of power after the fall of Porfirio Diaz in 1910.

"It armed the assassin's hand of Victoriano Huerta against Madero in 1913, and in the very legation of the United States it planned the crime with Mr. Wilson, the then minister of Mexico, De La Plaza charges.

"During the eighteen years of civil war, at times with British imperialism, at others with the American, and always with the help of, and aiding the Spanish capitalists, it used the fanaticism of the peasants and raised the standard of 'Cristo Rey" to incite the basest passions; to steep in blood and crush the struggle of the proletariat for its emancipation."

The author analyzes the new role of the church today, subservient to American financiers and the fight against both by the Mexican workers, led by the growing Communist Party of Mexico.

The article is illustrated by a photograph of the welcome given by armed Mexican workers in the Vera Cruz district to Socrates Sandino, brother of the Nicaraguan rebel leader, who has recently arrived in Mexico. Among the welcoming group of armed peasants is Epigmenio Guzman, Communist mayor of Villa Cardel, and Gustavo Machado, recently returned from Sandino's camp.

latter proposal is a ukase from the officialdom which tried to choke off protests of the unemployed by saying that $2 of the $12 will be "donated" to the unemployed, the other $10 going toward the campaign of wrecking the union's progressive locals. The mobilization of underworld forces for the meeting was made in preparation of the protests from the membership against this measure.

Motion Ditched.

A motion made by a member that the unemployment question be taken up immediately after the executive report was counted out by the "special tellers" borrowed from the gangster club of Local 1, who were there under the leadership of Herschkowitz, Zaritsky's adjutant-general. The original agenda was then railroaded through.

When the minutes had been read, a report of finances was made in which it was declared that a loan made to the Sigman cloakmakers' company union by Local 24 officials was not yet paid. The officials then remarked that due to the "sick condition" of the Sigman union the loan be extended. At this workers from the floor protested, terming Sigman's scab union as "dead" and not "sick."

Greek Workers Center Opening Is Postponed Until Next Saturday

The Greek Progressive Workers Center, which was originally scheduled to be opened to the workers this Saturday, has been postponed a week until Saturday, September 8. With the postponement of the opening, comes the news that the Dinner and Dance will also be held on the later date.

The Greek Progressive Workers Center, being in the heart of the fur and millinery workers section of the city, at 101 West 28th St., will be a haven for rest and educational activity for the exploited workers of the district. All workers have been invited by the management committee to spend their spare hours in the center. Games have been procured, chess, billiards, etc, to keep the workers busy in their moments between work and after lunch.

Besides these games, activities of cultural, dramatic, educational, and recreational pursuits will be installed as permanent features of the center as soon as its completion is announced.

New Figure-Head For Austrian President

VIENNA, August 30.—To fill the figure-head post of President of Austria, Professor Clemens Pirquet, noted physician, has been nominated to succeed Michael Hainisch, whose term expires at the end of November. The other candidate proposed is Professor E. Wettstein, a noted botanist.

No political leader is permitted to hold the presidency under the Austrian law, and his chief duty seems to be not to meddle in state affairs and act as chief receiver of notabilities for the government.

SEES SLAVERY FOR LIBERIA IN FIRESTONE DEAL

Hoover Charged As Accompiice

WILLIAMSTOWN, Mass., Aug. 30.—Sharply disagreeing with Dr. Thomas Jesse Jones, Negro apologist for the Firestone Liberian deal and educational director of the Phelps-Stokes Fund, Dr. Raymond Buell, white research director of the Foreign Policy Association and specialist in African problems, severely criticized Herbert Hoover, former Secretary of Commerce, and the State Department at the Institute of Politics today for their active role in procuring the rubber concession in Liberia for Firestone.

While the colored educational director of the Phelps-Stokes fund in his attempt yesterday to whitewash the State Department and Firestone, lauded the deal as a civilized and humane action which would provide the Liberians with all the "benefits" of modern civilization, Dr. Buell saw in the plan a vicious exploitation of the Negroes of Liberia, who would be forced into virtual slavery, akin to that which existed in this country prior to the Civil War, in order to promote the interests of an American tire manufacturer, who is supported by the American government.

U. S. Domination.

Dr. Buell also pointed out that the whole plan was made contingent upon the acceptance of a $5,000,000 loan by the Liberian government and the subsequent control of all its finances and revenues by a United States commission. Further, Dr. Buell pointed out that this loan was made by a dummy finance company known as the "Finance Corporation of America," which in reality was Mr. Firestone himself.

"Neither the American Congress nor the American people knew anything about these transactions, which sooner or later may make Liberia another Haiti or Nicaragua. It is difficult to find in the history of international relations a bettor example of secret diplomacy in the worst sense of the word."

Bukharin's Speech in Reply to Discussion on the International Situation

The Positive and Negative Sides of the Discussion

Comrades, the discussion that took place here was a remarkable one in many respects. In the first place there is the large number of comrades who took part in it. There were nearly 90 speakers. Never has there been so large a number of speakers on any one subject at previous Congresses. Particular mention should be made of the speeches delivered by our Negro comrades, by the delegates from Oriental countries and colonial countries generally, and especially of the speeches delivered by our Chinese comrades. It is important also to note the active part that was taken in the discussion by Communists from the South American countries, for this is the first time since the Communist International was established that we have had so many representatives of these countries present. Reference should be made also to the speeches delivered by numerous comrades from small parties, to which we sometimes devote too little attention.

Taking the discussion as a whole I must say that it was of enormous positive significance. I would like to point out the characteristic positive sides of the discussion.

First of all, I want to mention the criticism and self-criticism that was displayed. Our theses, my speech, the work of the Communist International and of the various parties, were all subjected to criticism.

The stream of self-criticism that flowed through the whole of the discussion is particularly to be welcomed. Another positive side of the discussion was that the representatives of nearly every Party took part in it. A particularly pleasing feature, I repeat, is that representatives of "new" parties in the colonies, in South American countries, etc., participated.

Many of the remarks that were uttered in the course of the discussion were undoubtedly correct. These remarks must be embodied in one way or another in the decisions to be passed by the Congress as well as in the future work of the Comintern. It is true that in the main these remarks were concerned not with questions of principle, but with secondary questions; nevertheless, extremely important problems were touched upon. Among these I include the points made on the peasant questions, the references to the need for more attention being devoted to the unemployed problem that were made in the course of the discussion of our analysis of the present period of capitalist development. A number of speakers also referred to the question of colonial work, the Negro question, and also to the day to day practical work of the various parties and of the Executive Committee of the Communist International. Special mention must be made of the comments made on the organizational shortcomings of our apparatus.

But there is also a negative side to the discussion to which I must refer. In this I include the rather narrow limits to which much of the discussion was confined. The majority of comrades who spoke here almost exclusively dealt with their own countries and not with the fundamental problems of the movement that arise from the present situation. Of course, I do not object to the various delegations analyzing and discussing the questions that directly concern them. On the contrary, I think this is desirable because it facilitates an exchange of experiences, and, as it were, the collectivisation of our experiences. Without such an exchange of experience the work of the Communist International and of its Congresses would be impossible. On the other hand I think that the failure of many speakers to deal with fundamental questions was a drawback in the discussion.

I will not dwell on the verbal skirmishes that took place here, but will merely recall the words of Heine: "This is not a knightly bout for the hearts of ladies fair; tis but a wordy war twixt Capucian monks and their foes,—the Rabbis" (Laughter). And I do not think it is necessary to deal in detail with this monk and rabbi contest.

II. The Stabilization of Capitalism and the Controversy over the "Third Period."

The Fifth Congress of the Comintern and the Question of Stabilization

Comrades, I will first of all deal with the fundamental problem, the problem of the stabilization of capitalism and with the question around which the controversy centered most, namely, the question of the so-called period.

As you know, the term "stabilization" did not appear in the discussion at the Fifth Congress of the Comintern. What happened at the Fifth Congress, and what estimate did we make then of the economic and political situation? In the theses passed on the world economic situation the Fifth Congress first of all took note of the collapse of world economy; the theses speak directly of the collapse of world economy, of the chaos in the currency and of the crisis of European economy. At that time we said that European economy was moving in a vicious circle and was unable to extricate itself from its state of crisis. We also pointed to the world agrarian crisis. The Comintern at that time emphasized that the bourgeoisie was incapable of removing the chaos in the currency, etc.

On the report of Comrade Zinoviev the Fifth Congress passed a resolution on tactics. What was the essential feature of the analysis of the political situation contained in that resolution? The principal point stressed in that resolution was the existence of a "pacifist-democratic era."

Thus, as a result of the analysis we made of the situation at that time we declared that world economy was in a state of collapse, that European economy was in a state of permanent crisis; and the political superstructure of that analysis was the "era of democratic pacifism." This era, as you know, was reflected by the "Labor Government" in England, the victory of the "Left Bloc" in France, the "Labor Government" in Denmark, and the various coalition tendencies in other countries. Such was the general situation at that time, and such was the estimate made of it by the Fifth World Congress. Not a word was said about stabilization. The word "stabilization" was first uttered in our midst only in 1925.

At the Fifth Congress, I repeat, and thrice stress it, in order to mark the change in the whole situation, there was as yet no talk of stabilization. Why do I stress this point so much? In order that we shall take special note of it so that we may clearly understand the changes that have taken place in the objective situation since the Fifth Congress. This is precisely why in the first part of our theses we advanced the postulate of the third period. The postulate on the three periods was discussed by the delegation of the Communist Party of the S. U. and there it was amended to make it more precise. Of course, the fact that the situation since the Fifth Congress has been divided into three periods by the delegation of the Communist Party of the Soviet Union is not in itself a logical proof that this division is correct. We must substantiate it by sound arguments.

Why It Is Incorrect to Deny the Existence of a Third Period

The part of the thesis which deals with this point reads as follows:

"1. After the first period of the World Imeprialist War, the international labor movement passed through a series of historical phases of the general crisis of the capitalist system.

"The first period was the period of direct revolutionary actions of the proletariat, the highest point of development of which was reached in 1921. This period culminated in the victory of the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics over the forces of foreign intervention and over the internal counter-revolution, with the consolidation of the proletarian dictatorship and the organization of the Communist International on the one hand and with a series of severe defeats suffered by the Western European proletariat on the other. The final link in the chain of events in this period was the defeat of the German proletariat in 1923. This defeat was the starting point of the second period, a period of gradual and partial stabilization of the capitalist system, of the process of the 'restoration' of capitalist economy, of the general capitalist offensive and of defensive battles fought by the proletarian army weakened by severe defeats. On the other hand, this period was a period of rapid restoration in the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics and of extremely important successes in the work of building up Socialism. Finally came the third period which, in the main, was the period in which capitalist economy exceeded the pre-war level and in which also the economy of the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics almost exceeded the pre-war level (the beginning of the so-called 'reconstruction period,' the further growth of the Socialist forms of economy on the basis of a new technique). For the capitalist system, this was the period of rapid development of technique, accelerated growth of cartels and trusts, of tendencies towards state capitalism and at the same time a period of intense development of the contradictions of world capitalism operating in forms determined by the whole of the preceding process of the crisis of capitalism (contraction of markets, the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics colonial movements, growth in the internal contradictions of imperialism). This third period, in which the contradiction between the growth of the forces of production and the contraction of markets becomes accentuated with particular force, will inevitably give rise to a fresh series of imperialist wars: between the imperialist States themselves, wars of the imperialist States against the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics, wars of national liberation against imperialism and imperialist intervention and to gigantic class battles. As a result of the accentuation of all the International antagonisms (antagonisms between the capitalist States and the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics, the military occupation of Northern China — which is the beginning of the partition of China and of the mutual struggle between the imperialists, etc.); as a result of the accentuation of the internal antagonisms in capitalist countries (the swing to the Left of the masses of the working class, growing acuteness of the class struggle), and as a result of the outburst of colonial movements (China, India and Egypt), this period will inevitably lead,—through the further development of the contradictions of capitalist stabilization, to the further shattering of capitalist stabilization, and to the severe accentuation of the general crisis of capitalism."

Those who are opposed to dividing the whole period into three periods assert that the second period in no way differs from the third; therefore there is no reason whatever for making a distinction between the second and third periods and therefore the third period is superfluous.

But suppose we assume for the sake of argument that there is no difference, how then are we to explain the fact that world economy has exceeded the pre-war level? In my opinion this is a very important fact. Why? Permit me to explain this in as simple a manner as possible. The importance of the fact just stated lies in that it reveals the dynamics of the development. Before the pre-war level was exceeded we had reason for assuming that the growth of the productive forces in this country or that, was due to accidental causes, that this growth was not typical and was not the characteristic feature of the given period. But as world economy, or rather the capitalist sector of world economy has gone beyond the pre-war level and is developing a new basis we must adopt a more cautious estimate of the situation and very materially modify our previous estimate. We are not so blind as not to see such material facts and pass them by.

Thus, there is no mistaking the fact that a difference exists. This difference is both technical and economic. We cannot ignore it.

It has been said that there is no difference between the second and the third periods. But if that is the case then I ask, why have we modified our estimate of the general situation? Not because we are cleverer than we were, but because the situation has changed. In the beginning of the process we had rudimentary manifestations of stabilization and we had very serious grounds for believing that these were only of a casual character. Now we have no grounds for believing that. The situation has become much clearer; the facts speak much more eloquently. That is why we have modified our estimate of the situation.

A number of comrades denied that there was any difference between the two periods but in the very next breath they said that contradictions had become very much more acute. But why have these contradictions become more acute? Did they become more acute suddenly, like a bolt from the blue? These two points of view cannot be harmonized. One cannot say: "there is no change in the situation" and at the same time admit that contradictions have become more acute; for, these contradictions must have some basis. It has been said: no change has taken place in the situation; but a new war is going on in China. Is that a trifle? We in the simplicity of our hearts thought it was a fundamental feature of the world political situation. If we are so blind as not to see these "trifles," then our pretensions to leadership are not worth a brass farthing. What sort of a leader can he be who fails to see the change in the situation and for whom it is a matter of indifference whether the economy of Europe has sunk to the lowest depths or is making rapid progress: whether there is war in China or not; whether the imperialists are preparing to attack the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics or not, etc., etc. If we are unable to see these new facts then we are finished. In that case our new tactical line (in England, France, etc.) is inexplicable. If we are still marking time in the old place then the new tactical line is superfluous.

I have quoted the strongest argument that was advanced against the third period. But other less categorical arguments were put forward such as: the third period does not exist, but still, we must say something about it. I want very conscientiously and precisely to analyze this "argument."

I will first of all reply to Comrade Kostrjeva,, of the Polish delegation who in her speech said:

"Reference is made to three periods, into which the post-war period is supposed to be divided. But we consider that the line of demarcation that is drawn between the second and the third period is not the line of technical progress, because the latter was the condition precedent to the restoration of post-war capitalist development. What is the characteristic feature of the third period? The most characteristic feature is that the contradictions which accumulated in the course of the stabilization process due to the great development of the productive forces are now coming to the surface and are shattering the whole system of capitalist society."

I must confess frankly that I do not understand the logic of this reasoning. Not technical development, but contradictions! But where do these contradictions come from? Comrade Kostrjeva says that they are due to the "great development of the productive forces". But I ask comrade Kostrjeva, is a "great development of the productive forces" possible without technical progress? Hitherto I, like a good many other comrades, together with Marx, thought that the productive forces were the sum of instruments of production and labour power. That is why the "growth of productive forces" cannot be separated from "technical progress". This would be absolutely incorrect theoretically. To postulate a great growth of productive forces in the present period, and at the same time to deny the great growth in technique in the same period; to insist that contradictions have become ever so much more acute as a result of the changes that have taken place in the productive forces and at the same time to throw away this very criterion reveals that something is wrong from the point of view of even elementary logic.

The second speaker who dealt with this question was Comrade Strakhov (China). He said: "we do not understand this question and therefore we believe that there is no third period. But we are in favour of having this period mentioned in the "Thesis".

Modesty is certainly a virtue, and certain Communists should strive to cultivate it. Wth that I can fully agree. But, comrades, I cannot agree that this is a sound argument. When Comrade Straghov said that there is no difference between the second and third periods someone in the hall shouted "hear, hear". I do not know whose voice it was but whoever it was he displays a capacity for logic that is, to say the least, peculiar. While there is a close connection between the development of productive forces and the development of technique there does not always seem to be a similar connection between logic and vocal capacity.

At the end of his speech Comrade Straghov said that the third period should after all remain in the Theses. But if there is no difference whatever between the second and the third periods, then dear comrade Straghov, why put it in the Theses? Do you merely want to waste paper? It is certainly not sound logic to say there is really no third period, but we ought to talk about it in the Thesis. I agree that sometimes we put in Theses things that do not exist, but none of us will believe that such Theses represent the acme of tactical wisdom. If there is no third period then it is better to leave it out of the Thesis. But since you propose to leave it in the Thesis it shows that your conscience is not clear, you have a feeling that this unfortunate third period is of some use after all. Certainly it is of some use; it will help us to lay down correct tactics.

What is the meaning of the third period? What is the meaning of "these philosophies"? The meaning is that by taking note of a third period we emphasise that the stabilisation of capitalism cannot disappear from world economy in the course of a single day. And this must be emphasised. It is precisely on these grounds that our delegation supports the postulate of the third period.

WORKERS' RULE IN MINES OF U.S.S.R.

WORKERS' CONTROL IN THE RUSSIAN MINING INDUSTRY. By John Strachey, with a foreword by A. J. Cook. The New Leader, London. 48 pages.

Reviewed By ANNA ROCHESTER

JOHN STRACHEY went to the Soviet Union last winter at the invitation of the Russian Miners' Union and spent two months in the [illegible] coalfields. He had been editor of The Miner, the paper of the Miners' Federation of Great Britain, and he was well aware of the chaos, unemployment, brutality and betrayal of which British, American and German miners have been the victims.

Strachey's report takes up the points most immediately affecting the everyday life of the miner. But by way of introduction he gives certain "key" figures for the Russian coal industry as a whole.

The total annual output for the fiscal year 1926-27 surpassed the output in 1913 by 2,500,000 tons, and Gosplan estimates that in the current year it will rise another 4,500,000 tons. Strachey pictures the demoralization of the coal industry during the civil war, and the malicious destruction of the Don mines during the German occupation of the Ukraine. In 1920 the Soviets secured control of the Don coalfield—the principal coalfield in European Russia—and that year (October 1920 to October 1921) the total tonnage produced by the coal industry of the Soviet Union was less than 8,000,000 tons. This year it will exceed 35,000,000 tons.

The ouput per man shift has been rising—in spite of the sabotage of technicians which was revealed after Strachey had left Russia and to which he does not refer. Thanks to mechanization and reorganization of the industry—and again in spite of criminal sabotage—the cost of producing coal has been steadily falling while wages have been rising.

How the coal industry is coordinated with other fuel industries and with the national economy as a whole is briefly described. The Coal Trusts carry on the actual administration of the mines and are responsible for measuring up to production standards and labor standards set by the central government in Moscow, with participation of men representing the Miners' Union. No reader of The Daily Worker needs to be reminded that these trusts bear no resemblance to the Coal Syndicate of the German Ruhr or to the various trusts which are increasing their holdings in the coal industry of the United States. They have no private shareholders, and no power to appoint officials unsatisfactory to the Miners' Union.

Wages for mine workers Strachey compares with British wage levels and finds the relatively small cash wage per day or per ton, in the Soviet Union, made up for by the free housing which is fairly general in the coal fields, and by other points which he enumerates as follows:

"1. The miners get about 1½ tons of free coal a month. 2. Every miner receives two weeks' holiday with full pay a year. For most underground workers the holiday period has been extended to a month. . . . 3. On discharge a worker receives from two to six weeks' pay, according to the reason of his discharge. 4. Working clothes (usually, I found, made of a sort of fine canvas) are provided free for all miners. For 'bad places,' i.e., wet seams, etc., special oilskins are provided, while in all cases boots and a warm-wadded jacket and a cap are included in the outfit. Furthermore, "the Russian miners, in common with other Russian workers, are insured both against unemployment and sickness, accident and death."

Strachey does not attempt such a comparison of present wages with pre-war wages as, for example, Paul Douglas gives in the Soviet Union in the Second Decade. But A. J. Cook, in his foreword, points out: "While the conditions of the British miners have become very much worse since 1913-1914 and get worse every day, the hours becoming longer and the wages lower, the conditions of the Russian miners have improved, hours have been reduced and things get steadily better."

Strachey emphasizes the fact that Russian miners underground work only six hours from bank to bank. This is in accordance with the standard set by the Labor Code of the Soviet Union. But a limited overtime is permitted underground. According to Strachey this brought the hours up to an 8-hour shift for certain underground repair men and timberers, but this does not agree with the testimony of Douglas and other investigators nor with the standards set by the Labor Code.

Enemies of the Soviet Union like to state that industrial accidents have greatly increased since the revolution. Strachey points out the distinction between "slight" accidents which have increased according to the registered figures—but which were commonly not reported under the old regime—and "serious" and "fatal" accidents which in the coal industry have decreased by 75 per cent and by nearly 50 per cent respectively.

The trade union structure, which Strachey outlines clearly, leads up from the mine local to the Central Executive Committee in Moscow. Strachey writes enthusiastically of the functioning of the union with its local conflict committees, its mines production conferences, and its technical specialists who along with rank and file representatives sit on the central boards in Moscow. Not himself a Communist, Strachey sees in the various phases of trade union life in the Soviet Union opportunity for every worker to find development, self-expression, and a satisfying share of social responsibility.

One important fact Strachey fails to emphasize. No union, however thoroughly organized, militant in struggle and honestly led, could secure for the rank and file workers in a capitalist state such protection and such responsibility as belong to the workers in the Soviet Union. The importance of the workers' state as the decisive factor in the picture of workers' control is much too light sketched. Even the strongest kind of miners' union would find itself powerless to achieve under the United States of Morgan, Mellon, DuPont, Rockefeller, Insull, et al., workers' control of the workshop, as Strachey describes it. But it is also true—and this is far more important—that for miners and workers in other basic industries strong class-conscious unions are a necessary first step toward such workers' control. Without their aggressive support of the revolutionary state power of the working class, the status actually achieved in the Soviet Union will remain for us merely an idle dream.

The Legion in Harlem Parade

BY CYRIL BRIGGS.

To the sound of three brass bands and the flaunting of red, green and black flags, the African Legion last Sunday noon clanked through the streets of Colored Harlem. Legionnaires in red striped black uniforms were supported by detachments of Black Cross nurses, Boy Scouts, U. N. I. A. Choirs, bands playing, flags flying, gold braided officers shouting orders from flying automobiles.

The Legion had mobilized and it looked bad for someone. And what was that they carried? A picture substitute for an effigy? A picture of Al Smith, favorite son of the democratic party. The democratic party, traditional and relentless foe of the Negro workers of America.

There it was, mounted on an automobile.

A huge painting of Smith.

What will the African Legionnaires do with it? This picture of a tool of imperialism, this picture of the nominee of the deadly enemy of the Negro workers. What do the Legionnaires intend doing with it? What treatment does an enemy of the Negro masses deserve? But what is this? What mockery, what bitter jest, what base betrayal is this? What means the sign "Vote for Smith"?

Is this the way the African Legion wages war for a free Africa, by serving as the puppets of the democratic party which outraged black Haiti and turned that country, torn and bleeding, over to the republican party which finished the job? Is this the way to Negro liberation? Shame! Shame!

To such depths has the Universal Negro Improvement Association sunk as the result of the Negro misleaders at its head!

Bands playing. Flags flying, but no masses cheering. Even the sidewalks were almost empty as the Negro workers remained indoors, grimly aloof from this treacherous demonstration for an enemy of the Negro masses.

Red Planet

By EDWIN ROLFE

Red planet, hanging low over metal-tinted walls:
Move a bit in the sky so the color-starved masses may see you,
Leap, suddenly, from a bleak year into the next;
Red planet, over the gray walls built of the burnt ashes of blood.

There are a thousand such walls, red planet, on the earth,
Built by fat ants who fear the dazzling message of your color.

I have watched these fattened ants for a thousand years, red planet,
And my father before me has watched them a thousand more.
The ants have been building these walls since you first were seen in the skies,
Using the ashes of blood to block the sight of you.

Each time you rise, red planet, you are a little higher,
And a little nearer to us, the masses imprisoned in walls.
Your red is a little brighter, its color-shafts pierce our walls.
(That is why the fattened ants continually build them higher, Building wall upon wall with the burnt ashes of our blood.)
Thinking they can stop your progress by their puny efforts,

But someday, red planet, you will have attained
A spot so high in the heavens, so gleaming bright in the heavens,
That the ants will shriek with confusion, and hide themselves in their holes,
And the masses will rise from their earth-fetters, rise from a thousand hells,
As the walls of the burnt blood are shattered
By the impact of your light.

POETS OF AMERICA and SACCO, VANZETTI

AMERICA ARRAIGNED! Edited by Lucia Trent and Ralph Cheyney. Dean & Co., New York.

Reviewed by HENRY REICH, Jr.

THE cry of protest that swept the world against the execution of Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti and the wave of class bitterness that filled the hearts of workers everywhere upon the consummation of that murder, are perpetuated—so far as the poets are concerned—in "America Arraigned!" The Civil War and the French Revolution gave rise to songs of patriotism and partisanship. But perhaps never before in history has a single world event inspired so much poetry as the case of these two martyrs to the cause of labor. This anthology embraces most of the important poems written on the subject.

Some sixty poets are represented in the volume, which is divided into three parts: "Before Governor Fuller and His Advisory Commission Refused to Interfere," "After Intercession was Refused but Before the Crucifixion," and "After the Crucifixion." Certain of the poems are pointed out as contributing something of literary value as well as of propaganda value to the book. Perhaps the finest poem from these two points of view is that of A. B. Magil. His "Murder at Midnight," which originally appeared in the Daily Worker, is a vital and highly effective piece of work. It contains such a cry as this:

Go back, slaves, go back.
Go back to the factories, the dancing machines.
Go back dancing slaves.

Noon.
(The sun is a big round brass spitoon.)
Life seethes, blown up.
Collapses like a pricked balloon.
Night.
"Abraham Lincoln freed the slaves."

Another poem that stands out is "They are Dead Now" by John Dos Pasos, beginning "This isn't a poem" and concluding "Make a poem of that if you dare," with an interlude on what men think about in prison and something of the aftermath of the murder. James Rorty's "Gentlemen of Massachusetts" is an excellent piece of invective:

Understand this, you bleak-hearts, you gray impostors, you wisps, you spectres, half-born, death-elected;
No man votes death to another; self given, that cup, and you—
Seven years we pled and pled with you; we said:
"This blood you crave is poison, this for you and yours the final steep
"Gulf to oblivion, why so fast, old apes? The tiger Tomorrow has smelled you, the sky
"Breeds vultures, though you sow a hundred Christs on every hill
"Death is your harvest, it will not be long. . . . "

Among others contributing excellent material are Lola Ridge, Edna St. Vincent Millay and Joseph T. Shipley. Considering the high standing in the literary world of some of the other contributors, their poems are rather disappointing. This applies to Alfred Kreymborg, Witter Bynner, Arthur Davison Ficke, Kathleen Millay, Countee Cullen, John Gould Fletcher, and the compilers of the anthology, Ralph Cheyney and Lucia Trent.

One of the finest contributions to the book is not a poem at all. It is a statement by William Ellery Leonard in which he voices his regret that he is unable, on account of ill health, to participate in the anthology with a poem in "tribute to those two brave and noble spirits, Sacco and Vanzetti." He says: "I would not seem by my silence to give consent to this terrible deed—terrible for its social implications of contemporary upper class stupidity and smugness, even more for its fierce moment of injustice and cruelty."

To the compilers of the anthology must be given credit for preserving a unique and invaluable poetic record of the Sacco and Vanzetti case. Some of these poems will live along with the martyrs in the memory of the working class which so recently demonstrated that Sacco and Vanzetti are still alive and an active force in the struggles of labor.

PAULI IS A "SUCCESS"

By DORA AZERSKY.

PAULI was American born and bred in the poorest, dingiest section of New York's east side. Her home had that mouldy smell which indicates dire poverty, her parents, religious fanatics belonging to an ancient world. In such surroundings Pauli grew up, far from anything expressive of beauty, of sunshine, of anything pertaining to modern ideas or to progress, and certainly far from entertaining any free, independent thoughts.

Although very young, she is searching for work. Thru the many streets of New York, day after day she drags herself in search of a much coveted job. Days of eager, frantic search and monotonous evenings of brooding and disappointment in her crowded, poverty-stricken east side home. Pauli had an inexhaustible patience. Today was unsuccessful, tomorrow, maybe? But, what did tomorrow have in store? The same dark, bitter search and suspense, and disappointment.

But Pauli must not protest against the sweet uses of adversity. Her mother and her teacher taught her to accept everything without a murmur. She is obedient, there is no rebellion in her passive nature. Her mother and teacher could not be wrong, their teachings are unassailable. Her mother is so much older and wiser than she, and her teacher—a teacher knows everything. Pauli idolizes her mother and her teacher and does not question their counsel. She is a true product of non-resistance.

A LONG time passed, and Pauli finally obtained employment. Now she is surely satisfied. Has she no cause to be? She is earning her own living and can hold her head up. The world has been good to her. At no time does she talk of the hardships she encounters in the shop nor of her needs at home. She appears always satisfied, and when asked, replies, "Why should I kick? I am satisfied."

Once Pauli came into the shop without her usual cheerfulness, and suddenly she commenced unloading her mind. Her work-mates were not far removed from her general way of looking at things and were in accord with her unconcern. Pauli related the hard struggle they had at home to make ends meet and ended by relating in a sad tone, "Last night none of us slept a wink. Father coughed and coughed, but this morning he went to work. He earns so little now, and if his cough gets any worse he may lose his job yet."

I ask her, "What do you say now, Pauli?" and await an answer.

"Oh, I can't kick!" she replied.

Early childhood training triumphed.

'Machinal' Due at Plymouth Theatre Next Thursday Night

ARTHUR HOPKINS will bring his first production of the season, "Machinal," into the Plymouth Theatre next Thursday evening. This is a play by Sophie Treadwell in two parts and ten scenes, modernistic in treatment. In this production an effort is made to liberate the stage from routine settings, with the atmosphere suggested largely by lighting. The method of staging was designed by Robert Edmond Jones.

There will be a company of twenty in "Machinal," with the principal part being played by Zita Johann, and other important parts by Jean Adair, Clark Gable, George Stillwell and Charles Kennedy.

"The Trial of Mary Dugan" will close its run at the Sam H. Harris Theatre tonight and move to the Century on Monday for a four weeks' engagement. The Bayard Veiller melodrama began its career here on Sept. 19 at the National.

Horace Liveright's first musical production, "The Dagger and the Rose," a comic opera based on "The Firebrand" by Edwin Justus Mayer, will be given its first performance Monday evening at the Apollo Theatre in Atlantic City. After one week's engagement it will move to the Erlanger Theatre, Philadelphia, for two weeks, and will open here at the Erlanger Theatre Monday evening, Sept. 24.

"Luckee Girl" is the new title of "A Good Fellow," the musical farce based on the French, "Un Bon Garcon," now in rehearsal under the direction of the Messrs. Shubert. The cast includes Irene Dunne, Billy House, Harry Puck, Josephine Drake, Doris Vinton and Frank Lawler. The production will have its first showing in Atlantic City Monday.

"Dawn," with Sybil Thorndike playing the role of Edith Cavell, now at the Cameo Theatre, will be held over a second week.

Columbia's special production, "Submarine," featuring Jack Holt, Dorothy Revier and Ralph Graves, opened at te Embassy Theatre last night.

KENNETH MacKENNA

Featured player in "The Big Pond," the new Middleton-Thomas comedy at the Bijou Theatre.

The 55th St. Playhouse will show Emil Jannings in "Peter the Great" for three days beginning today. On Tuesday and Wednesday the feature is "The Hunchback of Notre Dame" and Thursday and Friday, "Love Me and the World is Mine."

The cast includes: Mae Busch, Charles Farrell and Greta Nissen in support of the two principal players. "Fazil" is the screen version of "L'Insoumise," the Continental stage play by Pierre Frondaie.

HANdOuTS

When Cal Coolidge, the president-tial zero, was told that the power trust was getting its propaganda in the school books and favorable editorials in the papers by corrupt means he said he saw no reason for the federal government to interfere. Correct! If the power trust was unable to dope the school books or bribe the papers it would be time enough for Coolidge to enter the game and help them get results.

Getting Them Young

Paul A. Siple, Boy Scout of Erie, Pa., was selected by Byrd to add another uniform to his antarctic expedition. The capitalists use the boy scout organization to train the the young in military discipline so they'll be all ready for the next imperialistic blood bath which already reddens the horizon. Byrd's act will give the foul game a boost. Siple's daily kind deed while at the South pole will be sweeping the snow off the front porch and melting up a balloon of rum for Byrd, 8,000 of which will be taken along. This will prevent the pleasure loving commander feeling at all ill at ease while his employes are out selecting the proper icebergs to be brought home as scientific specimens.

It doesn't make much difference to a worker whether the bandit who robs him is left-handed or right-handed. It won't make the slightest difference whether Al or Herb is elected. A republican and a democrat are as similar as two police dogs both of whom jump when their master whistles. This seems to be understood by James G. Harvey who has just been elected mayor of Hazelton, Pa., on both the republican and democratic tickets.

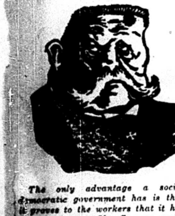
Eye On Russia



The only advantage a social democratic government has is that it proves to the workers that it has no advantage. The German social democratic government of Chancellor Mueller is going ahead with the cruiser building program the same as many other capitalist government. This has brought a storm of protest from the workers and has elated President Hindenberg above, who sees a chance for political ammunition. Hindenberg is a crafty reactionary whose policy has always been to get everything possible from the U. S. S. R. and at the same time prepare for War so as to be able to sell his strategic position at a high figure when the imperialist wolves begin the attack against the workers republic.

Gems of Learning

Glenn Frank, president of the University of Wisconsin:

"Chain stores cannot be put out of business by being dammed and criticized as Wall Street octopuses, nor can they be legislated out of business. Specialization, mass production, a larger turnover with small profits are the only effective counter weapons."

In other words all the worker needs to compete with the chain stores is a few million dollars.

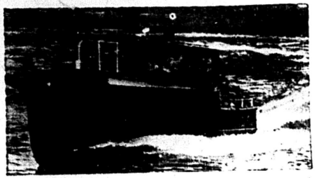
Professor E. M. Borchard of Yale, speaking of the Kellogg "peace" pact:

"Considering these reservations, it would be difficult to conceive of any war that nations have fought within the last century, or are likely to fight in the future, that cannot be accommodated under these exceptions. Far from constituting an outlawry of war, they constitute the most solemn sanction of specific wars that has ever been given to the world."

When a professor of Yale can see through the Kellogg peace pact it ought to be clear to everyone.

—M. C. H.

Also the Motor Boat Makers Profit



The profits of prohibition are not confined to the enforcers, the official grafters, the bootleggers, highjackers, lobbyists and other vermin on one side or the others who fatten on the illicit trade in liquor. The ship manufacturers also profit. Above, one of a fleet of rum chasers the government is launching.

tions refer to parts of the British Empire they are "superfluous" and if it means other regions, the participants in the treaty are entitled to know "where the freedom of action of the British government begins and where it ends."

In conclusion, the note said that in regard to this British reservation "the Soviet government cannot but consider it an attempt to use the pact itself as an instrument of imperialistic policy."

The Soviet Acceptance was handed to French Ambassador Herbette today in the lengthy and critical note accompanying it.

In the acceptance, the Soviet Government details its vigorous criticism of the anti-war treaty and the reservations, attempting to show how it is not capable of preventing wars. The attack centers on British reservations which are branded as "an attempt to use the Pact as an instrument of imperialis policy."

"Nevertheless," the note concludes," inasmuch as the treaty objectively imposes certain obligations of the powers through public opinion and gives the Soviet Government a new chance to put before all participants in the pact the question of the disarmament solution, which is the only guarantee of preventing war, the Soviet Government expresses its consent to sign the Pact."

propaganda issued by the two big parties of Wall Street and the little "socialist" party of the petty bourgeois, the Daily Worker devotes its pages to the workers' side of the class struggle and the election campaign waged by the Workers (Communist) Party to rally the masses for the struggle against capitalism

As the program of American imperialism expands, as the class struggle grows in sharpness, the Daily Worker will loom larger in the life of the American working class. Every effort must therefor be made to increase its power and effectiveness as a weapon of revolutionary labor in the class struggle

The Central Executive Committee of the Workers (Communist) Party has authorized the Management Committee of the Daily Worker to conduct a vigorous drive for 10,000 subscribers during the two remaining months of the election campaign.

Every Communist voter must become a reader of the Daily Worker

During the election campaign all workers who attend the meetings addressed by Foster and Gitlow and the state and local candidates on the Workers (Communist) Party ticket should become readers of the Daily Worker.

The Central Executive Committee calls on every member of the Workers (Communist) Party, every militant worker and every sympathizer to become a subscriber. The Daily Worker must be strengthened by increasing its circulation until it grows into a mass organ of the class struggle in the United States.

tions and to mobilize mass support for the Sept. 1 Picnic and Rally at Sans Souci Park at which Gitlow will be the main speaker.

60 Delegates Attend.

About 60 delegates were present, representing labor organizations in Luzerne and Lackawanna counties, when Emil Gardos, Subdistrict Organizer, opened the conference. Pointing to the presence of the police force, he said: "This conference is stopped in spite of the fact that we are in election times, when according to the so-called democracy, every party has the right to express itself before the people. It is stopped by the police which is proving itself to be the tool of the coal operators, because they will not allow a working class party to step forward, to expose the corruption of this system and to mobilize the workers to fight against it. . . . ."

At this point Chief Taylor stopped the speaker and using the half a dozen plainclothes men, chased out all the delegates from the hall, which is used by the Party as its office and meeting-place.

Boss Police.

This action of Chief of Police Taylor is further proof that the government and the republican and democratic parties are in the control of the coal operators who resort to all means to destroy the workers' organizations, who are putting up a fight for the interest of the exploited masses.

We want to state that this outrageous interference with the right of free speech and assemblage demonstrates the falsity of the so-called democracy and it is going to open the eyes of many workers who believe today in the capitalist parties. This breaking up of the conference is not going to stop us from carrying on our work. It means the redoubling of activities on our part.

The Subdistrict Committee will on the one hand take the necessary steps to test out the Mussolini-like action of Mayor Hart and Chief Taylor and will work with increased energy to spread our ideas to the workers, to call upon them to fight for their interests against the onslaught of the operators and to rally them behind the only political party of the workers, the Workers (Communist) Party of America.

The conference broken up by the police will be held on Aug. 31, at the same place and no efforts will be spared to make the picnic on Sans Souci with Benjamin Gitlow as main speaker a real success.

WILL CONTINUE RED TAG DAYS AT CAMPS, BEACHES

Workers Will Take Boxes Along

With hundreds of class-conscious workers leaving the city for an abbreviated vacation over the week-end tomorrow, the slogan "Take a Box Along" will be on everyone's lips, and the Red Tag Days of September 1, 2 and 3 will be continued at many camps and beaches where workers meet.

News of the anti-labor action of Tammany Hall's Department of Welfare in banning collections for the Red Campaign Fund of the Workers (Communist) Party has reached all those camps and beaches where workers spend their week-ends, and is having the effect of instituting a Red Week Campaign in those places which before did not have one. Tomorrow, Sunday and Monday, when the Red Tag Days will be held, will mark the final windup of the extended Red Week drive for funds for the Communist campaign.

Urging all workers to collect for and contribute to the Red Election Campaign Fund, the District Campaign Committee last night issued a statement emphasizing the urgent needs for funds. After stressing the importance of an appropriate answer to the Tammanyites in the form of more intensified collections, the statement continues: "Capitalist politicians order political maneuvers from Europe by phone, as the trans-Atlantic telephoned instructions to the republican boss of Allegheny County by W. L. Mellon, nephew of Andrew W. Mellon, the strikebreaker, but the workers of New York do not have to wait for instructions on how to act when the democratic machine orders their campaign stopped. The reaction of New York workers is swift and effective. The campaign for funds is now greater than ever before, and the Red Tag Days of September 1, 2 and 3 will give every worker the opportunity to strike a blow at the Tammany machine."

PUSH PLANS FOR TEXTILE PARADE

"Conciliation" Faker to Aid Batty

28,000 workers iin an anti-wage cut struggle here is marked by the entrance of the Federal Government into the situation in the person of Charles G. Wood, labor hating "conciliation commissioner" who recently issued a statement in Fall River denouncing the leaders of the Textile Mill Committee as the "friendish leaders of the Passaic strike."

After having come twice into the Fall River strike situation in an open attempt to break the textile strike there, Wood now comes into New Bedford to "settle" the strike by helping the reactionary Textile Council attempt to carry thru a betrayal. In Fall River Wood had mad a special trip into town to denounce the T. M. G. and to advocate the running out of town of the union leaders.

Denounce Wood.

William T. Murdoch, organizer of the Textile Workers Union of the Textile Mill Committees, yesterday issued a statement which says: "The union recognizes Wood as a faker and a state paid bosses' agent. Wood cheated the workers in the Golden Rule Hosiery Co. plant in Providence by organizing a fake cooperative scheme in which the workers were forced by the bosses to invest their savings only to have their money lost for them. Then Wood comes into the cotton strike situation by first trying to break the Fall River strike and now the New Bedford strike by organizing a sell out with Batty's aid."

and the candidates and the party platforms and policies.

Vote for Your Class!

"No working class woman should work for nor campaign for, or vote for candidates of the capitalist class.

The democratic, republican, farmer-Labor and the socialist parties all represent the capitalist class. The only difference between them is that they each represent a different group of the capitalist class.

The republican and democratic parties represent the finance and banking interests of the country. The socialist parties and the farmer-labor party represent the smaller capitalists and the rich farmers.

Vote Communist!

The Workers (Communist) Party is the only party representing the workers and working farmers of all races in the United States. The candidates of this party are the only ones that should receive the full support of the working class women.

All working women should read the platform of the Workers (Communist) Party, especially that part concerning the working women. The platform of the Workers Party makes the following demands:

1. Prohibition of night work, overtime and job work.
2. The law should provide for an allowance throughout the period of pregnancy and childbirth to the amount of full working wages.
3. The organization of working women into trade unions.
4. Elimination of all restrictions and discriminations against women in trade unions.
5. Equal pay for equal work, etc.

No working woman should attempt to remain neutral on political questions. The question of the very existence, the right to earn bread, is a political as well as an economical question and through political organization of the workers, the working class women together with working class men should demand and fight for political and economical rights.

Organization Meeting Called By Ohio Young Wkr's League, Sept. 23

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Aug. 31.—To orientate the League in Ohio to the importance of intensifying work in the shops and mines and build shop and mine nuclei, an organization conference has been called by the District Executive Committee for Sunday, September 23, at 10 a. m. All members working in large establishments, representatives from the mining section and Party members from the important nuclei in the district will attend the conference.

The steel workers in Warren and Youngstown will be represented by members of the League working in the mills who are preparing to report on the conditions of the workers in the important steel mills of those two cities. Other important centers, such as Akron, the rubber city; East Liverpool, pottery, and Cleveland will be represented.

UNION MEN TIE UP OVER TWENTY MILLS IN STRIKE

Victory For Workers Soon Is Seen

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Aug. 30.—A country-wide strike of union carpenters has tied up over 20 mills. The strike was called on Monday, when 300 carpenters and joiners walked out with the demand for a five-day week with the same wages that they have been getting for a five and a half day week.

The strike affects cabinetmakers, benchmen and machine men.

An early victory for the strikers was indicated when the head of the Building Materials Men's Association, the bosses' league, expressed anxiety for a settlement.

Charge Evangelist In Huge Swindling Game

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 30 (UP).—Aimee Semple McPherson, internationally known evangelist, was charged in a damage suit today with using her four-square Gospel and members of her Angelus Temple congregation as pawns in a real estate game from which she netted thousands of dollars.

The complaint, entered by S. S. Hahn for Mrs. M. W. Puryear, asserted that Mrs. McPherson entered into a conspiracy with H. L. Henry and C. E. Kenyon whereby she received ten per cent commission for all sales made through her in a Lake Tahoe sub-division.

The Communist Party On the Ballot In Bloody Pennsylvania

The "Ruhr" coal and iron region of Germany is famous the world over, both in labor history and in the intrigues of diplomats and the strategy of field marshalls. But it might not be too much to say that Pennsylvania is as significant to the economy of the United States of America—and to the labor history of this country—as the "Ruhr" is to all of Europe.

There are vast differences. From the point of view of labor history, we do not forget that the American working class has not had the same experiences as the brave German workers of the "Ruhr." But those who know the long history of the workers of the mine fields of Pennsylvania will look to Pennsylvania for some of the most glorious achievements of the working class in the coming years. Pennsylvania is "the guts" of American industry in at least as real a sense as any other section that could be named. The vast mass of workers in the basic industries of iron, steel and coal can truly be called the flower of the working class of America.

But for the very same reasons the capitalist lords of the United States have always used the greatest precautions, the most ingenious devices and the most ruthless methods to make a vast prison stockade of the steel-mill towns and mining camps. In this they have not been unsuccessful. Pittsburgh is notoriously a city of blood-and-iron police methods directed against the working class. And if the police department of that city can be regarded as a sort of a collective Harry Thaw on a rampage against everything that seemed to lead even in the direction of free expression from the masses, so also the trade union bureaucracy has long been best symbolized as that police department's little Evelyn.

Yet underneath the heartless official surface of the state of the coal and iron cossacks and the crass "culture" of the foulest type of America bourgeoisie exemplified by the Mellon family, there has always been present the fiery heart of the best that the American proletariat can show in men and women.

It is significant that in the Daily Worker today appear two news despatches from the state of Pennsylvania. The Workers (Communist) Party—the American section of the Communist International, the revolutionary party of the American working class—will be on the ballot this year in Pennsylvania. This is one of the news items. It is a big one. It means a better opportunity for the working class of Pennsylvania to mobilize itself, train itself, school itself in political questions so as to raise to a higher stage its class consciousness for the struggle towards the victory which will crown all its many years of struggle. Voting will not displace the cossacks, will not change the state power of the coal and steel barons into an instrument for the benefit of the working class, but the use of the election campaign in a revolutionary manner by the working class party which has no illusions of capitalist democracy, can bring to the workers of Pennsylvania an advantage in all their struggles. Is it an accident that the candidate heading the Communist national ticket as the red nominee for president and the candidate that heads the state ticket for United States senator, are respectively, the leader who organized the huge struggle of the Great Steel Strike, and a veteran steel worker who was associated with him in that struggle? The workers of Pennsylvania know that it is not accidental. They know this because the Workers (Communist) Party has been their one true, tireless leader throughout the terrific coal strike through which they have just gone, only to see their former union wrecked by the enemies of themselves and the Communists. It is no accident that the day's news of success in the campaign to get on the ballot tells us that the coal miners were chiefly those who put through the successful campaign to get the national ticket headed by Foster and Gitlow and the state ticket headed by the steel worker, William J. White, on the Pennsylvania ballot.

The other news item tells of the granting of the first charter for a local of the new Miners' Union. This also is momentous news. The great National Convention of the coal miners for the founding of the new national union to take the place of the now dead United Mine Workers, destroyed by John L. Lewis and his fellow servants of the capitalist class,—this great convention is now but a few days away. It will begin on September 9. It will be one of the most important events in all of the history of the American working class. There is nothing surprising that the new Union that is being born is a result of the struggle between the militant coal miners and the Communists, against the traitor Lewis, member of the same republican party which is bossed by Mellon, the archtype of the scab coal mine owner.

The whole working class of Pennsylvania has new opportunities to learn that the class struggle is a political struggle, that the picket line meets the state power of the bosses as its greatest and decisive enemy.

Congratulate the workers of Pennsylvania—and put the Communist ticket on the ballot in many more states!

They Studied with Guns in Hands

By SOL AUERBACH.

KIEV is a city of green and gold. Built on seven hills overlooking the Dneipr River, with its poplar lined streets climbing the hills, it is a breezy and vigorous city even in the summer. The people walking on the streets have a carefree and easy temper. In the evening they walk in crowds, singing and yelling to one anohter. In the Proletarian Garden, situated on a cliff high above the river, the workers of Kiev gather in the evening to listen to the orchestra or play on the recreation grounds.

The gilded domes of the churches blend with the rising and waving green of the streets into a harmony of gold and green in sunlight. The city feels like a summer resort to a temporary visitor who does not have to work while he enjoys the Dneipr and the color.

In the evening members of the Proletarian student organization, the Prolestud, join us on the way to the river front. We walk along with the crowds, down the hundreds of steps to the river shore. Kiev comes here on a summer evening, in bands of arm-clasping joyous people. They cross in large motor barges to the other shore of the river where they build small camp fires and splash about in the water.

Twenty-five of us embark on a [illegible] one-motored barge and chuck our way against the current up the river. The river is smooth as glass on the surface, hiding a swift and dangerous current. It is pitch dark over there and Kiev throws only tiny specks of light into the sky. Blotches of light climb up the Kiev hills. Small flickers of light on the bridge, from the camp-fires on the opposite shore, from the stars. The smoke from the power plant casts a shadow across the moon. The Ukrainian students sing revolutionary songs.

Yasha stands at the stern of the boat, an athletic and imposing figure. He is the son of a peasant and a student at the Kiev Polytech. He is a giant. Strength radiates from his open collar from the well-set neck, from the muscular forearm, from the square jaw, from the lively prancing eyes. He is a man cut for leadership, with a spirit and will that sways masses. He becomes our leader immediately, leading the songs, urging us into action.

Our boat is a volume of song. The Ukrainian and Russian students are swept away by the motion of the boat and the call of the night. They sing song after song with the full strength of their being, united by common experiences, common sufferings, common aims and ideals. They are songs that come deep, deep from the masses, full of power, full of vigor and triumph and also full of sadness.

Yasha stands at the stern of the barge, singing into the night. His voice is deep and clear. From one song to another he leads his comrades, his deep rich bass dominating all.

"You must excuse us for singing our heads off like this, comrades. You may not understand these songs in a foreign language. But you surely must understand their spirit, their real meaning. These songs means everything to us."

And he leads off on another.

Suddenly he breaks off the song. We are drawing near to some concrete pillars projecting out of the Dneipr. He points to them defiantly and says,

"Do you see those pillars? It is all that is left of a bridge. The bridge was blown up by the retreating Polish army. I was in the thick of the fight. I have taken part in seventeen battles in and around Kiev. The land of the workers and peasants is invincible! Workers of the world this is your home. Workers, workers of the world, your day of freedom is at hand. We are your mainstay, your rallying point, your hope!"

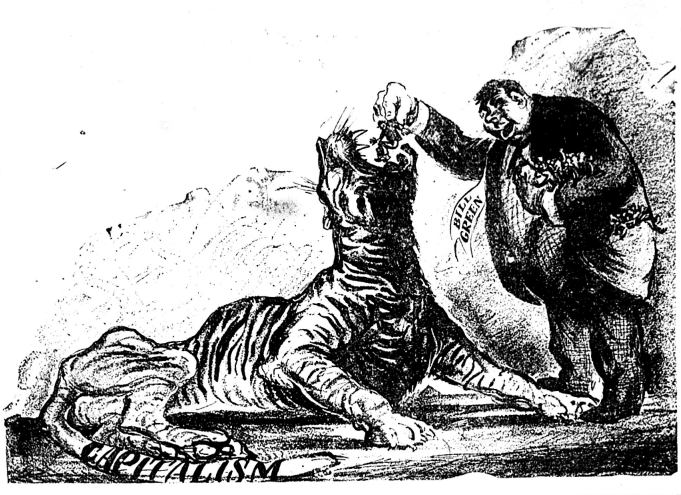
He must have fought with the same abandonment with which he sings. And yet Yasha is only one of the many young workers and peasants in the vanguard of the Red Army. Only one of the many students who studied with guns in their hands, studied so that they could be leaders in the construction of the proletarian fatherland.

PUPPET GOVERNMENTS

WASHINGTON, Aug. 30.—In answer to the invitation sent to 48 states to join Kellogg's pact to "outlaw war," only three petty governments have thus far indicated their unconditional acceptance. The governments are: Peru, Liberia and Luxembourg.

Denmark, Bolivia, Austria, Cuba and San Domingo have communicated that they intend to join in the future.

"REWARD YOUR FRIENDS AND PUNISH YOUR ENEMIES" By Fred Ellis



How "Socialist" Party Has "Developed"

By I. AMTER

At last we know whither the socialist party is going. "Thirty-six educators have issued a call to join the socialists. Appeal for formation of progressive party." This is the goal of the socialist party, section of the socialist labor international. A party of liberals, to put themselves at the "head of the liberal forces of the country."

Who and what are the liberals? They are the intellectuals, who interpret the struggles of the working class in the terms of emotion and petty-bourgeois interests. They are that section of the population which is being crowded economically and hardly finds a place in society.

Is there a place for them in American capitalist society? There is. Among these thirty-six men are men who help capitalism to develop more rapidly in the United States; but the majority of them are men and women who are unable to interpret the struggle that is taking place, who cannot reconcile it with their conception of ethics, and, in that some of them are teachers of religion, decry a number of the baser manifestations of the struggle.

"Industrial Peace."

These liborals are advocates of industrial peace. Why should in this age of reason, when "intellect has taken the place of force," as Matthew Woll would put it, why should in this day, force play any part in human relations? The worker wants peace, the employer wants peace; let them sit down around the table with the motto that industrial peace is the better method, a "give and take" policy, as has been instituted in the settlement of the coal situation in Colorado, and the class struggle will be eliminated.

This method eliminates nothing; it merely beclouds the issue for a short time, but the class struggle goes on none the less. Phrases will not stop the workers from struggling. Economic determinism will not keep the employers from forgetting industrial peace, when the question of profits and control arises. The liberal phantasy will not aid the intellectuals in solving the question. The struggle goes on—and intellectualism will be swept aside.

Prepare for War.

Despite the proposals of industrial peace, tho war industry is working at top speed. "America has the most formidable war gas producing industry in the world," so reports a renowned chemist. Surely this industry is not intended for the destruction of the American workers! Surely it is not intended for the destruction of the working class of another nation, which has arrived at the stage of industrial peace between the workers and the capitalist class! Mondism in England is "established." The British workers no longer hate or fear the British capitalists. All is honey and roses—and the war industry will close down.

This is the product of the propaganda of the intellectuals—the socialists who have "abolished" the class struggle! This is the vain position of the petty-bourgeoisie, which is being shoved to the wall. In despair of its position, it clamors for peace, for it dare not take the position of the working class, and it cannot entice more than a shred of recognition from the capitalist class. The intellectual who sees himself predestined to take over the leadership of society!

Will this class arrive at the signal position occupied by the leadership of the Independent Labor Party of Great Britain, all of whom, including MacDonald, are intellectuals? It will not. The MacDonalds became the heirs of the mass movement created by the Kerr Hardies, the movement that led to the formation and development of the Labor Party of Great Britain. The development of capitalism in Great Britain required sagacious leaders of the working class, who could swing the Labor Party from its labor and struggle trend to support of capitalist policies. The movement for struggle was tamed, and the Labor Party became respectable.

The Intellectuals.

In the United States there is no mass movement of the workers as yet in strongly organized form. The form of organization and of struggle is as yet the trade union in the United States, and it is fighting a fight for economic improvements. The intellectuals play little part in these struggles. The brutal rise of American capitalism, in sharp struggle with imperialisms that are declining and are fighting for their very existence, demands of American capitalism the application of rigid measures against the working class, which the intellectuals cannot ease.

There may be one Woll, but there cannot be many Wolls in the labor movement in the United States, for the organization of the workers, which means the organization of the unorganized, has taken the form of a determined struggle against the resolve of the employers to make America an open-shop country. Although the company union idea is growing and more millions of workers are being entraced in it, the experiences of the workers who have been in company unions are tending to explode the entire idea. While growing, the ground-work is decaying. The intellectual who is an exponent of industrial peace, and therefore of the company union, sees the flower bloom—and rot.

Illusions.

The socialist supports industrial peace—and, following in the wake of the League of Nations, spreads the illusion that the League will bring about the area of international peace. Yet in the name of the League of Nations, the world is near to international disaster. In the name of the League of Nations, the colonial peoples are being exploited as never before. It is a more refined method—and yet it is more brutal. Irak, India, Egypt, Nicaragua, the Philippines, Liberia—all of them present the same aspects. There is no industrial and no international peace, for we are living in the era of imperialist wars and the social revolution!

Has then the socialist—that is the intellectual—an enduring place in American capitalist society? His role will soon be spent. It is not unlikely that the socialist party, now transforming itself into an intellectual, liberal, progressive party, eliminating the struggle, and acting as the "peace-bringing" agent of the capitalist class among the workers, will thrive for a while in the United States. But this development will be of short duration.

Unemployment of millions—for the second year—rationalization, which means the pauperization and impoverishment of milions (the number of children working in the factories of the country is not decreasing but increasing), the industrialization of agriculture, the fear of old age, the expansion of industry with the diminishing scope of foreign markets, the intensification of competition with foreign countries, whose imperialist life depends on foreign markets for goods and capital—all of these conditions present no possibility of industrial or international peace.

Mass Struggle.

The American liberal and intellectual—the American socialist—has "developed" into what he essentially is—but too late. The struggle is too far advanced for the capitalist to be able to make much use of him. War and industrial and political strife are the order of the day. True, masses of workers are not consciously in this struggle.

The strike of the miners, textile workers and needle trades workers; the spontaneous strike of the auto workers and the Canton steel workers, indicate that the oppressive and threatening conditions no longer appeal to the workers. Struggle is in the air—and instead of acting as pacifier—the American intellectual, liberal—called "socialist"—falls into the category of third capitalist party, created by the petty-bourgeoisie, for the purpose not of smoothing industrial and political differences between the classes but of aiding the capitalist in exploiting and crushing the workers.

"Socialist" Treachery.

This is demonstrated in all the struggles mentioned. The role of the socialist party has amply proven this contention. The statement of the Reading, Pennsylvania, socialist party that if a strike should occur in that city, the socialist administration will "give the employers better protection than they have ever had before," is brilliant indication of it. This is the analysis of the "development" of the socialists in America.

So be it. This eliminates the socialists from militant participation in the struggle—except as a counter-revolutionary element. It clearly opens the eyes of the workers fighting for elementary demands to the role of the socialist party. Norman Thomas—yes, even that former worker, Jim Maurer—may shake hands with John D. Rockefeller and Andrew Mellon. All of them wish industrial peace—the peace of the graveyard, while the workers will struggle in the streets for bread.

Fighting Communists.

The coming winter will demonstrate the truth of these assertions. Unemployed workers will demand work. Children will be hungry. Workers in the factories and mills will fight for a little more, which will be denied them. Impelled by the growing competition with intense American rationalization, the capitalists of Europe will oppress their workers still more. This will react on America and produce a condition of sharper struggle. The socialist will play his true role—all flamboyant colors will be laid aside. A third capitalist party with the pious face and garb of the Reverend Thomas and professors of religion of the universities will be in the field—while the workers will recognize that, despite all professions, the struggle is here and must be fought out—and their leaders will not be the emasculated castrated black-robed socialist party, but the fighting, red-garbed Communists.

CANTON STEEL STRIKE

BY I. AMTER.

The government is seemingly highly interested in the strike. Settlement of the strike, however, will not be so easy for the company or the government. Chipping and grinding is very hard and dirty work. Americans refuse to do it. The work is done almost exclusively by foreigners—and in Canton primarily by Spaniards, Greeks and Italians. In Massillon, South Slavs, Bulgarians and Rumanians predominate. The work is of such a character that owing to the tool the worker uses—350 lbs of air pressure in it,—the hands swell up the first few weeks and resting the tool on the knee causes great pain.

Strategic Situation.

Scabs therefore are difficult to procure. Men come and go, for they cannot do the work—and the handling of the tool is dangerous. It is stated that one of the scabs did not hold the tool properly and it flew into the air. The result was almost a panic.

The Canton strike may be the beginning of a big movement throughout the steel industry. Even though the strategic situation of the men made their walk-out easy, the spirit that dominates the men indicates that it is not the consciousness that they can control the further production, but the fact that a spirit of militancy has entered them. They have been fooled three times, they are hard workers, and when they saw that the company through the superintendent did not keep faith, they felt that the only thing to do was to strike.

What was it that impelled the men immediately to organize? They met, elected their strike committee and proceeded to picket the mill. They issued leaflets, putting forth their demands and calling on the men in Massillon in the chipping and grinding departments to come out. They appealed to the men throughout the plant to cooperate. They performed all the maneuvers that trained fighters would go through.

Lessons of Strike.

What lesson must we learn from the strike—which is still on with full force, despite the terrorism of the police? One important lesson and that is that despite unemployment, wage cuts, terrorism, the workers are beginning to fight back. Spontaneous movements are taking place. Some of these movements are occurring in very important plants. Unquestionably, the Central Alloy Steel is turning out material for the War Department. Commercial airplanes are also eventually come under the jurisdiction of the War Department.

In any case, Communists must be alert: spontaneous movements have their advantages and drawbacks. Spontaneous movements may be led by agents provocateurs. They may be inspired by honest men with honest motives. Spontaneous movements, without any organization, are not the best of movements. But out of these movements, if the Communists are on the job, widespread movements may develop. This is the period of restlessness on the part of the workers. Miners, textile workers, needle trades workers, steel workers, railroaders. The next few months may witness extensive strikes.

Bankers, Merchants Receive Kellogg On Arrival In Dublin

DUBLIN, Irish Free State, Aug. 30.—A reception committee composed of Captain Nutting, governor of the Bank of Ireland, and the heads of the chambers of commerce, together with government officials, met Secretary Kellogg when he arrived on the battleship Detroit from Paris, where he had just affixed his signature on the pact to "outlaw war." Seventeen guns fired a salute as the cruiser approached.

An automobile cortege, closely guarded, took the party to Dublin from the port.

KRASSIN LEAVES.

MOSCOW, Aug. 30.—The Krassin, Soviet ice-breaker, which has been completely refueled and carries food sufficient for several months, is hastening its return to Kings Bay where it will resume the search for lost members of the Nobile expedition and the six missing rescuers including Amundsen.

Told You So

WHEN Fred Marvin, the ent prīs ing gentleman who fur she Red scares to the bankers an th Daughters of the American Re lu tion, at so much per scare, wa found guilty of libeling a prom in pacifist woman and soaked to he tune of $17,000 damages; it as feared that a worthy successo Fred would be hard to find. Matthew Woll, a vice-president the American Federation of Lab learning that Fred got all "secret" information about the d ings of the Communists from th columns of the Daily Worke stepped into the vacuum and is now peddling the same line of green goods that brought his predecessor much notoriety and some cash for several years.

WOLL is not a chicken-feed peddler of Communist "plots." He is a big merchant. Any newspaper that agrees to run Matt's picture and announce the fact that he is an official of the Civic Federation can have a brand new "plot" as soon as Matt has time to read the Daily Worker. If the Daily Worker publishes a resolution on new tactics in trade union work adopted at a congress of the Red International of Trade Unions, or a speech by Comrade Bukharin on the political situation in the United States, Matt begins to have labor pains and delivers a "Red Plot."

UNFORTUNATELY for Matt, the capitalist editors are beginning to get sick of his stuff. Marvin was more clever. Fred issued his scares through prominent society ladies, who had to be played up anyhow in deference to their status in society and their connections with the powers that be, behind department stores and corporations that carry on extensive advertising campaigns. The newspapers also know that Matt fears the Communist propaganda because his job is at stake. When the workers get wise to Matt and his fellow-labor fakers, they will no longer pay him a fat salary for betraying their interests to the employers and sitting down with the grand moguls of finance who spend most of their time thinking up schemes to break strikes and make the open-shop universal in the United States.

LABOR DAY is nearing, but nowadays it is robbed of whatever working class significance it had previously. Though the labor movement of the United States was the original proponent of May Day as the rallying day for the workers of the world, later on, its reactionary leaders set up the first Monday in September in opposition to the first of May. Until recent years the central labor bodies in the various cities held parades on Labor Day with whatever unions that happened to be on strike at the time, or, most recently, taking the part of honor in the march.

BUT, nowadays, strikes are tabooed by the reactionaries, and in most cities picnics have taken the place of parades. These affairs no longer have much if any labor character. High moguls of the state and city governments are invited guests and in the City of New York prominent militarists have places of honor. In Denver, Colorado, a scabby labor paper by the name of the Colorado Labor Advocate announces that the Denver Post of the American Legion is giving an American flag to the best uniformed union and that the labor-hating newspapers are giving a loving cup for the best float.

THIS is only another straw which shows which way the wind is blowing in the old trade unions. The bureaucracy has plumbed the depths of betrayal. They have gone over, body and soul, to the employing classes. Most of the reactionary labor leaders now have substantial stakes in the capitalist systems. Their loot is invested in industry and they are just as willing that the workers should be exploited and kept tamely at the machine as the bosses of industry.

THIS period marks a definite turning point in the history of the labor movement in this country, and, indeed, in every country. What it taking place here is an international phenomenon. It is true that in Europe the reactionary trade union and political leaders of socialist and labor parties parrot a more radical phraseology, but, in practice, they are all of the same stripe. Social democrats in Europe, leaders of the British labor party and the bureaucrats of the American Federation of Labor are all playing the same role, serving the interests of imperialism in their own countries.

Arrest Of Six Refugees Expected

The arrest of the six Mexican refugees who are sought by United States authorities for complicity in the assassination of General Obregon and for planting bombs in the Mexican chamber of deputies was reported to be imminent by George J. Mintzer, head of the criminal bureau of the United States.

The six are Jose A. Jiminez, a Catholic priest; Manuel Trejo Morales, Oswaldo Rables Ochoa, Anieta Ortega, Joaquin Navarro Becerra and Enrique M. Zepeda. They are believed to have fled over the border immediately after Jose Toral had killed Obregon.

MOKE AND GAS FILL CARS AS PANIC RESULTS

Passengers Recall the Times Square Disaster

Blame Bad Equipment

More than 50 persons were overcome by smoke and gaseous fumes, several of them being taken to hospitals, and three hundred passengers were thrown into a panic yesterday when the breaking of a contact shoe of the fourth car of a five-car I. R. T. subway train, bound from Grand Central terminal to Astoria, caused a short circuit while the train was running thru the East River tube, about 700 feet west of the Long Island City shore.

Undermanned trains and archaic equipment is said to have contributed to the accident. Officials of the Interborough have thus far escaped prosecution for their criminal negligence of the Times Square accident of August 24.

With [illegible] of this disaster, in which [illegible] were killed and over 100 mutilated fresh in their minds, the passengers yesterday fought to escape from the gas-filled cars.

The short circuit automatically shut off the power and left the train and tube in total darkness, except for a few emergency lights which feebly flickered in the smoke-filled tube.

Passengers scrambled frantically over one another in their effort to reach the safety of the open air.

The panic was increased when lack of power delayed the opening of the doors. Men and women screamed, pounding their fists on the doors.

The train was finally coasted toward the emergency exit at Fourth and West Sts., on the Long Island City side.

Volunteers immediately began the work of picking up the unconscious passengers and passing them to rescue squads along the tracks.

A few minutes later ambulances arrived from St. John's, Flushing, Greenpoint, Reception and Metropolitan Hospitals.

Mrs. Stella Fanning, 23, was among the most seriously injured, ambulance attaches at the mouth of the tube reported. She was overcome by carbon monoxide fumes and had to be carried into the open where a pulmoter was needed to restore her to consciousness.

CLIMAX TODAY OF RED COLLECTIONS

Thousands Will Cover Entire City

Workers throughout the city will today participate in the climax of the two weeks' Red Election drive for the Communist campaign fund, under the direction of District 2, Workers (Communist) Party.

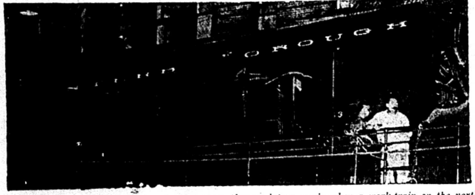
Hundreds of collection boxes and lists in the hands of workers in all parts of Greater New York will demonstrate the determination to carry on the campaign despite attempts of the Tammany police to interfere with it, it was announced.

To Cover City.

Volunteers will invade hundreds of shops, factories, offices and working-class districts throughout the city in an effort to build up the election fund of the Workers Party which this year is carrying on a most energetic campaign.

Workers are urged to report at one of the thirty Tag Day stations in various parts of the city and go out with their collection boxes. They are urged by the district offices of the Party to turn today "into a real [illegible] Day" by working for the candidates and platform of the only workers' political party in existence.

One Week After I. R. T. Disaster; Elevated Crash



Four persons were injured and many were thrown into a panic when a work-train on the northbound track, at Jackson Ave., sideswiped a subway train from the Bronx and crashed thru a wooden coach. Fearing another Times Square catastrophe, the passengers nearly rioted in panic. Above, the debris of the wooden coach.

2,000 DENOUNCE HORTHY FASCIST TERROR AT MEET

Karolyi Proves Lame Duck in Speech

Jamming a meeting at the Central Opera House, 67th St. and 3rd Ave. last night, more than 2,000 persons unanimously adopted a resolution protesting against the Horthy terror in Hungary and demanding the unconditional release of all class war prisoners.

The chief speaker at the meeting, which was arranged by the Anti-Horthy League of America, was Count Michael Karolyi, who is in this country by grace of a 60 hours dispensation while on his way from Mexico to Spain.

Karolyi Proves Dud.

Karolyi, as on the day before when he spoke at Wall and Broad Sts., proved to be a dud as far as the expectations of his audience were concerned because of his concern over not offending the immigration authorities. The first president of the bourgeois Hungarian republic, who was deposed by the workers' and peasants' revolution in 1919 under Bela Kun, limited himself to flowery appeals for old-fashioned "liberalism" and "tolerance" and "the ideals of the founders of the American republic."

In striking contrast to Karolyi's timid, watery words was the speech of Leo Rostovsky, representing the Workers (Communist) Party, who spoke after the Count. Rostovsky exposed the hollowness and futility of the Karolyi brand of liberalism, pointed out the role of the Hungarian Communist Party in the proletarian revolution and declared that only the workers and peasants of Hungary, under the leadership of the Communist Party, could liberate the country from the yoke of the terrorist Horthy-Bethlen regime.

Applaud Workers' Rule.

Rostovsky was warmly applauded. Tremendous applause also greeted Gustav Meyer, president of the Workmen's Sick Benevolent Association, another of the speakers, when he urged the overthrow of the present fascist regime and the establishment of a workers' and peasants' government.

The formation by the agents of Horthy of a fascist Hungarian organization in this country was an-

SUGAR ADDS TO DEATHS.

Increased consumption of sugar is given as the possible explanation of the increased death rate from diabetes during the past thirty years, in a bulletin just issued by the New York health department.

Canton Steel Strikers to Organize Aid

CANTON, Ohio, Sept. 2.—The Central Alloy Steel Mill Committee and the International Labor Defense have called a conference for Sept. 4 for the purpose of discussing ways and means to raise relief for the striking steel workers who have been out for four weeks.

A number of organizations, besides those sponsoring the conference will participate in the relief meeting, and it is expected that agencies will be established within a week to alleviate some of the most needy cases among the strikers and their families.

E. C. Smith, superintendent of the Central Alloy Mill, has announced that he will starve the men back to work and they are determined to defeat them on the hunger line, in spite of the pinch of want that many of the families are suffering.

The conference will also discuss questions of labor defense. Twenty-eight strikers have been arrested to date, three of whom are serving sentences in the workhouse. Means of aiding all these class-war victims will also form a part of the discussion.

MILITARY FEAR ANTI-WAR MEET

Arrest Cowl of Y.W.L. in Minneapolis

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Aug. 28 (By Mail).—Carl Cowl, ex-National Guardsman speaking for the Young Workers League at Bridge Square last Saturday night was arrested and charged with inciting to riot. This action is known to have been taken in response to the demand of the military department that the police "get" those who distributed "inflammatory" literature to the CMTC students at Fort Snelling. The meeting called to expose the fake peace proposals of the government and the so-called friends of labor in office, was infested with plainclothesmen, detectives, policemen and finally the gun squad itself, sent in response to the open letter. Many CMTC students were pre-

MINE DELEGATES READY

Come from All U.S. to Build New Union

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Sept. 2.—"Our automobiles have new tires, and we're all set for the trip!" writes a delegate to the National Miners' Convention, from Oklahoma. "We have no money in our treasury because we've been striking for sixteen months," a delegate from the Allegheny Valley, Pennsylvania, writes, "please send us a little money if you can for fare. If you haven't got it, we'll walk. Anyway, I'll see you at the National Miners' Convention!"

From the anthracite comes, "The Lattimer Local was sure proud of being the first anthracite local to send in credentials for the convention. We're gladder still to see the other locals following us!" "I can't tell you how the boys here are looking forward to building a new Miners' Union and throwing out the
